First Session.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION.

SENATE.

MONDAY, December 7, 1891.

The first Monday of December being the day prescribed by the Constitution of the United States for the annual meeting of Congress, the first session of the Fifty-second Congress commenced this day.

The Senate assembled in its Chamber at the Capitol.

The VICE-PRESIDENT of the United States (Mr. LEVI P. MORTON, of the State of New York) took the chair at 12 o'clock noon, and said:

It gives the Chair great pleasure to extend a hearty welcome to the members of this body, who this day resume their official duties after a season of rest from their arduous labor. This being the day designated by the Constitution of the United States for the annual meeting of Congress, the Senate pursuant thereto is now in session and will come to order.

PRAYER.

Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D., Chaplain to the Senate, offered the following prayer:

God of our fathers and our God, we seek Thy benediction as we come, amid abounding mercy, to the responsibilities of this hour. Accept our thanks for Thy kind leading, for the blessing that has abode upon us in our persons, in our families, and in our land.

We thank Thee for abundant harvests, for the rewards of labor, for freedom from pestilence, and for continued peace and prosperity in the nation. Thou hast not thus dealt, O Lord, with any other people. We seek Thy continued favor. Make us worthy of our rich heritage, hallowed by the faith and piety, the tears and blood of our fathers.

Bless Thy servants, the President and Vice-President, with the Cabinet council. Pour upon the two Houses of Congress very richly of Thy spirit. Have in Thy holy keeping these Thy servants, blessing them in their persons, in their families, in their social and public relations, so guiding by Thy divine counsel that they may have peace, and that our land may be blessed.

Bless us in the great family of nations, causing our judges to decree righteous judgments, and making the defenders of the nation to be governed by the spirit of the Prince of Peace.

God of Abraham and of Isaac and of Jacob, the God of the nations of the earth, so highly exalting us, look in mercy upon the oppressed of all lands. Pity Thine own ancient people, persecuted and scattered, and so animate their hearts and the hearts of all in authority everywhere with the truth and justice and righteousness of the Prince of Peace that all nations and peoples may soon enjoy the blessings which we so abundantly possess.

Guide us this day by Thy divine counsel. Grant richly of Thy grace and of Thy peace. Restrain from all evil and quicken us in all good, using us for Thy glory, so that finally, when the end of this earthly conflict shall come, we may be gathered to the enjoyment of Thy people's rest.

Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done upon earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen.

RESIGNATIONS OF SENATORS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communications; which were read, and ordered to lie on the table:

UNITED STATES SENATE, Washington, D. C., April 6, 1891.

SIR: It becomes my duty to inform you that I have sent to the governor of the State of Vermont my resignation of the office of Senator of the United States, to take effect on the 1st day of November next. Accept, sir, for yourself and the Senate, my parting salutations, embracing personal good wishes for all its members and a confident good hope for the future as "the sheet anchor of the Republic."

I am, sir, very respectfully, yours,

GEO. F. EDMUNDS.

The Hon. LEVI P. MORTON,

*Vice-President of the United States,

PALESTINE, TEX., April 24, 1891.

MY DEAR SIR: Having agreed to accept a place on the railroad commission of Texas, and having tendered my resignation to the governor of the State of Texas of the position of a Senator in the Congress of the United States, to take effect on the 10th of June next, it becomes my duty to advise you of the fact of my resignation.

From a sense of duty to the State and people of Texas I with regret terminate my connection with the Senate to accept a position of less dignity and of less emoluments. And I leave the Senate with my sincerest wishes for the welfare and happiness of yourself and each individual Senator; for my relations have been pleasant with all.

Very truly and respectfully,

JOHN H. REAGAN.

Hon. LEVI P. MORTON,

*Vice-President of the United States,

CREDENTIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented the credentials of Horace Chilton, appointed by the governor of the State of Texas a Senator from that State, to fill, until the next meeting of the Legislature thereof, the vacancy caused by the resignation of John H. Reagan in the term ending March 3, 1893; which were read, and ordered to be filed.

He also presented the credentials of Charles N. Felton, chosen by the Legislature of California a Senator from that State to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George Hearst in the term ending March 3, 1893; which were read, and ordered to be filed.

He also presented the credentials of Redfield Proctor, appointed by the governor of the State of Vermont a Senator from that State, to fill, until the next meeting of the Legislature thereof, the vacancy caused by the resignation of George F. Edmunds in the term ending March 3, 1893; which were read, and ordered to be filed.

He also presented the credentials of John M. Palmer, chosen by the Legislature of Illinois a Senator from that State for the term beginning March 4, 1891; which were read, and ordered to be filed.

Mr. GORMAN presented the credentials of Charles H. Gibson, appointed by the governor of the State of Maryland a Senator from that State, to fill, until the next meeting of the Legislature thereof, the vacancy caused by the death of Ephraim K. Wilson in the term ending March 3, 1897; which were read, and ordered to be filed.

SENATOR FROM FLORIDA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented the credentials of Wilkinson Call, chosen by the Legislature of Florida a Senator from that State for the term beginning March 4, 1891; which were read, as follows:

Transcript of the proceedings of the Legislature of Florida in joint assembly in the election of Wilkinson Call to the Senate of the United States for the term of six years commencing March 4, 1891. Certified under the great seal of the State.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. Tallahassee, Fla., July 26, 1891.

On motion of Mr. Hutchinson, a committee, consisting of Messrs. Hutchinson, Carter, and Atkinson, was appointed to inform the senate that the house of representatives was ready to receive it in joint session.

After a brief absence the committee reported that the duty assigned had been performed, and was discharged.

The senate entered the house and the president thereof took the chair.

The roll of the senate being called, the following senators were present: Mr. President, Messrs. Broome, Bryant, Calhoun, Coulter, Crosby, Pihonog, Roseborough, Smith of thirtieth, Summers, Swearingen, Thomas, Wads worth, Wolfe and Yancey—15.

The roll of the house being called, the following members were present:

Mr. Speaker, Messrs. Bates, Berry, Bethel, Beville, Blitch of Levy, Bogue, Brown, Buford, Canty, Carleton, Carson, Clark, Dimick, Dykes, Goode, Haddock, Hicks, High, Hutchinson, Johns, King, Lavender, McCaskill, Monroe, Morgan, Morris, Overstreet, Peacock, Pittman, Priest, Rye, Saulsbury, Stapler, Sumnerlin, Thompson, Ushia, Vann, and Wilson—39.

Total number of senators and members of the house of representatives present in joint session 54.

The chair announced that a majority of all the members elected to both houses of the Legislature being present, a quorum was present and ready to proceed to business.

Upon this announcement by the chair, Mr. Dougherty appealed from the decision of the chair.

Upon a vote of the joint session the decision of the chair was sustained.

On motion of Mr. Wolfe, the reading of the journal was dispensed with, and the journal approved.

Mr. Bogue moved that the joint session proceed to ballot for a United States Senator.

Which was agreed to.

The roll of the senate being called, the following was the vote:

For Wilkinson Call: Mr. President, Messrs. Broome, Bryant, Coulter, Crosby, Pihonog, Roseborough, Smith of thirtieth, Summers, Swearingen, Thomas, Wadsworth, Wolfe, and Yancey—14.

Senator Calhoun was paired with Senator McKinne, and stated if not so paired he would gladly vote for Wilkinson Call.

The roll of the house being called, the following was the vote:

For Wilkinson Call: Mr. Speaker, Messrs. Bates, Berry, Bethel, Blitch of Levy, Bogue, Brown, Buford, Canty, Carleton, Carson, Clark, Dimick, Dykes, Goode, Haddock, Hicks, Hutchinson, Johns, King, Lavender, McCaskill, Monroe, Morgan, Morris, Overstreet, Peacock, Pittman, Priest, Rye, Saulsbury, Stapler, Sumnerlin, Thompson, Ushia, Vann, and Wilson—37.

For D. H. Mays: Mr. High—1.

The whole number of votes cast was 52, of which Wilkinson Call received 51 votes and Darnett H. Mays received 1 vote.

The chair announced that Hon. Wilkinson Call having received a majority of all the votes of the joint Assembly, and a majority of all the members elected to both houses being present and voting, he is duly elected a United States Senator for the term beginning March 4, 1891.

Mr. Shine moved that the joint session adjourn sine die.

Which was not agreed to.

On motion of Senator Yancey that a committee consisting of three be appointed to inform Hon. Wilkinson Call of his election as United States Senator and invite him to address the joint session, the president of the joint session appointed Messrs. Yancey, Clark, and Haddock such committee.

After a brief absence, the committee returned with Hon. Wilkinson Call, who was introduced by the president of the joint session and addressed the joint session.

On motion of Mr. Hicks, Messrs. Hicks, Monroe, and Calhoun were appointed to wait upon the governor and to notify him of the election of Wilkinson Call to the United States Senate from the 4th of March, 1891.

On motion of Senator Yancey, the joint session took a recess for five minutes.

After a five minutes recess the joint session was called to order.

After a brief absence the committee appointed to inform the governor of the election of the Hon. Wilkinson Call as United States Senator appeared at the bar of the house and reported that they had visited the governor's office and did not find the governor in.

On motion of Senator Yancey, the journal was read and corrected.

Mr. Yancey moved that the joint session do now adjourn.

Which was agreed to, and the joint session adjourned.

The speaker declared the house adjourned until 3 o'clock p. m.

STATE OF FLORIDA.

Office Secretary of State, &c.

I, Jno. L. Crawford, secretary of state, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a correct transcript of the original now on file in this office.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the State of Florida, at Tallahassee, the capital, this 28th day of July, A. D. 1891.

[SEAL.] JNO. L. CRAWFORD,
Secretary of State.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I present the credentials of Hon. Robert H. M. Davidson, who was on the 22d day of September last appointed by the governor of Florida to be a Senator from the State of Florida, to fill an alleged vacancy occasioned by the termination of the term of Wilkinson Call. This appointment is attested by the signature of the governor, the secretary of state, and the great seal of the State.

The credentials just read present the questions as between these claimants to the seat. My own opinion is that the proper course to be pursued is to refer the credentials of both claimants to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, so that the questions may be decided in the light of a thorough investigation of them. But for the present I will ask that both credentials lie upon the table to-day, with the probability that I shall on to-morrow move their reference to the committee, when such committee shall be appointed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection it will be so ordered.

Mr. HARRIS. Let the credentials be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The credentials will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF FLORIDA

To all whom these presents may come, greeting.

Whereas the term of office of Wilkinson Call as United States Senator from Florida expired on the 31 day of March, A. D. 1891, during the recess of the Legislature of said State, whereby a vacancy then happened in the office of United States Senator from Florida during such recess as aforesaid; and

Whereas a Senator has not been chosen by the Legislature of the State of Florida to fill such vacancy; and

Whereas the Legislature of the State of Florida is not now in session and a recess thereof exists at this time;

Now, therefore, I, Francis P. Fleming, governor of the State of Florida, by virtue of the authority in me vested by the Constitution of the United States, have appointed, and by these presents do hereby appoint Robert H. M. Davidson to be United States Senator from the State of Florida until the next meeting of the Legislature of the State of Florida.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed, at Tallahassee, the capital, this 23d day of September, A. D. 1891, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and sixteenth year.

FRANCIS P. FLEMING,
Governor of Florida.

In obedience to the opinion and the decision of the supreme court of Florida, and the peremptory writ thereon, to me issued this day in the case of "The State of Florida et al. Francis P. Fleming, governor, plaintiff, vs. John L. Crawford, secretary of state, defendant," I have affixed the great seal of the State, at Tallahassee, the capital, this 17th day of November, A. D. 1891, hereto.

Attest:

[SEAL.]

JOHN L. CRAWFORD,
Secretary of State.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, I desire simply to remark that I do not now object to the request made by the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS] in reference to the credentials of Mr. Call and the alleged credentials of Mr. Davidson, with the understanding that that matter shall come up to-morrow.

Whilst I am on my feet I might as well say that after a very careful examination into that case, both as to the law and the facts, I find that there is no controversy as to the facts, and therefore no necessity for an investigation by the Committee on Privileges and Elections as to the facts. And as to the law of the case, the statute is plain on its face. Besides, it has received the judicial determination of this body. So that there now remains neither a question of law nor a question of fact about which the attention of the committee can be invoked by this body.

One word more. The constitutional right of a State to be represented when she has properly selected her representative in this body is as binding on us to recognize for to-day as for to-morrow.

The equality of the States in this body ought not to be impaired for one single hour when there is no serious question about which there can be any difference among Senators who have looked into the matter. However, in deference to my distinguished friend from Tennessee, I will make no objection to the passing of the case until to-morrow, but I give notice that then I shall insist that the Senate have both the facts and the law, without a single controversy as to either, and ought to proceed at once to seat the legally elected Senator from the State of Florida.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, the statement of the governor of Florida, showing the ground on which he relies to support his authority to make an appointment after the Legislature of his State had elected a Senator, in form certainly, has been sent to me during the vacation, and I suppose it has been sent to all the members of the Senate. I have carefully examined it, as has the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE], and so far as I can discover it presents simply a question of the constitutionality and construction of the existing law of Congress for the election of Senators. It is a question which has been before the Senate heretofore, and has always, so far as I am aware, been decided in the same way; indeed, I am not aware that there is a difference of opinion in the Senate in regard to that question. Certainly what the Senator from Mississippi says as to the constitutional right of every State to be equally represented here has a great deal of weight. If it shall turn out that the gentleman who filled the seat in the Senate for the recent term is entitled to it, justice to him would require that he should have his title declared at as early a day as possible, in order that his proper share of the duties of the Senate upon committee and elsewhere may be assigned to and performed by him.

It occurred to me, therefore, that after the oath had been administered to the new Senators it might be proper to move to take up the Florida case at that time, and then it can go over until to-morrow under the rule, if any single Senator prefers. If, in the course of any discussion which may arise upon it to-morrow, it shall turn out that there is such a grave question in the mind of any single Senator as seems to require the service of a committee in aiding us to settle it, I for one should be in favor of the reference; but if, as I suppose, it shall turn out that there is no such question, I do not see why the Senate should not then go on to deal with it and to dispose of it without reference to a committee.

Mr. GEORGE. I entirely agree with what has been said by the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR]. There is only one observation which I desire to make, so that Senators may reflect upon it.

This certificate of the secretary of the State, which is unimpeached and unimpeachable, showing that an election was held, whether legal or not, at this point does establish the fact that the forms of an election were gone through with. That being on the record, that being before the Senate, then the action of the governor appears before us in this light, that he has usurped the constitutional power which has been vested by the Constitution in this body to judge of the election and qualifications of its own members, and has undertaken for this body to decide that grave question for himself, and having decided that question, then to usurp the further power of appointing a member of this body.

I desire simply to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that, an election having been held, it was not competent for the governor of Florida to usurp the functions vested by the Constitution in this body to decide upon the regularity of that election.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The credentials will lie on the table, in the absence of objection.

SWEARING IN OF SENATORS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Senators whose credentials have been heretofore recorded and placed on the files of the Senate and those whose credentials have been presented to-day will please come forward in groups of four to receive the oath of office.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. President, before the oath of office is administered to Mr. Brice as a Senator from Ohio, I desire to say that it is contended by large numbers of the citizens of Ohio that he was not an inhabitant of that State when he was elected Senator and therefore not eligible to sit as a Senator from Ohio. I am advised that this contention will be presented to the Senate in due time. As the credentials of Mr. Brice are in due form, he is entitled, according to all the precedents I have been able to find, to admission to the Senate, subject to any contest as to his eligibility hereafter. I simply give this notice that there may be no waiver or misunderstanding in case the Legislature of Ohio or the people of Ohio should establish the fact to the satisfaction of the Senate that he was not an inhabitant of that State when elected.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The names of the Senators elect will now be read in alphabetical order.

The Chief Clerk read the names of—

William B. Allison, of the State of Iowa.

Joseph C. S. Blackburn, of the State of Kentucky.

Calvin S. Brice, of the State of Ohio.

James Donald Cameron, of the State of Pennsylvania.

The respective Senators elect whose names had been called came forward, and the oath prescribed by law was administered to them.

The Chief Clerk called the names of—

Horace Chilton, of the State of Texas.

Fred. T. Dubois, of the State of Idaho.

Charles N. Felton, of the State of California.

Jacob H. Gallinger, of the State of New Hampshire.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, I desire to say, before the oath of office is administered to Mr. Chilton, the Senator elect from Texas, that his case seems to me to present a very grave constitutional question, whether the governor of Texas was entitled to make the appointment in anticipation of the vacancy occasioned by Mr. Reagan's resignation, or whether, as was carefully and scrupulously done several times in the recent New Hampshire cases, the governor should have waited until the vacancy actually existed. For the reason, however, which has been already stated, that it is desirable that the representation of every State shall be full, I shall interpose no objection to administering the oath to that gentleman, but after the oath has been administered to him I shall move to refer the case to the Committee on Privileges and Elections to report as to the validity of the appointment.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I desire an opportunity to examine the credentials of Mr. Dubois as Senator elect from Idaho, and I ask that they lie upon the table until to-morrow.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The credentials have already been read and placed on file by previous action of the Senate.

Mr. CULLOM. I rose to state that the credentials of Mr. Dubois had been presented at a previous session of the Senate, referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported back, and placed on file. Under these circumstances, the credentials seeming to be entirely regular, I hope there will be no delay in allowing the Senator elect from that State to be sworn in.

So far as the request of the honorable Senator from Maine is concerned, that the credentials lie over until to-morrow, I am willing that they shall lie over until the other Senators are sworn in against whom there is no objection, if that course will be agreeable to him, and that we dispose of the case at that time.

Mr. HALE. I have no desire, Mr. President, to unduly delay this case on the swearing in of the new Senator from Idaho, if he is to be sworn in. A single objection, of course, will carry it over until to-morrow. I do not care what form that takes. I will ask at present that the Senator elect from Idaho shall not be sworn in with the others until after all the cases that are not excluded are disposed of.

Mr. CULLOM. I have no objection to that.

Mr. PLUMB. Let me make a suggestion to the Senator from Maine. This case, it seems to me, is on all fours with the case about which the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR] has just spoken, that of the Senator elect from Texas [Mr. Chilton], in reference to qualification; that is, the authority by which members sit in this body. If there be anything in the suggestion which the Senator from Massachusetts makes, to the effect that the Senate ought to be full, in the case of those persons who appear here for the purpose of admission, it must be just as strong in the case of Idaho as in the case of Texas. Therefore, it seems to me, following that precedent and the suggestion made by the chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, that the Senator from Idaho should be sworn in for the present, leaving the question to be considered afterwards as to the entire regularity of the proceedings of the Legislature by which he was chosen a Senator.

Mr. HALE. I do not seek to go into any controversy, and I do not know that there will be any controversy, about the swearing in of the Senator elect when the proper time comes, but for the present I object, so that the matter may go over until the undisputed cases have been acted upon by the members being sworn in.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senators whose names have been called, with the exception of the Senator elect from Idaho [Mr. Dubois], will please come forward and receive the oath of office.

The respective Senators elect whose names had been called (with the exception of Mr. Dubois) came forward, and the oath prescribed by law was administered to them.

The Chief Clerk called the names of—

Charles H. Gibson, of the State of Maryland.

John B. Gordon, of the State of Georgia.

Henry C. Hansbrough, of the State of North Dakota.

J. L. M. Irby, of the State of South Carolina.

As their names were called the respective Senators elect came forward, and the oath prescribed by law was administered to them.

The Chief Clerk called the names of—

James K. Jones, of the State of Arkansas.

John H. Mitchell, of the State of Oregon.

As their names were called the respective Senators elect (with the exception of Mr. Jones of Arkansas and Mr. Jones of Nevada, who were absent) came forward, and the oath prescribed by law was administered to them.

The Chief Clerk read the names of—

Justin S. Morrill, of the State of Vermont.

John M. Palmer, of the State of Illinois.

William A. Peffer, of the State of Kansas.

Orville H. Platt, of the State of Connecticut.

Redfield Proctor, of the State of Vermont.

As their names were called the respective Senators elect came forward, and the oath prescribed by law was administered to them.

The Chief Clerk read the names of—

James L. Pugh, of the State of Alabama.

Watson C. Squire, of the State of Washington.

Leland Stanford, of the State of California.

Henry M. Teller, of the State of Colorado.

As their names were called the respective Senators elect (with the exception of Mr. Stanford) came forward, and the oath prescribed by law was administered to them.

The Chief Clerk read the names of—

Zebulon B. Vance, of the State of North Carolina.

George G. Vest, of the State of Missouri.
 William F. Vilas, of the State of Wisconsin.
 Daniel W. Voorhees, of the State of Indiana.
 Edward D. White, of the State of Louisiana.
 As their names were called the respective Senators elect (with the exception of Mr. Vance) came forward, and the oath prescribed by law was administered to them.

NOTIFICATION TO THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. SHERMAN submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That a committee consisting of two members be appointed, to join such committee as may be appointed by the House of Representatives, to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of each House is assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the committee, and Messrs. SHERMAN and HARRIS were appointed.

NOTIFICATION TO THE HOUSE.

Mr. CAMERON submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary inform the House of Representatives that a quorum of the Senate is assembled, and that the Senate is ready to proceed to business.

HOUR OF MEETING.

Mr. CULLOM submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the hour of the daily meeting of the Senate be 12 o'clock meridian until otherwise ordered.

SENATOR FROM TEXAS.

Mr. HOAR. I move that the Committee on Privileges and Elections be directed to inquire into and report upon the circumstances and validity of the appointment of Mr. Chilton to a seat in the Senate from the State of Texas.

The motion was agreed to.

SENATORS FROM FLORIDA AND IDAHO.

Mr. HOAR. I move that Hon. Wilkinson call be admitted to take the oath as a Senator from the State of Florida. It is not my purpose to press any action upon this motion to-day, but I propose to have it before the Senate.

Mr. CULLOM. I will make the same motion with reference to the Senator from Idaho, Mr. Dubois, with the understanding (as it seems to be the desire of members) that it lie over until to-morrow, although I should like very much to have had it acted upon to-day.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The motions will lie over.

Mr. SHERMAN. Pending these motions, I move that the Senate adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 1 o'clock p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, December 8, 1891, at 12 o'clock m.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1070) to pay the citizens of Oregon for supplies audited by Philo Callender, commissioner; which was read twice by its title.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. To what committee shall the bill be referred?

Mr. DOLPH. I think it had better go to the Committee on Military Affairs. If they do not care to take jurisdiction of it they can report it back and let it go to the Committee on Claims or the Select Committee on Indian Depredations.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 1071) to grant to the Tacoma and Seattle Air-Line Railway Company a right of way through the Puyallup Indian Reservation in the State of Washington, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1075) to regulate and fix the compensation of registers of the land office and receivers of public moneys in each land district; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. DOLPH. I call the attention of the members of the Committee on Public Lands and of the Senate to the fact that the bill proposes to do away with fees to registers and receivers of the land office, and give them a reasonable salary. I move that the bill be referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 1076) to license and regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors in the district of Alaska; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. DOLPH. I desire to say a word or two in regard to the bill. The measure will be criticised. All the laws upon this subject which have applied to Alaska heretofore have been entirely prohibitory. I was there six years ago last summer and again last July, and in every little town in the district, every other place was a saloon where liquors were exposed for sale. There are to-day three breweries in the district, carrying on the business of making and selling beer. There are in the little town of Juneau twenty-two saloons in which liquors can be procured at any time. There are nearly as many in the town of Sitka, and a like number may be found in proportion to the population in other towns.

The attempt to prohibit the importation into or the manufacture and sale in Alaska of intoxicating liquors has been a complete failure. The district is 2,200 miles east and west, and 1,500 miles north and south, and has, it is estimated, if you include the indentures in the coast, 25,000 miles of coast line. It lies adjoining to British Columbia, and the vilest liquors are constantly smuggled into the territory and sold to the Indians and to minors. An attempt was made recently by the Federal officers there to establish a sort of license system, supposing that they could secure enough public sentiment back of them by licensing a few respectable places to enforce the law so far as to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors to the Indians and to minors. It was a failure, and, of course rightfully, the collector of customs was removed for his participation in the scheme, although he came into it last. Although the move was in the right direction, it was a mistake, as they had no legislative power. But I think it would be a very wise thing to provide for licensing respectable places, requiring them to give ample bond that they would not sell intoxicating liquors to Indians and minors, and thus create a public sentiment in the district which would sustain the officers of the Government in endeavoring to enforce the law. It is the only way it can be done, and while I would favor entire prohibition if it could be enforced at all or be of any benefit, I am constrained to favor something practical, and I take the initiative by introducing the bill.

I move that the bill, with the accompanying papers which I submit in regard to licensing the sale of liquor in Alaska, be referred to the Committee on Territories.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 1077) relieving the personal representatives of John Sherman, jr., late United States marshal for the Territory of New Mexico, from the requirements of section 833 of the Revised Statutes; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1078) granting a pension to Joseph Blanchard; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1079) for the relief of Assistant Engineer Howard D. Potts, United States Navy; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

DEATH OF HON. LEONIDAS C. HOUK.

Mr. TAYLOR of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I rise to perform the mournful duty of announcing to the House the death of my friend and late colleague, the Hon. Leonidas C. Houk. He died suddenly of accidental poisoning at his home in the city of Knoxville on the 25th day of May, of the present year.

Thousands of his countrymen followed his remains in sorrow to their last resting place, and thousands more wept as they would weep at the grave of nearest kindred when they realized that their faithful friend and trusted Representative had passed away.

From 1861 to 1863 he was a Union soldier, being colonel of the Third Tennessee Infantry; from 1866 to 1870 he was judge of his judicial circuit; from 1873 to 1875 he was a State legislator. He entered the Forty-sixth Congress, and was elected consecutively to the Forty-seventh, Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, Fiftieth, Fifty-first, and Fifty-second Congresses. He had a hold upon his people far beyond that of any man or combination of men, and had he lived, he could have been returned to Congress as long as he might have desired to remain in the public service. He died poor in this world's goods but rich in the friendship and love of his countrymen.

I shall say no more of him now, for I am aware that some day in the future will be fixed by the House when his associates and friends will be accorded an opportunity to place on record their estimate of his life and character, of his public services, and to take such action as they may deem best fitting as a last tribute of respect to his memory.

I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolutions which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the resolutions.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. Leonidas C. Houk, late a Representative from the State of Tennessee.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to his memory the House do now adjourn.

SWEARING IN A MEMBER.

Mr. HERMANN. Mr. Speaker, before the question on the resolutions is submitted to the House, I desire to state that the gentleman from Nevada [Mr. Bartine] is present, and wishes to be sworn in.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will suspend the question on the resolutions until the gentleman from Nevada can be sworn in.

Mr. Bartine then came forward and took the oath prescribed by law.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. McCook, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed a joint resolution to fill a vacancy on the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution; in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives was requested.

DEATH OF HON. L. C. HOUK.

The SPEAKER. The question is upon agreeing to the resolutions offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. TAYLOR].

The resolutions were agreed to unanimously.

Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 14 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until Saturday.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, December 17, 1891.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Vice-President being absent, the President pro tempore (Hon. CHARLES F. MANDERSON) took the chair.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. CULLOM. Preparatory to submitting resolutions for the arrangement of the committees of the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that that part of Rule XXIV which requires the appointment of standing and other committees of the Senate to be made by ballot be suspended.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Illinois asks the unanimous consent of the Senate that so much of Rule XXIV as provides for the election of committees by ballot be dispensed with. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. CULLOM. I submit a resolution, which I ask may be read.

Mr. COCKRELL. Before the resolution is read I desire to state that in consequence of the absence of the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. Vance], who has not yet been sworn in, the places which are intended for him and which will be assigned to him as soon as he takes his seat have been assigned to his colleague [Mr. RANSOM], and when the Senator from North Carolina returns his colleague will resign from those committees. It is the understanding that the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. Vance] is to take the exact places, at the head of a committee and so on, that his colleague will now hold for him. Also the places which will be assigned to the Senator from New York [Mr. Hill] when he takes his seat are to be filled by other Senators who will resign, and we shall then ask that he be appointed to fill the vacancies thus created. This will explain why it is that so many places are assigned to the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. RANSOM], and why other Senators have more appointments on committees than they otherwise would have.

Mr. CULLOM. That information was imparted to me, and I see no reason myself why the arrangement suggested should not be carried out.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution submitted by the Senator from Illinois will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

CREDENTIALS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the credentials of David B. Hill, chosen by the Legislature of the State of New York a Senator from that State for the term beginning March 4, 1891; which were read, and ordered to be filed.

DISTRICT SANITARY EXPENDITURES.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate a communication from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, transmitting, in compliance with a resolution of the 15th instant, certain information in regard to expenditures for the collection of garbage, and for the prevention of the spread of scarlet fever and diphtheria in the District; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. MORRILL presented two petitions of citizens of Brattleboro, Windham County, Vt., and a petition of citizens of Worcester, Washington County, Vt., praying for the free delivery of mails in rural districts; which were referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. DAWES. I present the petition of a large number of citizens of New Salem, in the State of Massachusetts, praying for a free delivery of the mails in rural districts and other changes in the postal laws.

I also present a like petition from citizens of the town of Hawley, another from citizens of the town of Amherst, one from citizens of the town of Orange, one from citizens of the town of Wrentham, one from citizens of the town of Blandford, and one from citizens of Southampton, in the State of Massachusetts, making the same prayer.

I move that the petitions be referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. PLATT. I present a petition of 24 citizens of Glastonbury, Conn., praying for the same improvement in the mail service as the petitions just presented by the Senators from Massachusetts and Vermont. I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DIXON. I present a preamble and resolution passed by the General Assembly of the State of Rhode Island, in the nature of a petition, urging upon Congress the consideration of legislation looking to the saving of life and prevention of injuries to railroad employes. I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HOAR presented petitions of citizens of Fitchburg, Dana, Somerset, Lee, and Hawley, in the State of Massachusetts, praying for the free delivery of mails in rural districts; which were referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of members of the Baptist Church of Newton Center, Mass., praying for the closing of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. GALLINGER presented a joint resolution of the Legislature of New Hampshire, favoring legislation for the relief of State libraries by the Federal Government; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented certain papers in support of the pension claim of James H. Osgood, of Suncok, N. H.; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented the petition of Rev. Albert D. Spalter, of Rumney, N. H., praying to be allowed compensation from Congress for services rendered by Moses Child in the Revolutionary war; which was referred to the Committee on Revolutionary Claims.

Mr. QUAY presented a petition of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Phoenixville, Pa., praying that the United States cooperate with foreign powers to prevent the slave and rum traffic within the limits of the Congo Free State, as provided in the so-called Brussels treaty; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. CALL. In the absence of the Senators from South Carolina, I present, by request, the petition of the heirs of Jesse Fish, jr., late of the State of Florida, praying for the confirmation of a royal grant from the Crown of Spain of Anastasia Island, in the State of Florida. I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Private Land Claims.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. VILAS. I present a joint resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin in favor of the election of Senators by a vote of the people. I ask that the memorial be read and referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

The memorial was read, and referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, as follows:

Joint resolution for the election of United States Senators by the vote of the people.

Whereas the causes no longer exist which influenced "the fathers" at the time the Constitution of the United States was framed to provide that the Senators in Congress should be elected by the Legislatures of the several States; and

Whereas the experience of recent years has demonstrated the necessity of a change in the manner of electing Senators if that body is to continue to represent the conservative public sentiment; and

Whereas it is more in accord with the spirit of our institutions, and has been proved to be all things considered, the best mode of selecting public servants, to elect them by a vote of the people; Therefore,

Be it resolved by the assembly (the Senate concurring), That it is the sense of this Legislature that the Constitution of the United States should be amended so as to provide that Senators in Congress shall be elected by a vote of the people.

Be it further resolved, That our Senators and Representatives in Congress be advised accordingly.

J. J. HOGAN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
G. W. PORTER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE presented a petition of citizens of Michigan, praying for the extension of the free delivery of mails; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of the United Presbyterian Church of Martin, Mich., praying for the closing of the World's Columbian Fair on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. I present a petition in favor of the improvement of the harbor of New Orleans, La., signed by the officers of the city government, the president of the levee board, the presidents of all the exchanges, banks, insurance and railroad companies, and also by the owners and officers of the various manufacturing interests of the city. I move that the petition be printed as a public document and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SAWYER presented a petition of the Board of Trade of La Crosse, Wis., praying for a reduction of letter postage; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

ADDITIONAL SESSION EMPLOYÉS.

Mr. PADDOCK. I ask leave to submit a report from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, and I ask for its present consideration.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution will be read for information.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms is directed to employ during the present session, in addition to the existing force, one messenger, acting as assistant clerk, at the rate of $1,800 per annum; four messengers, at the rate of $1,400 per annum each; one engineer, at the rate of $1,200 per annum; three firemen, at the rate of $800 per annum each; two conductors of elevators, at the rate of $500 per annum each; one watchman, at the rate of $900 per annum;

ten additional messengers, at the rate of $720 per annum each; one attendant in ladies' retiring room, Senate wing of the Capitol, at the rate of $720 per annum; said employees to be paid from the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. PLATT. I wish the resolution to go over.

Mr. PADDOCK. I ask the Senator to allow me to make a statement concerning the resolution.

Mr. PLATT. Certainly.

Mr. PADDOCK. This resolution was reported by the Committee on Rules, and referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate. It is made necessary because of the acquisition of the building known as the Maltby House for the use of committees. There are seven or eight committees already in that building, and more are to go there. The Maltby House was acquired by purchase at the last session of Congress because of the necessity of securing additional committee rooms, there not being sufficient rooms within the Capitol proper to supply the committees organized, recognized, and required by the Senate to do its business. Therefore the Committee on Contingent Expenses, in view of the fact that this necessity seemed to exist, because there was no force whatever to perform the duties required to be performed in connection with the occupancy of that building, because the Committee on Rules, after very careful and thorough investigation, found it to be necessary to report in favor of such an increase, and because, further, the Committee on Contingent Expenses, after diligent inquiry, became satisfied that the situation demanded their indorsement of the action of that committee, and accordingly adopted the report which I have submitted.

Mr. PLATT. I do not know that I shall make any objection to the resolution when it comes to be acted upon, but it proposes to provide for a somewhat large increase to the already numerous force which waits upon the Senate and Senators, and I should like to have an opportunity to look it over. I ask, therefore, that the resolution may lie over for the present.

Mr. PADDOCK. That is all right.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Being objected to, the resolution will lie over under the rules.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. HAWLEY introduced a bill (S. 1081) giving William K. Mayo the rank and pay of rear-admiral on the retired list of the Navy; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

PAPERS WITHDRAWN AND REFERRED.

On motion of Mr. GALLINGER, it was Ordered, That the papers in the case of Barker, Williams, and others (S. 364) be taken from the files of the Senate and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Ordered, That the papers in the case of George Hill, jr. (S. 612), be taken from the files of the Senate and referred to the Committee on Claims.

On motion of Mr. MITCHELL, it was

Ordered, That the papers relating to the claim of Peter Grant Stewart, of Oregon, be taken from the files and referred to the Committee on Claims.

REPORT ON CATTLE AND DAIRY FARMING.

Mr. MITCHELL submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be reprinted ——— copies of House Executive Document No. 51 of the first session of the Forty-ninth Congress, on "Cattle and Dairy Farming," of which number ——— copies shall be for the use of the Senate, ——— copies for the use of the House, and ——— copies for distribution by the Department of State.

PROPOSED ARBITRATION CONFERENCE.

Mr. MITCHELL submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Relations be, and is hereby, instructed to inquire into the advisability of appropriate action looking to the invitation of the governments of the world to a conference to be held in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, for the purpose of discussing and recommending measures by which the principles of arbitration may be incorporated in treaties, conflicting international laws harmonized, and an international court established having jurisdiction in cases which governments shall fail to settle by negotiation, and to report by bill or otherwise.

REPORT ON DISEASES OF THE HORSE.

Mr. VOORHEES. I offer a resolution, and I ask for its present consideration.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Printing be, and are hereby, instructed to inquire into the expediency and propriety of publishing for public distribution 250,000 additional copies of the report of the Agricultural Department on diseases of the horse, and to report to the Senate on the subject by bill or otherwise.

Mr. VOORHEES. Mr. President, I may be pardoned for saying that that book is in greater demand, in my judgment, than any other ever published by this Government, and it may well be. It is one of exceeding importance; and while I am in favor of this Congress especially being economical (and all others, for that matter), money spent in that direction will be well spent and gratefully received by the most important class of our citizens.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair is under the impression that according to the rule the resolution must go to the Committee on Printing for its report as to the cost.

Mr. VOORHEES. The resolution is an instruction to the committee, and I presume that the Senate will have to adopt the resolution before the committee can be instructed thereby.

Mr. HARRIS. Let the resolution be read again.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be again read.

The Chief Clerk again read the resolution.

Mr. HARRIS. I have no objection to the present consideration of the resolution.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Indiana asks for the present consideration of the resolution. Is there objection?

Mr. PADDOCK. I hope there will be no objection, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair hears none. The resolution is before the Senate, and the question is on agreeing to the same.

The resolution was agreed to.

COMMITTEE ON THE UNIVERSITY OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. CULLOM submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Select Committee to Establish the University of the United States be, and it hereby is, authorized to employ a clerk during the sessions of the Senate, said clerk to be paid the usual per diem salary from the contingent fund of the Senate.

PROPOSED ADJOURNMENT OVER.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

Mr. HARRIS. I understand that the other House has adjourned until Saturday, when it is understood, at least I have been informed the probabilities are, that a resolution will be sent to the Senate in respect to adjourning for the holidays. Would it not be well to adjourn over until Saturday instead of Monday, so that we may see what action the other House may take on that subject?

Mr. SHERMAN. I have no objection to changing my motion so as to adjourn until Saturday instead of Monday.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Ohio modifies his motion, and moves that when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Saturday next.

The motion was agreed to.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, I ask for an indefinite leave of absence from the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Mississippi asks indefinite leave of absence from the Senate. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and leave is granted.

ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATORS BY THE PEOPLE.

Mr. TURPIE. Mr. President—

Mr. STEWART. In view of the probability that we may not have a session on next Monday, I will beg leave of the Senate to make my remarks on silver immediately at the conclusion of the speech of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE].

Mr. TURPIE. According to the notice of last week, I move to take from the table the joint resolution (S. R. No. 6) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people of the several States, and I move its reference to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. I ask that the joint resolution may be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The joint resolution will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following amendment be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States, which, when ratified by three-fourths of said Legislatures, shall become and be a part of the Constitution, namely:

That section 3 of Article I be so amended that the same shall be as follows:

"ARTICLE I.

"SEC. 3. That the Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, who shall be chosen by a direct vote of the people of the several States, for six years; and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislatures; and each Senator shall have one vote."

Mr. TURPIE. Mr. President, during the late regular session thereof, in 1890, the General Assembly of the State of Indiana passed the following resolution:

Resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring), That our Senators be instructed, and our members in Congress be requested, to use their influence to secure the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to provide for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to each of our Senators and members of Congress.

This action was taken, as is shown by the journals, in a Legislature composed of representatives of every party, and their official expression of opinion may be accounted as deliberate, decisive, and substantially unanimous. It is written that forms of government long established should not be changed for light or transient causes. The mode of choosing United States Senators is a part of the form of government created by the Constitution of 1789, in force now for more than a century.

Indiana was admitted into the Union in 1816, during the Presidency of Madison. Her history as a State began under the auspices of that line of chief magistrates sprung from the patriots of the Revolution, and continued under the same until the close of the term of Monroe, in 1825. Indiana is not a new State; the sixth in the order of admission, she stands now senior to much the larger number. She is not one of the oldest, one of the original thirteen whose people adopted the Constitution. Her allegiance thereto, due by the terms of a later accession, has been avouched in many an act of valor, of devotion, by her sons in behalf of constitutional government. Her loyalty and attachment to the institutions of our country is of the most perfect tone and character. It is hereditary, traditional, a sentiment of steady, constant, permanent growth and development.

The men who first settled within our borders, who first subdued these fertile valleys and prairies to the tilth of the plow, were for the most part emigrants from the original thirteen States, who brought with them their love and fealty to the Constitution of their fathers, and as a portion of the choicest heritage bequeathed the same to their descendants. These pioneers in the settlement and improvement of the State, and those who followed them for many years, came in very nearly equal proportion from the northern and southern sections of the Union, from Pennsylvania, New York, and New England, from Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, Kentucky, and the two Carolinas.

I doubt if there be any State or region of country within the of $1,440 per annum each; one engineer, at the rate of $1,200 per annum; three firemen, at the rate of $800 per annum each; two conductors of elevators, at the rate of $800 per annum each; one watchman, at the rate of $900 per annum; ten additional messengers, at the rate of $720 per annum each; one attendant in ladies' retiring room, Senate wing of the Capitol, at the rate of $720 per annum; said employees to be paid from the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate.

Mr. COCKRELL. Has that resolution been referred to any committee?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It has been referred and reported back.

Mr. MANDERSON. The resolution was referred originally to the Committee on Rules, and I may say in the absence of the chairman of that committee that it received their careful consideration. The committee went to the piece of property which has been acquired by the Senate, in which are several committee rooms and in which many Senators have their working rooms, and after very careful consideration decided that this is the least force with which it would be possible to take care of that property during the session of the Senate. The resolution has also, under the rules, been referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, and has received their consideration and approval. It applies during the session of Congress, and it has seemed to the Committee on Rules at least, that this is a necessary force to attend to the absolute needs of the Senate.

Mr. PLATT. This resolution was reported by the acting chairman of the Committee on Contingent Expenses of the Senate. Mr. PADDOCK, who is now absent on a sad duty by the direction of the Senate. When it came up I asked that it lie over in order that I might look at it, feeling that I dislike very much to add to the official force of the Senate. When I came to see what the resolution is and where the employees are to serve, I discovered that if we are to utilize the Maltby House for the use of the Senate it is necessary to have these officers. I am very sorry that we ever bought the Maltby House. I was opposed to it myself at the time it was bought; but we have it, and there are committee rooms there, and I feel constrained, on the ground of necessity, to withdraw any objection that I made to the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

SCHOONER NANCY—FRENCH SPOILIATION CLAIM.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and law filed by the court under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claim in the matter of the schooner Nancy, Nathaniel Lincoln, master; which was read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. To what committee shall the communication be referred?

Mr. COCKRELL. There have been several reports from the Court of Claims in regard to those French spoliation claims, and I believe they have been referred to the Committee on Appropriations. I think they should properly go to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HALE. What are those?

Mr. COCKRELL. The findings of the Court of Claims on French spoliation claims. I think they properly ought to go to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HALE. They have always been treated on the deficiency appropriation bill as coming direct from the court, and have been incorporated in the deficiency appropriation bill by vote of the Senate at least half a dozen times.

Mr. SHERMAN. If the Senator will allow me, I introduced the bill providing for the enlargement of the old law and for the extension of the time for the filing of claims. I think the communication clearly ought to go to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HALE. If this report has nothing more in it than adjudicated claims, it ought to go to the Committee on Appropriations, which has always considered them; but it ought to go to the other committee if it relates to a matter that is to receive legislation.

Mr. SHERMAN. Let the report be again read.

Mr. COCKRELL. I will state that it is a report from the Court of Claims on one of the many claims presented under the original law referring claims. If this is to be the rule, if a claim which has been referred to the Court of Claims to find the facts and report them is to go the Appropriations Committee, then every claim that is referred there from the Committee on Military Affairs, the Committee on Claims, or any other committee, where the court finds that a certain amount is due, must also go to the Appropriations Committee, and that committee will be the dumping ground for all claims which have been referred to the Court of Claims. This should go to the Committee on Claims. If they choose subsequently to have it referred to the Committee on Appropriations, it will then be properly before that committee, but the Committee on Appropriations ought not to be the reservoir for the reference of all claims which have gone to the Court of Claims in which a finding of fact has been made.

Mr. HALE. There is nothing new in this being sent to the Committee on Appropriations. The Committee on Claims had its jurisdiction originally in the matter and framed the legislation that was adopted by Congress, under which all these claims were sent to the Court of Claims, and from that time the Committee on Claims has asserted no jurisdiction whatever over the question of appropriation.

The court here certifies its judgment as it does in other cases, and it is the habit of the Committee on Appropriations, when it reaches the deficiency appropriation bill, to take up, put in order, arrange, and provide the money to carry out the judgments. The Committee on Claims has nothing further to do with these cases because they have been referred to the court under previous legislation and have been adjudicated by the court. It is simply a question whether the money shall be appropriated.

Mr. MITCHELL. May I ask the Senator a question?

Mr. HALE. Certainly.

Mr. MITCHELL. Does the Senator from Maine understand that the findings in these cases of the Court of Claims are conclusive?

Mr. HALE. Undoubtedly. That whole matter was fought out in the last Congress, and Congress adopted that view by appropriating to pay the claims so far as then presented.

Mr. DAWES. I should like to ask the Senator if this is a very different case from the references under what is called the Bowman act?

Mr. HALE. Entirely different.

Mr. MITCHELL. Is it not the same kind of case?

Mr. HALE. It is not, and has never been so considered.

Mr. DAWES. I inquire whether there was not special jurisdiction conferred by a special act of Congress upon the Court of Claims to decide upon the merits of these claims?

Mr. HALE. I have just stated that, Mr. President.

Mr. DAWES. I think the course prescribed has been followed.

Mr. HALE. It has been followed, and in the last Congress the whole matter was considered by both branches of the National Legislature, and the policy of paying these claims as they were certified by the court was adopted by that Congress, and on the deficiency bill was an appropriation of several hundred thousand dollars. So the controversy was considered, I supposed, as ended. The Court of Claims from time to time consider these cases and decide upon their validity, as the original act reported from the Committee on Claims provided that they should do. The only question now is the appropriation of the money. I do not see why these cases should not take the course that they have taken invariably heretofore and go to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. MITCHELL. Of course the Committee on Claims is not very anxious to have jurisdiction of these cases, but I fail to see the difference between this claim and the class of claims which go to the Court of Claims under what is known as the Bowman act. It has been the universal practice of the Senate to have the cases which have been referred to the Court of Claims under the Bowman act and certified back referred to the Committee on Claims for investigation.

Mr. COCKRELL. That has been the universal rule.

Mr. MITCHELL. And the records of that committee will show that in a great number of cases the committee, and the Senate following the action of the committee, have failed to adopt the conclusions of the Court of Claims under the Bowman act.

Mr. HALE. Let me ask the Senator whether, since the original special act passed by Congress, the Committee on Claims has ever had any of these cases sent to it? Have they not all invariably gone to the Committee on Appropriations?

Mr. COCKRELL. No; I say not.

Mr. MITCHELL. Oh, no.

Mr. COCKRELL. The records will show, if the Senator from Maine will permit me, for I know he wants to be accurate, that for a long time such cases went to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HALE. Not after the court began to report its findings to Congress.

Mr. COCKRELL. Yes; after the court began to make and report its findings. That is my understanding, and I think the record will show it.

Mr. HALE. If that was done, it was done by accident in some particular cases, and they were sent at once by the Committee on Claims to the Committee on Appropriations, because the Committee on Appropriations have always considered them.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What disposition shall be made of the communication?

Mr. ALLISON. Before this question passes from the consideration of the Senate I desire to say that while I have no particular objection to this special matter going to the Committee on Appropriations. I wish to call the attention of the Committee on Claims or the Committee on the Judiciary to the imperfect condition of the legislation respecting these claims. These claims have been sent, I think, for two or three years at least, to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is true. They have been sent there ever since the Committee on Appropriations took jurisdiction and put them on the deficiency appropriation bill.

Mr. ALLISON. Very well. We have given consideration to these claims, have rejected a number of them, and not appropriated money for them, and conspicuously so in the cases of these old insurance companies. Under the original act, which I have been trying to lay my hand on, but can not for the moment, the Court of Claims are not required to state whether or not these claims should be paid. They simply state the facts and the law respecting them. I do not believe, for one, that the Government of the United States is under any obligation to pay these insurance claims; and in reporting the claims last year the committee excluded every claim of that character, as I think they should exclude some other claims that are reported year by year from the Court of Claims. I think, therefore, it would be wise for the Committee on the Judiciary or some other committee of this body to examine these claims and the law respecting them as well as the reports or the findings of the court in regard to them in order that they may be sifted in some way, as surely we are not bound under that law to pass upon and appropriate money for every claim that may be reported here by the Court of Claims.

I desire to say this much in respect to these claims, because I do not wish to consider myself bound as one member of the Committee on Appropriations to appropriate money to pay these claims simply because they have been adjudicated by the Court of Claims.

Mr. MITCHELL. I agree entirely with what the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations has said. I think this is nothing more nor less than a claim, coming here certified by the Court of Claims under a law authorizing that court to file and certify as to certain amounts. There is nothing at all in that certification which carries with it any conclusiveness in regard to the duty of Congress to make an appropriation.

It seems to me that it belongs to precisely the same class of claims as those which are referred to that court under the Bowman act; and when they come back here from the Court of Claims they come simply as claims, not for an appropriation as a matter of course, but for consideration by some appropriate committee for the purpose of ascertaining whether in view of all that has been done and all the facts surrounding the case the claim ought or ought not to be paid. That being so, it seems to me that the Committee on Claims is the proper committee to take jurisdiction of the case and investigate and report upon it.

This is all I desire to say. I simply wish the practice of the Senate to be settled properly.

Mr. COCKRELL. I want to call attention to the act of January 20, 1855, referring the French spoliation claims to the Court of Claims:

SEC. 6. That on the first Monday of December in each year the court shall report to Congress, for final action, the facts found by it, and its conclusions in all cases which it has disposed of and not previously reported. Such finding and report of the court shall be taken to be merely advisory as to the law and facts found, and shall not conclude either the claimant or Congress; and all claims not finally presented to said court within the period of two years limited by this act shall be forever barred; and nothing in this act shall be construed as committing the United States to the payment of any such claims.

As I said, these claims, I think, were referred to the Committee on Claims and they were there considered, and nobody pretended to claim that such a finding was a judgment of the Court of Claims. It is farcical to make such a claim under that law. It is no judgment; it is simply what the law authorized to be a finding. The claims were referred to the Committee on Claims, and my recollection is that the Committee on Claims once or twice favorably reported some of the claims and recommended that they be put on an appropriation bill, and they were put on a deficiency appropriation bill. There was a contest here for years between the Senate and the other House as to whether they should be paid, and finally a portion of them was paid at the last session on a deficiency appropriation bill; and the Committee on Claims had to pass upon which claims should be paid, and that committee excluded a considerable portion of them.

Now, is it fair that the Committee on Appropriations shall be turned into that kind of an investigating committee to determine which one of these claims ought to be paid? Why, Mr. President, we hear Senators all through the session complaining of the absorption of all the business of the Senate by the Committee on Appropriations, and now Senators are trying to force into that committee the consideration of nearly all the private claims that will come before us.

This is no more a judgment than is a finding under the Bowman law, so called. It has no more force and effect. It is a finding of the facts and the amounts, and that is all it is, and they all go to the Committee on Claims. The Committee on Claims ought to take jurisdiction of these claims and it ought to determine what classes of them shall be paid. Then it is competent for the Committee on Claims to report either for the passage of a special bill, as they do under the Bowman act and as they did under the old 4th of July claims law, or to report and refer to the Committee on Appropriations an amendment to some appropriation bill. Under the rules of the Senate that might bring it within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Appropriations, and that is all that in my judgment will so bring it. It is a dangerous precedent to refer this claim to the Committee on Appropriations. We might as well now start out right in referring these claims to the proper committee and let that committee take jurisdiction of them and determine which of them shall be paid and which shall not be paid.

I for one protest against these claims going to the Committee on Appropriations. Let them go to the Committee on Claims.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What reference shall be made of the communication? It will be referred to the Committee on Claims if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

Mr. HALE subsequently said: What was done with the communication relating to a French spoliation claim?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It was referred to the Committee on Claims. The Chair announced that it would be referred to that committee in the absence of objection, and he heard no objection.

Mr. HALE. I did not hear the Chair. I was only going to say that the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] informs me that at the last session the Committee on Claims considered a portion of these claims and reported and referred them to the Committee on Appropriations, and on that information I shall make no further objection.

PAY OF EMPLOYÉS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a joint resolution from the House of Representatives.

The joint resolution (H. Res. 1) to pay the officers and employés of the Senate and House of Representatives their respective salaries for the month of December, 1891, on the 24th day of said month was read the first time by its title.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask unanimous consent that the joint resolution may be passed now by the Senate. It is the usual resolution for the pay of the employés of the two bodies just before the holidays.

There being no objection, the joint resolution was read the second time at length, and considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HOLIDAY RESSES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following concurrent resolution of the House of Representatives: which was read:

Resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring: That when the two Houses adjourn on Wednesday, the 23d day of December, 1891, they stand adjourned until Tuesday, January 5, 1892.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask that that resolution may now be concurred in.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the resolution is before the Senate. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After eight minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE FORD.

Mr. McMILLAN. I ask that the resolutions of the House of Representatives relative to the death of my late colleague in that House, Hon. Melbourne H. Ford, be laid before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the resolutions of the House of Representatives, which will be read.

The Secretary read as follows:

Whereas the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. Melbourne H. Ford, late a Representative from the State of Michigan; Therefore,

Resolved That as a mark of respect to his memory the House do now adjourn.

Resolved That the Clerk be directed to communicate this action to the Senate.

Mr. McMILLAN. Mr. President, I offer the resolutions which I send to the desk and ask for their adoption. I give notice that

I shall on some suitable occasion in the future ask the Senate to pause in its business to pay fitting tribute to the life and public services of my late colleague.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions submitted by the Senator from Michigan will be read.

The Secretary read the resolutions, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep sensibility the announcement of the death of Hon. Melbourne H. Ford, late a Representative from the State of Michigan.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate this resolution to the House of Representatives.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolutions.

The resolutions were agreed to unanimously.

Mr. McMILLAN. As a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 1 o'clock and 17 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday, December 23, 1891, at 12 o'clock meridian.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, December 23, 1891

BOARD ON GEOGRAPHIC NAMES.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and ordered to be printed, and, with the accompanying report, referred to the Committee on Printing:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

My attention having been called to the necessity of bringing about a uniform usage and spelling of geographic names in the publications of the Government, the following executive order was issued on the 4th day of September, 1890:

"As it is desirable that uniform usage in regard to geographic nomenclature and orthography obtain throughout the Executive Departments of the Government, and particularly upon the maps and charts issued by the various Departments and Bureaus, I hereby constitute a Board on Geographic Names, and designate the following persons, who have heretofore cooperated for a similar purpose under the authority of the several Departments, Bureaus, and institutions with which they are connected, as members of said Board:

"Prof. Thomas C. Mendenhall, United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, chairman.

"Andrew H. Allen, Department of State.

"Capt. Henry L. Bowison, Light-House Board, Treasury Department.

"Capt. Thomas Turtle, Engineer Corps, War Department.

"Lieut. Richardson Clover, Hydrographic Office, Navy Department.

"Pierson H. Bristow, Post-Office Department.

Soils T. Mason, Smithsonian Institution.
 *Herbert G. Ogden, United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.
 *Henry Gannett, United States Geological Survey.
 *Marcus Baker, United States Geological Survey.
 "To this Board shall be referred all unsettled questions concerning geographic names which arise in the Departments, and the decisions of the Board are to be accepted by these Departments as the standard authority in such matters."

"Department officers are instructed to afford such assistance as may be proper to carry on the work of this Board."

"The members of this Board shall serve without additional compensation, and its organization shall entail no expense on the Government."

The report of the Board thus constituted has been submitted to me and is herewith transmitted for the information of Congress, and with a view to its publication in suitable form, if such action is deemed by Congress to be desirable.

BENJ. HARRISON

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, December 23, 1891.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. The Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O Eternal God! The shadow feared by men has entered the Capitol and enfolded in his dark shroud the form of a brave, honest, and honorable Senator, steadfast in friendship, loyal to his convictions; zealous, fearless, and faithful in the fulfillment of every trust, public and private, and the song of joy and gladness that was rising to our lips, the song belonging to this happy season, is hushed as we hear the wail of a whole people from the broad plains of Kansas, joining with the sobs of the wife that has been widowed and of the children that are made fatherless, as they sit shrouded in their home of grief. And to-day the tolling bell knells the passing of the soul of a leader and a friend of the people.

AID TO RUSSIAN SUFFERERS.

Mr. WASHBURN. I introduce a joint resolution, and ask for the present consideration of the same.

The joint resolution (S. R. 21) authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to transport contributions for the relief of the suffering poor of Russia was read the first time by its title.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the joint resolution be read for information.

The joint resolution was read the second time at length, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the Secretary of the Navy be, and he is hereby, authorized to employ any ship or vessel belonging to the Navy of the United States best adapted for such service, for the purpose of transporting to the inhabitants of those provinces of Russia now suffering from want of food, owing to the failure of crops, such contributions as may be made by citizens of the United States for their relief, and, if necessary, to charter and employ, under the authority of the United States, a suitable steamship or ships for the same purpose. Any sum of money which may be necessary to carry out the object of this resolution is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

Mr. WASHBURN. I wish to state that a movement was inaugurated some two or three weeks since in my section of country, looking to making contributions of breadstuffs to the suffering people of Russia. A very large amount of flour, especially in my own city and in that region, has been contributed, or pledged for that purpose. Just before the holidays I made application to the Secretary of the Navy, asking that a Government ship be detailed to transport this flour to some Russian port. As Senators may have seen in the papers, he assented, and has arranged for the Constellation, a Government sailing ship, to take the first cargo. It now appears, however, that the Constellation will not be able to take more than one-fourth or one-fifth of the contributions already in sight, and it seemed to me a very proper and a very graceful thing for Congress to do now what it did in 1880, when the Constellation bore food to the suffering people of Ireland. It is with that view that I have introduced the joint resolution, and I will state that it is very important that it should have immediate action, because time is pressing.

I desire to say, further, that the railroad lines and all the great transportation companies of this country have agreed to carry these breadstuffs without any charge, the lightering associations in New York have agreed to put the supplies on the ships, and this joint resolution will simply make the proper complement of the whole affair, as our American people are not in the habit of doing things by halves.

So I introduce the joint resolution at present, and I desire, in order that the Senate may fully understand the situation, to have read a telegram which I have just received from the gentleman who has had charge of this great work, showing what the requirements are likely to be.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The telegram will be read.

The Secretary read as follows:

Hon. W. D. WASHBURN,
Washington, D. C., 2111 Massachusetts Avenue:

Amount already pledged about 1,000,750 pounds flour. Expect to receive total of 6,000,000 pounds. Millers and flour men are the contributors, and are located in Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, District of Columbia, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Wisconsin. For further particulars see Northwestern Miller. We greatly need steamship to carry this. Constellation can not do the work.

W. C. EDGAR.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I shall not object to the present consideration of the joint resolution. It is a charity that is bound to command the respect of all intelligent and charitable people. But believing as I do, that I as a Senator have no right to tax the people to put money in the Treasury and appropriate it to this or any other charity, I shall feel bound to vote against the joint resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

There being no objection, the joint resolution was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. GORMAN. Mr. President, I notice that the joint resolution makes an indefinite appropriation. I suggest to the Senator who has introduced it that it is a very bad practice, although one I know which has grown up in the last year or two, to make indefinite appropriations, and the result is almost to bankrupt the Treasury of the United States. I think the practice ought not to be followed now, even in a matter of charity, and I suggest that if the Senator from Minnesota has any information as to the probable cost, some specific amount should be appropriated, say not to exceed $100,000, or whatever amount is necessary.

Mr. WASHBURN. The same idea occurred to me in drawing the joint resolution. I supposed it was the custom to fix some sum, as the Senator has suggested; but upon looking at the resolution passed in 1880 I found that there was no limitation. I accede cheerfully to the suggestion, and would name $100,000—not to exceed $100,000.

Mr. BUTLER. "Or so much thereof as may be necessary."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate will receive a message from the President of the United States.

Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of the secretaries of the President of the United States, communicated to the Senate sundry messages in writing.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] observed that the practice of making indefinite appropriations is one that has grown up recently. I think if the Senator will examine the precedents he will find that indefinite appropriations have existed for a long time. I suppose the Senator refers more especially to what are denominated permanent appropriations when he speaks of indefinite appropriations. Certainly an indefinite appropriation of the character indicated here will not very greatly disturb the Treasury.

I had some conversation with the Secretary of the Navy respecting the cost of chartering these vessels, in view of the fact that the governor of my own State issued a proclamation to the people of the State of Iowa asking them to make contributions to the sufferers in Russia and appointed a committee of the most eminent men in our State, who are now gathering contributions of corn, wheat, flour, etc. It seemed to me apparent that the vessel which the Secretary of the Navy offered, namely, the Constellation, would not be sufficient. In my judgment it is not suitable to the work in hand, even though it could carry five or six thousand barrels of flour to some Russian port. Therefore I think true economy will require that a vessel or vessels shall be chartered, if the Government is to bear the expense.

The total cost of a single vessel, the ordinary sailing vessel that would be chartered to do the work, as the Secretary of the Navy informed me, at least in his judgment, would not exceed $25,000. I think $100,000 will probably charter three or four cargoes, and I am very glad the Senator from Minnesota has agreed to limit the joint resolution. I think that is a wise thing to do, and I shall favor the measure as it is now proposed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair has just now received a message from the President of the United States bearing upon the question under consideration, which will be read by the Secretary.

The Secretary read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The famine prevailing in some of the provinces of Russia is so severe and widespread as to have attracted the sympathetic interest of a large number of our liberal and favored people. In some of the great grain-producing States of the West movements have already been organized to collect flour and meal for the relief of these perishing Russian families, and the response has been such as to justify the belief that a ship's cargo can very soon be delivered at the seaboard, through the generous cooperation of the transportation lines. It is most appropriate that a people whose storehouses have been so lavishly filled with all the fruits of the earth by the gracious favor of God should manifest their gratitude by large gifts to His suffering children in other lands.

The Secretary of the Navy has no steam vessel at his disposal that could be used for the transportation of these supplies, and I therefore recommend that he be authorized to charter a suitable vessel to receive them, if a sufficient amount should be offered, and to send them under the charge of a naval officer to such Russian port as may be most convenient for ready distribution to those most in need.

BENJ. HARRISON

EXECUTIVE MANSION, January 5, 1892.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The proposed amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out the words "which may be necessary," and insert "not to exceed $100,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary;" so as to read:

Any sum of money not to exceed $100,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to carry out the object of this resolution, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and was read the third time.

Mr. HARRIS. My own may be the only vote against it, but I want the yeas and nays, so as to record that vote against the passage of the joint resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is, Shall the joint resolution pass? on which the yeas and nays are demanded.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. HOAR. Before the yeas and nays are called, I suggest that there be an order that the President's message be printed and lie on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered in the absence of objection. The Secretary will proceed to call the roll.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CARLISLE (when his name was called). I am paired with the senior Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN]. If he were present, I should vote "nay."

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. PADDOK], whom I do not see in his seat at this time. If he were present, I should vote "nay." I do not know how he would vote.

Mr. WALTHALL (when Mr. GEORGE's name was called). My colleague [Mr. GEORGE] is absent by leave of the Senate. I understand from my colleague that he was paired generally with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. DOLPH. That is so. If the Senator from Mississippi supposes that his colleague would like me to observe the pair on this question, I will withdraw my vote and announce my pair with the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE]. I did not observe at the moment that the Senator was not in the Senate Chamber.

Mr. WALTHALL. I have no preference about it. I simply announce the fact that my colleague is paired with the Senator.

Mr. DOLPH. I withdraw my vote and announce my pair with the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE].

Mr. HANSBROUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER]. Were he present, I should vote "yea."

Mr. HIGGINS (when his name was called). I am paired with the senior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. MCPHERSON]. In his absence, I withhold my vote.

Mr. KENNA (when his name was called). I am paired generally with the Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT], who is detained from the Senate by illness. I understand, however, that if he were present he would vote "yea," and I will therefore also vote "yea."

Mr. MANDERSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN], and my colleague [Mr. PADDOK] is paired with the Senator from Texas [Mr. COKE], as that Senator has already announced. I suggest to him that we exchange pairs and both vote, leaving my colleague paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN]. I ask the Senator from Texas if he has any objection to changing the pairs so that my colleague shall stand paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] and the Senator from Texas and I will both be privileged to vote.

Mr. COKE. No, I have no objection. I vote "nay."

Mr. MANDERSON. I vote "yea."

Mr. WALTHALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON].

Mr. WILSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT]. If he were present, I should vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. CULLOM. I have a general pair with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY]. I do not observe that he is in his seat, and I therefore withhold my vote. If at liberty to vote, I should vote for the joint resolution.

Mr. DAVIS. I have a general pair with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE], and therefore withhold my vote. If at liberty, I should vote "yea."

Mr. CASEY (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Florida [Mr. PASCO], but as I understand that he, if present, would vote "yea," I vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 40, nays 9; as follows:

YEAS—40.

Allen,	Dawes,	Hiscock,	Platt,
Allison,	Dubois,	Hoar,	Quay,
Barbour,	Faulkner,	Kenna,	Sawyer,

So the joint resolution was passed.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

Mr. VEST submitted the following order: which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Ordered, That the papers on file in the Pension Bureau of the Interior Department relative to the pension claim numbered 711,850, of Obe Sutherland, late a teamster in the Quartermaster's Department of the United States Volunteer Army, be transmitted to the Committee on Pensions of the Senate.

COINAGE OF SILVER BULLION.

Mr. STEWART. I offer a resolution for reference to the Committee on the Judiciary, and I ask that it be read.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Whereas by the fourteenth section of the act approved January 18, 1837, it is provided "That gold and silver bullion brought to the mint for coinage, shall be received and coined, by the proper officers, for the benefit of the depositor;" and

Whereas by the act approved February 28, 1878, entitled "An act to authorize the coinage of the standard silver dollar, and to restore its legal-tender character," it is enacted "That there shall be coined, at the several mints of the United States, silver dollars of the weight of 412½ grains, Troy, of standard silver, as provided in the act of January 18, 1837, on which shall be the devices and superscriptions provided in said act;" Therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be, and it is hereby, instructed to inquire if any further legislation is necessary to make it the duty of the proper officers of the mint to receive and coin silver bullion for the benefit of depositors.

Mr. STEWART. I desire to have the resolution referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and I call the attention of the committee to a fact which seems to have been overlooked, that the act of 1878, known as the Bland act, revived the act of 1837 so far as relates to the coinage of silver and gold. The act of 1837 provides that it shall be the duty of the proper officers of the mint to coin silver bullion deposited for the benefit of depositors. The act of 1878, the Bland act, makes it the duty of the Department to coin silver as provided in the former act. I have looked in vain to find any clause qualifying the direct command found in the first section of the Bland act. It seems to have been overlooked, and in fact I had overlooked it until my attention was called to it by a lawyer from Ohio, Mr. Stark. I have since spent some days investigating the matter, and I have come clearly to the conclusion that the act of 1837, so far as the coinage of silver bullion is concerned, is revived by the express language of the act of 1878. The subsequent provision of the act providing for the purchase and coinage of silver is simply an addition to it, abstracting nothing, and as it occurred just previous to the resumption of specie payment it may be well said that at that time it was thought important to accumulate bullion for the purpose of coinage in addition to what might be deposited. At all events, I do not see that there is anything in the act or in any other act which seems to limit or qualify the direct command in the first section, and I hope that the Judiciary Committee will give the matter an early and careful consideration.

Mr. ALLISON. I should like to inquire of the Senator from Nevada, in connection with this matter, whether he thinks the act of 1890 has any effect upon the import of the act of 1878?

Mr. STEWART. None whatever. The act of June, 1890, simply deals with the purchase of bullion and repeals the clause that required the purchase of not less than $2,000,000 nor more than $4,000,000 worth of silver bullion per month, and substitutes therefor other arrangements for purchasing a larger amount and issuing Treasury notes therefor. But it does not deal with the remainder of the act at all.

Mr. ALLISON. I only made the suggestion in view of the fact that the resolution does not allude to the act of 1890, and it might be incomplete unless it also covered the effect of the act of 1890.

Mr. VEST. What is the language of the act of 1890?

Mr. STEWART. The act of 1890 repeals the clause which authorizes or requires the purchase of not less than $2,000,000 nor more than $4,000,000 worth per month and substitutes other provisions by way of purchase. It leaves the remainder of the act as it stood before. The act of 1890 has nothing to do with the coinage except the particular clause referred to. The act of 1878 is still in force, as I understand it; and if there is any statute that modifies the direct revival of the act of 1837 by the first section of the act of 1878 I have been unable to find it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

SELECT COMMITTEE ON MEAT PRODUCTS.

Mr. VEST. I should like to submit a question about which I have some doubt, in regard to a special committee of the Senate. Immediately before the recess I introduced a bill in regard to monopoly in the transportation of cattle to foreign countries, which had been introduced during the last session, referred to the Select Committee on the Transportation and Sale of Meat Products, reported back by that committee, and passed by the Senate, but failed of passage in the House of Representatives. As the committees had not been reestablished at the time I introduced the bill at this session I did not have it referred to the same committee, of which I was chairman, for the reason that by the resolution of the Senate in regard to that committee passed at the last Congress the committee was continued until the first day of this session with instruction to report at that time. My construction of that resolution was and is now that until further action by the Senate continuing the existence of the committee it could not transact business, but remained in that condition, whatever it might be described.

Whilst absent from the Senate on account of sickness the Senator from Maine [Mr. FRYE], the chairman of the Committee on Commerce, reported back the bill to the Senate with the request that it be sent to the Select Committee on the Transportation and Sale of Meat Products, and on my return I find the bill referred to that committee. Now, the inquiry which has arisen in my mind, and which I submit (and I am glad to see the Senator from Illinois [Mr. CULLOM] in his seat, who is chairman of the committee on the Republican side to fix the committees), is, does the action of the Senate based upon the report of the joint committee appointed by the Republican and Democratic parties here naming the special committees continue their existence without further action by the Senate?

Mr. CULLOM. Mr. President, if the Senator will allow me to interrupt him a moment, I had thought, and I think every member with whom I have had any conversation on the subject came to the same conclusion, that the resolution submitted to the Senate providing for the establishment of certain committees and naming the members of the committees would undoubtedly establish the existence of a committee for the present Congress. I think that that must be the case.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read, for the information of the Senate, an extract from the Journal of March 3, last.

Mr. HALE. That has been the universal practice.

Mr. CULLOM. Let the resolution be read.

The Secretary read as follows:

Journal, March 3, 1891:

COMMITTEES OF THE SENATE.

Mr. ALLISON submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the standing and select committees of the Senate as now constituted be, and they are hereby, continued with power to act until the first Monday in December, 1891, or until their successors are elected.

Mr. CULLOM. Early in the present session I submitted the following resolution, which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Resolved, That the following constitute the select committees of the Senate of the United States for the Fifty-second Congress.

Following the resolution is the provision for the establishment of the Committee on the Transportation and Sale of Meat Products, and Messrs. VEST (chairman), COKE, Plumb, POWER, CASEY were appointed upon that committee by a resolution of the Senate. So it seems to me it is unqualifiedly true that the committee exists by virtue of the action of the Senate itself during the present session.

Mr. VEST. That would be the inference, but I want to put it beyond any doubt.

Mr. CULLOM. If the Senator will allow me further, the effect of that resolution, it seems to me, just as clearly establishes that committee as if the Senator had introduced a separate resolution providing that it be established in the first instance and that resolution had been adopted by the Senate.

Mr. VEST. During the last Congress this question came up incidentally, and upon consultation with the late chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, Mr. Edmunds, and other very experienced and able lawyers, I came to the conclusion, with reference to this very committee, that a special resolution was necessary, and I offered such a resolution, and it was adopted by the Senate. But that was after the committees had been fixed as they are fixed now and the personnel of membership established.

Mr. HALE. If that was required in the case of each committee, what would be the force of the general resolution which, in terms, constitutes all the committees at once? If each committee must afterwards introduce a special resolution creating it a working committee, what force is there in the general resolution?

Mr. VEST. The only difficulty that arose in my mind was the fact that the Senate by special resolution had declared that this special committee (and I do not speak of any other) should exist until the first day of the present session. That was affirmative and distinct legislation, and to get rid of that affirmative legislation we must adopt the inferential argument, for it is nothing else, that the general resolution repeals or takes the place of the affirmative action of the Senate.

Mr. HALE. Undoubtedly if, after the resolution which limited the duration of this committee to the first day of the session, the present Congress had done nothing, the committee would fall, because the limitation of the special resolution was upon the first day of the session. But the Senate has taken up the subject and in connection with other committees has declared by resolution that that committee is revived, and that it exists, with the Senator from Missouri at its head. I do not think the Senator need have any doubt about it.

Mr. VEST. I have not the slightest objection of course to any construction the Senate sees proper to put upon it, but I wanted to put the question as to the condition of the bill beyond any doubt, so that my committee could either act upon it or send it back to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CULLOM. If the Senate had never created that committee by a resolution offered by the Senator from Missouri, the Senate coming in at the beginning of this session and creating a select committee and naming the members of it certainly makes it an existing committee of the Senate for this Congress.

Mr. COCKRELL. Independent of any affirmative action.

Mr. HARRIS. Unquestionably.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. KERR, its Clerk, announced that the House had elected Hon. BENTON McMILLIN, a Representative from the State of Tennessee, Speaker pro tempore during the absence of the Speaker.

SENATOR FROM KANSAS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented the credentials of Bishop W. Perkins, appointed by the governor of the State of Kansas a Senator from that State, to fill, until the next meeting of the Legislature thereof, the vacancy caused by the death of Preston B. Plumb; which were read, and ordered to be filed.

Mr. PEPPER. I ask that the oath of office be administered to my colleague, Mr. Perkins, who is present.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator will please come forward and receive the oath of office.

Mr. Perkins advanced to the Vice-President's desk, escorted by Mr. PEPPER, and the oath prescribed by law having been administered to him, he took his seat in the Senate.

SENATOR FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator from North Carolina [Mr. Vance], elected to succeed himself, is now present in the Senate Chamber, and I ask that the oath of office may be administered to him.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator elect from North Carolina will please come forward and receive the oath of office.

Mr. Vance advanced to the Vice-President's desk, escorted by Mr. HARRIS, and the oath prescribed by law having been administered to him, he took his seat in the Senate.

COMMITTEE SERVICE.

Mr. COCKRELL. In pursuance of the understanding had at the time, and the announcement made by me when the committees were appointed, I am authorized by the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. RANSOM] to resign his places on the committees to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, on Finance, on Privileges and Elections, on the District of Columbia, and as chairman of the Committee on Woman Suffrage, and I ask that his colleague [Mr. VANCE], who has just been sworn in, be appointed to those respective places.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PLATT in the chair). The declination of the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. RANSOM] to serve upon the committees named will be accepted by the Senate, if there is no objection, and his colleague [Mr. VANCE] will, if there be no objection, be considered as having been appointed to the vacancies thus created.

SILVER COINAGE.

Mr. MORRILL. I propose to-morrow morning, after the close of the morning business, if able, and with the consent of the Senate, to submit some remarks, of which previous notice has been given, on the subject of the free coinage of silver on the bill now upon the table, being (S. 51) to provide for the free coinage of gold and silver bullion, and for other purposes, which was introduced by the Senator from Nevada [Mr. STEWART].

COMPILATION OF A. W. CHURCH AND H. H. SMITH.

Mr. CHANDLER submitted the following resolution: which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the Senate 500 copies of the "Table showing the contents of the several volumes comprising the Annals of Congress, Congressional Debates, Congressional Globe, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, Statutes at Large, and United States Supreme Court Reports, arranged by years and Congresses," which was compiled for the Senate Library by A. W. Church and H. H. Smith; the same being brought down to January 1, 1892.

EXPORT OF CATTLE TO GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. ALLISON. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. VEST. If my friend from Iowa will permit me, I desire to ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of a joint resolution in regard to the British quarantine upon American cattle which I introduced just before the recess, and gave notice that I

The VICE-PRESIDENT. To what committee shall the communication be referred?

Mr. PERKINS. I suggest that it be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so referred.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. DOLPH, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 636) for the relief of Chester B. Sweet, of California, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 800) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to convey to the State of Kansas certain lands therein, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 625) to grant to the State of Oregon, townships 27, 28, 29, 30, and 31 south, in ranges 5 and 6 east, of the Willamette meridian, in the State of Oregon, for a public park, reported it without amendment.

Mr. BERRY, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 875) for the relief of Thomas Guinean, reported it without amendment.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 386) to provide for the disposal of Fort Hartsuff, Fort Sheridan, and Fort McPherson military reservations, in the State of Nebraska, to actual settlers under the provisions of the homestead laws, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1374) to aid the State of Colorado to support a school of mines, reported it without amendment.

Mr. VEST, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 440) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River between the city of Chamberlain, in Brulé County and Lyman County, in the State of South Dakota, reported it with amendments.

He also, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 430) making appropriation for the purchase of ground and the erection thereon in the city of Washington, D. C., of a building to be used as a hall of records, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 427) to provide for the erection of public buildings for post-offices in towns and cities where the post-office receipts for three years preceding have exceeded $3,000 annually, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 426) to provide for the erection of a public building for the use and accommodation of the post-office at Mammoth Hot Springs, in the Yellowstone National Park, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 70) to increase the limit of cost of the erection of a public building at Hoboken, N. J., reported it with an amendment.

Mr. QUAY, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 902) to provide for the erection of a public building at Bradford, Pa., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1095) for the relief of Thomas Chambers, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PETTIGREW, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 435) to aid the State of South Dakota to support a school of mines, reported it with an amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 444) granting to the State of South Dakota section No. 36, in township No. 94 north, of range No. 56 west, in the county of Yankton, in said State, for the purpose of an asylum for the insane, to correct an act approved June 16, 1880, attempting to make such grant to the Territory of Dakota, and for other purposes, reported it without amendment.

Mr. WHITE, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 143) to increase the endowment of the Louisiana State University and Agricultural College and for the Southern University of Louisiana, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1342) for the relief of John R. Blankenship, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. COCKRELL subsequently said: This morning the bill (S. 1342) for the relief of John R. Blankenship was reported by the junior Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE] from the Committee on Public Lands. I ask that the bill and report may be recommitted in order that I may submit some additional papers to the committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered in the absence of objection.

Mr. PASCO. I am directed by the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 81) to relinquish the interest of the United States in a certain parcel of land in the city of Pensacola, Fla., to Escambia Lodge, No. 15, Free and Accepted Masons, to report it without amendment. I will submit a report later.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. HAWLEY, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 686) granting a pension to Mrs. Charlotte O. Van Cleve, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Pensions: which was agreed to.

REPORT OF COMMISSION ON GEOGRAPHIC NAMES.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing, to which committee was referred a message from the President transmitting the report of the board constituted to consider the advisability of establishing uniformity in geographic nomenclature and orthography to report it back adverse to its printing, because it has been already printed by the House of Representatives.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be agreed to, and the committee discharged from the further consideration of the subject.

REVISED SENATE MANUAL FOR 1892.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1514) to correct the military record of Albert Stratton; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1515) granting a pension to the children of William H. Nettle; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

I undertake to say that, if we may judge by the reduction in the prices of work which has obtained in contracts made for certain river and harbor improvements under similar provisions in the last river and harbor act, the $100,000,000 provided in this bill will go as far as $150,000,000 appropriated in the ordinary manner. And I wish to say that the way Congress proceeds in providing for great public works, making an appropriation one year and failing to appropriate another, making inadequate appropriations, is wasteful and almost criminal on the part of those who have the disbursement of the people's money.

I now venture the prediction that if this bill does not pass—and I hardly hope it will; the committee reported it more with a view of bringing the matter to the attention of the Senate and of the country, and agitating the question of coast defenses and directing public attention to it than with the hope that it would pass as an independent measure—in twenty years Congress will appropriate $100,000,000 for coast defenses in an irregular and inadequate manner, which will be expended, and then $50,000,000 more will be required to do the work which would be done by this appropriation if made now to be available for eleven years.

I wish to say also that if any voter in the United States can not distinguish between a proposition to appropriate $100,000,000 in one year to be expended in a year, and a proposition to appropriate $100,000,000 to run through eleven years and to be distributed according to the necessities of the public work during that time, I care but very little about his opinion in regard to a public measure.

Mr. CHILTON. Mr. President, I was unable to be present at the meeting of the Coast Defense Committee at which this report was ordered, but I wish to say, without particularizing my objections at this time, that I concur with the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BERRY] in his opposition to the report.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. PASCO, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 79) for the erection of a public building at Tampa, Fla., reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PERKINS. I am not certain whether the joint resolution should be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary or the Committee on Claims.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, in the absence of objection.

Mr. STEWART introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 28) providing for the preparation, printing, and distribution of a law subject catalogue of the books in the United States Supreme Court law library; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Printing.

SUPPRESSION OF AFRICAN SLAVE TRADE.

Mr. SHERMAN, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported the following resolution: which was read, and referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved, That there be printed for distribution by the Senate 5,000 copies of "A general act, signed at Brussels July 2, 1890, by the plenipotentiaries of the United States and other powers for the suppression of the African slave trade," and of "A convention of commerce and navigation between the United States and the independent State of Congo, signed at Brussels, January 24, 1891," as amended, with the proceedings of the Senate thereon.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

On motion of Mr. WASHBURN, it was Ordered, That certain memorials and resolutions of commercial, industrial, and professional bodies presented March 3, 1891, be withdrawn from the files of the Senate.

On motion of Mr. MITCHELL, it was

Ordered, That the papers relating to the claim of Peter Grant Stewart, of Oregon, be taken from the files and referred to the Committee on Claims.

PRINTING OF BILL.

Mr. CHANDLER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Resolved, That there be printed in document form for use of the Senate 500 additional copies of Senate bill No. 1127, entitled "A bill to enlarge the ship-room and increase the comfort of immigrants."

LIFE-SAVING APPLIANCES.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following order: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to communicate to the Senate the proceedings of the Board of Supervising Inspectors of Steam Vessels at its sessions extending from September 28 to October 10, 1891, in regard to the matter of life-saving appliances on steamers, including all communications made to said board on the subject, whether in support of or adverse to the repeal of the present law, and all other documents and evidence relating to the use of projectiles and other life-saving appliances, which were before said board.

SANITARY CONDITION OF BASEMENT OF CAPITOL.

Mr. HALE. I offer an order, and ask for its immediate passage.

The order was read, as follows:

Ordered, That the Architect of the Capitol be, and he is hereby, directed to report forthwith to the Senate the condition of the Senate end of the Capitol in respect to its ventilation, drainage, and plumbing, and to state fully whether any defects exist which unfavorably affect the sanitary condition of the building.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I do not offer this order with a view of casting any censure or reproach upon the Architect of the Capitol, whom I believe to be a faithful and competent officer; but I have been informed that there is a condition of affairs in the basement or sub-basement of this end of the Capitol that is dangerous to every employé and to members of this body. Whether it be true I do not know, but I am informed that the board of health of this District has been invoked and has visited this end of the Capitol in the lower stories, and has found there a condition of things which may well be alarming to every one.

If that is the case, and if extensive changes are needed and new plumbing and new drainage required, the hands of the Architect ought to be upheld and strengthened; and if larger appropriations than are now available at his control are needed this is a subject of importance to everybody and ought to be acted upon at once; and I have made the order in its language require an immediate report. I hope that nobody will object to its passage.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the resolution?

Mr. HARRIS. Is it a resolution? If it is a proposition for action I should like to know what it is. I did not hear it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is the order submitted by the Senator from Maine.

Mr. HALE. Let it be read again for the information of the Senator.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The order will be again read.

The Chief Clerk again read the proposed order.

Mr. HARRIS. The order ought to be adopted at once.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

MEXICAN COMMISSION AWARDS.

Mr. MORGAN. I submit a resolution calling for information; and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of State be directed to send to the Senate a statement of the amount of money paid, and the date of each payment, by Mexico in compliance with the awards of the commissioners, or the umpire, made under the convention concluded between Mexico and the United States of America, concluded July 4, 1898; and, also, a statement of the amount paid out of said fund to each claimant thereof; to whom paid, and the date of payment. And the amount of any award made under said convention that has been refused payment by the State Department, and what person or persons are now the claimants of interests in said awards, the payment of which has been so refused.

The Secretary of State will also inform the Senate whether any of said fund, remaining in the Department of State, is invested, and, if so, in what securities the same is invested.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. CHANDLER. I do not want to object, but I did not catch the statement as to what the resolution does.

Mr. MORGAN. The resolution calls for a report from the Department of State as to the condition and state of the fund under the convention with Mexico of July 4, 1898. It is the Weil and La Abra matter.

Mr. CHANDLER. I make no objection.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

BUSINESS BEFORE COURT OF CLAIMS.

Mr. MITCHELL. There is a resolution on the table that I introduced yesterday relating to the business before the Court of Claims. I ask that it may lie over until to-morrow. It is not necessary to read it. Let it go over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will lie over until to-morrow.

ESTATE OF JAMES C. BOOTH.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed and the Calendar is in order. The first bill on the Calendar will be stated.

Mr. QUAY presented the petition of Benjamin F. Bruner, of Lancaster County, Pa., praying to be allowed an invalid pension: which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HISCOCK. I present resolutions and petition of the New York Cotton Exchange, remonstrating against the passage of Senate bill 685, levying a tax on sales for future delivery of cotton, etc., on the ground that it would necessitate the closing up of the commercial exchanges of the country, and asking Congress to refrain from legislation of the kind.

I ask that the resolutions and petition be printed in the RECORD. I believe the bill to which the paper refers was introduced by the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN] and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair is advised that the bill was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. HISCOCK. I understand not. The paper refers to the bill which was introduced by the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN], and that bill was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. I inquire of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. PADDOCK] if there has been a like bill referred to the Committee on Agriculture?

Mr. PADDOCK. There are three or four bills pending before the Committee on Agriculture on this subject. There is one, and possibly there are two, of like import pending before the Committee on Interstate Commerce, and there is one before the Committee on the Judiciary. It seems to me that it would be wise to have all these bills in some one committee and to have one committee charged with the responsibility of considering the whole subject and reporting upon it to the Senate. I have no particular personal interest in the matter and no concern about it, except to have the subject fairly and thoroughly treated. It seems to me to be a subject that would properly come within the jurisdiction of the Agricultural Committee. However, I have no care or solicitude as to the particular committee to which the subject shall be referred.

Mr. HISCOCK. It seems to me all the bills on this subject ought to be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, as the power to tax depends upon the theory that the properties come within interstate commerce; but I do not desire to make any motion on the subject. I merely rose for the purpose of suggesting that the paper which I presented, referring, as it does, to the bill of the Senator from Minnesota, should be referred to the same committee to which the bill was referred.

Mr. PADDOCK. Undoubtedly it should be, Mr. President.

Mr. WASHBURN. I conferred with the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. PADDOCK], as I had some doubt in regard to the reference of the bill when I introduced it. It should probably have gone to the Committee on Agriculture, but as I felt that it was pretty sure ultimately to be referred to the Judiciary Committee for a final report, I thought I would ask the reference of the bill in the first place to that committee, as I desired to have an early report and early discussion and action on the bill.

So far as the printing in the RECORD of the memorial, or protest, or argument, or whatever it is, which has been presented by the Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK] is concerned, I should have no objection to that proposition, excepting that it is not, as I understand, in accordance with the practice of the Senate. If that is done in this case I have a volume of memorials on the same subject, which I shall ask to have printed also in the same form.

Mr. HISCOCK. I withdraw the request for the printing of the paper in the RECORD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The petition will be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary if there be no objection.

Mr. COCKRELL. I desire to present preamble and resolutions which were adopted at a meeting of the merchants, manufacturers, and representatives of the municipal government of the city of St. Louis, held at the Merchants' Exchange on November 24, 1891, in regard to the improvement of the Mississippi River, and especially that portion of it between St. Louis and the mouth of the Ohio River, and also containing a report of the legislative committee presented at a meeting of the executive committee held on January 6, 1892, in which they favor an appropriation of $11,000,000 for the improvement of the river from the mouth of the Illinois River to the mouth of the Ohio River, said sum to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War; and further requesting the Senators and Representatives in Congress from Missouri to support Senate bill 1199, introduced by Senator GIBSON, of Louisiana, entitled "A bill to improve the navigation and to afford ease and safety to the trade and commerce of the Mississippi River, and to prevent destructive floods, by building and repairing and extending the levees and dikes and other works, with an appropriation therefor." Nearly all the representative bodies and organizations of St. Louis are represented in the membership of the executive committee.

I ask that these resolutions and preamble may be received and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. They will be so referred.

PRINTING OF A PETITION.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask that a petition in the nature of a resolution, adopted by the Eleventh Annual Farmers' Congress, held at Sehalia, Mo., which I presented on the 5th instant, praying for legislation impartial in its advantages and benefits, favoring the election of the President and United States Senators by a direct vote of the people, etc., may be printed as a document. It is brief, and I think for the convenience of Senators it should be printed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The petition will be printed as a document, if there be no objection. The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. GORDON. Mr. President, I ask the privilege of interrupting the regular order long enough, at this stage, to make a personal explanation and to give the reason for my absence from the regular meeting of the Committee on Coast Defenses, which met yesterday.

In looking over the printed list of the committees as recorded in the daily RECORD I found that the name of my distinguished friend from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] was mentioned as a member of that committee, and not myself. I therefore naturally concluded that I was not a member of the committee and that the first announcement was a mistake. This was my reason for being absent. That misapprehension having been removed, I shall in the future be present at its meetings.

Now that I am on my feet, if the Senate will indulge me, I wish to make one other explanation. While the bill reported favorably from that committee yesterday morning is one of great importance, and merits grave consideration, yet had I been present I should have felt constrained, in the present condition of the country and of the people, to have voted against its favorable report. There are, I think, no war clouds visible to give us unusual concern or alarm. No man will be more prompt than myself in voting money for the country's defense whenever the exigencies shall demand it, and to any amount required for defense. It does seem to me, however, that the country is in much greater danger from the burdens of taxation from which the people are suffering than from any invasion from a foreign foe. It occurs to me, therefore, that it would be wiser for us to rather curtail than increase expenditures, and thus avoid the necessity for raising such large sums from the people. Let us first relieve our people, as far as we may, from the present exactions of taxation and then, when the occasion arises, look to the remote and contingent danger from outside.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1379) to provide for a pension for Obe Sutherland, late a teamster in the Quartermaster's Department of the United States Volunteer Army, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. DOLPH, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1503) to establish a first-order light-house on North Head, Cape Disappointment, in the State of Washington, reported it without amendment.

Mr. PASCO, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 80) providing for the completion of the public building in the city of Pensacola, Fla., as originally designed, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. STEWART, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 53) to reimburse certain persons who expended moneys and furnished services and supplies in repelling invasions and suppressing Indian hostilities within the territorial limits of the present State of Nevada, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 522) for the erection of a public building at Cheyenne, Wyo., reported it with amendments.

Mr. MITCHELL, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 211) for the relief of the survivors of Dennis Murphy, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1) for preventing the adulteration and misbranding of food and drugs, and for other purposes, reported it with amendments.

Mr. PADDOCK. The Committee on Agriculture and Forestry have had under consideration the bill (S. 1434) providing for the loan of money to the farmers of Indiana, and have instructed me to report it back to the Senate and ask to be relieved from the further consideration of the proposition. As the bill relates exclusively to the subject of finance it clearly belongs, we think, to the jurisdiction of the committee having charge of all finance measures, and I am therefore instructed, without any expression whatever as to the views of the committee respecting the merits of the proposition itself, to move that it be referred to the Committee on Finance. I call the attention of the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEPPER] to this report, who, as the RECORD shows, introduced the bill by request.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Committee on Agriculture and Forestry will be discharged from the further consideration of the bill, and it will be referred to the Committee on Finance if there be no objection. The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 123) fixing the time for holding the district and circuit courts of the United States in the northern district of Iowa; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

Mr. KYLE introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 29) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States relating to marriage and divorce; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. KYLE. I desire that the joint resolution shall lie on the table for the time being, and I give notice that at an early day I shall move to take up the measure and refer it to the Judiciary Committee; and I also give notice that at that time I shall make a few remarks pertaining to the joint resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will lie on the table for the present.

Mr. HISCOCK (by request) introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 30) for the relief of Charles Stoughton, in reference to his services in the Harlem River improvement project, New York; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also (by request) introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 31) authorizing and requiring the Secretary of War to contract with Charles Stoughton for the completion of the Harlem River Canal from the Hudson River to the upper end of Randalls Island, commencing the work where the present contractor leaves it, and for the entire work of excavating a canal through the Harlem Kills from the upper end of Randalls Island to the deep water of Long Island Sound; each channel to be 250 feet wide and 15 feet deep at mean low water, except where previous work on the Harlem River channel has exceeded these dimensions; both to be completed on or before the 31st day of May, 1893; the contract price for the completion of the Harlem River Canal to be $970,000; the work to be carried out in strict accordance with Col. Newton's official survey report, as sent up to Congress February 22, 1875, except that the width shall be 250 feet, as above stated, instead of 350 feet; the contract price for the Harlem Kills Channel to be $1,650,000; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

SECURITY OF DISTRICT BUILDINGS.

Mr. McMILLAN submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be, and are hereby, directed to inquire into and to report to the Senate, as soon as practicable, if any of the public halls, theaters, or other public buildings within the District of Columbia are specially dangerous to life in case of fire or panic, by reason of height of the auditorium above the street, lack of direct and capacious exits, the presence of boilers or furnaces under the auditorium or stairways leading thereto, defective construction, or for any other causes.

COMMITTEE ON RELATIONS WITH CANADA.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Committee on Relations with Canada shall hereafter be one of the standing committees of the Senate.

EXTENSION OF FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

Mr. HANSBROUGH submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Postmaster-General be, and he is hereby, instructed to furnish the Senate of the United States with all the information that may be on file in his Department, including copies of reports and statements of post-office inspectors and others, relative to the question of extending the free-delivery system to rural communities, or for substituting said system for that of the present star-route service, as far as the same may be found practicable.

REPORT OF HENRY W. ELLIOTT.

Mr. MORGAN submitted the following resolution: which was read:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury is directed to furnish for the information of the Senate a copy of the report of Henry W. Elliott, made in obedience to the order of an act of Congress approved April 5, 1890, with all maps and illustrations that accompany it.

Mr. COCKRELL. What does the act refer to?

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. Elliott was sent out and made his report to the Secretary of the Treasury as required by act of Congress, and it is very desirable and it is very important that that report should be furnished.

Mr. CHANDLER. I ask that the resolution may be again reported.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be again read. The Chief Clerk read the resolution.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

HOUSE BILL REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 123) fixing the time for holding the district and circuit courts of the United States in the northern district of Iowa was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

COMMITTEE SERVICE.

Mr. DOLPH. I ask to be relieved from service as chairman of the Committee on Coast Defenses, retaining a position upon the committee as a member.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Oregon will be excused, if there be no objection.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH] be made chairman of the Committee on Public Lands.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Illinois, that the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH] be made chairman of the Committee on Public Lands.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CAREY. I ask to be relieved from further service upon the Committee on Patents.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Wyoming will be excused, if there be no objection.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PERKINS], who succeeds the late Senator Plumb, be made a member of the Committee on Patents, a member of the Committee on the District of Columbia, and a member of the Select Committee on the Transportation and Sale of Meat Products.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion made by the Senator from Illinois.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY] be made a member of the Committee on Public Lands.

The motion was agreed to.

BUSINESS BEFORE THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

Mr. MITCHELL. If the regular morning business is through I desire to call up the resolution I submitted on the 11th instant, and I ask that it be read, as I desire to submit a few remarks in relation to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution submitted by Mr. MITCHELL January 11, 1892, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be, and it is hereby, instructed to make inquiry as to what legislation, if any, should be enacted by Congress for the purpose of relieving the Court of Claims in the transaction of business before that court, and for expediting such business, and to report to the Senate by bill or otherwise at its earliest convenience.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. President, the purpose of this resolution is to bring speedily to the attention of the Senate the pressing necessity for such early legislation as will tend to expedite the transaction of business now pending, and which, with alarming rapidity, is constantly accumulating on the calendar of the Court of Claims, and which will bring relief to the judges of and litigants in that overburdened court. Nothing, it seems to me, except a total lack of information as to the amount, importance, and state of the business now pending in that court would justify opposition to some proper and speedy legislation on this subject. The startling facts presented in the report of the Attorney-General and those of his assistants are of themselves amply sufficient not only to justify but induce appropriate and speedy action by Congress looking to the relief of both court and litigants.

During the past few Congresses various acts have been passed largely increasing the jurisdiction of that court, and which, taken together, have resulted in an avalanche of cases that literally overwhelm the court, not merely by the number of cases on the calendar, but also by the magnitude of the interests and amounts involved. Whereas originally the jurisdiction of the court attached only to cases arising under contract, express or implied, now, there are in all, under existing laws, no less than seven sources of jurisdiction, namely, general; specially conferred; Congressional, under what are known as the Bowman and Tucker acts; French spoliation claims; Indian depredation claims; departmental; and District of Columbia. And while this constant enlargement of jurisdiction has been going on nothing has been done of a material character either to enlarge the court or strengthen the aids of the court by increase of clerical force or of the assistants to the Attorney-General, whose Department must, in the protection of the interests of the Government, look after and give attention to this vast amount of business. The only legislation that has been enacted which in any manner tends to lessen the accumulation of business in the Court of Claims is the act of March 3, 1887, conferring upon the circuit and district courts of the United States concurrent jurisdiction in a certain specified class of cases with the Court of Claims.

Under this act, as appears from the report of the Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the business of the Department of Justice in the Court of Claims, there have since its passage been 951 suits brought, 828 of which have been decided, and 123 of which are still pending. But notwithstanding this diversion of business, the startling fact remains that there are now, or were at the date of the report of the Assistant Attorney-General, November 5 last, 19,417 cases pending on the dockets of the Court of Claims. Of these, 1,271 cases arise under general and special jurisdictions; 7,393 under the Bowman-Tucker acts; 1,952 French spoliation claims; 11 departmental cases; 23 District of Columbia cases, and 5,467 Indian depredation cases.

Some conception of the magnitude and importance of this vast number of cases will be had when it is stated that according to the estimate of the Assistant Attorney-General that in the 5,569 petitions filed under the French spoliation act, 2,399 vessels are involved, including claims in the aggregate of about $30,000,000, former estimates made in the Department of Justice having been as high as $12,000,000. Of these 5,569 cases filed under the French spoliation act but 617 have been adjudicated and disposed of or passed upon by the court. Three hundred and twenty-eight of these have been decided favorably to the claimants, 54 unfavorably to the claimants, while 235 petitions have been dismissed; the aggregate amount allowed in cases certified favorably being $2,352,169.52. Of this amount Congress, in the act of March 3, 1891, appropriated $1,301,095.37, covering 250 claims. And as showing the slow progress this court must necessarily make on account of the great number of sources of jurisdiction and the mass of cases constantly accumulating from each source or class, it may be said, as appears from the report of the Assistant Attorney-General, that during the past year out of 97 cases that had been remanded for further proceedings but 14 had been decided after reargument, and 57 petitions argued and submitted. But the number of cases and amounts involved in the French spoliation claims sink into insignificance when compared with the number of cases which have found their way to the docket of the Court of Claims in pursuance of the provisions of the Bowman act.

From 1884 to March 3, 1891, we are told in the report of Assistant Attorney-General Cotton, there were docketed under the Bowman act an aggregate of 8,503 cases; the number docketed each year being as follows:

1885	177	1889	632
1887	786	1891	405

The present Assistant Attorney-General hesitates to attempt even an approximate estimate of the aggregate amount of the claims involved in these cases from the fact, as stated by him, in many instances no sum is mentioned in the petition, but he does remind us that former reports of the Attorneys-General have placed the estimate at the enormous sum of $400,000,000.

But, passing over the cases arising under the general and special jurisdiction, departmental, and the District of Columbia, I desire to attract attention to the number of cases, amounts involved, and general state of the business in the Court of Claims arising under the Indian depredation act. It is claims arising under this act that the constituency I in part represent are more particularly interested in; and it is a constituency, moreover, than which none are more worthy or more entitled to the favorable consideration of Congress.

The claimants who are to-day attempting to procure by suit in the Court of Claims, in pursuance of the act of the last Congress, that just compensation which was their honest due from this Government in most cases more than a third of a century ago, are of the sturdiest and worthiest of that worthy and noble class of pioneers who, braving the innumerable dangers of frontier life, risking at every step their property and their lives, laid the foundation stones of civilization in the far West, and by their industry, integrity, perseverance, and aggressive natures erected thereon a superstructure of magnificent States, which now add luster, wealth, dignity, and power to the nation. And one main purpose in view at this time on my part is to endeavor to bring about such further and speedy legislation as will properly supplement and make effective the legislation of last Congress in the interest of those who have suffered so much and been neglected so long, and whose just rights have been unreasonably and unjustifiably withheld by this great Government.

Since the passage by Congress, March 3, 1891, of what is commonly known as the Indian depredation act, and prior to November 1 last, 5,467 suits have been docketed under this act in the Court of Claims. The smallest amount claimed in any one action, we are told in his report by Assistant Attorney-General Colby, is $19.75, and the largest amount $1,281,250, while the aggregate amount claimed in the 5,467 actions that have been commenced up to November 1, 1891, is $21,241,908. All of these claims were on November 1 last still pending and undecided. I believe a very few have been disposed of since that date.

The Assistant Attorney-General says:

The number of depredations committed in the several States and Territories for which actions have been commenced, as shown by the petitions on file, is as follows:

State.	No.	State.	No.
Alabama	63	Nevada	36
Arizona	156	New Mexico	1,113
Arkansas	4	Nebraska	156
California	145	Oregon	271
Colorado	125	Texas	1,164
North and South Dakota	179	Utah	151
Georgia	2	Washington	54
Indian Territory	49	Wyoming	83
Idaho	19	States and Territories not designated	671
Iowa	8
Kansas	200
Montana	34	Total	5,101
Minnesota	31

The Assistant Attorney-General in his report estimates that the aggregate number of claims under the Indian depredation jurisdiction will probably reach a point between 10,000 and 15,000. It is my opinion, however, that the minimum of this estimate is too large. I think it very probable that considerably more than one-half of all the actions that ever could be instituted under this act have already been brought.

But should there be no increase in the number of cases from this source of jurisdiction—and there certainly will be many hundred if not several thousand more cases commenced—it must be apparent to all that, with a docket weighted down, as it is now, with nearly if not quite 20,000 cases—there were on the docket on November 1 last 19,117 cases. It is to this class of claimants, the suits in relation to which have all been docketed since March 3, 1891, little less than a mockery and denial of justice, unless some further legislation is had, either by increasing the number of the judges of the Court of Claims, the number and compensation of the assistant attorneys, the number of the clerical force both in the office of the Attorney-General and the Court of Claims, the appointment of a number of special agents to work in cooperation with the Department of Justice and Court of Claims, or some or all of these, and, in addition, an amendment of the Indian depredation act conferring concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Claims on the circuit courts of the United States. Whatever else may be done, I am strongly of the opinion that concurrent jurisdiction should be given to the circuit courts, both as to actions to be commenced and by transfer, at the instance of the claimant, of cases now pending in the Court of Claims. When the Indian depredation bill was under discussion in the Senate last session I strongly insisted that this should be done. There are many and forcible reasons, other than that arising out of the present burdened docket of the Court of Claims, why this should be done. As it is now, claimants, the most of whom reside from 2,000 to 3,000 miles from Washington, where the court is held, are compelled to come here, or at least have their attorneys come here, at great expense, or employ attorneys residing here. Their Senators and Representatives can not look after this business for them, as they can not appear or practice in the Court of Claims, even though they be lawyers. Had the circuit courts jurisdiction much of the cost and time now necessarily expended could be saved to claimants. Each claimant could then have his case brought, investigated, and decided in a tribunal sitting within the boundaries of his own State.

Now, Mr. President, in what has been said there must be no inference to the effect that the Court of Claims or any of its able and industrious justices are in any manner responsible for the present condition of things, the present overburdened state of the docket in that court, or in any degree subject to any censure on account thereof. On the contrary, my information is, and the reports of the Attorney-General and his assistants, as well as the records and reports of the court itself, confirm this, that the court is and has been diligent in the exercise of official duty, the judges bringing to the discharge of such duty industrious, able, and faithful effort; and the same must undoubtedly be said of the Assistant Attorney-General and assistant attorneys who have had charge of the business of the Government in this court.

There were disposed of during the past year by the court, by trial or otherwise, 653 cases; the amounts claimed in these cases, according to the report of the Attorney-General, being $7,377,011.54. Of these, 489 cases were decided favorably to the United States, and 164 favorably to the plaintiffs; the aggregate amount allowed to plaintiffs being $700,817.86. This statement does not include, says the Assistant Attorney-General, "Cases prepared and tried and now under advisement, neither does it include many cases prepared and tried and afterwards removed, for various reasons, to the general docket."

It is quite evident, therefore, from this showing, that no blame can properly attach to the court for the present enormous calendar of cases in that court. The fault is elsewhere—it rests not with the court; not with the Department of Justice, but with Congress. The Congress should apply the remedy, and it should be done without any unnecessary delay. A spirit of intelligent dispatch should characterize the action of Congress in this regard. With 20,000 cases now on the docket, and assuming there are to be no further cases docketed—and they are being docketed by the scores every day—it would require, disposing on an average 653 cases annually, the number disposed of the past year, over thirty years to clear the docket. The situation is farcical. It is ridiculous in the extreme. It is absurd. It is a travesty on justice. I move the adoption of the resolution instructing the Committee on the Judiciary to formulate and report a remedy.

Mr. CHANDLER. Mr. President, as a member of the Committee on Indian Depredations of the last Congress, which was instrumental in connection with the Senator from Oregon, who has just taken his seat [Mr. MITCHELL], in conferring jurisdiction to adjudicate Indian depredation claims upon the Court of Claims, I desire to say that I agree to the passage of the resolu-

Mr. PADDOCK presented a petition of the Wahpakoota and Modawakauton bands of the Santee Sioux Indians, praying for legislative relief as provided by the terms of the treaties of 1838 and 1853; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. TELLER presented the memorial of Samuel F. Tappan, of Washington, D. C., remonstrating against the passage of Senate bill 456, for the relief of Theodore R. Timby; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. HALE presented a petition of the Board of Trade of Portland, Me., praying for the passage of the bill to transfer the Revenue Marine Service to the Navy Department; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. COCKRELL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 2) for the relief of Ezra S. Havens;

A bill (S. 3) for the relief of Napoleon B. Giddings;

A bill (S. 4) for the relief of Alfred J. Worcester;

A bill (S. 5) for the relief of John S. Neet, jr.; and

A bill (S. 6) for the relief of Joseph W. Carmack.

Mr. QUAY, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 901) to provide for the purchase of a site, and the erection of a public building thereon, at Allentown, in the State of Pennsylvania, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HAWLEY. The bill (S. 727) for the relief of H. C. Stanton, of Roseburg, Oregon, administrator of the estate of James Sinclair, and his widow, Mary Sinclair, and for the relief of Erastus S. Joslyn, of Colorado Springs, in the State of Colorado, was introduced and referred under a misapprehension to the Committee on Military Affairs. The claim was sent at the last Congress to the Court of Claims. I therefore move that the Committee on Military Affairs be discharged from the further consideration of the bill, and that it be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. ALLEN, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1030) for the relief of F. F. White, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PASCO, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 408) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building at Fernandina, in the State of Florida, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 1617) to carry into effect the recommendation of the board of admirals convened pursuant to the joint resolution approved February 5, 1879, in the case of Commander Henry Glass, United States Navy; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. CULLOM. I also introduce a bill for reference to the Committee on Interstate Commerce. I desire to state that the bill is in relation to the equipment of cars; it was forwarded to me by Mr. Rogers, chairman of the railroad commission of New York, and also a member of an organization having under discussion that special subject. I therefore introduce the bill so that it may have consideration by the committee.

The bill (S. 1618) to promote the safety of employes and travelers, by compelling common carriers engaged in interstate commerce to equip their cars with automatic couplers and continuous brakes and their locomotives with driving-wheel brakes; was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 1619) to provide for remodeling and maintaining the public bathing beach on the Potomac River in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1620) for the relief of John H. Merrill; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WILSON introduced a bill (S. 1621) providing for two additional associate justices of the supreme court of the Territory of Utah, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 1622) for the relief of the legal representatives of Richard W. Meade, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1623) granting a pension to William Lukens; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1624) to authorize the Quanah and Oklahoma Railroad Company to construct and operate a railway through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. BLISS introduced a bill (S. 1625) to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of Massillon, Ohio; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1626) for the relief of William B. Burnet; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1627) providing for sundry light-houses and other aids to navigation; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. FAULKNER introduced a bill (S. 1628) granting a pension to Daniel Kendall; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PASCO introduced a bill (S. 1629) for the relief of Alison J. Tinsley; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DAVES introduced a bill (S. 1630) for the relief of T. H. Church; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1631) to establish a life-saving station at Gay Head, on the coast of Massachusetts; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1632) for the establishment of a light and fog signal station near Butler Flats, New Bedford, Mass.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1633) supplementary and amendatory to an act entitled "An act to refer to the Court of Claims certain claims of the Shawnee and Delaware Indians and the freedmen of the Cherokee Nation, and for other purposes," approved October 1, 1860; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1634) to provide for a final settlement with the Naalem band of the Tillamook tribe of Indians of Oregon, in accordance with a certain agreement between the United States and the said Indians, dated the 6th day of August, 1851; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1635) to provide for a final settlement with the Tillamook tribe of Indians of Oregon, in accordance with a certain agreement between the United States and the said Indians, dated the 7th day of August, 1851; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. QUAY introduced a bill (S. 1636) for the relief of Noah Seaton; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 1637) granting a pension to Earnest C. Emerson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 1638) to remove the charge of desertion now standing against George Alcott on the rolls of the War Department; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 1639) for the relief of Sallie Hardmond; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1640) for the relief of Charles L. Scudder; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. PETTIGREW introduced a bill (S. 1641) for the relief of Thomas D. Murrin; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. VEST introduced a bill (S. 1642) making an appropriation to complete the improvement of the Mississippi River from the mouth of the Illinois River to the mouth of the Ohio River; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

COLORADO SCHOOL OF MINES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed, and the Calendar is in order.

The bill (S. 1574) to aid the State of Colorado to support a school of mines was announced as first in order on the Calendar, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is there a report with the bill?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is no report accompanying the bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to hear an explanation of the bill. Why is the State of Colorado to receive this gift in addition to the other gifts she has received?

Mr. TELLER rose.

Mr. PADDOCK. The bill has heretofore passed the Senate on the report of the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] from the Committee on Public Lands. He will explain it.

Mr. TELLER. When the Senate gets still enough so that anybody may be heard, I can perhaps explain the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. TELLER. Colorado has for many years, commencing with its Territorial existence, maintained a school of mines for the education of young men in metallurgy, chemistry, and mining engineering. There have been of course other mining schools, notably the school at Columbia College, New York, where the same branches have been taught.

I have had occasion to say before, and I repeat now, that on this continent there has been no school where I think so complete a mining education has been obtainable as at the school of mines in Colorado. It is a State institution supported by a yearly tax upon the people of the State. It is practically free to all citizens of the United States, the charges being simply nominal; and I think we have had in the school of mines students from nearly every State in the Union, certainly from all the Western States. It has not had the reputation that the school at Freiberg has gained, yet I have no hesitation in saying that if I had a boy whom I desired to bring up as a mining engineer I should much prefer to send him to the mining school at Golden, in the State of Colorado, than to Freiberg. It is in the immediate vicinity of the great mines of this continent, where the students can have access in a few hours to all the intricate machinery required for the reduction of metals. It is in the neighborhood of the great smelters at Denver and only 118 miles from the great smelters at Pueblo. It is about 100 miles from the great mining district of Leadville and about 25 miles from what are known as the mining districts of Clear Creek and Gilpin Counties, two counties that have produced something over $100,000,000 of bullion, mostly gold. There mining may be seen by these students in its advanced state.

There are no people in the world who have mined with greater care and intelligence than we have in this country within the last fifteen or twenty years. There is no State in the Union where mining has been carried on with as much system and with as much intelligence as in the State of Colorado.

The school is brought in close connection with not only the mining of gold and silver but also coal, because there are coal mines immediately in the neighborhood within a mile of the school, and coal of all kinds and all descriptions.

This school has been maintained by the State, as I said, and everybody has had the advantage of it. The State of Colorado is somewhat young, and we pay for every mining claim that we take up $5 an acre, whether it is good or whether it is bad. Of course when a man gets a good mine it is merely a nominal sum, of no account, but there are hundreds of acres of land that have been taken up and the Government has been paid for as mineral land that has no real value whatever and has never returned anything to the locator.

We thought it was not unreasonable, as long as we held this school open to all the citizens of the United States, inasmuch as the Government is assisting in the agricultural education of our youth, that it should assist also in their education in the practical business of mining.

I suppose the Senator from Missouri who makes the inquiry is quite familiar with the great amount of mineral that is produced in the United States. I do not now speak particularly of the precious metals, but of iron, copper, and lead, as well as silver and gold. I presume he knows that the industry of mining has become one of the great industries of the country.

The bill provides for the payment of 25 per cent—that is an error; it should have been 50 per cent—of the mining returns from the sale of mineral lands, but not to exceed $12,000 per annum, and not that sum unless the State should annually appropriate that amount or more. I will say that the State has appropriated a very much greater amount than that every year. The State has erected very suitable buildings; it has provided machinery of all kinds, and, as I said, it is a place where any student in the United States can certainly acquire as complete a mining education as he can at any place on the face of the earth, Freiberg not excepted.

If it is now in order to move an amendment, I will move, in line 3, to strike out the word "twenty-five," before "per centum," and insert "fifty," which is the way the bill passed the Senate heretofore.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

Mr. TELLER. The amendment does not increase the amount, because the amount is limited to $12,000.

The CHIEF CLERK. In line 3 of section I, strike out the word "twenty-five" and insert the word "fifty;" so as to read:

That the State of Colorado shall annually receive 50 per cent of all moneys paid to the United States for mineral lands within the State of Colorado, for the maintenance of the school of mines established at Golden, in the county of Jefferson, in said State.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. COCKRELL. Before it is voted upon, do I understand that in the measure passed at the last Congress the amount was 50 per cent?

Mr. TELLER. It was passed on the former occasion at 50 per cent. It was owing to an error in introducing the bill that it came in at 25 per cent.

Mr. COCKRELL. The Senator himself introduced the bill.

Mr. TELLER. I introduced it, and inadvertently introduced it as it was originally introduced some years ago, and not as it passed the Senate.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. TELLER. In line 9 of section I, after the word "amount," I move to insert the word "annually;" so that the State shall annually appropriate as much as the Government.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section I, line 9, after the word "amount," insert the word "annually;" so as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That said sum so to be paid shall not exceed the sum of $12,000 per annum, nor shall it exceed the amount annually expended by the State of Colorado for said school of mines.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MISSOURI RIVER BRIDGE IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 440) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River, between the city of Chamberlain, in Brulé County, and Lyman County, in the State of South Dakota.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The first amendment was, after the words "Secretary of War," in line 14, at the end of section I, to insert "or said bridge may be constructed as a wagon and foot bridge alone;" so as to make the section read:

That the Chamberlain Pontoon Bridge Company, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of South Dakota, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct and maintain a bridge and approaches thereto across the Missouri River between the city of Chamberlain, in the State of South Dakota, and Lyman County, in the State of South Dakota. Said bridge shall be constructed to provide for the passage of railroad trains, wagons, and vehicles of all kinds, steam and street cars, animals, foot passengers, and for all road travel, for such reasonable rates of toll and under such reasonable rules and regulations as may be prescribed by said corporation and approved by the Secretary of War, or said bridge may be constructed as a wagon and foot bridge alone.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 3, line 2, after the word "pontoon," to strike out "drawspan;" in the same line, before the word "drawspan," to strike out "pontoon," and after the word "drawspan" to insert "giving a clear opening;" in line 6, before the word "said," to strike out "the piers of;" in the same line, after the word "bridge," to insert "other than the drawspan;" after the words "shall be," at the end of line 6, to strike out "parallel with and the bridge itself;" and in line 8, after the word "river," to insert "at high water;" so as to read:

Sec. 3. That said bridge shall be constructed as a pontoon bridge, and shall contain a drawspan giving a clear opening of not less than 300 feet in length, which drawspan shall be maintained over the main channel of the river at an accessible and navigable point, and said bridge other than the drawspan shall be at right angles to the current of the river at high water.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in the same section, line 15, before the word "obstruct," to insert "unreasonably;" and in line 17, before the word "obstruct," to insert "unreasonably;" so as to read:

No bridge shall be erected or maintained under the authority of this act which shall at any time unreasonably obstruct the free navigation of said river, and if any bridge erected under such authority shall, in the opinion of the Secretary of War, unreasonably obstruct such navigation, he is hereby authorized to cause the entire removal thereof or such change or alteration of said bridge to be made as will effectually obviate such obstruction, and all such alterations shall be made and all such obstructions shall be removed at the expense of the owner or owners of said bridge.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out the following proviso at the end of section 3:

Provided, That said company may construct a wagon and foot bridge, and in case of the construction of a wagon and foot bridge alone the draws shall be of the same length herein provided, and shall be of such construction as shall be approved by the Secretary of War, and shall be subject to all the provisions herein contained in respect to being promptly opened to permit the unobstructed navigation of said river and for keeping the same lighted as herein provided in case of a railroad and wagon bridge, and in such case the provisions herein in relation to the use for railroad purposes shall not apply.

The amendment was agreed to.

per ounce; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Buffalo County, Wis., praying for the passage of what is known as the Conger land bill; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a petition of citizens of St. Croix County, Wis., praying for the passage of a law to restore the free bimetallic coinage of silver and gold coins the same as was the law from 1792 to 1873; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. WASHBURN presented the petition of E. J. Lien and 65 other citizens of Faribault County, Minn., praying for the passage of what is known as the option bill; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the Grand Rapids and Itasca County Improvement Union of Grand Rapids, Minn., praying for the passage of an act to authorize the construction of a dam on the Mississippi River for the improvement of the Grand Rapids water power; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. MORGAN presented the petition of James W. Shearer, of Birmingham, Ala., praying for an extension of his patent for a system of phonetic and diacritical notations; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. BERRY presented a petition of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Winfield Memorial Church, Little Rock, Ark., praying that the World's Columbian Fair be closed on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadricentennial (Select).

Mr. FAULKNER. I present the petition of Clarence L. Smith and 326 other citizens of Fairmont, W. Va., praying for the ratification by the United States Government of the general act signed at Brussels, July 2, 1890, for the suppression of the African slave trade and run traffic. As that convention has been ratified by the Senate, I move that the petition lie on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. McMILLAN presented the petition of Daniel Scotten & Co., of Detroit, Mich., praying for an amendment to section 26 of the tariff law relative to retail dealers in tobacco; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of 21 citizens of the District of Columbia, praying that an appropriation be made for regulating, grading, and laying sidewalks on Howard avenue, in Washington, D. C.; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. TELLER. I present the petition of a large number of citizens of Colorado, who sign themselves the Western Colorado Congress, praying for the free coinage of silver. I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Finance.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of the Snareville Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Castleton, Ill., praying for the closing of the World's Columbian Fair on Sunday, for the prohibition of the sale of liquors therein, and for the management of the art department thereof according to the American standard of purity in art; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadricentennial (Select).

Mr. VEST presented the petition of W. A. Hampton and other citizens of Livingston County, Mo., praying for the passage of a bill imposing a revenue tax upon compound lard, similar to the one known as the Conger lard bill in the Fifty-first Congress; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented the petition of A. H. Collins and other citizens of Livingston County, Mo., praying for the passage of what is known as the Butterworth option bill; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. COCKRELL presented the affidavit of ex-Senator S. B. Conover, to accompany the bill (S. 619) for the relief of George P. Ihrie; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. COLQUITT, from the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, to whom was referred the bill (S. 68) for the relief of the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad Company, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. FAULKNER, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 9) to direct the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the governor of the State of West Virginia the sum appropriated by the act of Congress entitled "An act to credit and pay to the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia all moneys collected under the direct tax levied by the act of Congress approved August 5, 1861," reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1060) to punish the carrying or selling of deadly or dangerous weapons within the District of Columbia, reported it with amendments.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1057) to punish the unlawful appropriation of the use of the property of another in the District of Columbia, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1058) to prevent fraudulent transactions on the part of commission merchants and other consignees of goods and other property in the District of Columbia, reported it with amendments.

Mr. HANSBROUGH, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 267) for the preservation of the public peace and the protection of property within the District of Columbia, reported it with amendments.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I am directed by the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 831) to prevent book-making and pool-selling in the District of Columbia, to report it adversely, as the provisions of the bill have been already embodied in the Statutes. I move that the bill be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. VEST, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 429) to authorize the construction of bridges across the Missouri River between its mouth and the mouth of the Dakota or James River, and across the Mississippi River between the port of St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, and the port of Natchez, in the State of Mississippi, and across the Illinois River between its mouth and La Salle, in the State of Illinois, and to prescribe the character, location, and dimensions of the same, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

COURTS IN IOWA.

Mr. WILSON. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 123) fixing the times for holding the district and circuit courts of the United States in the northern district of Iowa, to report it without amendment. In view of the fact that it is necessary for the convenience of the business of the court, and as it will not consume any considerable time, I ask unanimous consent that the bill may be acted upon now.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. COKE introduced a bill (S. 1633) authorizing the Velasco Terminal Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Brazos River, in the State of Texas; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

AMENDMENT TO BILL.

Mr. PADDOCK. I beg leave to present an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill (S. 427) to provide for the erection of public buildings for post-offices in towns and cities where the post-office receipts for three years preceding have exceeded $3,000 annually. I ask that the amendment may be printed and lie on the table. The bill to which it relates is on the Calendar.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered.

ESTATE OF OLYMPUS YOUNG.

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland submitted the following resolution; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Claims:

Resolved, That the claim of Abraham E. Eves, executor of the estate of Olympus Young, deceased, now of the county of Somerset, State of Maryland, and late of the State of Louisiana, for quartermaster and commissary stores and supplies and other property alleged to have been taken and used by the United States Army during the late war from the plantation of the said Olympus Young, deceased, near Brashear City, now Morgan City, in the parish of St. Marys, State of Louisiana, be referred to the Secretary of War, who shall investigate the justice and equity of said claim and the loyalty of the said deceased, and report the amount and value of said property taken and used by the said Army, and also what amount, if any, has been paid on the same; and that he report all the facts and evidence in the case for the further consideration of the Senate.

RECIPROCAL TRADE AGREEMENTS.

Mr. HALE submitted the following resolution; which was read:
Resolved, That the Secretary of State be, and is hereby, directed to send to the Senate, as early as is practicable, copies of all agreements made with other countries relating to an interchange of trade and commerce under the provisions of section 3 of an act entitled "An act to reduce the revenue and equalize duties on imports, and for other purposes," approved October 1, 1890; and also to furnish the Senate with all information received as to the practical effect of such agreements.

Mr. HALE. I ask that the resolution lie upon the table. I shall call it up shortly.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will lie upon the table and be printed.

BRIGHTWOOD RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. McMILLAN submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be, and they are hereby, instructed to report to the Senate of the United States, first, whether the Brightwood Railway Company of the District of Columbia completed its railway from Boundary Street to the boundary line of the District of Columbia within the time specified in sections 8 of its charter for the completion of the same; secondly, whether "cars of the best construction" are now used on said road, and are run "as often as the public convenience may require, in accordance with a table or schedule fixed by the company, a copy of which shall be filed with the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and approved by them," as provided in section 19 of the act of incorporation.

MEXICAN COMMISSION AWARDS.

Mr. DOLPH. If the morning business is concluded, I call for the regular order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed, and the Chair lays before the Senate the regular order, which is Senate bill 539.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 539) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868."

Mr. DOLPH. Mr. President, I do not see the junior Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE] present. I have been appealed to by him to permit this bill to go over until his colleague [Mr. VOORHEES] can reach Washington. I understand that the senior Senator from Indiana will be here to-morrow, and I have been informed by the junior Senator that he would have no objection to my presenting the bill to the Senate to-day, giving his colleague an opportunity to speak upon it to-morrow. I understand, also, that the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] desires to speak upon the bill and is ready to do so. I do not suppose that the senior Senator from Indiana would particularly desire to be present at its consideration to-day.

But I am more embarrassed in regard to this measure by a communication which I received from the senior Senator from New York [Mr. DISCOCK] late this morning, leaving me no time to communicate with him, in which he says:

The La Abra bill is on the Calendar, and possibly you have given notice to call it up on Monday or some day this week. I am one of the subcommittee of the Committee on Finance to investigate the operations of the tariff laws, prices, etc., and it has been arranged that we meet in New York to-morrow—

This letter was dated on the 17th of January—

for a final meeting there, and it seems to be necessary that I should attend. We will doubtless remain there the most of the week. I ascertained that New York people mainly are interested in the bill. Some of them I know, and they are very decent folks, and it would be necessary for me to carefully study the merits of the measure, etc.

Then he appeals to me to permit the measure to go over until he returns. He also says:

I understand there are two measures; I am not sure that both have been reported. I should like this courtesy in respect to both.

That is, the Weil claim and the La Abra claim. I regret exceedingly that this appeal has been made to me. I do not like to appear to be lacking in senatorial courtesy, but my friend from New York certainly did not understand the position in which this measure stands at the present time. He supposes that simply a notice had been given to call it up to-day, but on the contrary the bill was called up and read at length, and the report of the committee printed in connection with it, on the 7th day of January, and an order was made that after the conclusion of the morning business to-day the bill should take precedence of any other special order or unfinished business. The postponement was made to accommodate the senior Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES]. The people of New York are not the only people who are interested in the bill. There have been various assignments and divisions of the award made until there are people in several States of the Union interested, and there are several Senators who desire to be present when the bill is considered.

The danger that I should incur if I were to grant the request of the Senator from New York and submit to another postponement of the bill for a week would be that, at the end of the week, the senior Senator from Indiana might be absent and could not conveniently be present to present his views upon the measure, or the Senator from Missouri would not be accommodated by the change, and in the end the postponement of the bill from day to day would result, at the present session, precisely as it resulted in the last session of Congress—the bill would be postponed until there were so many measures upon the Calendar of public interest and private interest that it would be impossible to get it up for consideration.

This measure has been before Congress, in some shape, since 1877, when the Secretary of State appealed to Congress to pass some law providing for the distribution of the awards, or of the payments upon the awards as they were made annually by the Mexican Government. There have been various propositions before Congress for the action of Congress and of the Government in regard to this award. This bill was reported favorably in the Forty-ninth Congress by the senior Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN]. This matter was examined by the Committee on Foreign Relations, or a subcommittee of the Committee on Foreign Relations in the Fiftieth Congress, and a large amount of testimony taken and an exhaustive report submitted in favor of the passage of the bill; but it was so late in the session that it was impossible to procure consideration for it at that time. At the last Congress we encountered the same difficulty in pressing and endeavoring to get the bill up for consideration before the Senate that we encounter now. There were so many people interested in it, so many Senators desired to have it postponed from time to time, that it was postponed until so late a day in the session that it was impossible to get it up for consideration in the Senate.

Mr. President, what is the condition of the matter now? It was the fourth bill on the Calendar reported to the Senate. It was ordered reported at the first meeting of the Committee on Foreign Relations. It is the second bill now on the Calendar. As I said, it was called up on the 7th of January and was made the special order for to-day, to take precedence of all other business. Apparently, now, the friends of the measure have an opportunity to secure its consideration and action upon it by the Senate in order that it may be sent to the other House and may be in a situation to receive early consideration there. It has been once postponed for the accommodation of an absent Senator. Another request is now made. I have no means of information as to whether at the expiration of another week, the time fixed, would be any more satisfactory to Senators and accommodate a larger number of Senators than the time which has already been fixed by the Senate for the consideration of the bill.

I also learned this morning that the junior Senator from New York [Mr. HILL] had received a communication from parties in New York in regard to this bill, and will, undoubtedly, give it attention and be prepared to represent their interests to the Senate. Under the circumstances—and I take this public method of stating the facts in regard to the case in order that the senior Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK] will not feel aggrieved by my action—I regret that I do not feel at liberty to consent to the postponement of the measure.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, so far as I am personally concerned I am as ready to say what I desire to say on this subject now as at any other time. I have no request to prefer in regard to it.

The senior Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] telegraphed this morning from Altoona that he is on his way and will be here this afternoon, but at so late an hour in the afternoon that it will not be possible for him to attend the session of the Senate to-day. He is anxious to be here when the cases are taken up. I say "the cases," because the same legal question arises in one case as in the other, although the facts of the two cases are different. That is all I desire to say in regard to it. I am perfectly willing to take the bill up now or take it up to-morrow morning.

I rose principally to move that the minority report in the La Abra case, which was submitted at a previous Congress by the then Senator from Georgia, Mr. Brown, not now a member of this body, be printed in the RECORD, as was the majority report.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That will be done in the absence of objection.

Mr. SHERMAN. What is that?

Mr. VEST. I ask that the minority report be printed in the RECORD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered in the absence of objection.

Mr. MORGAN. I think that minority report has been heretofore printed in the RECORD. At all events, I know it was printed as a document at the last session of Congress.

Mr. DOLPH. In the Fiftieth Congress. We did not reprint the report in the last Congress.

Mr. MORGAN. There is no minority report at this session of Congress at all. No one has made a minority report. The committee is differently constituted from what it was then. Mr. Brown is not a member of the Senate, and to bring his report forward and print it in the RECORD is merely to put in an argument which has been made heretofore and which already is in the possession of the Senate as a document. It is a very extensive argument prepared by counsel. I hardly think that the RECORD ought to be encumbered with it. Senators can have access to it. There are plenty of copies of it here. The country feels no interest in it except upon the question of law.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will submit the question to the Senate for its decision.

Mr. MORGAN. That minority report is very extensive, and it would take up a whole RECORD.

Mr. SHERMAN. I trust the Senate will not set an example of this kind, because it will encumber the RECORD unnecessarily. The report is much more convenient in the form of a pamphlet, as it is now upon our tables, than it would be if put in the RECORD. In the RECORD it would be in inferior type; it would not be readily accessible, nor could it be used on the floor of the Senate. The cost of printing a document of that kind in the RECORD, where it has to be repeated ever so many thousand times, would amount to a large sum.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There are 75 pages in the report.

Mr. SHERMAN. Seventy-five pages. I hope the Senate will consider the question of sufficient importance to take a vote upon it. I desire to vote in the negative upon any proposition to print reports of committees of an unusual size in the RECORD. They are all put in volumes so that they can be accessible in the future, and are more convenient in that form than they are in the RECORD. The reports of committees of both Houses of Congress are printed in books, which are furnished to us in sufficient numbers for all practical purposes, and the idea of duplicating a publication of that kind in the RECORD is not only an unnecessary cost, but it is altogether useless and a waste of the public money, in my judgment. I shall therefore vote "no" on the proposition.

Mr. VEST. The objections made by the Senator from Ohio ought to have been made when the majority report was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. SHERMAN. If I had been here I certainly should have objected. When was that printed?

Mr. VEST. It was printed at this session, some three or four days ago perhaps.

Mr. DOLPH. It was printed on the 7th of January.

Mr. VEST. It was printed on the 7th day of January. I do not suppose that is of the essence of the matter at all. It was done at this session.

Mr. SHERMAN. I was not here at the time.

Mr. VEST. As to the minority report being printed, as suggested by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN], in a separate document, a miscellaneous document, the same holds true in regard to the majority report. There it is as a miscellaneous document of the Senate, printed and reprinted.

I did not see the other day any necessity for printing the majority report of the committee in the RECORD, but it was done, and as a matter of fairness the two sides of the question ought to be presented. It is very true that the report of the then Senator from Georgia was not made at this session and that he has ceased to be a member of the Senate; but the issues are identical. He was a member of the subcommittee of which the Senator from Alabama was chairman, from a majority of which, composed of the Senator from Alabama and the Senator from Oregon, came this report, based on the report made by them to the full Committee on Foreign Relations. This minority report comes from the third member of that subcommittee. In justice to him, after putting the majority report in the RECORD, the minority report ought also to be put there.

I will say in addition that whatever the action of the Senate may be it will not keep this report out of the RECORD if I or any other member choose that it shall go in, because I can make it a part of my argument, or any other Senator can do the same, and it will be reported in his speech, and would be simply a question of the physical endurance of the Senator.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will put the question on the motion of the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST]. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Missouri that the minority report, to which he has referred, be printed in the RECORD.

The question being put; a division was called for, and the ayes were 5 and the noes 11.

Mr. SHERMAN. It is manifest that there is no quorum, and I think, therefore, the motion should be withdrawn.

Mr. VEST. No quorum has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. No quorum voting, the roll will be called.

Mr. HALE. Perhaps the Senator from Missouri will withdraw his motion.

Mr. VEST. I do not intend to be captious about this matter. As my colleagues here know, I generally defer to the will of the majority; but this report will go into the RECORD if I have to under the provisions of the Bowman act—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WHEELER of Michigan: Petition of J. S. Gregg and others, of Manistee County, Mich., for free delivery of mails in country districts—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of J. Butler and others, for the improvement of Frankfort harbor—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois: Petition in support of House bill 3923, for the relief of Sarah A. Nelson, of Lebanon, Mo.—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany House bill 3884, for the relief of Curtis P. Wise—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WILLIAMS of North Carolina: Petition of citizens of Rockingham County, N. C., in regard to special tax on tobacco dealers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WILSON, of Washington: Papers to accompany House bill 3492, for the relief of Robert Williams—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WISE: Petition of W. H. Wesson, to accompany House bill 3501—to the Committee on War Claims.

SENATE.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

MEXICAN COMMISSION AWARDS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read:

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith to the Senate a report of the Secretary of State in answer to the resolution of the Senate of the 12th instant, making inquiries regarding payments of the awards of the Claims Commission under the convention of July 4, 1868, between the United States and Mexico.

BENJ. HARRISON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Washington, January 18, 1892.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The message, in the absence of the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN], will lie on the table temporarily, and be printed.

Mr. VEST. I should like to have the accompanying communication from the Secretary of State read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The paper will be read.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, January 11, 1892.

The Secretary of State has the honor to submit herewith a report in answer to the resolution of the Senate of the United States of the 12th instant, respecting the awards of the Mixed Claims Commission which sat at Washington under the convention of July 4, 1868, between the United States and Mexico.

The awards of the Commission were rendered in Mexican gold, American gold, and American currency. By the terms of the protocol between the Secretary of State and the Mexican minister under date of January 31, 1878, the various currencies were reduced to the basis of American gold. Upon this basis the net indebtedness of Mexico to the United States, by reason of the awards, was ascertained to be $3,865,498.42.

This amount was paid in full to the United States by Mexico in fourteen annual installments in perfect accordance with the terms of the convention. The final payment having been made January 21, 1890.

The ascertainment of the proportionate share of each of the awards, numbering in all 187, in the total sum of the indemnity, is set forth in detail in the annexed table, marked "A."

Nearly all of these awards have been paid in full to the awardees or their assigns, the principal exceptions being the awards in favor of Benjamin Weil and La Abra Mining Company.

There is at present on deposit to the credit of the Secretary of State, with the assistant treasurer of the United States at New York, on account of all awards of the Commission, the sum of $700,968.57.

Of this amount the sums of $287,833.77 and $403,030.08 are withheld, respectively, on account of the awards rendered in favor of Benjamin Weil and the La Abra Silver Mining Company. These sums aggregate $690,863.85, thus leaving of the sum above stated as being in the hands of the Secretary of State, only $10,104.72 yet to be distributed on account of outstanding interests among the other 185 awards. Deaths of the principals and failure of their administrators or executors to present their claims for the balances due them are the only causes why this sum of $10,104.72 remains undistributed. It is reasonable, however, to expect that the persons entitled to this remainder will present themselves in the near future.

In specific answer to that portion of the resolution which inquires "the amount of any award made under said convention that has been refused payment by the State Department, and what person or persons are now the claimants of interest in said awards, the payment of which has been refused," I have the honor to state that payments have been refused only in the two cases above referred to, namely those of "Benjamin Weil" and the "La Abra Mining Company," and that the annexed transcripts, marked "B" and "C," from the Department's docket, show in detail the dates and amounts of payments made on these awards, respectively, and the persons to whom paid, as well as briefs of the instruments on file in the Department showing what persons are the claimants of interests in these awards.

In answer to the concluding inquiry of the resolution, I have the honor to state that at no time has any part of the moneys received from Mexico been invested.

Respectfully submitted.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

To the PRESIDENT.
(With inclosures.)

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The message, with the accompanying papers, will lie on the table, and be printed.

SUPPLY OF CIRCULATION.

Mr. STANFORD. I desire to give notice that on Thursday morning next I shall ask the Senate to take up the bill (S. 1204) to provide the Government with means sufficient to supply the national want of a sound circulating medium, and that I shall then ask the privilege of submitting a few remarks upon the measure.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of citizens of Stillwater, Minn., praying for the grant of a loan to the World's Columbian Fair, on condition that the exposition be not open on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. WILSON presented a petition of 31 citizens of Carnarvon, Iowa, praying for the passage of a bill similar to what is commonly known as the Butterworth option bill; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. McMILLAN presented a petition of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, of Detroit, Mich., praying that an appropriation be made for a military chapel at Arlington; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, of Detroit, Mich., praying for the passage of legislation prohibiting the improper use of the flag of the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of the United Presbyterian Church of Bruce, Mich., praying that the World's Columbian Fair be closed on Sunday, in accordance with the law of God, the rights of man, and American precedents; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. DAWES presented the petition of the Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions, signed by Rev. Richard S. Storrs, its president, and other officers of that organization, praying for the ratification of the Brussels treaty; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. COKE presented a petition of the city council of Laredo, Tex., praying for the establishment of a military post at that place for the protection of the frontier; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. HANSBROUGH presented a petition of citizens of Medford, N. Dak., praying for the passage of legislation similar to what is commonly known as the Butterworth option bill; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. HOAR presented a petition of District Assembly No. 210, Knights of Labor, of Boston, Mass., praying for the passage of a bill to authorize the collection of statistics relative to the slums of cities; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. PERKINS. I present resolutions in the nature of petitions from the Transmississippi Commercial Congress, the Western States Commercial Congress, and other bodies, praying for the passage of what is known and recognized as the Torrey bankruptcy bill. I move that the petitions be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, to be considered in connection with the bill.

The motion was agreed to.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. MANDERSON, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 781) for the relief of John Little and Hobart Williams, of Omaha, Neb., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 860) for the relief of Wells C. McCool, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 776) for the relief of the heirs of Charles B. Smith, deceased, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 859) for the relief of First Lieut. James Regan, United States Army, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. WALTHALL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 209) to place Henry Zell on the retired list of the Army, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 78) making an appropriation for the improvement of the road to the national cemetery near Pensacola, Fla., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. DAWES, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 12) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to settle the claims of the legal representatives of S. W. Marston, late United States Indian agent at Union Agency, Indian Territory, for services and expenses, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 478) for the relief of Mrs. S. B. Duvall, widow of the late Rev. W. P. Duvall, deceased, reported it with an amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 734) for the relief of John McBean, of Umatilla County, Oregon, reported it without amendment.

Mr. PETTIGREW, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 698) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to carry out in part the provisions of "An act to divide a portion of the reservation of the Sioux Nation of Indians in Dakota into separate reservations, and to secure the relinquishment of the Indian title to the remainder, and for other purposes," approved March 2, 1889, and making appropriations for the same, and for other purposes, reported it with an amendment.

Mr. HOAR. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 3) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States in regard to the election of President, to ask that the committee be discharged from the further consideration of the joint resolution, and that it be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. HOAR. I am also directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 4) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States which shall extend the term of the office of the President to the 30th of April, to ask to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. SQUIRE, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 617) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Spokane Falls, in the State of Washington, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1636) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Tacoma, in the State of Washington, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

COURTS IN MISSOURI.

Mr. VEST. I am instructed by the Committee on the Judiciary to report favorably, with an amendment, the bill (S. 418) to change the times for holding the circuit and district courts of the United States for the western district of Missouri. It is a matter of very great importance to litigants, to the attorneys, and the judge of that district that the bill should be disposed of as soon as possible. It makes changes simply in the terms of the courts and it is of great importance that the public should know soon, if the bill is to become a law, what the changes are, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read at length for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill, and the Senate, by unanimous consent, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The amendment of the Committee on the Judiciary was, after line 14, to insert a new section, as follows:

SEC. 2. That no action, suit, proceeding, information, indictment, recognition, bail bond, or other process, in either of said courts, shall abate or be rendered invalid by reason of the change in time in holding the terms of said courts, but the same shall be deemed to be returnable to, pendable, and triable at the terms herein provided for.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 1701) for the benefit of Mrs. Mary T. Duncan, of Kentucky; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. STEWART introduced a bill (S. 1702) to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the Washington and Western Maryland Railroad Company," which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. MORRILL introduced a bill (S. 1703) to provide a more perfect organization for the United States Naval Observatory, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. MORRILL. I desire to state that we have a structure for this purpose which is superior, perhaps, to any in the world. It is well understood that we are going to need all the naval officers for the ships that we have built and are building, and therefore it becomes indispensable, almost, that we should seek for the head of this national observatory a man who will be willing to spend his life in the service, and one, perhaps, the best qualified in the United States. I move that the bill be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 1704) for the relief of William Welsh; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. HOAR introduced a bill (S. 1705) to prevent the manufacture of clothing in unhealthy places and the sale of clothing so manufactured; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. HOAR. This is a bill to suppress what is known as the sweating system. I move that it be referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 1706) to provide for the erection of an extension to the custom-house, court-house, etc., building at Toledo, Ohio; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. BATE introduced a bill (S. 1707) for the relief of Capt. W. M. Wallace; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1708) for the relief of Mrs. Sarah J. Waggoner; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 1709) to grant to the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railroad Company a right of way across the Fort Montgomery military reservation; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 1710) to authorize the Rio Grande, Mexico and Pacific Railroad Company to purchase certain land; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1711) providing for the payment of awards made to Creek Indians who enlisted in the Federal Army, loyal refugees, and freedmen; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. CHANDLER introduced a bill (S. 1712) to enable the Attorney-General to provide for the proper defense of cases brought in the Court of Claims for damages arising from Indian depredations; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Select Committee on Indian Depredations.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 1713) for the relief of George C. Foulk; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 1714) to prevent cruelty to children in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1715) to amend "An act to authorize the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to make police regulations for the government of said District," approved January 26, 1887; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1716) to confer upon the Commissioners of the District of Columbia the power and authority heretofore existing in the mayor of the city of Washington in the matter of opening, altering, and changing alleys; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1717) for the relief of Samuel G. Hunter; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GRAY introduced a bill (S. 1718) to pay the State of Delaware for advance of money in the war of 1812, reported to be due by the Secretary of the Treasury; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1719) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury at his discretion to obtain the plans for the public buildings erected by direction of Congress under the Treasury Department; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1720) for the relief of Henry Frank; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HAWLEY introduced a bill (S. 1721) to increase the pay of certain noncommissioned officers of the Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1722) to provide for the examina-morning hour. It is immaterial to me to which Calendar they may go; but I object to their coming up in the morning hour when there is not proper time for their consideration.

Mr. FRYE. As the Senator in charge of the bills is not present at the moment, let them go over without prejudice.

Mr. BERRY. Very well; let them retain their places on the Calendar, the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH] not being present.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That order will be made in the absence of objection.

BILLS PASSED OVER.

Mr. DOLPH. Mr. President, I was unavoidably absent from the Senate Chamber for a moment, and I should like to inquire what disposition was made of Order of Business 25, being the bill (S. 143) to increase the endowment of the Louisiana State University and Agricultural College, and for the Southern University of Louisiana.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill went over without prejudice.

Mr. DOLPH. A new bill has been introduced and is under consideration by the Committee on Public Lands, and I think this bill may be re-referred to the Committee on Public Lands or be indefinitely postponed. It is, I think, a matter of indifference which course is pursued.

Mr. SHERMAN. The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE] was here at the time the bill was called up.

Mr. DOLPH. The Senator from Louisiana has introduced an amended bill to take the place of the one on the Calendar, and he probably did not understand that this bill would remain upon the Calendar. Simply to get rid of it, I will ask that it be re-committed to the Committee on Public Lands.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE] asked that the bill might go over without prejudice.

Mr. DOLPH. What was done with Order of Business 28, being Senate bill 1247?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What shall be done with Order of Business 25, to which the Senator has referred? The Senator from Louisiana asked that the bill might go over without prejudice, and he is not in his seat at this moment.

Mr. DOLPH. I presume there can be no objection to the bill for the purchase of sites for fortifications. If sent to the other House, the House can take its choice of passing an independent measure or providing an appropriation on the fortifications appropriation bill; or, if not, I am authorized when that bill comes into the Senate to report an amendment to it.

Mr. COCKRELL. I do not understand what is now pending.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Oregon is asking information as to what the action of the Senate was on Order of Business 25. The title of the bill will be reported.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 143) to increase the endowment of the Louisiana State University and Agricultural College, and for the Southern University of Louisiana.

Mr. COCKRELL. I understood that was passed over without objection, at the instance of the junior Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE], who reported it.

Mr. DOLPH. I stated that the Senator from Louisiana had introduced an amended bill, which is now before the Committee on Public Lands, and it will be acted upon soon. That committee does not desire this bill acted upon, and, in order that it might be got off the Calendar, I have asked that it be referred back to the Committee on Public Lands, and then, when the other bill is reported, this bill will probably be reported adversely and indefinitely postponed. This is to clear it from the Calendar.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the suggestion of the Senator from Oregon? The Chair hears none and the bill will be re-committed to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. DOLPH. Order of Business 29, being the bill (S. 871) to provide for fortifications and other seacoast defenses, may go over under Rule IX as it can not be considered under Rule VIII, and I will give notice that as to Order of Business 28, being the bill (S. 1247) making an appropriation for the purchase of sites for fortifications, when the Calendar is again called during the morning hour I shall ask that that be disposed of.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title of Order of Business 29 on the Calendar will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 871) to provide for fortifications and other seacoast defenses.

Mr. DOLPH. That will go over under Rule IX.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will go over under Rule IX if there be no objection.

Mr. DOLPH subsequently said: I came in after the bill in relation to granting some public lands to the State of Louisiana had been passed over. Knowing that another bill had been introduced and referred to the committee, I thought it would relieve the record to have it re-referred, and I asked that that be done. I find that the Senator from Louisiana supposes that it is an advantage to him to have the bill already reported retain its place on the Calendar, so I will ask to have the order that was made at my request reconsidered and the bill retained on the Calendar instead of being re-committed to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. COCKRELL. It will be restored to the place it occupied?

Mr. DOLPH. Let it be restored to the place it held on the Calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FRYE in the chair). Without objection the vote recommitting the bill will be regarded as reconsidered, and the bill restored to its place on the Calendar.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT TAMPA, FLA.

The bill (S. 79) for the erection of a public building at Tampa, Fla., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with an amendment in section 2, line 11, after the words "sum of," to strike out "two hundred" and insert "one hundred and forty;" so as to read:

That no plan for said building shall be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury involving an expenditure exceeding the sum of $100,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT WATERBURY, CONN.

The bill (S. 237) for the erection of a public building at Waterbury, Conn., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT HASTINGS, NEBR.

The bill (S. 1054) to provide for the construction of a public building at Hastings, Nebr., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to have some explanation of that bill. I discover that a number of these bills are reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds without any printed report and we have no means of gaining any information in regard to them. I should like to know something about the size of this city, whether there is any United States court held there, and what kind of governmental business necessitates the erection of a public building there?

Mr. PADDOCK. This is a reintroduction of a bill which passed at the last Congress, and which had before passed in the two preceding Congresses. Hastings is in the third class of the towns in our State. Indeed, there is only one other besides Hastings in this class in respect of population, business importance, railroads, manufactures, public institutions, and enterprise. It is a court town. Two terms of the United States court are held there regularly in each year, and no suitable place has been or can be provided without the construction of this building for the holding of the same. The Supervising Architect of the Treasury has reported that this amount is within the required limit; that not less than this amount should be appropriated; that no building such as seems to be demanded can be erected for less than the amount named.

Mr. PLATT. What is the amount?

Mr. PADDOCK. It is $250,000. Hastings is a court town, where the business of a very large section of our State, the western part of the State, will have to be done.

Mr. SHERMAN. Is a United States court held there?

Mr. PADDOCK. Yes; the United States court is regularly held there. An act providing for terms of court there was passed by Congress two or three years since. Hastings has a population of 15,000. It is the metropolis of the western half of our State south of the Platte River. No more meritorious public building bill has been or will be passed by this Congress.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARINE HOSPITAL AT DETROIT, MICH.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 297) to increase the accommodations at the marine hospital at Detroit, Mich.

Mr. COCKRELL. I see that there is already a marine hospital building there, and as the Senator who introduced and reported the bill is present, I should like to hear some explanation for the necessity of this additional expenditure there.

Mr. McMILLAN. The building already there was erected some twenty-five years ago, and, as everybody knows, the tonnage on the lakes has increased very much, and the number of men employed on the lakes is four or five times as great as it was at the time the hospital was built. In the four years from 1886 to 1890 the tonnage of the Great Lakes increased from 634,652 to $26,360; and the estimated value of the vessels from $30,597,450 to $58,128,500, nearly doubling in that time. The hospital accommodations are now very inadequate. The erection of this building is recommended by the Surgeon-General and by the medical officers in charge there. It is very much needed, and I hope the bill will not be objected to.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT MANSFIELD, OHIO.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 363) to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of Mansfield, Ohio.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment and ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to know something about the population of the city of Mansfield, whether there are any courts held there, the amount of business that is done, and some reason why the Government should go to the expense of erecting a public building there. I think this is a matter of justice. There are hundreds of towns and cities in the United States that are clamoring for the erection of public buildings, and when no explanation is given, they do not know why they are not just as much entitled to them as the places named in these bills. It is not the inhabitants of every town and city in the United States who have a familiar knowledge of the statistics, population, etc., of every other town and they think that it is a discrimination in favor of certain places. I should like to know why it is that a public building is needed at this place.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. President, this same bill was passed at the last session of the Senate after a very full statement had been made in the nature of a report of all the facts and circumstances for which the Senator now calls. I am sorry that I have not the statement here before me, but I will assure the Senator that Mansfield is one of the leading manufacturing towns of the State, and I can say that from my own personal knowledge, because I live there.

Mr. COCKRELL. About what is the population?

Mr. SHERMAN. About 16,000. It is a city with a very large number of leading manufacturing establishments; for instance, Mr. HARTER, a member of the House, is a very extensive manufacturer of thrashing machines, and there are a great many other establishments involving a large amount of capital, going into the millions. The postal receipts are abnormally large in that town for the reason that it has a manufacturing population. Such receipts amount to something over $30,000 a year. The precise figures I can not now give. Mansfield is surrounded by a rich, productive country and is the junction of several important railroads. There is a United States revenue office there, and it is one of those places where Congress, by general law, should provide for the construction of a public building.

I am not in favor of extravagance in these buildings. I think a building of the character provided by this bill, costing not to exceed, including the value of the land, about $100,000, is sufficient for the purpose. I think it would be good economy for the Government of the United States to build such buildings. The rent and other expenses paid for a building there suitable for the postal service would be fully equal to the interest on $100,000, according to the rate of interest the Government would have to pay for money.

I think it is economy in the long run for the Government gradually, not too rapidly, but from time to time, to provide buildings in cities like Mansfield and Zanesville. There are but two towns, I will say, provided for by bills on the Calendar in the State of Ohio, and the aggregate amount of appropriation is $200,000 in this bill and one other bill that has been reported. I think a discrimination is made against the State of Ohio in favor of the Western and Southern towns. Many towns with less than half the population of Mansfield have now Government buildings in the Southern and Western States. It is assumed that those cities will grow more rapidly than cities in Ohio, although that does not follow.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 9) to define and punish blackmailing;

A bill (H. R. 435) to provide an additional mode of taking depositions of witnesses in causes pending in the courts of the United States; and

A bill (H. R. 504) in relation to the western judicial district of Wisconsin.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker pro tempore of the House had signed the enrolled bill (H. R. 123) fixing the times for holding the district and circuit courts of the United States in the northern district of Iowa; and it was thereupon signed by the Vice-President.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT NORFOLK, NEBR.

The bill (S. 197) providing for the erection of a public building in the city of Norfolk, Neb., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. MANDERSON. Before the bill is read, I wish to suggest that Norfolk is the largest town outside of the city of Omaha in all that part of the State of Nebraska which is north of the Platte River, a section of country, in round numbers, about 150 miles in width by 500 miles in length. Recognizing the great importance to parties litigant that a United States court should be established in this vast territory, Congress several years ago made Norfolk one of the court towns of Nebraska. The courts have been held there since the passage of that bill with very great convenience and saving an unnecessary amount of expense to the Government.

This town is a very thriving one. Its population now, I think, is about 15,000, but it is growing with that rapidity which characterizes towns in that section of the West. There is located there one of the two large sugar-beet factories that this year turned out an enormous product of beet sugar, and under the legislation of Congress there are the proper officers of the revenue established there. This town is of the same character in the northern part of Nebraska that the town of Hastings, referred to by my colleague, is in the southwestern part of that State, and the two buildings should be of the same character.

I have here a bill that has met the approval of the committee, which is in the exact terms of the Hastings bill, that I offer as a substitute for the bill under consideration, making the legislation conform to that for the town of Hastings.

I may say further, with reference to these two buildings, which are to contain not only post-office facilities, but also the court room, with its necessary adjuncts, with jury rooms, etc., that the amount mentioned in each case, $250,000, is declared to be needed by the Supervising Architect of the Treasury. I think experience has shown that no building containing these needed offices for the post-office and for the maintenance of the courts can be built with credit to the Government and with proper economy for less money.

Mr. COCKRELL. How much is appropriated by the substitute?

Mr. MANDERSON. The same amount as was appropriated by the Hastings bill, $250,000.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is that amount recommended by the Supervising Architect?

Mr. MANDERSON. The Supervising Architect says that is the amount which he thinks will be needed for this purpose in each of these towns.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Nebraska will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire, by purchase, condemnation or otherwise, a site and to erect thereon a suitable building, including fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, elevators, and approaches, for the use and accommodation of the United States courts, post-office, and other Government offices, in the city of Norfolk and State of Nebraska, the cost of said site and building, including said vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, elevators, and approaches, complete, not to exceed the sum of $250,000, which said sum of $250,000 is hereby appropriated for said purpose out of any moneys in the United States Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Proposals for the sale of land suitable for said site shall be invited by public advertisement in one or more of the newspapers of said city of largest circulation for at least twenty days prior to the date specified in said advertisement for the opening of said proposals.

Proposals made in response to said advertisement shall be addressed and mailed to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall then cause the said proposed sites, and such others as he may think proper to designate, to be examined in person by an agent of the Treasury Department, who shall make written report to said Secretary of the results of said examination, and of his recommendation thereon and the reasons therefor, which shall be accompanied by the original proposals and all maps, plans, and statements which shall have come into his possession relating to the said proposed sites.

If, upon consideration of said report and accompanying papers, the Secretary of the Treasury shall deem further investigation necessary, he may appoint a commission of not more than three persons, one of whom shall be an officer of the Treasury Department, which commission shall also examine the said proposed sites, and such others as the Secretary of the Treasury may designate, and grant such hearings in relation thereto as they shall deem necessary; and said commission shall, within thirty days after such examination, make to the Secretary of the Treasury written report of their conclusion in the premises, accompanied by all statements, maps, plans, or documents taken by or submitted to them, in like manner as heretofore provided in regard to the proceedings of said agent of the Treasury Department; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon finally determine the location of the building to be erected.

The compensation of said commissioners shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, but the same shall not exceed $6 per day and actual traveling expenses: Provided, however, That the member of said commission appointed

Church of Rahway, N. J., and a petition of citizens of Flemington, N. J., praying that the World's Columbian Exposition be closed on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. FELTON. I present a petition of the Humboldt Chamber of Commerce, of Eureka, Cal., praying that the full amount of $700,000 recommended by the Board of Engineers in charge of the improvement of Humboldt Bay be appropriated at an early date as possible.

It is an able presentation of the situation of that harbor, and gives convincing facts as to the necessity of such improvements and the urgency for immediate action on part of Congress, as, owing to climatic conditions, the spring and summer is the proper time for construction. Also, to prevent the shoaling of the river harbor the entire construction should be carried on at the same time; that such a course would require a larger appropriation at this time but combines the elements of safety and economy in the end.

I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. FELTON. I present a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles, Cal., praying for a new project for Government work at San Pedro, Cal., officially known as Wilmington Harbor, California.

In connection with this petition there are some very interesting facts which go to show that further appropriation should be expended upon that harbor. In the course of the two last decades $900,000 have been spent for the improvement of the harbor and the receipts in the last nine years from customs have been over $700,000. When the improvement was commenced there was but 18 inches of water on the bar at low tide, and now there is 14 feet of water in the inner harbor; according to the report of the engineers it can be further deepened to from 25 to 28 feet low tide. San Pedro is the only entry port to that great and fertile part of the southern portion of the State of California; the harbor is not only necessary for commerce, but as a harbor of refuge—it being the only safe harbor on the coast for 400 miles north and 200 south.

I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM. I present a petition numerously signed by members of Miner Grange, No. 214, Patrons of Husbandry, of Little Mackinaw Township, Tazewell County, Ill., praying that post-office facilities be extended to farmers as well as other people. I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HOAR. I present the memorial of a considerable number of bankers and national-banking institutions of the city of New Orleans, La., remonstrating against the passage of Senate bill 685, relating to the purchase and sale of cotton, etc. I move that the memorial be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. WOLCOTT presented a petition of the Denver (Colo.) Real Estate and Stock Exchange, praying for the passage of the bill providing for coinage at the Denver mint; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. MANDERSON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 298) for the relief of Eunice Tripler, widow of Charles S. Tripler;

A bill (S. 780) for the relief of Robert H. Montgomery; and

A bill (S. 547) for the relief of Lieut. Col. Charles G. Sawtelle, Deputy Quartermaster-General, United States Army.

Mr. CAMERON, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 247) for the relief of Henry E. Rhoades, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon;

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1079) for the relief of Assistant Engineer Howard D. Potts, United States Navy, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon;

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 614) authorizing the restoration of the name of Thomas H. Carpenter, late captain Seventeenth United States Infantry, to the rolls of the Army, and providing that he be placed on the list of retired officers.

A bill (S. 337) to remove the charge of desertion standing against the name of Joseph G. Utter; and

A bill (S. 333) for the relief of Henry Unterleiter, alias Cook or Koch.

Mr. CULLOM. I am directed by the Committee on Interstate Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1516) granting the right to erect and maintain dams across the Kansas River within Shawnee County in the State of Kansas, to ask to be discharged from its further consideration and that it be referred to the Committee on Commerce. I call the attention of the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEPPER], as the bill was introduced by him, to the fact that the Committee on Interstate Commerce authorized me to report the bill back and have it referred to the Committee on Commerce instead of Interstate Commerce.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. MITCHELL, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 46) for the relief of William B. Stokes, M. M. Brien, sr., Thomas Waters, and William T. Haskins, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1518) for the relief of Lewis F. J. Jaeger, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Select Committee on Indian Depredations; which was agreed to.

REPORT ON MARITIME CANAL OF NICARAGUA.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am instructed by the Committee on Printing to report back adversely the Senate resolution to print a report of the Committee on Foreign Relations on the Nicaragua Canal, and I ask that it be indefinitely postponed.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing to report a concurrent resolution to reach the same purpose designed by the Senate resolution just indefinitely postponed. I ask for the present consideration of the concurrent resolution.

The concurrent resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring therein), That there be printed 15,000 additional copies of the report and appendices, No. 1941, of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, to accompany Senate bill 1827, to amend the act entitled "An act to incorporate the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua," approved February 20, 1889, made to the Fifty-first Congress, of which 5,000 copies shall be for use of the Senate and 10,000 copies for use of the House of Representatives.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. DAVIS introduced a bill (S. 1734) to amend section 2237 of Title XXXI of chapter 2 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in relation to salaries of registers and receivers of United States land offices; which was read twice by its title, and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE introduced a bill (S. 1735) for the relief of Francis M. Potter; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 1736) to amend section 2237 of chapter 2 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to registers and receivers of land offices; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1737) for the relief of William A. Richards, United States surveyor-general of Wyoming; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. BLODGETT introduced a bill (S. 1738) granting a pension to Louisa V. Bonford, widow of James V. Bonford, late colonel United States Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1739) for the relief of the legal administrators of William Boardman, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FAULKNER introduced a bill (S. 1740) to define the route of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1741) to vest the title of public square 1102, in the city of Washington, D. C., in the trustees of the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1742) to amend the act giving the approval and sanction of Congress to the route and terminal of the Anacostia and Potomac River Railroad in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. GEORGE introduced a bill (S. 1743) for the relief of the legal representatives of William D. Wilson, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1744) for the relief of Audley G. Britton; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PLATT. I have been requested by the Delegate from New Mexico to introduce a bill to enable the people of New Mexico to form a constitution and State government, and to be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States. I wish to say that in introducing the bill, I do so at the request of the Delegate, and without in any way committing myself to the provisions of the bill.

The bill (S. 1745) to enable the people of New Mexico to form a constitution and State government, and to be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 1746) granting a pension to Benjamin Franklin Dowell, of Oregon, for services with the Oregon Volunteers in the years 1853, 1854, 1855, and 1856; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 1747) granting a pension to Charles W. Hammond; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 1748) granting a pension to Mrs. Janet L. P. Taylor; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HAWLEY introduced a bill (S. 1749) to make an appropriation for the procurement of sites for defenses of the eastern entrance to Long Island Sound; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Coast Defenses.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 1750) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at some accessible point within 2 miles north and 2 miles south of the city of Leavenworth, in the county of Leavenworth, in the State of Kansas; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. TELLER introduced a bill (S. 1751) for the relief of Augusta De Aha; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. COCKRELL (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1752) for the relief of W. A. Walker, of Albuquerque, N. Mex.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1753) to remove charges of desertion in certain cases; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 1754) for the relief of Herbert Cushman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 1755) to amend certain sections of Title LII of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and to carry into effect certain recommendations of the United States delegates to the International Marine Conference; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. FRYE. This is an exceedingly important bill, covering the recommendations made at that maritime congress, as many by the congress itself as were applicable to our country, and also those made by the United States delegates to the congress, and many of the bills were considered by the Committee on Commerce. The matters were, however, so very important and so complicated that the committee preferred that there should be another board which should pass upon the recommendations, and a request was made by the Senate to the Secretary of the Treasury that he would appoint a board to take into consideration during vacation all those recommendations. He appointed a board of very accomplished officers indeed. They have spent a great deal of time, months of labor, and exceedingly careful labor, too, I judge from the results, and this bill is the fruit of their labors. They have also sent in a statement of reasons for certain recommendations. The bill was sent to various boards of trade and mercantile and maritime associations, and their criticisms have been received in reply. All this matter is necessary for the consideration of this bill by the Committee on Commerce. Therefore I ask that the reasons of the board and the various reasons given in the papers I hold in my hand may be printed as a document for the use of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. They will be printed as a document, if there be no objection.

Mr. COCKRELL. I think that a day or two ago a report was made from the Secretary of the Treasury—and I desire to call the attention of the Senator to it—in response to a resolution of the Senator from Massachusetts in regard to this same matter.

Mr. FRYE. No; that covered a question of no very great importance, the use of life-saving projectiles, etc., for steamers.

Mr. COCKRELL. It did not relate to the subject-matter to which the Senator here refers?

Mr. FRYE. No; this covers the whole maritime interests of the country, changes to be made in lights, rules of the sea, etc. It is very important indeed.

Mr. COCKRELL. Would it not be better to have the bill printed separately?

Mr. FRYE. Yes.

Mr. COCKRELL. And the documents separately?

Mr. FRYE. I prefer to have them printed separately, the documents all in one book, both separately.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the documents be printed in one volume.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That order will be made, in the absence of objection.

Mr. GEORGE introduced a bill (S. 1756) to carry out certain findings of the Quartermaster-General and the Court of Claims; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WASHBURN introduced a bill (S. 1757) defining options and futures and imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PAPERS WITHDRAWN AND REFERRED.

On motion of Mr. COLQUITT, it was Ordered, That the papers of Clara Morris be taken from the files of the Senate and referred to the Committee on Claims.

PRINTING OF BANKRUPTCY BILL.

Mr. PERKINS submitted the following resolution; which was read:

Resolved, That the Public Printer is hereby instructed to print 5,000 copies of Senate bill 1694, and send them to the Senate document room.

Mr. PERKINS. If there is no objection I ask for the consideration of the resolution now. If there is, of course I consent that the resolution may go to the Committee on Printing. I will state that it is a resolution providing for printing extra copies of what is known as the Torrey bankruptcy bill, and while the type is in form I thought it was best that the resolution should be considered.

Mr. MANDERSON. What is the number that it is proposed to print?

Mr. PERKINS. Five thousand copies.

Mr. MANDERSON. I presume that would be under the limit of $500, but I think the law is imperative that such resolutions shall be referred. We will take speedy action on it.

Mr. PERKINS. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Printing.

STENOGRAPHER FOR INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMITTEE.

Mr. CULLOM submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Interstate Commerce be, and it is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer to report hearings before said committee, the expenses thereof to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

INDIAN AGENCIES.

Mr. DAWES submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior be directed to communicate to the Senate any information in the Department upon the question of dispensing with any of the Indian agencies estimated for in the estimates for the next fiscal year, and the conclusions of the Department upon the feasibility of dispensing with any and how many of such agencies.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT GRAND HAVEN, MICH.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed, and the Calendar will be taken up. The first bill on the Calendar will be proceeded with.

The bill (S. 377) to provide for the purchase of a site, and the erection of a public building thereon, at Grand Haven, in the State of Michigan, was announced as first in order, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to have some explanation as to the population of this place and the necessity for a public building there, and as to whether there is any United States court held there, or any United States offices other than the post-office.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE. I will state that at Grand Haven, Mich., there is a custom-house. The chief office of the life-saving stations for the eleventh district, covering that whole lake coast, is there. The weather signal office is there. The office of the United States engineers in charge of all harbors on the east side of the lake is there. The office of the local engineer in charge of Grand Haven Harbor, and the office of the superintendent of all the light-houses on the east shore of Lake Michigan are there. The office of inspectors of hulls of all steam vessels of that district is there. The office of inspector of boilers is there. The office of surgeon of the Marine Hospital Service for that district is there.

I will state that the Government now pays expensive rent for all the offices named, which are mostly of a limited capacity, and the fire risk is very great for all the records in those offices. The bill passed the Senate in the last Congress.

West Hampton to the west end of Shinnock Bay at Quogue—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of John E. Carter and others, for the improvement of the Life-Saving Service; of Charles H. Herman and others; and of Jesse B. Edwards and others, for the same purpose—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. HAYNES: Petition of 169 ladies of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of West Chester, Ohio, asking that the Columbian Exposition be closed on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HITT: Petition of Henry O'Connor, for invalid pension of $25 a month—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, memorial and resolutions of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, asking Congress to so aid the World's Fair financially as to insure a success—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. LIND: Petition of 146 citizens of Minnesota, asking that no exposition or exhibition for which appropriations are made by Congress shall be opened on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, petition of E. J. Lien and 38 other citizens of Faribault, Minn., praying for the passage of the so-called Butterworth bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of E. J. Lien and 27 other citizens, of the same city, asking for the passage of the Conger lard bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. MONTGOMERY: Petition of estate of Sinclair Garvin, deceased, late of Hart County, Ky., for reference of his case to the Court of Claims under the provisions of the Bowman act—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PAGE of Maryland: Petition of vessel owners and masters of Baltimore, Md., favoring the transfer of the Revenue-Cutter Service to the naval establishment; and of the present and ex-collector of customs, present and ex-surveyor of customs, naval officers, and agents of steamship companies at Baltimore, Md., for the same purpose—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. PAGE of Rhode Island: Petition of Robert Rodman and 85 others, for an appropriation to remove obstruction in Wickford Harbor, Washington County, R. I.—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. PERKINS: Petition, accompanying House bill 4310, for increase of pension of Henry O'Connor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PICKLER: Petition of 300 citizens of South Dakota, including the cities of Pierre, Flandreau, and Canton, and counties of Miner, Moody, and Edmunds, asking that the World's Fair be closed on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. POST: Petition of George W. Prince and 18 other citizens of Galesburg, Ill., asking that a pension of $30 per month be granted to Benjamin Churchill, late a soldier of the war of 1812, and now over 100 years old—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, petition of Dr. C. W. Leffingwell and others, for the adoption of the metric system in the customs service—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

Also, resolutions of the National Farmers' Convention assembled at Sedalia, Mo., in favor of the improvement of the Savannah River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, resolutions of the Board of Trade of Chicago, Ill., favoring the consolidation of the Revenue Cutter Service and the Navy—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. REED: Petition of George W. True, mayor of Portland, Me., and many others, in favor of reconsideration of vote whereby the House of Representatives refused to charter ships for the relief of the starving in Russia—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: Petition of Giles Hudspeth, praying that his claim for property taken by the Army during the late war be referred to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RUSK: Petition of the Board of Trade of the city of Baltimore, Md., in reference to the proposed transfer of Revenue Marine Service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE: Petition of letter-carriers of the Allegheny post-office, for increase of salary—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Resolutions of the Denver Real Estate and Stock Exchange, in favor of the establishment of a coinage mint in the city of Denver, Colo.—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. WHEELER of Alabama: Petition of Malinda McClellan, of Scottsboro, Jackson County, Ala., praying that her claim be referred to the Court of Claims under the act of March 3, 1883; of A. L. Esslinger, for the same purpose; two petitions for the relief of Bathsheba Gordon; two petitions for the relief of Jane B. Morgan; petition for the relief of William V. Morgan; of Milton Williams, of Madison County, Ala.; of Peter M. West, of Lawrence County, Ala.; two petitions for the relief of Joseph T. Sides; two petitions for the relief of William R. Loscy; two petitions for the relief of Margaret J. Rudledge; two petitions for the relief of Alonzo H. Richards; petition for the relief of Nancy Rutledge; of Richard Crompton; of John N. ## SENATE.

THURSDAY, January 21, 1892.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. PADDOCK presented a petition of the Angora Goat Breeders' Association of California, praying for the passage of legislation for the advancement of the mohair industry; which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. CAMERON presented a petition of sundry letter-carriers of Allegheny, Pa., praying for an increase of salary for letter-carriers in their fourth year of service; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. CHANDLER. I present the petition of W. Morgan, David M. Davis, John R. White, A. R. Dick, Cornelius Collins, and 1,247 other employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, praying to be allowed fifteen days' additional annual leave, their privilege thus to be made equal to that of other Government employes. I move that the petition be printed as a document, and referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. GRAY presented a petition of shipowners and others interested in commerce on the Great Lakes, and a petition of the Board of Trade of Portland, Me., praying for the passage of the bill to transfer the Revenue Marine to the naval establishment; which were referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. CAMERON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 246) for the relief of Thomas A. McLaughlin, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 250) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of George S. Ackerson, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. COCKRELL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 1196) to facilitate the settlement of claims for arrears of pay and bounty;

A bill (S. 1094) granting the right of way to the Duluth and Manitoba Railroad Company across the Fort Pembina reservation in North Dakota; and

A bill (S. 111) for the relief of Orin R. McDaniel.

Mr. COCKRELL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 318) for the relief of Joseph Johnson, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. COCKRELL, The Committee on Military Affairs, to whom have been referred the ten or twelve bills I now report, have instructed me to report each one of them back adversely and recommend that they be indefinitely postponed, the reports agreed to, and the relief claimed in each case denied. I ask that that order be made.

The reports were agreed to, and the bills postponed indefinitely, as follows:

A bill (S. 240) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of John Lyons;

A bill (S. 39) granting an honorable discharge to Thomas Fitzgibbon;

A bill (S. 459) granting an honorable discharge to Michael Porter;

A bill (S. 539) authorizing the Secretary of War to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Madison Parish;

A bill (S. 518) for the relief of John Sullivan;

A bill (S. 732) for the relief of Henry Judge, of Ashland, Oregon;

A bill (S. 241) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Thomas Morrison;

A bill (S. 809) to remove the charge of desertion against Henry Crangle;

A bill (S. 916) removing the charge of desertion from the military record of Adam James Springer;

A bill (S. 1060) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of William Pullman; and

A bill (S. 1329) granting an honorable discharge to Bennett Dorsey.

Mr. CHANDLER, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 884) to provide for the settlement of claims of officers and crews of the Navy to certain molesties, and conferring jurisdiction on the Court of Claims to hear and determine the same, asked to be discharged from its further consideration and that it be referred to the Committee on Claims; which was agreed to.

He also, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 457) for the relief of the assignees or legal representatives of John Roach, deceased, to pay balance due on the United States steamer Dolphin, asked to be discharged from its further consideration and that it be referred to the Committee on Claims; which was agreed to.

Mr. WASHBURN, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1211) to amend an act entitled "An act relative to the Minneapolis Industrial Exposition, to be held annually in the city of Minneapolis, State of Minnesota," approved March 3, 1887, reported it without amendment.

Mr. STEWART, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 17) for the relief of John F. W. Dette, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Education and Labor, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 16) authorizing the distribution of public documents to land-grant colleges, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PALMER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1312) for the relief of Dr. John B. Read, reported it without amendment.

Mr. MITCHELL, from the Committee on Claims, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 726) for the relief of P. B. Sinott, late Indian agent at Grande Ronde Agency, State of Oregon;

A bill (S. 352) for the relief of George F. Roberts, administrator of the estate of William B. Thayer, deceased, surviving partner of Thayer Brothers, and others; and

A bill (S. 730) for the relief of H. W. Shipley.

Mr. MITCHELL. I desire to state that all the several bills which I have reported this morning were cases reported favorably upon and passed by the Senate at the last Congress. In fact, they have passed the Senate three times each, I think, heretofore.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bills will be placed upon the Calendar.

Mr. DOLPH, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1189) for the establishment of a beacon light and fog signal on the Government breakwater recently constructed at Bridgeport, Conn., reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 1632) for the establishment of a light and fog signal station near Butler Flats, New Bedford, Mass.;

A bill (S. 722) to amend an act entitled "An act to reorganize and establish the customs collection district of Puget Sound," approved August 28, 1890;

A bill (S. 1495) for the establishment of additional aids to navigation in Tanapa Bay, Fla.; and

A bill (S. 1631) to establish a life-saving station at Gay Head, on the coast of Massachusetts.

Mr. FRYE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 755) to fix the compensation of inspectors of hulls and boilers in certain districts of the United States, reported adversely thereon; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. FRYE. Senate bill 755 was reported adversely because the Committee on Commerce have instructed me to make provision for it in Senate bill 744, which is reported favorably with an amendment, rendering entirely unnecessary the former bill, which was indefinitely postponed. I therefore report back the bill (S. 744) to amend "An act to amend section 4400 of Title LII of the Revised Statutes of the United States, concerning the regulation of steam vessels," approved August 7, 1882, with an amendment and a written report thereon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. FRYE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 750) to amend and reenact section 5 of an act entitled "An act to promote the efficiency of the Life-Saving Service and to encourage the saving of life from shipwreck," approved May 4, 1882, reported adversely thereon; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom the subject was referred, submitted a report thereon, accompanied by a bill (S. 1775) to fix the compensation of keepers and crews of life-saving stations; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. FRYE. The original bill just reported is to take the place of Senate bill 750, indefinitely postponed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed so on the Calendar.

Mr. FRYE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 743) to establish a marine fund for the advancement of the interests of the merchant marine, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1280) to amend an act entitled "An act to amend section 4178, Revised Statutes, in relation to the marking of vessels' names at bow and stern, and also to provide for marking the draft," approved February 21, 1891, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1222) to protect the wages of seamen, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PROCTOR, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 356) for the relief of John W. Blake, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. DANIEL, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 602) for the erection of a public building for the use of the custom-house and post-office at Newport News, in the district of Newport News, Va., reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. McMICHAEL, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1351) to provide for the purchase of a site and erection of buildings for the Girls' Reform School of the District of Columbia, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

PRINTING OF BANKRUPTCY BILL.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing to report back favorably, with an amendment, the Senate resolution proposing to print 5,000 copies of Senate bill 1694, which is known as the bankruptcy bill. I find on investigation that 5,000 copies, whether printed in bill form or document form, come within the limit of the law. If printed in bill form the cost will be $331, and if printed in document form, $187. It seems to the committee it will meet the whole demand fairly well if it shall be printed in document form, and I will move the necessary amendment when the resolution has been read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution submitted yesterday by Mr. PERKINS, as follows:

Resolved, That the Public Printer is hereby instructed to print 5,000 copies of Senate bill 1694, and send them to the Senate document room.

Mr. DOLPH. I will yield. I shall have the floor when the bill is resumed again, but I wish to state now that if the senior Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] or the senior Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK] should be here on Monday and desire to discuss the bill I shall be glad to give way and conclude my remarks after they have spoken.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. SAWYER. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 4 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, January 25, 1892, at 12 o'clock meridian.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate January 21, 1892.

COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

Adam B. Bowman, of Tennessee, to be collector of internal revenue for the second district of Tennessee.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE NAVY.

Joseph Alfred Guthrie, a resident of Virginia; Charles Moore De Valin, a resident of the District of Columbia, and Henry La Motte, a resident of New York, to be assistant surgeons in the Navy.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, January 21, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. WHITING for this day, and to Mr. WEADOCK for one week, on account of important business.

LIGHT SALEM CREEK, NEW JERSEY.

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, recommending that a light be established at the mouth of Salem Creek, New Jersey; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

STEAM FOG SIGNAL, SOUTHWEST LEDGE, CONNECTICUT.

The SPEAKER pro tempore also laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, recommending that the light and fog signal station at Southwest Ledge, Connecticut, be replaced by a steam fog signal similar to that at Execution Rocks, New York; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

L. B. HEARRELL.

The SPEAKER pro tempore also laid before the House a letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of L. B. Hearrell vs. The United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER pro tempore also laid before the House bills of the following titles; which were read twice, and referred as indicated, viz:

A bill (S. 81) to relinquish the interest of the United States in a certain parcel of land in the city of Pensacola, Fla., to Escambia Lodge, No. 15, Free and Accepted Masons—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 297) to increase the accommodations at the marine hospital at Detroit, Mich.—to the Committee on Commerce.

A bill (S. 435) to aid the State of South Dakota to support a school of mines—to the Committee on Education.

A bill (S. 444) granting to the State of South Dakota section numbered 36 in township numbered 56 west, in the county of Yankton, in said State, for the purpose of an asylum for the insane, to correct an act approved June 16, 1880, attempting to make such grant to the Territory of Dakota, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

A bill (S. 418) to change the times for holding the circuit and district courts of the United States for the western district of Missouri—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

A bill (S. 1095) for the relief of Thomas Chambers—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 79) for the erection of a public building at Tampa, Fla.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 94) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Jacksonville, in the State of Illinois—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 197) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Norfolk, Nebr.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 237) for the erection of a public building at Waterbury, Conn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 303) to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of Mansfield, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 304) to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of Zanesville, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 339) for the erection of a public building at Fergus Falls, Minn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 367) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Nashua, in the State of New Hampshire—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 426) to provide for the erection of a public building for the use and accommodation of the post-office at Mammoth Hot Springs, in the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 1054) to provide for the construction of a public building at Hastings, Nebr.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY, ARK.

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Speaker, with the consent of the Committee on the Judiciary, I desire to ask unanimous consent that that committee be discharged from the further consideration of the bill (H. R. 3931) to detach Montgomery County from the western and add it to the eastern district of Arkansas, and that the bill be taken up for present consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The bill will be read, subject to objection.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That so much of section 533 of the Revised Statutes as provide that Montgomery County shall be embraced in the western judicial district of Arkansas be, and the same is hereby, repealed, and the said county is hereby added to and placed in the eastern judicial district of said State, and all process issued against defendants residing therein shall be returned to Little Rock until otherwise provided, and all causes of action which have accrued or may hereafter accrue in said county, of which the courts of the United States have jurisdiction, shall be cognizable in the courts of Little Rock until otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 2. That all actions or proceedings now pending against parties residing in said Montgomery County in the court of said western district may, upon the application of either, be transferred to the court for the eastern district at Little Rock, and in case of such transfer all papers and files therein, with copies of all record entries, shall be transferred to the office of the clerk of such court, and proceed in all respects as though originally commenced in said court at Little Rock.

SEC. 3. That all crimes and offenses heretofore committed within said western district shall be prosecuted, tried, and determined in the same manner and with the same effect as if this act had not been passed.

SEC. 4. That all laws and part of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to state that the Committee on the Judiciary make no objection to that request, and I feel authorized to say that the committee would unanimously recommend the passage of the bill.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, it was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. TERRY, the motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

MESSANGER TO THE COMMITTEE ON RIVERS AND HARBORS.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, I present a report from the Committee on Accounts, which I ask the Clerk to read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Doorkeeper of the House is hereby authorized to appoint, for a period of five months, a messenger to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, at a salary of $75 per month, to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

REPORT.

The Committee on Accounts, to whom was referred the accompanying resolution, submitted by Mr. BLANCHARD on January 11, 1892, respectfully report: That the public business intrusted to the consideration of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors embraces numerous and important matters, and, owing to the fact that the House has given the above-named committee power to sit during the sessions of the House, it is absolutely impossible to carry on the work of that committee without the assistance of a messenger. Your committee therefore report said resolution, with the recommendation that the same be amended by striking out the word "five" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "three," and that as amended the resolution be adopted.

Mr. BLANCHARD. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Rivers and Harbors has the permission of the House to sit during the sessions of the House. The committee meets every day at 10:30, and holds steadily on, even while the House is in session. We have a most important and arduous duty to perform. The labors of the committee are simply enormous. There is no committee in this House that has more to do. River and harbor bills usually aggregate about $20,000,000 for expenditure during two years, and it requires a vast deal of time and work to properly prepare the bill, examine voluminous reports, give hearings, etc. We have no assistant clerk for the committee, and we want none; but we do need a young man to sit at the door of the committee room while we are in executive session.

The committee room is just across the corridor from the Hall of the House. Its convenience to the Hall of the House is so great that members, without knowing the committee is in session, come to the door with friends who have sent for them, seeking to use the room as a convenient place for conference. Besides, the hall between the committee room and the House, while the latter is in session, is always full of people, not members, who attend upon the sessions of the House. Unless the door is guarded they frequently attempt entrance to the great annoyance of the members of the committee and the disturbance of the work. The Doorkeeper details a messenger to sit at the door of the room until a quarter before 12 o'clock. At that hour it is his duty to go to that one of the main doors of the House to which he is assigned when the House is in session. Therefore, at the time when we most need a man at the door (when the House is about to meet and when the House is in session) we have none.

In view of that, the Committee on Rivers and Harbors passed a resolution requesting the House to grant the committee a messenger for the period of three months. By that time the river and harbor bill will be completed. We will not need his services any longer, and do not ask for the messenger beyond that period. For the three months we require the messenger the salary proposed is $75 per month, or an aggregate expenditure of $225. That is the resolution which has been reported favorably from the Committee on Accounts. I ask the House to agree to its passage.

The amendment reported by the committee was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was then agreed to.

On motion of Mr. COOPER, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

ASSISTANT CLERK TO THE COMMITTEE ON MILITARY AFFAIRS.

Mr. COOPER. I also present the following report from the Committee on Accounts.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That an assistant clerk be allowed to the Committee on Military Affairs during the present session of Congress, at a compensation of $6 per day, to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

REPORT.

The Committee on Accounts, to whom was referred the accompanying resolution, submitted by Mr. CUTHWAITE on January 15, 1892, respectfully report that they have given the matter careful consideration, and find that the large amount of public business requiring the attention of the Committee on Military Affairs is of such a nature as to imperatively require, during the present session of Congress (as the committee had during the last), the services of an assistant clerk. They therefore report said resolution favorably and recommend its passage.

The resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. COOPER, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

ASSISTANT CLERK TO THE COMMITTEE ON CLAIMS.

Mr. COOPER. I also submit another report from the Committee on Accounts:

Resolved, That the Committee on Claims be authorized during the sessions, until further ordered by the House, to employ an assistant clerk, to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House, at the rate of $6 per day.

The Committee on Accounts, to whom was referred the accompanying resolution, submitted by Mr. BURN on January 11, 1892, respectfully report that the business of the Committee on Claims requires, as it has in previous Congresses, the employment of an assistant clerk.

They therefore report said resolution, with the recommendation that the same be amended by striking therefrom the word "sessions" and inserting in place thereof the word "session;" and that as amended the resolution be adopted.

The report is as follows:

The Committee on Privileges and Elections, who were directed by resolution of December 12, 1891, to inquire into and report upon the circumstances and validity of the appointment of Mr. CHILTON to a seat in the Senate from the State of Texas, have complied with said resolution, and respectfully report: Mr. Reagan, elected Senator from the State of Texas for the term of six years from the 4th of March, 1887, resigned his office, the resignation to take effect on the 10th day of June, 1891. The executive of the State of Texas on the 25th day of April, 1891, and after the receipt of the resignation of Mr. Reagan, appointed Mr. CHILTON to fill the vacancy occasioned by said resignation. Mr. CHILTON's credentials set forth the resignation of Mr. Reagan, and further declare—

"Now, therefore, I, J. S. Hogg, governor of the State of Texas, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the United States and of the State of Texas, do hereby appoint HORACE CHILTON, of Smith County, Tex., Senator in the Congress of the United States from the State of Texas to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of the Hon. John H. Reagan. This appointment to take effect the 10th day of June, A. D. 1891.

The certificate bears date April 25, 1891. Mr. CHILTON is in all other respects duly qualified to be a Senator from the State of Texas. The only question is whether the governor might lawfully make this appointment before the resignation of Mr. Reagan actually took effect.

The provision of the Constitution affecting the question is as follows: "ART. I, Sec. 3. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof for six years, and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies."

A similar state of facts has arisen in a number of instances since the Constitution went into operation.

The term of Uriah Tracy, Senator from Connecticut, expired March 3, 1891; he was appointed by the governor of Connecticut, February 20, 1891; from the 31st of March next until the next meeting of the Legislature of said State, the Legislature of the State not being in session at the time of said appointment or thereafter until after said 4th of March. Exception being taken to his credentials, he was admitted to the seat by a vote of 13 yeas to 10 nays, and held the seat during the special session of the Senate, March 4 and 5.

Joseph Anderson, of Tennessee, was appointed by the executive February 6, 1890, to fill the vacancy which would result from the expiration of his term, March 3, 1890. He held the seat under these credentials during the special session of the Senate, March 4 to March 7, 1890.

John Williams, of Tennessee, was appointed by the executive to fill the vacancy which would result from the expiration of his own term, March 3, 1887. Under these credentials he held his seat from March 4 to 6, 1887.

John McPherson Berrien, of Georgia, resigned by letter dated Washington, May 28, 1852, addressed to the President pro tempore, and read in Senate same date. (Globe, first session, Thirty-second Congress, p. 1493.)

Robert M. Charlton, his successor, appeared June 11, 1852, with credentials signed by the governor of Georgia, and dated May 18, 1852, to take effect from and after May 31, 1852. He was sworn and took his seat without objection. (Senate Journal, first session, Thirty-second Congress, p. 468.)

March 4, 1825, James Lanman, of Connecticut, presented credentials showing an appointment made February 8, 1825, by the governor of the State, to fill the vacancy about to result from the expiration of his term, March 3, 1825. Objection being made, Mr. Lanman was refused a seat by a vote of 23 to 13. There is no historical evidence from which we can determine on what ground the Senate rejected Mr. Lanman, whether it was on the ground that the governor could not fill a vacancy happening at the beginning of a term, or on the ground that the governor could not lawfully make the appointment in anticipation and before a vacancy occurred, and before he could possibly know whether the Legislature might not be called together before that time. Judge Story (Const., sec. 727, n. 2) says:

"In the case of Mr. Lanman, a Senator from Connecticut, a question occurred whether the State executive could make an appointment in the recess of the State Legislature in anticipation of the expiration of the term of office of an existing Senator. It was decided by the Senate that he could not make such an appointment. The facts were that Mr. Lanman's term as Senator expired on the 31st of March, 1825. The President had convoked the Senate to meet on the 4th of March. The governor of Connecticut, in the recess of the Legislature (whose session would be in May), on the 9th of the preceding February appointed Mr. Lanman as Senator, to sit in the Senate after the 31st of March. The Senate by a vote of 23 to 13 decided that the appointment could not be constitutionally made until after the vacancy had actually occurred."

The following statement appears in the National Intelligencer for Tuesday, March 8, 1825:

"An important constitutional question was yesterday decided in the Senate, by the refusal to admit Mr. Lanman to a seat in the Senate under a commission from the governor, granted before the expiration of Mr. Lanman's term of service. This is the first time this question has been adjudicated under such circumstances as to form a precedent; and we presume it may now be considered a settled construction of the constitutional provision that a vacancy must have literally 'happened' or come to pass before an appointment can be made to fill it. The case has once been questioned and decided differently, but it was in strong party times, all the Federal members voting for the member's taking his seat, and all the Democratic members against it, under which circumstances the decision has not been much respected as a precedent. So far as it was a precedent it is now reversed."

Gordon's Digest of the Laws of the United States, 1827, appendix, note 113, states the ground of the decision in the same way, but manifestly bases the statement on the authority of the National Intelligencer.

On the other hand, Mr. Grundy, in his report from the Committee on the Judiciary in the case of Mr. Sevier, Senator from the State of Arkansas, who was appointed by the governor of Arkansas, January 17, 1827, to fill the vacancy which would occur on the 31st of March following, by the expiration of Mr. Sevier's previous term, declared that the decision in the Lanman case was on the ground "that the Legislature must provide for all vacancies, which must occur at stated and known periods, and that the expiration of a regular term of service is not such a contingency as is embraced in the second section of the first article of the Constitution." He distinguished Mr. Sevier's case from the Lanman case by the fact that the time that Mr. Sevier was to go out of office was decided by lot, he having been one of the Senators appointed by the State on its admission.

Niles' Register of Friday, March 12, states the question in regard to the Lanman case:

"The question was whether the failure by the Legislature to make a choice of Senator constitutes the contingency in which the governor may appoint a Senator."

Mr. Benton, in his Thirty Years' View, states that the principal argument against the admission of Mr. Lanman was made by Mr. Tazewell, that argument being that the word "happen" in the Constitution could not apply to a foreseen event, bound to occur at a fixed period, and that therefore it was the right of the Legislature only to fill a vacancy which was foreseen, regular, and certain, and that there was no right in the governor to supply that omission.

Mr. Lanman was not admitted to the seat. There is nothing in the contemporary record of the debates or in the resolution which enables us to determine whether the majority of the Senate based its action on the ground stated by Mr. Benton to have been maintained by Mr. Tazewell, or on the ground stated by Judge Story and by the National Intelligencer. The case, therefore, is not an authority on either side of the question. So that it is impossible to determine whether the Senate meant to overrule the Tracy case on one ground or the other.

On the other hand, an examination of the very numerous cases where the executives of States have in de appointments when the Legislature was not in session shows that in a great many of them the executive has postponed action, where the resignations were made to take effect at a future time or where the previous term had expired by its own limitation, until after the vacancy existed. In all probability this postponement was caused by a belief on the part of the executive that he had no authority to provide for filling a vacancy until it actually occurred, or at any rate, that the question was so far in doubt that it would be unsafe to do so, in appointment in anticipation.

So far, then, as the precedents are concerned it appears that in three cases persons so appointed have been admitted to their seats without question; that Mr. Tracy was admitted and Mr. Lanman rejected where the executive made the appointment in anticipation of a vacancy, there being a discussion in the Senate, but no satisfactory evidence of the grounds of the judgment; that in one case, that of Mr. Sevier, a person so appointed has been admitted, when the validity of the appointment was questioned upon other grounds, without raising this question specifically; and that in modern times the practice has been uniform for the State executive to delay appointment until the actual happening of the vacancy.

Under these circumstances it seems to us that the Senate may now determine the question unhampered by any precedents of its own.

We suppose that where the power is given to fill vacancies in public offices it has been the uniform practice to permit resignations of such offices to be made to take effect at a future day, and to hold that the appointing power is entitled to make the appointment in advance to fill the vacancy, to take effect when the resignation becomes operative, unless the language of the constitutional or statute provision under which the authority is exercised forbids such construction.

The Constitution of the United States, Article II, section 2, in providing for the appointing power, enacts:

"The President shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session."

We believe it has been the uniform practice of the Executive from the beginning to accept resignations which are to take effect in the future, and to make appointments also to take effect in the future, to fill them. We suppose that a like practice also prevails in regard to the heads of Departments in the exercise of the appointing power conferred by law upon them. The language of the provision of the Constitution under consideration, that "if vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the Legislature," seems to us to admit easily of a like construction. We do not suppose that it was the intention of the framers of the Constitution to establish different rules for these two cases.

The Senate has recently, after full consideration, determined that the constitutional provision that the Senate shall choose a President pro tempore in the absence of the Vice-President permits the choice of an officer in advance of the actual occurrence of the contingency referred to, who may take the chair whenever the Vice-President may be absent, until the Senate otherwise order. In all these cases, including that which we are now considering, the important consideration is that it must have been the purpose of the framers of the Constitution, as it is clearly for the public interest, that the office as far as possible should always be filled. This consideration applies with peculiar force to the office of Senator. We should be very unwilling to establish a construction of the Constitution which would make it certain that in process of the resignation of a Senator, however necessary that resignation might be, there should be a succession without a considerable interval.

This would bear with peculiar hardship upon States remote from the seat of Government, and might determine the policy of the country in great emergencies and in matters peculiarly affecting particular States, when such States were but partially represented or possibly not represented at all. The tendency of the opinion in the Senate, as evidenced by its more recent decisions, has been more and more to lead to a construction which, as far as possible, secures that the seats in the Senate should be filled without any interruption in the representation of the State. Thus, in the case of Mr. Bell and Mr. Blair, Senators from the State of New Hampshire, it has been held that the executive might fill the vacancy occurring at the beginning of the constitutional term in consequence of the failure or the inability of the Legislature to elect a Senator for that term, in compliance with the statute of 1865 (Revised Statutes, sections 11 and 19), in spite of very weighty and influential opinions to the contrary.

So it has been held and is now the settled construction, that if a vacancy occur during the recess of the Senate, and a person be regularly nominated to the Senate at its next session to fill it, and be rejected, and the Senate adjourn without the office being filled, the President is entitled to make a new appointment in the next vacation. So, if the office die during the session, and if his death be not known until after the adjournment, as is said by Attorney-General Taney, in his able report, Opinions of Attorney-General, volume 2, page 523:

"It is admitted by every one that the President may appoint in such cases, and the practice of the Government has continually conformed to that construction."

"It was the intention of the Constitution," Mr. Taney further says, "that the offices created by law and necessary to carry out the operations of the Government should always be filled, or, at all events, that the vacancy should not be a protracted one." (See also, to the same effect, the opinion of Mr. John Wirt, 1 Op. Atty's Gen., 611.)

It has been suggested that if this construction be established, it would give the power of the governor of the State to provide for appointments in anticipation of future vacancies long before they occur, and therefore to the wrong of the people of the State, as it exists at or near the time of filling a vacancy, and the fall of being carried into effect. But the instance must necessarily be a very rare indeed where the vacancy can be anticipated in advance of the actual occurrence of the event which will create such a temptation to the executive. A similar temptation as against many other evils which are possible under a popular government, as under other governments, the protection in general must be to the character and integrity of the persons clothed with high public office.

We, therefore, are of the opinion that Mr. CHILTON was lawfully appointed by the executive of the State of Texas to the seat which he took in the Senate, and we recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That Mr. HORACE CHILTON, appointed by the executive of the State of Texas on the 25th day of April, 1891, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Hon. John H. Reagan, which had previously been made to take effect on the 10th day of June, 1891, is entitled to remain in the seat.

SENATOR FROM FLORIDA.

Mr. TURPINE. The Committee on Privileges and Elections, to whom were referred the papers, evidence, and certificates in the case of WILKINSON CALL and of the contestant, R. H. M. Davidson, respecting the question of a title to a seat in this body from the State of Florida, have had the same under consideration, and have instructed me to report the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Hon. WILKINSON CALL, of Florida, was duly elected by the Legislature of said State on the 26th day of May, 1891, a Senator of the United States from said State for the term of six years, commencing on the 4th day of March, 1891, and that he is lawfully entitled to a seat in the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be placed on the Calendar.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. SHERMAN (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1778) to reorganize the line of the Army; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1779) for the relief of Robert S. Forbes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1780) for the relief of Fred W. Snell; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1781) increasing the pension of Andrew J. Kogler; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1782) for the relief of James Roberts; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1783) granting an increase of pension to Albert A. Morey; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WILSON introduced a bill (S. 1784) to indemnify the settlers upon the so-called Des Moines River lands in the State of Iowa; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. WILSON. I ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and in this connection I wish to state that I hope the committee will give the bill early consideration, inasmuch as it affects the interests of a large number of people who settled upon what were always believed to be public lands of the United States. But a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States seems to be adverse to that almost or quite universal belief in the State of Iowa, and in order that the settlers may be provided for by indemnity by the United States, I hope that the committee will give early consideration to the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. WILSON introduced a bill (S. 1785) granting a pension to Mrs. M. M. R. Stafford; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 1786) granting a pension to Mrs. Jennie Gray; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 1787) granting a pension to Austin Rockwell; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 1788) to incorporate the Church Orphanage Association of St. John's parish, of Washington, D. C.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1789) to extend to Marquette, Mich., the privilege of immediate transportation of unappraised merchandise; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1790) for the relief of Thomas Antisell; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1791) for a public building for a marine hospital at Cheboygan, Mich.; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 1792) removing the charge of desertion against Philip Schrott; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. DAWES introduced a bill (S. 1793) to legalize the deed and other records of the office of Indian Affairs, and to provide and authorize the use of a seal by said office; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1794) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Pah-Ute tribe or band of Indians on the Pyramid Lake Indian Reservation in Nevada, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1795) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Indians residing on the Shoshone Indian Reservation in the State of Wyoming, with certain changes and modifications, and to make appropriations for carrying the same into effect; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1796) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Tonkawa tribe of Indians in Oklahoma Territory, and to make appropriation to carry the same into effect; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1797) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Kickapoo Indians in Oklahoma Territory, and to make appropriations for carrying the same into effect; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1798) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Indians residing on the Colville Reservation in the State of Washington, with certain modifications, and to make appropriations for carrying into effect of the same; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1799) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Wichita and affiliated bands of Indians in Oklahoma Territory, and to make appropriations for carrying the same into effect; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1800) to ratify and confirm certain agreements with the Upper and Middle bands of Spokane Indians, the Lower Pend d'Oreille or Colispel Indians, and the confederated bands of Flatheads, Pend d'Oreille, and Kootenai Indians in Washington, Idaho, and Montana, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. SQUIRE introduced a bill (S. 1801) making an appropriation for the construction of a ship canal connecting Lakes Union and Washington with Puget Sound; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a bill (S. 1802) to establish the Grant Memorial Home at Mount McGregor, N. Y.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1803) for the relief of Francis Isch; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1804) for the relief of Benjamin F. Wells, sr.; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1805) to limit the operation of certain acts relating to structures over navigable waters; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1806) to amend sections 2774 and 2807 of the Revised Statutes; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. HISCOCK. I desire to say in respect to this bill that the argument presented to me would seem to be very strong in favor of the amendment to the statute proposed, but it is a measure which, as a matter of course, will require close examination. I move that the bill be referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. STOKBRIDGE introduced a bill (S. 1807) making an appropriation for the improvement of the St. Joseph Harbor, Michigan; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 1808) for the recognition of Henry C. Hill as captain and aid-de-camp on the staff of Maj. Gen. B. F. Butler, United States Volunteers; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 1809) to authorize the Secretary of War to amend the military record of commissioned officers of the late war under certain circumstances, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1810) for the relief of the officers and crew of the United States steamers Forest Rose and Argosy, late of the Red River expedition; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1811) for the relief of Peter M. V. Underwood; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1812) granting a pension to James R. Edwards; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

mit a report of the Secretary of State, with accompanying documents, showing the action taken under that resolution.

BENJ. HARRISON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION.
Washington, January 25, 1892.

JAMES CROOKS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States: which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a report of the Secretary of State, with accompanying documents, in relation to the claim of the representatives of the late Hon. James Crooks, a British subject, against the Government of the United States, for the seizure of the steamer Lord Nelson in 1812.

The favorable action of the Fifth and Fifty-first Congresses upon the bills heretofore introduced for the relief of the claimants makes it proper that I should recommend it anew for the consideration and final disposition of the present Congress.

BENJ. HARRISON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION.
Washington, January 25, 1892.

HOUSE BILL.

The bill (H. R. 28) to amend an act entitled "An act granting the right of way to the Hutchinson and Southern Railroad Company through the Indian Territory" was read twice by its title, and ordered to lie on the table.

CAPITOL, NORTH O STREET AND SOUTH WASHINGTON RAILWAY COMPANY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a statement of the operations of the Capitol, North O Street and South Washington Railway Company for the year ended April 30, 1891; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and ordered to be printed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. HOAR. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After eight minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Petitions and memorials are in order.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of the Universal Peace Union, praying Congress to stand firmly by the principles of peace and arbitration in regard to Chile; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented a petition of 171 citizens of Ohio, praying for the passage of legislation looking to the closing of the World's Columbian Fair on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

A bill (S. 8) for the relief of Moses Pendergrass, of Missouri;

A bill (S. 9) for the relief of E. R. Shipley; and

A bill (S. 852) for the relief of Mary L. Ross.

CHEYENNE AND ARAPAHOE INDIAN LANDS.

Mr. DAWES. I am instructed by the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 517) providing for the completion of the allotment of lands to the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians, to report it without amendment, and to ask for its present consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the sum of $15,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, to be paid out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of completing the allotment provided for in the agreement with the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians in Oklahoma, ratified by act approved March 3, 1891, including the pay and expenses of the necessary special agents and necessary surveys, which sum shall be immediately available and be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior for the purposes herein expressed.

Mr. DAWES. I will state to the Senate, if any one desires it, the reason for asking present action upon this bill.

At the last session it will be recollected Congress ratified an agreement with the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians by which the Government purchased 3,000,000 acres of land to be added to the public domain. It was stipulated in that agreement that the residue of their reservations should be allotted to the Indians in severalty before the 3,000,000 acres should be opened to settlement, giving them the opportunity to select. In the agreement it was provided that $15,000 should be appropriated for the expense of the allotment. This was an estimate made by the commissioners who made the agreement without much knowledge of the necessary expenses. It involved the allotment of lands to more than 3,000 Indians, and on an investigation of the agreement it was found that the work was substantially a double allotment—it was an allotment of agricultural lands and also of grazing lands to each individual Indian. It was provided in the agreement that there should be distributed of the consideration money $250,000 to the Indians per capita.

The Indians insisted upon having that money before they took their allotment, which caused considerable delay. When the allotment was proceeded with and it was found to be a double work, the $15,000 was seen to be insufficient, not more than enough to do half the work. Under it 1,800 Indians have been allotted lands, leaving 1,500 still unallotted. The anxiety of the Department is to complete those allotments this winter as early as possible so that the 3,000,000 acres can be opened to settlement in the early spring for the benefit of the settlers; and therefore it is that there is anxiety to have this bill passed, if at all, immediately. It passed the House of Representatives last Thursday. I ask for the immediate consideration of the bill.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 1930) granting a pension to Anna Franklin; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 1931) to amend an act entitled "An act making appropriations to provide for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1882, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1881; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. HARRIS introduced a bill (S. 1932) for the relief of William H. Tarley; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 1933) to amend section 860 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. CULLOM. Before the bill is referred I desire to say that the purpose of the bill—and I call the attention of the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary to it—is to amend section 860 of the Revised Statutes, which I wish to have done because of a recent decision of the Supreme Court in what is known as the Counselman case, under the interstate-commerce act. That case went off the docket, or it was decided against the right to require a witness to testify, not on account of anything that was in the interstate-commerce law, but because, as the court stated, section 860 of the Revised Statutes, which has been on the statute books now for twenty or thirty years, is not as broad in its scope as the Constitution, giving immunity or security to the rights of a witness under the Constitution.

I ask the special attention of the committee to that provision, as it applies not only to prosecutions for violations of law under the interstate-commerce act, but in all criminal prosecutions under the laws of the United States; but as it has been especially decided in a case under the interstate-commerce law, it affects prosecutions under that law in the future. As it is a general provision that I think ought to be considered by the Judiciary Committee, I introduce the bill and move that it be referred to that committee instead of to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, of which I am chairman.

Mr. CHANDLER. I should like to ask the Senator from Illinois a question. I ask whether the decision that this witness was not bound to testify was made upon any clause of the interstate-commerce law or upon another and a different statute.

Mr. CULLOM. I have stated that the decision went off upon a construction of section 860 of the Revised Statutes, which has been upon the books now, I think, since 1868. It is not under any provision of the interstate-commerce act at all.

Mr. CHANDLER. So that the idea that has prevailed, that it was only found in the interstate-commerce law, is an incorrect one.

Mr. CULLOM. It is entirely incorrect if any such idea as that has prevailed.

I move that the bill be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. GORMAN introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 35) providing for the purchase of historical manuscripts relating to the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Library.

SALARIES OF POSTMASTERS.

Mr. CARLISLE. I offer a resolution and ask that it may lie over; I shall call it up at some future time.

The resolution was read, and ordered to lie on the table, as follows:

Resolved, That the Postmaster-General be, and he hereby is, directed to report to the Senate at the earliest date practicable all deficiencies of not less than 10 per cent in amount in the paid salaries of third, fourth, and fifth class postmasters, in class presented to the Postmaster-General within the time limited by the act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat., 487), from the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Kansas, Kentucky, and Illinois. Such report to state, from existing entries on Department form 1221 A, as to each and every such deficiency within each and every biennial term between July 1, 1884, and July 1, 1874, in regular order, the name of the post-office, the name of the postmaster, the biennial or fractional biennial term within which the deficiency exists, the amount of the postmaster's salary ascertained by the act of June 22, 1854 (10 Stat., 238), upon the quarterly returns within the biennial term specified, the amount of the office salary received by such postmaster for the specified biennial or fractional biennial term, and the amount of the deficiency between the salary received and the salary thus ascertained within such biennial or fractional biennial term specified. The total amount of such deficiencies of salaries of postmasters in each of said States to be also stated, and a copy of Department letter, form 1223, published by the Postmaster-General in 1884 and the years following, declaratory of the title of such postmasters to payment of the deficiencies in salaries herein described by virtue of section 8 of the act of June 12, 1886 (14 Stat., 59), and the said act of March 3, 1883.

PURCHASE OF MADISON COLLECTION.

Mr. GORMAN submitted the following resolution: which was referred to the Committee on the Library:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Library be, and they are hereby, directed to inquire and report to the Senate whether it is advisable for the Government to purchase a certain collection of autographs and historical papers now in the possession of the executors of James C. McGuire, formerly of Washington City, D. C., and known as the Madison collection.

AFFAIRS IN ALASKA.

Mr. PLATT submitted the following resolution: which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Territories, or any subcommittee thereof, is hereby authorized and instructed to institute and conduct an investigation and inquiry into the resources of the district of Alaska; the character, occupations, and social condition of its inhabitants, white, Indian, and of mixed blood; its form and system of government; whether the same is adapted to the present and prospective development of the district; its laws, and whether they are enforced or allowed to be violated; what other or further legislation is necessary for the better government and needs of the said district and for the protection and well-being of its people; and any and all matters relating to the civil administration and future welfare of the people of Alaska.

Such committee shall have power to send for persons and papers, and to employ a stenographer; and shall make report with recommendations as to future legislation.

The necessary expenses consequent upon such inquiry and investigation shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate when certified by the chairman of the committee and audited and allowed by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENCE WITH CHINA.

Mr. HOAR. If no other resolutions are to be introduced this morning, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the resolution reported from the Committee on Privileges and Elections on the 25th of January in regard to the seat held by Mr. CHILTON from the State of Texas.

Mr. MORGAN. I have a resolution that I desire to offer, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

Mr. HOAR. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution submitted by the Senator from Alabama will be read.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of State is directed to send to the Senate copies of the correspondence had with the Chinese Government relating to the non-acceptance of Hon. Henry W. Blair as minister of the United States to China.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution? The Chair hears none, and the question is on agreeing to the same.

Mr. HOAR. I should like to inquire of the Senator from Alabama if it is usual to direct the Secretary of State absolutely to communicate correspondence with foreign governments. It seems to me the resolution should go to the President, and he should communicate the information, if not, in his judgment, incompatible with the public interest.

Mr. MORGAN. We have sent a great many such resolutions to the Secretary of State. The rule is that the correspondence of the State Department with any foreign government upon any subject is considered secret until that Department chooses to publish it or until Congress calls for it. There is no question here as to whether it is proper, in consideration of the public interests, that this information should come to the Senate, for the transaction is completed; it has passed some time ago.

My object in seeking the information is merely to find out what the action of our Government was when objection was interposed by China to the admission or acceptance of Mr. Blair as minister to that country. Mr. Blair did not go to that country. I am informed he did not go because China objected to his going. He was therefore not persona grata to the Chinese Government; and I want to know the reasons that Government asserted against him, and what action our Government took upon that suggestion on the part of the Chinese Government.

So far as Mr. Blair is concerned I think I am at liberty to say here that he was confirmed instantly upon his name being presented to the Senate by the unanimous vote of this body very cordially given, and so far as the Senate of the United States is concerned there could not have been a stronger affirmation of his fitness to represent this Government in China or anywhere else than we gave. So I think the Senate must have been greatly surprised to find that the foreign government interposed an objection. The matter lingered along for some time, and Mr. Blair, feeling that it was due to his own personal dignity, resigned the position, but not until China had declined peremptorily or positively to accept him.

Now, it becomes a matter of important inquiry, in view of questions that are presented for public consideration, as to what is the established line of procedure on the part of the Government of the United States when it is notified that a gentleman of such high reputation amongst us has been commissioned to China and that he has been rejected by that Government. I merely desire to get at the precedent and the practice of our Government upon that subject, which without the assistance of this resolution I can not get.

There is certainly no matter connected with the diplomatic service of the country or with any current question or any future question between ourselves and China that would make it necessary for us to appeal to the President and say to him that unless the public good otherwise requires he should send in the correspondence; but it has been the uniform practice of the Senate, as I think the Senator must remember, to call upon the Department of State for any information that appears in the records of that Department on any completed transaction.

Mr. HOAR. I do not yield to the Senator from Alabama or to any other Senator in the matter of kindest feeling towards the late Senator from New Hampshire. I suppose what the Senator says may very likely be true, that the transaction to which he alludes is a completed one; but still it seems very clear to my mind that the uniform method of obtaining such information would be by request to the President to communicate it if in his judgment it be not inconsistent with the public interest.

The Senator thinks that the resolution merely calls for a correspondence completed. There may be, for aught we know, something in the correspondence affecting this question which our Government might desire to give an opportunity to China to withdraw or to reconsider before it shall be made public. Perhaps the attitude of China may yet be changed, and a publication of what has been already said by her representative would interfere with that possibility.

So it seems to me that always, where a matter not of domestic but of foreign concern has been the subject of a correspondence with a foreign government the Senate should pursue the course of making the request to the President. It would come undoubtedly to the same thing, if the Senator be right, as I presume he is, and I suggest to him to modify his resolution in that respect. Otherwise I shall be compelled to object to it and ask to have it go over.

Mr. MORGAN. I would very cheerfully accept the proposition of the Senator from Massachusetts but for the fact that it reverses in my recollection the entire action of the Senate. I dislike to oppose myself to such eminent authority upon a matter of this kind, but I am very clear in the statement that we are commonly in the habit in respect of closed transactions, of past transactions not now the subject of diplomatic intercourse, to call upon the Secretary of State and to direct him to send in the papers. I think that is the uniform practice as to closed transactions. I remember that when the great fisheries controversy was before the Senate we did not hesitate to demand of the Secretary of State the sending in of papers relating to that transaction, although the correspondence about it was then very recently closed.

I would modify the resolution merely to gratify the Senator from Massachusetts, but I do not think the objection is tenable. I would rather that it should go over and give me an opportunity to satisfy the Senator by a great many examples, some of which I dare say he is the author of himself, that we have acted uniformly upon the line of proceeding suggested in the resolution.

Mr. HOAR. I move to refer the resolution to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and then, if that committee find that it is in accordance with precedents, of which committee the Senator from Alabama is a member, they can report it back to the Senate, and it can be passed.

Mr. MORGAN. It is not a question to go to the Committee on Foreign Relations. It is a question as to how the Senate shall get the information by a formal resolution.

Mr. HOAR. I enter that motion, and shall insist on it.

Mr. MORGAN. I have not any doubt that the Committee on Foreign Relations would be just as anxious as I am to know what the precedent is in regard to the Chinese matter. It is some-

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had, on the 26th instant, approved and signed the joint resolution (S. R. 18) to fill vacancies in the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

RELATIONS WITH CHILE.

Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of the secretaries of the President of the United States, communicated to the Senate sundry messages in writing.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a message from the President of the United States, which will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the message.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the message, with the accompanying papers, be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and be printed. I desire to say that I suppose every member of the Senate heartily joins in congratulation over a hopeful honorable settlement to both parties of an unpleasant difference that has arisen between two sister Republics.

Mr. CHANDLER. I ask the unanimous consent of the Senate that the communication from Mr. Egan to the Secretary of State be read. It is not long.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the communication from the minister of the United States at Chile will be read.

The Chief Clerk read Mr. Egan's dispatch, which appears in the House proceedings.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The message, with the accompanying papers, will be printed and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. CULLOM, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1681) making an appropriation for the construction of two United States revenue cutters for service on the Great Lakes, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. COCKRELL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 692) authorizing the Secretary of War to procure and present suitable medals to the survivors of the "forlorn-hope storming party" of Fort Hudson, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 422) granting an honorable discharge to Harlow Brewer, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. COKE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1295) to authorize the construction of jetties, piers, and breakwaters at private expense in the Gulf of Mexico, at the mouth of Rope's Pass in the State of Texas, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HAWLEY, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 552) to amend the act approved March 1, 1887, relating to the Hospital Corps of the Army, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HAWLEY. The bill (S. 1417) to amend the military record of Joseph H. Moore shows in the text thereof that he was in the naval force. The Committee on Military Affairs ask to be excused from the further consideration of the bill and that it be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. TELLER introduced a bill (S. 1958) to submit to the Court of Claims the title of William McGarahan to the Rancho "Paucho Grande," in the State of California, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PAPERS WITHDRAWN AND REFERRED.

On motion of Mr. TURPIE, it was Ordered, That the petition and accompanying papers of Mrs. Ellen A. King, of La Fayette, Ind., now on the files of the Senate of the last Congress, in relation to the correction of the military record of her late husband, Alexander King, be taken from the files and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs for consideration.

PRINTING OF SENATE BILLS, ETC.

Mr. PEPPER. I submit the following resolution, and ask for its immediate consideration:

Resolved by the Senate, That there be printed, in document form, one hundred copies each of the following: Senate bills Nos. 357, 358, 359, 1978, and 1989; also miscellaneous document No. 18 and Senate joint resolution No. 32, to be placed in the document room.

Mr. MANDERSON. The resolution should be referred to the Committee on Printing. It is necessary that it should be referred under the law.

Mr. PEPPER. Let the resolution be referred.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Printing.

SUBPOENAS FOR SENATE COMMITTEES.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Committee on Privileges and Elections be directed to prepare a proper form of subpoena for requiring the attendance of witnesses to be used by the Senate and the committees thereof, and to report the same for the information of the Senate.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (H. R. 28) to amend an act entitled "An act granting the right of way to the Hutchison and Southern Railroad Company through the Indian Territory;" and

A bill (H. R. 517) providing for the completion of the allotment of lands to the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. CARLISLE. Mr. President, I ask leave of absence from the sittings of the Senate for one week.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Leave of absence will be granted to the Senator from Kentucky, if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

RECIPROCAL TRADE AGREEMENTS.

Mr. HALE. I desire to call up the resolution submitted by me a few days ago for the purpose of making some remarks. I ask the Secretary to read the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution submitted by Mr. HALE on the 18th instant, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of State be, and is hereby, directed to send to the Senate, as early as is practicable, copies of all agreements made with other countries relating to an interchange of trade and commerce under the provisions of section 3 of an act entitled "An act to reduce the revenue and equalize duties on imports, and for other purposes," approved October 1, 1890; and also to furnish the Senate with all information received as to the practical effect of such agreements.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, in the present happy subsidence of the war note, I hope Senators will feel that it is fitting to turn our attention to some of the victories of peace.

The answer to the resolution offered by me in the Senate a few days since, and which has just been read, will furnish the information called for more in detail than can be known at present; but I have already possessed myself of information and facts sufficient, I believe, to justify me in setting forth something of the history of the reciprocity movement, the helping hand it has received, and the delays and hindrances which have been put in its pathway in certain quarters, and the tangible results up to the present time.

Touching this last, it must be borne in mind that the oldest treaty or agreement for reciprocity, under section 3 of the McKinley act, has been in force but nine months, and that the treaties or agreements following have some of them but just passed into actual operation.

The desire for extended trade, through the agency of reciprocity treaties, between the United States and her sister nations and dependencies of the American hemisphere, has moved in the minds of practical statesmen for many years. Different Administrations had made essays in this direction. Gen. Garfield, President Arthur, and others had looked with impatience upon the spectacle of a rapidly increasing trade and commerce among the nations of Central and South America, in which we had little part; but no way had been devised through which our trade with them could be augmented till near the closing days of the first session of the Fifty-first Congress.

On the 2d of September, 1890, I called up the original reciprocity amendment to the tariff bill, which was then under discussion, which I had introduced on the 19th of June previous, and which had been referred to the Committee on Finance. The amendment had been prepared at the State Department, and reads as follows:

And the President of the United States is hereby authorized, without further legislation, to declare the ports of the United States free and open to all products of any nation of the American hemisphere upon which no export duties are imposed, whenever and so long as such nation shall admit to its ports, free of all national, provincial (State), municipal, and other taxes, import, corn meal, and other breadstuffs, preserved meats, fish, vegetables and fruits, cotton-seed oil, rice, and other provisions, including all articles of food, lumber, furniture, and all other articles of wood, agricultural implements and machinery, mining and mechanical machinery, structural steel and iron, steel rails, locomotives, railway cars and supplies, street cars, refined petroleum or such other products of the United States as may be agreed upon.

It undoubtedly covered the plan which the State Department had in view to attain practical reciprocity.

The amendment gave rise to extended discussion, was carefully considered in the Committee on Finance, which later in the session reported the reciprocity feature in what is known as the Aldrich amendment, which on the 9th day of September was adopted by the Senate and made a part of the tariff act, being the third section of that act.

The vote of the Senate showed that already one of the great national parties was found in substantial unanimity in favor of the scheme, while the other was arrayed in solid phalanx against it. That it may be seen how marked this line of difference was drawn I give the list of yeas and nays in the Senate upon the adoption of the amendment:

It is an illustration of what the world has seen for thirty years, that, even upon plain business propositions touching the common good of all the country, and the every-day life and prosperity of the people, upon which, if anywhere, there should be no party division, the Democratic party selects the darkness rather than the light for its standing ground.

As some attempt has been made to show that the original reciprocity amendment received rude treatment at the hands of the Senate and that its original authors were not considered in the legislation of Congress, I may state here that, after the changed condition resulting from the repeal of nearly all of the sugar duty, the Aldrich amendment was heartily accepted by the friends of the original amendment in the Senate, by the Secretary of State, and by the President.

The basis of the original amendment was the retention of the sugar duty till reciprocal treaties could be negotiated. When that basis was changed and the repeal became a fixed fact it is difficult to see what other plan than the Aldrich amendment could be devised. For one I voted most heartily for its incorporation into the McKinley bill and never had a doubt as to its beneficent operation.

The people of the United States, Mr. President, broad and large, gave a generous welcome to the reciprocity scheme from the moment that it appeared in Congress, and no measure of the present Administration has received more hearty public support than this. In fact, repeated expressions of public favor were needed before the project found favor in certain quarters. Influences ephemeral potential in the Republican party were arrayed against it, but all this disappeared when expressions in its favor came pouring in during the summer and early fall of 1890 from boards of trade and commerce, from district and State conventions, and indeed from all the places where the people gathered together to discuss and commend the reciprocity plan.

Attempts were made in certain quarters to show that the reciprocity plan was opposed to and interfered with the great doctrine of protection to American labor to which the Republican party is fully committed; but all this disappeared when it was seen by the people that what was comprehended in the scheme was an increased trade with countries that produce articles which we can not produce, which articles we can purchase with the products of our farms and mines and manufactories, which our southern sister nations need and which they can not produce. Reciprocity of this kind is in fact an aid to protection and broadens the field of the American laborer by opening new markets for his products to be paid for in articles which can never compete with his labor. The people all understand this, and they made their voice heard and their wishes known here and in the Chamber at the other end of the Capitol, and, except in the Democratic party, open opposition was drowned and no further hostile note was heard.

I do not hesitate, Mr. President, in stating here and now, as the result of my observation, that I firmly believe that section 3 of the McKinley bill, which contains the reciprocity feature, is the part of the measure which has floated the whole act, and which kept it from being swamped by the storm which, without reason, broke upon it from the day of its passage. The great merits of other parts of the McKinley bill might have sunk under a sea of obloquy and would never have been seen and appreciated if the reciprocity clause had not kept the whole structure from going down.

I come now to take up the situation which the Administration rendered under direction of the Attorney-General, reported it without amendment.

Mr. HARRIS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1105) to incorporate the Washington and Deanwood Railway Company in the District of Columbia, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1492) to authorize the appointment of an inspector of plumbing in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1884) to prevent fraud upon the water revenues of the District of Columbia, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. ALLEN, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 218) granting to the county of Clallam, State of Washington, certain public lands in trust, and for other purposes, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PASCO, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 44) for the relief of William Clift, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. DOLPH. By direction of a majority of the Committee on Public Lands I submit a favorable report on the bill (S. 622) to amend an act entitled "An act for the relief of certain settlers on the public lands and to provide for the repayment of certain fees, purchase money, and commissions paid on void entries of public lands."

Mr. BERRY. Is that the bill in regard to refunding money about forfeited lands?

Mr. DOLPH. It is.

Mr. BERRY. I desire to state that there is a minority report. There is no written report, but I wish it to be noted that there is a minority of the committee who do not agree to the favorable report.

Mr. DOLPH. I stated to the Senate that it is a majority report, and of course that carried the implication that a minority of the committee are opposed to the bill.

Mr. BERRY. All my purpose was to have it appear on the Calendar that there is a minority of the committee opposed to the bill, that the bill might not be passed in the absence of members of the committee. I did not hear the statement of the Senator from Oregon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will not appear on the Calendar that there is a minority opposed to the bill, as there is no written report by majority or minority.

Mr. DOLPH. It is a bill that was early reported in the Senate during the last Congress and remained on the Calendar, never having been considered. Sometimes it was passed over when reached because it was understood that the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BERRY] opposed the bill and desired to be heard upon it, and action upon it was postponed until so late that it was never taken up for consideration.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to suggest to the Senator from Arkansas that it can not appear on the Calendar that there is a minority report unless there is some writing filed to that effect.

Mr. BERRY. There is no written report submitted by the majority, I understand, and therefore the views of the minority will not be submitted in writing.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The statement as to the views of the minority will appear in the the RECORD, of course. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. DOLPH. From the same committee I report adversely on the bill (S. 217) for the relief of the purchasers from the United States of land in even-numbered sections within the forfeited portions of railroad grants, and the bill (S. 733) to reimburse settlers and purchasers of even-numbered sections of public lands within the limits of Congressional grants in cases of forfeiture of odd-numbered sections. These bills are reported adversely because, there being three bills on the subject, the majority of the committee prefer the bill which has been reported favorably.

The bills were postponed indefinitely.

Mr. VEST, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1934) to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a court of private land claims, and to provide for the settlement of private land claims in certain States and Territories," approved March 3, 1891, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Private Land Claims; which was agreed to.

Mr. MANDERSON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 621) to provide for the collection, custody, and arrangement of the records of the American Revolution, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

SENATOR FROM FLORIDA.

Mr. TURPIE, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, to whom were referred the papers in the case of R. H. M. Davidson, contestant, against Wilkinson Call, contestee, concerning the right to a seat in the Senate from the State of Florida, submitted a report expressing "the opinion that Mr. Call was duly elected;" which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

DISTRICT FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES.

Mr. VANCE. I am instructed by the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 2785) to amend an act entitled "An act to amend the general incorporation law of the District of Columbia," approved May 17, 1882, to report it with an amendment, and to ask for its present consideration, for the reason that the purpose of the bill is to extend to the corporate existence of certain fire-insurance companies here which are about to expire, to their great injury and the injury of their policy-holders, and to place them upon an equality with the foreign fire insurance corporations which do business in this District, and which have an unlimited existence. As it is necessary to incorporate an amendment in the bill, in order to save time and to secure to these corporations a continued existence for the benefit of the present policy-holders, I am requested to ask that the bill be considered now.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information, subject to objection.

The Chief Clerk read the bill; and there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Committee on the District of Columbia will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. The committee report to add a new section as follows:

SEC. 3. Congress may at any time alter, amend, or repeal this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

COURTS IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Mr. WILSON. I am instructed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 821) to provide for a term of the circuit and district court at Littleton, N. H., to report it favorably, without amendment.

Mr. CHANDLER. I ask for the present consideration of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill; and there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

COURTS IN ARKANSAS.

Mr. WILSON. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 3931) to detach Montgomery County from the western and add it to the eastern district of Arkansas, to report it favorably, without amendment.

Mr. BERRY. Inasmuch as early action is necessary on account of the time the courts are held there, I ask that the bill just reported favorably by the Senator from Iowa be considered now. It is a very important measure, and there is no objection from any quarter to the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill; and there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

UMATILLA INDIAN RESERVATION LANDS.

Mr. DOLPH. By direction of the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1134) for the relief of purchasers of lands within the limits of the Umatilla Indian Reservation, I report it favorably, without amendment. It is a very short bill, and is the unanimous report of the committee. It is a matter to which no one will object, and it is important that it should be acted upon at once. I ask for the immediate consideration of the bill. Let it be read for information.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill; and there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration. It provides that hereafter all necessary affidavits and proofs required by law of any purchaser of lands within the limits of the Umatilla Indian Reservation, in the State of Oregon, in order to perfect his title to the lands, may be made before any officer qualified to take proof in homestead cases.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 1959) to promote the efficiency of the Revenue Cutter Service; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. PAULKNER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1960) relating to the office of the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1961) relating to the office of the register of wills of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 1965) to reimburse James M. Trotter, late recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia, for amount expended for record books of the office of recorder of deeds in said District; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1966) granting a pension to Susan E. Linderman; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1967) granting a pension to Mrs. Susan Craig; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1968) for the relief of Dr. James Madison; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1969) to provide for the disbursement of money appropriated by the acts of 1874 and 1878, making appropriation for the payment of workmen who worked on public improvements under the late board of public works of the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. HAWLEY introduced a bill (S. 1970) for the relief of Daniel C. Rodman and others, sureties on the bond of Ozias Morgan; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 1971) providing for the appointment of representatives from the United States to the Columbian Historical Exposition at Madrid in 1892; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1972) granting a pension to Frederick Robertson; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1973) granting a pension to Mary Ann Beasley; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1974) granting a pension to Harvey Evans; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PETTIGREW introduced a bill (S. 1975) for the protection of livery-stable-keepers and other persons keeping horses at livery within the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. DAVIS (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1976) for the relief of Charles Banzhaf; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PEPPER introduced a bill (S. 1977) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide additional regulations for homestead and pre-emption entries of public lands," approved March 3, 1879; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. FELTON introduced a bill (S. 1978) to provide additional artillery for the National Guard; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1979) to provide for the examination and survey for the improvement of navigable slough and the harbor thereof in the Bay of San Francisco, California; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 1980) to increase the pension of Mary A. Roder; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 1981) for the relief of B. F. Dowell; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1982) for the relief of Avery D. Babcock and wife, of Oregon; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CHANDLER introduced a bill (S. 1983) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Exeter, in the State of New Hampshire; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. COCKRELL introduced a bill (S. 1984) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the adjudication and payment of claims arising from Indian depredations," approved March 3, 1891; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Select Committee on Indian Depredations.

Mr. VANCE introduced a bill (S. 1985) for the relief of T. W. Knight, administrator of R. B. Knight; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. KYLE introduced a bill (S. 1986) to authorize the erection of post-office buildings, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. WALTHALL introduced a bill (S. 1987) for the relief of Samuel Collins; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WILSON introduced a bill (S. 1988) to amend sections 2139, 2140, and 2141 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1989) for the redemption of the outstanding certificates of the board of audit of the District of Columbia, and of sewerage certificates authorized by the Legislative Assembly; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. BUTLER introduced a bill (S. 1990) for the relief of Henry E. Young, administrator of Thomas Aston Coffin, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana introduced a bill (S. 1991) granting a pension to Jane M. Anderson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 1992) to reimburse the Indiana Miami Indians for money improperly withheld from them; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. PALMER. At the request of Capt. John Cowden, a citizen of Illinois, I introduce a bill.

The bill (S. 1993) to develop and facilitate the interstate commerce of the whole country, and more especially that of the twenty-two States and two Territories which are in whole or in part drained by the Mississippi River and its tributaries, that has an area of 1,575,092 square miles and a present population of 35,946,901 and a total property value of $11,874,442,264, when the total population of all the balance of the States and Territories is but 26,407,966, and their total property valuation is $11,253,194,387, was read twice by its title.

Mr. PALMER. I ask that the bill lie on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered.

Mr. DANIEL. I introduce two bills at the request of my colleague [Mr. BARBOUR], who is detained from the Senate by sickness.

The bill (S. 1994) for the relief of John H. Redman, a citizen of King George County, Va., was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

The bill (S. 1995) for the relief of Mrs. Agnes B. Jeter was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. VEST introduced a bill (S. 1996) to provide for the purchase of a site, and the erection of a public building thereon, at Joplin, in the State of Missouri; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 1997) to increase the efficiency of the infantry, Army of the United States of America; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1998) to provide for the sale of stone lands in Wyoming, as provided in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada, and Washington under chapter 151 of the Supplement to the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. McPHERSON introduced a bill (S. 1999) for the relief of John G. Rose; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 2000) to increase the pension of Lila L. Egbert, widow of the late Capt. Augustus R. Egbert, United States Army; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS. Early last month I had read at this desk a communication from our minister at Mexico, addressed to my late distinguished predecessor, Mr. Plumb, and it was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. I have now a joint resolution which I introduce, and there is also a communication accompanying it from Hon. William E. Curtis, of the State Department, which I should like to have read, to be referred with the joint resolution to the Committee on Foreign Relations or the Committee on Military Affairs; I am not certain as to which committee the reference should be made.

The joint resolution (S. R. 36) authorizing the President to return certain battle flags to the Republic of Mexico was read twice by its title.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The letter accompanying the joint resolution will be read, if there be no objection.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

BUREAU OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS,
DEPARTMENT OF STATE.
Washington, U. S. A., January 28, 1892.

DEAR SIR: According to a letter from the Secretary of War, dated January 19, 1889 (House Executive Document No. 102, Fiftyeth Congress, second session), it appears that there are in the museum of the United States Military Academy at West Point, twenty-one flags, captured by the United States Army in the war with Mexico. These flags were presented to the Military Academy by the President of the United States, December 23, 1848.

I beg to suggest that the return of these trophies to the Government of Mexico, as advocated by your lamented predecessor, would be a most graceful act on the part of the United States, and I submit herewith the draft of a joint resolution for that purpose.

Very truly, yours,

WILLIAM E. CURTIS.

To the Hon. BISHOP W. PERKINS,
United States Senate.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the joint resolution, with the accompanying papers, be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The motion was agreed to.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. CAMERON submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the agricultural appropriation bill; which was ordered to be printed, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

PATENT OFFICE FUNDS.

Mr. FAULKNER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior be requested to furnish the Senate, at as early a date as practicable, with a statement of the amount of all moneys received by the United States Patent Office from inventors since the establishment of that Bureau up to the present time; what disposition has been made of the same; the amount of the surplus on hand, if any, and how, and in what manner it is invested.

POTTAWATOMIE INDIAN AGREEMENT.

Mr. PERKINS submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed:

Resolved by the United States Senate, etc., That whereas the provisions of the articles of agreement by and between the United States and the citizen band of Pottawatomie Indians residing in Oklahoma Territory and elsewhere, ratified by Congress March 3, 1891, require that large sums of money be paid to them in said tract of country, which is construed to mean said Territory of Oklahoma; and whereas many members of said band of Indians reside in Kansas who through age, poverty, and sickness suffer great hardships by being compelled to go to said Territory to receive their payments; Therefore,

Resolved, That article 4 of said agreement be and the same is hereby construed so as to authorize and direct the proper officers of the Department of the Interior to make the payments as they fall due to the members of said band residing in Kansas at some point in their original reservation in said State as will accommodate the greatest number of said Indians.

DISTRICT SEWERAGE.

Mr. McMILLAN submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be printed 700 additional copies of the report of the Board of Sanitary Engineers of the District of Columbia upon the sewerage of the District for the official use of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

EXECUTIVE BUSINESS.

Mr. MORGAN. I ask for the adoption of the following order:

Ordered, That Executive Document No. 23, Fifty-second Congress, first session, be withdrawn from the legislative files of the Senate and placed on the files of the executive clerk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The order will be agreed to, if there be no objection.

Mr. SHERMAN. What is the subject-matter of the document?

Mr. MORGAN. It is a message from the President of the United States relating to a claim of one of our citizens against a foreign government. It ought to be considered in executive session.

Mr. SHERMAN. Very well. The order does not describe it at all.

The order was agreed to.

ENTRANCE TO YAQUINA BAY, OREGON.

Mr. MITCHELL. I offer the following resolution simply calling for information, and I ask for its present consideration:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, directed to furnish for the use of the Senate a copy of the report of Maj. G. L. Gillespie, United States Engineers, dated December 11, 1890, with the accompanying report of Assistant Engineer J. S. Polhemus, to the Chief of Engineers, on the subject of improving the entrance to Yaquina Bay, Oregon.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask if that information is not already in the report of the engineers?

Mr. MITCHELL. It is not and has never been printed. That is the reason why I offer the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

Mr. KYLE. I give notice that on Wednesday next I shall ask the courtesy of the Senate to make some remarks upon the joint resolution (S. R. 29) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, relating to marriage and divorce.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT RENO, NEV.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further morning business that order is closed, and the consideration of the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

The Senate as in Committee of the Whole resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 56) for the erection of a public building at Reno, State of Nevada, the pending question being on the amendments reported by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, in line 11, before the word "thousand," strike out "one hundred" and insert the word "seventy-five;" so as to make the amount of the appropriation $75,000.

Mr. STEWART. During the discussion the other day I suggested that I would consent to reduce the amount of the appropriation to $60,000. I think with $60,000 we might get along. I want to be as economical as possible in regard to it. I think it is very essential that we should have a public building at that point. We need it very much. Reno is a growing town, and it will be undoubtedly the largest town between Sacramento and Salt Lake. I move to amend the amendment of the committee by striking out "seventy-five" and inserting "sixty."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In line 11 it is proposed to strike out "seventy-five," before the word "thousand," which was reported as an amendment by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and insert in lieu thereof "sixty;" so as to read:

The sum of $60,000, etc.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

Mr. STEWART. I wish to say before the bill is passed that when it was under consideration the other day some remarks were made by the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. McPHERSON] with regard to the large appropriations asked for by California in the bills which are pending on the Calendar. I was about to remark or did remark then that California had been put off from time to time and had not received the necessary appropriations for public buildings, particularly in San Francisco. Since that matter has been brought to the attention of the Senate, I think it is but fair that the Senator from California [Mr. FELTON] should be allowed to make a statement as to how California has been dealt with in regard to these appropriations, and I yield to him to make such a statement.

Mr. FELTON. Mr. President, in this connection I desire to say that I listened with some attention to the remarks of the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. McPHERSON] the other day in reference to the appropriations for public buildings in California, and it occurred to me if the facts as stated by the Senator were left unaccompanied by other facts relative thereto that the situation existing there might be misapprehended, that an impression might go abroad to the country and pervade the Senate that the State of California had been discriminated in favor of. Therefore I have gathered some statistics in relation to the matter which I desire to present to the Senate, and I apprehend that they will be sufficient to prove that the statement made by the Senator from New Jersey in relation to the State of California is not founded on fact. To say the least, it would be misleading.

I find that up to the year 1885 the appropriations for public buildings in the State of California amounted to $2,119,512.67. In the State of Illinois alone they amounted to $11,939,258.10 for two public buildings, and in the State of Louisiana to $4,808,202.06. It will be noted that the appropriations for Illinois for two public buildings were over five and a half times the amount of the appropriations for California, and that the appropriation for Louisiana of $4,808,202.06 is twice that of California.

In Massachusetts for one building the amount appropriated was $5,994,083, or two and a half times the amount appropriated for California. In the State of New York for two buildings there was appropriated $19,311,567.96, over nine times that of California. In Philadelphia for a post-office building alone there was appropriated $5,191,854, or nearly two and a half times the amount appropriated for California.

In the statement I have prepared will be found, in detail, the various buildings for which appropriations were made, and they are as follows:

At the risk of repeating myself, I will say that while the foregoing figures include all the appropriations for public buildings in California, save the United States mint, to the date named, it does not in the States subsequently mentioned, as there have been erected in them numerous buildings not specified and a number of them involving large expenditures of public moneys. I have simply used those that I deemed sufficient to demonstrate that there has been no discrimination in favor of California, but to the contrary.

I find that the money expended in nine States, with a less mileage of seacoast than that of California, on rivers and harbors, from 1789 to 1892, amounted to $42,090,765.60; whereas in the State of California for all the time up to 1882 there was appropriated for these purposes $1,493,428.58, and since that time $2,365,324.00, amounting to $3,858,752.58, or less than 10 per cent of the appropriations for the States above mentioned, as will be seen by the following statement, which I submit:

Money expended on rivers and harbors from 1789 to 1892.

Maine, to 1882.....	$1,404,889.26
Maine, to 1892.....	1,076,813.60

I find also that in the appropriations for the harbor of Galveston, in Texas, there was appropriated $4,068,218, or more than the entire appropriations for the State of California, including both rivers and harbors.

Texas: Galveston Harbor (alone), $4,068,218. (More than the entire appropriations for the State of California, including both rivers and harbors.)

I also find that the appropriations for the Mississippi River from 1881 to 1891 were as follows:

Appropriations for the Mississippi River, 1881-1891.

1882.....	2,142,955.60

Total amount expended during the same period on the rivers in California, $726,736; less than 3 per cent.

1890—California.....	250.00
1891—California.....	30,000.00
	30,250.00

Or 2.06 per cent of the total, including a seacoast of nearly 1,000 miles.

For fortifications and buildings for military posts for sixteen years ending 1889.

Atlantic and Missouri Divisions.....	$30,501,769.37
Pacific Division.....	904,748.72
	21,496,518.09
	Per cent.
Atlantic and Missouri.....	95.79
Pacific.....	4.21
	100.00

The area of the Pacific Division is one-third that of the United States, 1,291,475 square miles, and there is not a protected harbor in 1,400 miles of coast.

I also find that from 1881 to 1891 California has paid into the Treasury of the United States nearly $118,000,000, as will be seen by the following statement.

Total receipts from customs and internal revenue paid into the United States Treasury from 1881 to 1892 by the State of California.

1882.....	12,093,828.75

1885.....	9,200,881.83
1886.....	8,033,961.13
1887.....	8,945,204.44
1888.....	11,651,280.85
1889.....	12,502,419.62
1890.....	10,518,209.67
1891.....	10,098,394.60
	117,957,015.82

This amounts to nearly ten and three-fourths millions per annum. One-half of the last year's payment, or 4½ per cent of the eleven years' payments, would be more than enough to pay for all the public buildings which California has asked for.

Mr. President, it is not my intention to take up the time of the Senate to discuss the merits of the bills which led to the remarks of the Senator from New Jersey. There will be time enough for that when the respective bills shall be under consideration by the Senate; but I will say that appropriations should be and usually are made for the necessities of the Government and for the benefit of the people at large. The nation has wealth enough to distribute in such shape as will be of advantage to the commercial interests of the country. I have instanced the case of Galveston and the Mississippi River, with no invidious purpose whatsoever, for I believe that these appropriations were wise. No Senator, I think, will contend that the preservation of that great valley and its great water ways for commercial purposes and to prevent a monopoly of transportation was unwise or that the great State of Texas and the commerce which goes to it should not be entitled to aid and to the advantages of a harbor which will let the products of that country out to the sea and to the world. Sir, in my opinion the amount of appropriations or the especial point or place of expenditure is measurably of less consequence than that the emergencies and necessities to confer are of opinion that the language employed by the Senator from Wisconsin improves the clearness of the bill.

Mr. DOLPH. Let the amendments be read, and then the sense of the Senate can be taken on them in their order. Perhaps the Senator from Wisconsin does not understand that it is necessary to move the amendments; that they cannot be brought before the Senate without a motion.

Mr. VILAS. I was about to address the Chair for that purpose. If it be in order, I will move the amendments as they have been printed, calling attention to a correction which is necessary to be made to the second amendment, at the foot of the first page of amendments as printed, by striking out lines 10 and 11, so that the second amendment will read:

And, in case it be so determined, to bar and foreclose all claim in law or equity on the part of said La Abra Silver Mining Company, its legal representatives or assigns, to the money, or any such part thereof, received from the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award.

The fourth amendment I will move as printed, except to strike out the words, in line 21, "as was made upon the claim of said company." Those words I omit upon the suggestion of the Senator from Oregon. I understand that the amendments have received the approbation of those members of the committee who have been consulted in respect to them.

Mr. DOLPH. Let the amendments be stated in their order.

Mr. MORGAN. Yes, let the amendments be reported and considered in their order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendments will be read and considered in their order. The first amendment moved by the Senator from Wisconsin will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 1, line 13, it is proposed to strike out the word "or," where it occurs between the words "fraud" and "false," and insert in lieu thereof the words "effected by means of," so as to read:

And all persons making any claim to the award or any part thereof in this act mentioned, to determine whether the award made by the United States and Mexican Mixed Commission in respect to the claim of the said La Abra Silver Mining Company was obtained, as to the whole sum included therein or as to any part thereof, by fraud effected by means of false swearing or other false and fraudulent practices, etc.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The next amendment in order will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed, in section 1, line 15, after the word "assigns," to insert the following:

And, in case it be so determined, to bar and foreclose all claim in law or equity on the part of said La Abra Silver Mining Company, its legal representatives or assigns, to the money, or any such part thereof, received from the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The next amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 4, line 4, it is proposed to strike out the words "based upon or," and also in the same line strike out the word "or," where it occurs between the words "fraud" and "false," and insert in lieu thereof the words "effected by means of;" so as to read:

That in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of La Abra Silver Mining Company, was obtained through fraud effected by means of false swearing or other false and fraudulent practices of said company or its assigns, or by their procurement, the President of the United States is hereby authorized to release the Government of Mexico, etc.

Mr. CHILTON. Mr. President—

Mr. MORGAN. Before the Senator from Texas proceeds, I desire to move to strike out the words following the word "to," in line 7 of section 4, on page 4, being the words "release the Government of Mexico from the further payment thereof, to the extent that the same is so declared fraudulent, and to;" so as to read:

The President of the United States is hereby authorized to return to said Government any money paid by the Government of Mexico on account of said award, etc.

Mr. PLATT. It has all been paid?

Mr. MORGAN. It has all been paid up. I move that as an amendment to the amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. CHILTON. By consent of the Senator from Alabama, who has charge of the bill, in view of the action which has been taken upon the motion to strike out the clause providing for an appeal, and in order to cover any contingency which might arise if all the sections of this proposed law were held to be interdependent, I propose an amendment to the amendment which has been made. In section 5, line 25, after the words "and in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause," I move to insert:

Either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will call the attention of the Senator from Texas to the fact that the amendment proposed to section 4 has not yet been acted upon, and that is first in order.

Mr. GEORGE. I should like to inquire if the vote has been taken upon the amendment of the Senator from Massachusetts to strike out the third section?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It has been taken.

Mr. GEORGE. The third section has been stricken out?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment was not agreed to. The pending question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Alabama to the amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Texas is now in order.

Mr. CHILTON. I move after the words "shall be finally adjudged in said cause" to insert "either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States."

Mr. DOLPH. I should like to suggest to the Senator from Texas that that would be a little equivocal. Suppose it should be adjudged in the Court of Claims that the award was fraudulent and on appeal to the Supreme Court it was reversed, then the Secretary of State would undertake to return the money in the face of a judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. CHILTON. It is to be finally adjudged, the Senator will understand. The words I propose to insert are used in connection with the preceding language.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment submitted by the Senator from Wisconsin to the fourth section is first in order, and will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 1, line 6, after the word "procurement," it is proposed to insert the words:

And that the said La Abra Silver Mining Company, its legal representatives or assigns, be barred and foreclosed of all claim to the money or any part thereof so paid by the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin to the fourth section of the bill.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DOLPH. Now let the amendment of the Senator from Texas be stated.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Senator from Texas is in order as an amendment to the amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin to the fifth section of the bill. The amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 5 it is proposed to strike out from and including the words "and in case said court" to the end of the section, and insert in lieu thereof the words:

And in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of La Abra Silver Mining Company, or any definable and severable part thereof, was not obtained through fraud as aforesaid, then the Secretary of State shall proceed to distribute so much of the said award as shall be found not so obtained through fraud, or the proceeds thereof remaining for distribution, if any, to the persons entitled thereto.

Mr. CHILTON. I move to amend the amendment by inserting after the words "finally adjudged in said cause," in line 25, the words:

Either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States.

So as to read:

And in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause, either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States, that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of La Abra Silver Mining Company, or any definable and severable part thereof, was not obtained through fraud as aforesaid, then the Secretary of State shall proceed to distribute so much of the said award as shall be found not so obtained through fraud, or the proceeds thereof remaining for distribution, if any, to the persons entitled thereto.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there are no further amendments as in Committee of the Whole the bill will be reported to the Senate.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and was read the third time.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is, Shall the bill pass?

Mr. VANCE. Let us have the yeas and nays upon the passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FAULKNER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY]. I do not know how he would vote, but if he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. DAWES (when Mr. HOAR's name was called). My colleague [Mr. HOAR] is detained from the Senate by sickness, and is paired with the Senator from Alabama [Mr. PUGH], who is also detained by sickness. I do not know how either of them would vote.

Mr. MORGAN. My colleague [Mr. PUGH] is paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. DANIEL], but the Senator from Virginia voted "yea," as my colleague would have voted, and therefore the pair stands with the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. DAWES. My colleague did not intimate how he would vote; but he is detained on account of sickness.

Mr. KENNA (when his name was called). I am paired on all questions with the Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT].

Mr. MITCHELL (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the junior Senator from New York [Mr. HILL]. I suppose this is not a political question, and I should be glad to vote.

Mr. FAULKNER and others [to Mr. MITCHELL]. You can vote.

Mr. MITCHELL. I vote "yea."

Mr. TURPIE (when his name was called). I am paired with the senior Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS], who is absent, and therefore I withhold my vote.

Mr. WALTHALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN]. If he were here I should vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. CULLOM. I have a general pair with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY]. I therefore withhold my vote. I should vote "yea" if he were present.

Mr. BUTLER. I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES]. If he were present I should vote "yea," and I understand he would vote "nay."

Mr. ALLISON (after having voted in the affirmative). I have a pair usually with the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL]. I do not see him in his seat, and therefore, having voted in the affirmative, I will withdraw my vote.

Mr. FRYE. I have a general pair with the senior Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN]; but I feel at liberty in this case to vote, and I vote "yea."

Mr. ALLEN (after having voted in the affirmative). I should have announced, before voting, that I have a pair with the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. BATE], who was necessarily called from the Chamber. Before going out, however, he gave me the privilege of voting if I saw fit.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. PLATT. I have a pair with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 43, nays 5; as follows:

YEAS—43.

So the bill was passed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the preamble.

The preamble was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. By unanimous consent Senate bill 606 was agreed to be taken up upon the conclusion of the bill just passed.

The Senator, as in Committee of the Whole, proposed to consider the bill (S. 606) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico," concluded on the 4th day of July, 1878.

Mr. MORGAN. I have some amendments to offer to the bill. In line 12, of section 1, I move to strike out the word "or," where it occurs the second time in that line, between the words "fraud" and "false," and to insert "effected by means of;" so as to read:

Or as to any part thereof, by fraud effected by means of false swearing, or other false and fraudulent practices.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MORGAN. In line 14 of the same section, I move to insert after the word "assigns"—

Mr. VILAS. If the Senator from Alabama will permit me, I will state that those amendments to the bill have been already printed.

Mr. MORGAN. I have them in print here. I move to insert after the word "assigns" the following:

And, in case it be so determined, to bar and foreclose all claim in law or equity on the part of said Weil, his legal representatives or assigns, to the money, or any such part thereof, received from the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award as was made by said Mexican Mixed Commission upon the said claim.

Mr. VILAS. I call the attention of the Senator from Alabama to the fact that those last words, "was made by said Mexican Mixed Commission upon the said claim," were omitted from the provisions of the other bill as being perhaps somewhat misdescriptive.

Mr. MORGAN. I will modify the amendment by striking out the words indicated by the Senator from Wisconsin.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Alabama, as modified.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MORGAN. In section 4, lines 3 and 4, I move to strike out the words "based upon or obtained through," and after the word "fraud," in line 4, to strike out the word "or" and insert "effected by means of;" so as to read:

That in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of Benjamin Weil, was effected by means of fraud, false swearing, or other false and fraudulent practices of said Benjamin Weil, or his assigns, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MORGAN. In section 4, line 6, after the word "procurement," I move to insert:

And that the said Weil, his legal representatives or assigns, be barred and foreclosed of all claim to the money or any part thereof so paid by the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award as was made upon the claim of said Weil.

Mr. VILAS. I again call the attention of the Senator from Alabama to the fact that in the La Abra bill the similar amendment stopped at the words "such awards," and that the subsequent words were omitted.

Mr. MORGAN. I remember that now, and I will modify my amendment according to the suggestion of the Senator from Wisconsin.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will stated as modified.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 4, line 6, after the word "procurement," it is proposed to insert:

And that the said Weil, his legal representatives or assigns, be barred and foreclosed of all claim to the money or any part thereof so paid by the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MORGAN. In section 4, line 7, after the word "to," I move to strike out the words "release the Government of Mexico from the further payment thereof to the extent that the same is so declared fraudulent, and to;" so as to read:

The President of the United States is hereby authorized to return to said Government any money paid by the Government of Mexico on account of said award remaining in the custody of the United States.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MORGAN. I will ask the Senator from Wisconsin and the Senator from Texas if they will offer the amendment to the first part of section 4 in the form in which it was adopted on the preceding bill.

Mr. CHILTON. In section 4, line 2, after the word "cause," the first word in the line, I move to insert:

Either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States.

So as to read:

That in case that it shall be finally adjudged in said cause, either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States, that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of Benjamin Weil, etc.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment moved by the Senator from Texas.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CHILTON. The same clause should be inserted in the amendment offered by the Senator from Wisconsin, I understand.

Mr. MORGAN. I suggest to the Senator from Texas that that is hardly necessary, after having expressed it once in the section.

Mr. CHILTON. I presume not, only the other clause refers to the negative, that the decree was not obtained by fraud.

Mr. MORGAN. If I can have the ear of the Senator from

The amendment was agreed to.
The resolution as amended was agreed to.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER BRIDGE AT SOUTH ST. PAUL.

Mr. WASHBURN. From the Committee on Commerce I report back favorably, without amendment, the bill (H. R. 217) to amend an act entitled "An act for the construction of a railroad and wagon bridge across the Mississippi River at South St. Paul, Minn.," approved April 26, 1890. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it be read for information.

Mr. WASHBURN. I will simply state that it is the amendment of an act passed in the last Congress for the construction of a bridge at South St. Paul, changing the location from one section to another and extending the time. The bill has passed the other House, and the report of the House committee accompanies the bill with the confirmation of the War Department. As the time expires very shortly, it is desirable that the bill shall be passed promptly.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill, and there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

Mr. WASHBURN. I ask for the reading of the report of the House committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

Mr. LIND, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, submitted the following report (to accompany H. R. 217):

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 217) to amend an act entitled "An act for the construction of a railroad and wagon bridge across the Mississippi River at South St. Paul, Minn.," approved April 26, 1890, submit the following report:

The only effect of this amendment is to extend the time for the commencement and completion of the bridge authorized by the act, and to change its location from points in section 10 to section 2 in the same town and range, less than 1 mile.

The United States Engineer Department reports that there is no objection to the passage of the bill.

Your committee therefore recommends that it do pass.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SENATOR FROM IDAHO.

Mr. MITCHELL. In the matter of the contest initiated by Mr. William H. Clagett, involving a right to a seat in the Senate for the full term commencing March 4, 1891, now occupied by Senator Fred. T. Dubois, the Committee on Privileges and Elections have instructed me to submit a report. Accompanying the report, as a part of it, I am instructed to present two resolutions, numbered respectively 1 and 2, and to recommend their adoption.

I ask that the report and the resolutions may lie on the table for the present and that they be printed. I ask, however, that the resolutions be read at this time, and I give notice that at a very early date I shall call the matter up for consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolutions, as follows:

1. Resolved, That Fred. T. Dubois is entitled to retain the seat he now holds as Senator from the State of Idaho for the full term commencing March 4, 1891.
2. Resolved, That William H. Clagett is not entitled to be admitted to a seat in the Senate from the State of Idaho for the term commencing March 4, A. D. 1891.

Mr. VANCE. I wish to have the resolutions lie on the table for a day or two, as there will be a minority report submitted as to the right of Mr. Dubois to the seat.

Mr. MITCHELL. That is satisfactory; and I ask when the views of the minority are submitted that they be printed in connection with the report of the committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. HALE introduced a bill (S. 2002) for the erection of a public building at Biddeford, York County, Me.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. COCKRELL introduced a bill (S. 2016) for the relief of Jacob Swafford; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2017) granting a pension to Gabriella P. Moody; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. COCKRELL. I desire, in connection with the bill, to present a petition, numerously signed, the discharge of her son, Elish Estes, and two letters from the Pension Office. I move that the bill and accompanying papers be referred to the Committee on Pensions.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill (S. 2018) granting a pension to Mary E. Law, widow of Capt. Richard L. Law, United States Navy; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DAWES introduced a bill (S. 2019) for the relief of Horace Brown, alias Magruder; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2020) to remove the charge of desertion now standing against Michael Keefe, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. CALL introduced a bill (S. 2021) granting the right and authority to the Mexican Gulf, Pacific and Puget Sound Railroad Company, a company organized under the laws of the States of Florida and Alabama, to build one bridge over each of the following-named rivers in the State of Alabama, viz: The Alabama River, the Warrior River, the Sipsey River, and the Tennessee River; the said bridges to be used, operated for, and in behalf of the said Mexican Gulf, Pacific and Puget Sound Railroad Company to carry freight and passengers by rail and otherwise; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2022) granting the right of way to the Mexican Gulf, Pacific and Puget Sound Railroad Company over and through the public lands of the United States in the States of Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, and Tennessee, and granting the right of way to said railroad company over and through the United States naval and military reservations near Pensacola, in the State of Florida; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. DANIEL introduced a bill (S. 2023) to authorize the Norfolk and Western Railroad Company of Virginia to extend its line of road into and within the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. PETTIGREW introduced a bill (S. 2024) authorizing the President to appoint and retire John W. Hines with the rank and grade of second lieutenant; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 2025) granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel P. Dodge; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. TURPIE (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2026) for the relief of Mary Stuart Lasselle; which was read twice by its title, and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. VANCE introduced a bill (S. 2027) to repeal all acts and part of acts discriminating in taxation against the circulating notes of State banks and State banking associations; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CAREY introduced a bill (S. 2028) for the erection of a reformatory and house of detention for women charged with and convicted of crimes and misdemeanors in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. PALMER introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 37) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, relating to the election of Senators by the people; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. PALMER. I ask that the joint resolution lie upon the table, as I propose at some convenient day to address the Senate on the subject.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will lie on the table.

PAPERS WITHDRAWN AND REFERRED.

On motion of Mr. PROCTOR, it was Ordered, That the petition and papers in the case of Mary A. Sands betaken from the files of the Secretary of the Senate and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

On motion of Mr. TELLER, it was Ordered, That Mrs. Mary Jewett Telford have leave to withdraw the papers filed by her with the Committee on Pensions.

PRINTING OF INTERNATIONAL MARINE CONFERENCE BILL AND REPORT.

Mr. FRYE. I ask for the present consideration of the order which I send to the desk.

The order was read, as follows:

Ordered, That there be printed for the use of the Senate 300 additional copies of Senate bill 1755, to amend certain sections of Title LII of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and to carry into effect certain recommendations of the United States delegates to the International Marine Conference, and the report accompanying the same.

Mr. FRYE. I will simply say that the number printed before has been entirely exhausted.

Mr. MANDERSON. The proposed order includes not only the bill, but the report?

Mr. FRYE. It includes the bill and report.

Mr. MANDERSON. Is the Senator aware whether the cost will be less than $500?

Mr. FRYE. It will surely be less than $500, I should think.

Mr. MANDERSON. I have no objection to the order, except that I feared it might infringe the law.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. VOORHEES. Mr. President, I hope that the Senate will indulge me a few moments in a matter personal to myself. I ask the Chief Clerk to read the matter marked in the Philadelphia Press of last Saturday, which I send to the desk. Read the headlines and the matter that is there marked.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The matter will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

[Philadelphia Press, Saturday, January 30, 1892.]

WASHINGTON—THE SENATE WASTING TIME IN OBEDIENCE TO SENATORIAL COURTESY—MR. VOORHEES FAILS TO SUSTAIN HIS CHARGES—HIS SCHEME TO DEFEAT JUDGE WOODS'S NOMINATION NOT SUPPORTED BY THE REPUBLICANS HE HAD COUNTED UPON.

[Special dispatch to the Press.]

WASHINGTON, January 29.

The Senate Judiciary Committee wasted another session to-day, out of "Senatorial courtesy" to Senator VOORHEES of Indiana. The time was taken up in the examination of witnesses brought on here from the Hoosier State to prove that Judge Woods, nominated by President Harrison for the circuit bench, was a scoundrel because he had sent Sam Coy, the Democratic heeler and repeater, to prison, and had not sustained trumped-up charges against Col. W. W. Dudley. Not a single fact was proven. "Senatorial courtesy" was again exercised by adjourning until Monday, without action, in order that VOORHEES may have two more witnesses here. It is not at all certain that the witnesses will be here, but it is tolerably certain that if they come they will have nothing to add to the useless testimony of those already examined.

The committee will undoubtedly take up their judicial nominations on Monday and report them favorably. Not a Republican will vote against the confirmation of Judge Woods. The opposition of Senators VOORHEES and TRIPLE has been a mere farce, and illustrates to what ridiculous lengths that indefinite quality, "Senatorial courtesy," will go. A whole month has been wasted simply because VOORHEES was not in the city, and it would have been contrary to "Senatorial courtesy" to consider the case until he got back. Witnesses were summoned whose fees and mileage will amount to about $600.

The attempt of Senator VOORHEES to form a coalition with the Republicans was a flat failure. He knew that some of the Republicans like QUAY, CAMERON, and HIGGINS were opposed to the nomination of George M. Dallas, and he made the proposition that if these disgruntled Republicans would induce enough of their party to aid the Democrats in defeating Judge Woods's nomination, the Democrats would reciprocate and aid in defeating Dallas. The plan would not work, however, and it is now reasonably certain that all the nominations will be confirmed next Monday without a dissenting vote among the Republicans.

Mr. VOORHEES. Mr. President, on the subject of the Senatorial courtesy which prevails in this body I have nothing to say, and nothing need be said. Senatorial courtesy, sneered at by blackguards and scurrilous people, is simply, I believe, the decencies of life which obtain among gentlemen. Some of this courtesy has been extended to me by the Committee on the Judiciary, for which I make my profound acknowledgments, but for not more than a week or ten days at the outside.

I have nothing either at this time to say about the case of Judge Woods. It is still under investigation; witnesses are yet to be examined; and how this newspaper man knows what the decision of that committee will be passes my understanding.

My principal object, however, in having the article read to which we have listened relates to the last paragraph. In the last paragraph the statement is made explicitly and unqualifiedly that I made a proposition to certain Senators, naming Senator QUAY of Pennsylvania, Senator CAMERON of the same State, and Senator HIGGINS of Delaware, that for their assistance in the defeat of the confirmation of Judge Woods, now here as an appointee for one of the United States circuit judgeships, I was in favor of joining in a movement on this side of the Chamber to defeat Judge Dallas, of Philadelphia.

A grosser lie than this statement would hardly be possible for his satanic majesty to conceive. Such a word or thought or suggestion, of course, has never emanated from my lips. On the contrary, had as I think the appointment of Judge Woods, improper and unfit as I conceive and know him to be for a judicial position, I would feel myself dishonored and disgraced beyond redemption to receive a suggestion, let alone to make one, to defeat an honest, upright, and competent man like Judge Dallas for the sake of getting clear of him.

If there are Senators in this body, those named or anybody else, who can say they have ever heard from me a single suggestion or thought of such a corrupt combination, I want that statement to be made now. If I were capable of making such a suggestion I should be a proper subject for expulsion from this body; and the miserable falsifier and scoundrel who makes such an accusation from that gallery ought to be expelled from the privileges of the Senate.

I call the attention of the Committee on Rules to this as one of the most flagrant outrages that have occurred in the long years that I have been a member of this body. I shall offer no resolution on the subject, for it is personal to myself, but it does create a question in every mind of how long and how much we are to stand of this kind of business.

I see that some men were yesterday put in prison by a court in a neighboring State for libeling a member of this body, and if the same rule and with the same severity were put in operation against a correspondent capable of concocting and publishing such a calumny as we have here, it would be better for public morals and better for the decencies and order of this country.

I simply wanted to brand this miserable creation of a dishonest heart and brain as I have, and with that I am done.

Mr. CAMERON. Mr. President, I had not read the article in the Philadelphia Press, for I scarcely ever read that paper, but I can say that, so far as my name is connected with it, it is a lie from beginning to end. The Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] never spoke to me upon the subject of the judgeship, or as to the confirmation of Judge Woods or as to the rejection of Mr. Dallas.

Mr. QUAY. I desire merely to add to what my colleague has said my own statement of the absolute falsity of the charge made in relation to the alleged combination said to have been made between the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] and the Senators from Pennsylvania. It is utterly false and without any foundation. I have never heard of such a suggestion from the Senator from Indiana.

Instead of the senior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON] and myself being willing or ready to enter into a combination of that kind, the fact is that we are both in favor, as I always have been in favor, of confirming the nomination of Mr. Dallas as judge.

Mr. HIGGINS. As disclaimers seem to be in order, Mr. President, I feel bound to say that there is no truth in the statement which has been read and no justification for its publication. I never heard a word from the Senator from Indiana or his colleague or any member of this body respecting any such subject whatever.

Mr. WILSON. I wish to say in behalf of the Committee on the relating to Chinese," approved May 6, 1882," approved October 1, 1888 (by Mr. FELTON); and

A bill (S. 719) to absolutely prohibit the coming of Chinese persons into the United States, whether subjects of the Chinese Empire or otherwise (by Mr. MITCHELL).

Mr. PASCO, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 798) for the relief of the legal representatives of John H. Jones and Thomas D. Harris, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. STEWART, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 18) for the relief of Edward S. Armstrong, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. MITCHELL, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 262) for the relief of Jabez Burchard, asked to be discharged from its further consideration and that it be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs; which was agreed to.

Mr. MITCHELL. I am directed by the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 177) for the relief of Hattie E. Winn, of West Carroll Parish, La., to report it adversely and recommend that it be indefinitely postponed. On examination we find that the claimants in this case have been paid the full amount of the claim in the bill.

The bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. MITCHELL. By direction of the Committee on Claims I report adversely the bill (S. 185) for the relief of Fanny B. Randolph and Dora L. Stark, of Avoyelles Parish, State of Louisiana, for stores and supplies taken by the military forces of the United States, and recommend its indefinite postponement.

I am further instructed, however, in the same case to report a resolution, accompanied by a written report, recommending that the case be referred to the Court of Claims.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill being adversely reported will be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. MITCHELL. I ask that the resolution may be read and placed on the Calendar.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The resolution was read and ordered to be placed on the Calendar as follows:

Resolved, That the claim of Fanny B. Randolph and Dora L. Stark for stores and supplies taken by the military forces of the United States for their use during the war for the suppression of the rebellion be, and the same is hereby, referred, with all the papers in the case, to the Court of Claims under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1883, commonly known as the "Bowman act," as amended by the act of March 3, 1887, commonly known as the "Tucker act."

Mr. PETTIGREW, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 695) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to survey and mark the boundary between the State of Nebraska and that portion of the State of South Dakota which is embraced in the Pine Ridge and Rosebud Indian Reservations, reported it with amendments.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. COKE introduced a bill (S. 2030) for the relief of James Calvin Lipsecomb; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 2031) for the benefit of Richard H. Taylor; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2032) to repeal the provisions of the act of Congress approved the 3d of March, 1891, entitled "An act making appropriations to supply deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, and for prior years, and for other purposes," which provides for the forfeiture of the charter and the other rights of the Metropolitan Railroad Company of Washington, D. C.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. DAWES (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2033) for the relief of the freedmen in the Chickasaw Nation, Indian Territory; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying petition, referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2034) to provide for the care of dependent children in the District of Columbia, and to create a board of children's guardians; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. VANCE introduced a bill (S. 2035) to refund to property-holders on Pennsylvania avenue, between First and Fifteenth streets west, two-thirds of the assessment levied and paid under the act of Congress of July 8, 1870; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2036) for the relief of the heirs of R. D. Hay; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 2037) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Keene, in the State of New Hampshire; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 2038) construing the act of February 28, 1877, increasing the pensions in certain cases; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2039) granting a pension to Catharine W. Tennis; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2040) granting an increase of pension to Fletcher S. Kidd; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2041) for the relief of W. H. Davis, first lieutenant, late Company H, Twenty-fifth Regiment Ohio Infantry Volunteers; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. QUAY introduced a bill (S. 2042) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. Helen G. Heimer; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BUTLER introduced a bill (S. 2043) for the relief of Carrie O. Wallace; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2044) extending the privilege of bounty land to persons who served in the Indian wars of the United States subsequent to March 3, 1855; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. MITCHELL. I ask that the bill may be referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. DOLPH. I suggest to my colleague that I do not think the Committee on Public Lands has ever taken jurisdiction of that subject. The proper reference of the bill, I think, would be to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MITCHELL. I had some little question myself about that, and I am not quite certain to which committee it should be referred.

Mr. DOLPH. I should like to hear the title again read.

The Secretary read the title of the bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. That should go to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MITCHELL. Then I ask that the bill may be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair is informed that similar bills have usually gone to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MITCHELL. Very well. Then I ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on Pensions.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That order will be made.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2045) to provide for the rebuilding of the bridge across Rock Creek at M street northwest, in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 2046) to amend section 1417 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in relation to the number of enlisted men in the Navy; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill (S. 2047) for the relief of the heirs and legal representatives of Bayless W. Hanna, deceased, late envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the Argentine Republic; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. MANDELSON (by request) introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 38) authorizing the publication of a history and digest of the international arbitrations to which the United States was a party; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Printing.

CLAIM OF ESTATE OF PRESTON ROSE.

Mr. COKE submitted the following resolution: which was referred to the Committee on Claims:

Resolved, That the claim of Mary A. Rose (widow), Kate Rose, Bettie Rose, Linda Rose, Wirt Rose, Frank Rose, and Eric Rose, children of Preston Rose, who died in 1890, testate, leaving his property to his widow and children, all of the State of Texas, said claim being for quartermaster and commissary stores and supplies, and other property alleged to have been taken and used by the United States Army during the late war from the plantation of said widow and children, at or near Victoria, in the county of Victoria and State of Texas, be referred to the Secretary of War, who shall investigate the justice and equity of said claim, and the loyalty of the claimants, and report the amount and value of the property taken and used by the said Army, and also what amount, if any, has been paid on the same, and that he report all the facts and evidence in the case for the further consideration of the Senate.

INDIAN SCHOOLS.

Mr. DAWES submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior be directed to communicate to the Senate a copy of the report made by the Hampton Institute in response to the resolution of the Senate passed February 28, 1891.

PURCHASE OF MONROE PAPERS.

Mr. CHANDLER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of State be requested to transmit to the Senate any information which may be within his possession concerning any existing unpublished correspondence and manuscripts of President James Monroe, with the opinion of the Secretary as to the expediency of the purchase of the same by the Government.

PROHIBITION IN ALASKA.

Mr. DOLPH. Mr. President, a few days since I had occasion to make some remarks in regard to an article which I quoted from The Voice. I have since received a letter from Hon. John H. Keatley, of Sioux City, Iowa, who was at one time United States district judge of Alaska, which is full of information as to the condition of affairs there, an important subject, I think, for the consideration of the Senate, and in which he concurs in my views of the situation, and thinks that the license system there would accomplish something, whereas nothing is accomplished under existing law. I ask to make this letter a part of my present remarks that it may have full circulation and be seen by all Senators.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The letter will be printed in the RECORD as part of the Senator's remarks, if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

The letter is as follows:

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, January 30, 1892.

DEAR SIR: I have just carefully read your remarks in the Senate on the 26th instant, as published in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of the 27th instant, in reference to the regulation of the liquor traffic in Alaska.

As I was appointed United States judge of that district July 12, 1888, took the oath of office at Sitka August 25, 1888, and served until December 8, 1889, when my voluntary resignation took effect, and I was relieved by my successor. I perhaps know something about the troubles and difficulties in enforcing the prohibitory clause of the act of Congress approved May 14, 1884.

I was at Sitka when Collector Pracht, appointed by the present Administration, reached that place and assumed the duties of his appointment. As I understood it at the time, Mr. Pracht had had a conference with Mr. Windom, Secretary of the Treasury, before he left Washington for Alaska, and the Secretary expressed a strong desire that the regulations of the Department relating to the issuing of permits to introduce intoxicating liquors should be rigidly enforced.

Complaint had been made before that that Mr. Pracht's predecessor had been too liberal and indulgent in that respect, and a radical change was desired upon the part of the existing Administration. The consequence was that the collector practically denied all applications both at Sitka and through his deputies at other points. Not only that, whenever goods of that character were surreptitiously gotten ashore for saloon purposes, Mr. Pracht made vigilant search for the smuggled goods, and made seizures of the same, and condemnations quickly followed. I remember distinctly one instance where about $500 worth of liquors (smuggled) were found in the loft of a saloon at Sitka, and were properly labeled, and upon a full hearing were condemned and ordered sold, under a decree which I made, as among the last of my official acts in Alaska. Watchmen of the utmost fidelity were placed by the collector in and about every mail steamer coming to Sitka, and during its stay of twenty-four hours, but owing to the fact that the natives (Indians) in their canoes came about the ship to barter with curios, etc., contraband liquors almost invariably found their way ashore, through the activity of seamen and roustabouts belonging to the steamers.

Under Governor Swinford, when I reached Alaska, in August, 1888, a system of saloon licensing was in practice. No case was ever made making it necessary for me to judicially pass upon the validity of that system of getting some revenue for the building of sidewalks at Sitka, which was the pretext, and the method of its expenditure, but in an informal and unofficial way, I expressed my opinion of the invalidity of the entire proceeding.

From the time of the arrival of Governor Knapp, in May, I think, 1889, until my departure early in December of the same year, I always understood that that system of issuing licenses had been abandoned.

As to the enforcing of the provisions of the act of May 14, 1884, and the general statutes of the United States, and the statutes of the State of Oregon, prohibiting both the sale or gift of intoxicating liquors to Indians, I made some observations. During the period of my official career no prosecutions were commenced, except in one or two minor instances, during November, 1888, to enforce the criminal provisions of the act of May 14, 1884, and those cases in that respect that I now recall in memory, were where several Indians, in two instances, one at Killisnoo, were detected in landing a bottle of whisky from the mail steamer.

Public sentiment in the Territory was strongly against either the sale or gift of intoxicating liquors to natives (Indians), and prosecutions before commissioners and in the district court were very frequent, and in few cases did the accused escape conviction and sentence. I do not now remember a single instance where a recognized saloon-keeper, at any of the towns and mining stations, were accused of this offense, except at Chitkat, or Pyramid Harbor, where there were no white people but the few in charge of the cannery. The most numerous violations were by individuals who are called, in the States, "boot-leggers."

The fact is that the recognized saloon-keepers (white men) were as persistent in enforcing the law against either selling or giving liquors to Indians as those who had no direct interest in the liquor business whatever.

To one who has lived on the frontier, and in contact with the Indian tribes and villages, the reason of that desire to prosecute and punish in such instances, is obvious. It is simply to guard against a danger common to all saloon-keeper and ordinary citizen, from such indiscriminate sale of this pernicious element in frontier society.

I do not hesitate to say that owing to the most peculiar topographical and geographical features of Alaska, with its numerous mountainous islands, its rugged and forbidding mainland, its infinite number of narrow straits and sounds, timbered to the very edge of the water, and with the whole of South-eastern Alaska, island and mainland, covered with a dense underbrush for hundreds of miles of coast line, and with every facility for smuggling and hiding, furnished by the bay trading posts in Northern British Columbia, it is practically impossible to arrest the illegal introduction of intoxicating liquors into our Alaska territory. If public sentiment were practically unanimous in favor of enforcing the law, which it is not by any means, there is no remedy, under existing conditions, in a prohibitory law, such as the act of May 14, 1884. A coast-guard of 5,000 men loyally attempting to do their whole duty could make it little better than it is now.

I believe far greater and more satisfactory results can be reached by an authorized license system, and this, in my opinion, would enlist every individual paying the license fee in the effort to rigidly enforce such a license system.

I shall be glad if you will see Senator JONES of Arkansas, who knows me well, and he will give you an idea of my general character.

Yours, respectfully,

JNO. H. KEATLEY.

Hon. J. N. DOLPH.

Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C.

BUREAU OF AMERICAN REPUBLICS BULLETINS.

Mr. MANDERSON submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved, by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring therein), That there be printed 15,000 copies of the bulletins of the Bureau of American Republics submitted to Congress by the President in connection with the first annual report of that Bureau, of which number 4,000 shall be for the use of members of the Senate, 8,000 for the use of the Members and Delegates of the House of Representatives, and 3,000 for distribution under the direction of the Secretary of State.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

Mr. KYLE. In pursuance of the notice given by me last Monday, I wish to call up the joint resolution (S. R. 29) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States relating to marriage and divorce. I ask that the joint resolution be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following article be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by three-fourths of said Legislatures, shall be valid as a part of the Constitution, namely:

ARTICLE XVI.

"The Congress shall have exclusive power to regulate marriage and divorce in the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia."

Mr. KYLE. Mr. President, it is with deference to long-established custom that I rise to address this honorable body. But my interest in the resolution under consideration, supported by the concern of a large body of our best citizenship for the perpetuity of the family, may answer for what appears to be an innovation.

How far it may be a custom in Congress to give attention to questions of this nature, and to what extent there may now be a willingness to consider a resolution of such importance, I know not.

But it is my belief, Mr. President, that we can well afford to turn from questions, such as claims and public buildings, to a subject which is eminently fitting to command the attention of our country's wisest and best minds. This is a proposition for an amendment to our national Constitution. In this there is nothing new or strange.

Since the framing of the Constitution fifteen amendments have been offered and adopted. But I venture the assertion that, as compared with those preceding, the proposed amendment stands preeminent as being of vital interest to the life of our Republic. Of the fifteen preceding amendments, ten were proposed by the First Congress in 1789, the eleventh in 1794, and the twelfth in 1803.

Many of these relate to the rights of citizens, and are, so to speak, the finishings of the Constitution. The last three adopted since 1865, relating to or growing out of the war, present the first real amendatory ideas not foreseen by the fathers of the Constitution. They refer to slavery, citizenship, and the electoral right, and are therefore of great moment. But the first institution given to mankind is greater than all questions touching subsequent rights between man and man. If the sacredness which has attached to marriage in the past is to be eliminated, the family is in peril, and the associate institutions of society rest upon insecure foundations.

It is not my purpose to-day to examine the moral side of the question, though I firmly believe in marriage as a moral institution. But from a secular standpoint and in the light of a civil contract, it is of vital interest to us that the sacredness of it be held inviolate. We have arrived at a period in the history of nations when problems of sociology supersede all others. Wars for conquest are practically ended. Governments are well defined and established. The eyes of nations are now turned from the external to the internal: from the objective to the subjective. Questions, such as crime in relation to society, confront us: temperance and society; the wage system and society; wealth and poverty in relation to society; education, charity, politics, and religion in the same relation. The basis of all sociological problems, however, is the family, and its preservation by proper laws regulating marriage and divorce. It is both moral and civil in its aspects; but being civil it is not divested of that which makes it a contract of a character different from others, and therefore demanding special legislative consideration. An eminent judge, Lord Bannatyne, says:

Though the origin of marriage is a contract, it is in a different situation from all others. It is a contract coeval with and essential to society, while rollment act of 1863 who paid $300 in money for substitutes; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. TURPIE presented a petition of Excelsior Assembly, No. 2672, Knights of Labor, of Washington, D. #### JACOB BARR.

Mr. SHERMAN. I ask unanimous consent that the bill (S. 1510) for the relief of Jacob Barr, reported adversely from the Committee on Military Affairs, be placed upon the Calendar with the adverse report of the committee.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be placed upon the Calendar with the adverse report of the committee, if there be no objection. It is so ordered.

EULOGIES ON THE LATE SENATOR PLUMB.

Mr. PEPPER. I desire to offer a resolution. In explanation of it I wish to say that an order was entered some time ago naming the 20th day of this month for special services in memory of the late Senator Plumb, but upon consultation with a number of Senators who expect to take part in the exercises we have concluded to ask the unanimous consent of the Senate to change the day to the 18th from the 20th.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution submitted by the Senator from Kansas will be read.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate, That the order heretofore entered naming Saturday, the 20th day of the present month, for special services in memory of the late Preston B. Plumb, be changed to Thursday, the 18th day of the present month.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. HISCOCK. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After fifteen minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

On motion of Mr. CAMERON, it was ordered, That when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

WEST VIRGINIA DIRECT TAX.

Mr. FAULKNER. Yesterday, in the absence of both the senior and junior Senators from Virginia, the joint resolution (S. R. 9) to direct the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the governor of the State of West Virginia the sum appropriated by the act of Congress entitled "An act to credit and pay to the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia all moneys collected under the direct tax levied by the act of Congress approved August 5, 1861," was passed by the Senate without objection from anyone. I understand that the junior Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR] has been sick and desires especially to consult ing 200,000 inhabitants and over; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Stewart and other citizens of Black Hawk County, Iowa, praying for the passage of what is commonly known as the option bill; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented the petition of William J. Kruger and other citizens of Clayton County, Iowa, and the petition of A. W. Crouch and other citizens of Sac County, Iowa, praying for the passage of what is commonly known as the Conger lard bill; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a resolution adopted by the Dubuque (Iowa) Trades and Labor Congress, favoring the proposition to elect Senators by a direct vote of the people; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented resolutions adopted by the Dubuque (Iowa) Trades and Labor Congress, favoring the passage of House bill 575, relating to immigrants, etc.; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a resolution adopted by the Dubuque (Iowa) Trades and Labor Congress, favoring the passage of what is known as the Chandler bill to enlarge the ship room and increase the comfort of immigrants, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented resolutions adopted by the Dubuque (Iowa) Trades and Labor Congress, favoring the passage of a law excluding all Chinese laborers from coming into this country, and praying special attention to the existing law for that purpose, as it is not receiving proper attention; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SAWYER presented a petition of citizens of Barron County, Wis., praying for the passage of what is commonly known as the option bill; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a petition of the Business Men's Association of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., praying for the purchase by the Government of the Sturgeon Bay Ship Canal, and that navigation thereof be made free; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. COCKRELL presented resolutions adopted by the Business Men's Association of Lexington, Mo., favoring the improvement of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers and their navigable tributaries; which were referred to the Committee on Commerce.

WITHDRAWAL OF MEMORIAL.

Mr. PEPPER. I ask leave to withdraw a memorial that I had the honor to present a few days ago. It was the memorial of John Cowden, of Washington, D. C., relative to the construction of bridges across the Missouri River. It is a private matter and Mr. Cowden wishes to have it withdrawn.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Kansas will be permitted to withdraw the memorial referred to by him if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. SHERMAN, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1971) providing for the appointment of representatives from the United States to the Columbian Historical Exposition at Madrid in 1892, reported it with an amendment.

Mr. McHILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1450) to incorporate the Zoo Street Railway Company of the District of Columbia, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1477) to incorporate the Cross-Town Railroad of the District of Columbia, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. DOLPH. By direction of the Committee on Public Lands I report adversely the bill (S. 1534) to reserve township 18, range 9 west, 6th principal meridian of Kansas.

Mr. PERKINS. I ask that the bill may go on the Calendar. I recognize that the report is right with the information that we have at the time, but I hope that further investigation may justify the committee in changing the report.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed upon the Calendar with the adverse report of the committee.

Mr. DOLPH. By direction of the Committee on Public Lands I report back the bill (S. 1963) to incorporate the Yellowstone Park Company. The committee is aware that measures relating to the Yellowstone Park have heretofore been referred to the Committee on Territories. Not wishing to divide the jurisdiction upon this question I am instructed by the Committee on Public Lands to report back the bill with the recommendation and request that it be referred to the Committee on Territories.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. PROCTOR, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 329) granting an honorable discharge to Luther L. Martin; and

A bill (S. 519) for the relief of Francis Ursch.

Mr. PROCTOR also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 1039) to define the grade of certain medical officers of the Army, and for other purposes; and

A bill (S. 1040) authorizing the Secretary of War to lease certain public property.

Mr. SANDERS. I am directed by the Committee on Public Lands to report back the bill (S. 667) changing the boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park, and for other purposes. The bill pertains to the public lands of the United States as well as to the Yellowstone National Park, and I report it with a recommendation that it be referred to the Committee on Territories, having charge of the park.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1988) to amend sections 2139, 2140, and 2141 of the Revised Statutes, reported it without amendment.

Mr. DANIEL, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1545) to provide for the erection of a public building at Bedford City, Va., reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1925) to provide for the erection of a post-office building at Fortress Monroe, Va., reported it without amendment.

Mr. PASCO, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 676) for the erection of a public building at Laredo, Tex., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

USE OF LINE-CARRYING PROJECTILES.

Mr. SAWYER. I am directed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2056) to repeal the provisions of an act entitled "An act to amend sections 4488 and 4489 of the Revised Statutes, requiring life-saving appliances on steamers," approved March 2, 1889, so far as they relate to steamers plying exclusively upon any of the lakes, bays, or sounds of the United States, to report it back favorably, without amendment; and I am also directed by the committee to ask for immediate action upon the bill, as it is important.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information subject to objection.

The Chief Clerk read the bill, and, there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration. It proposes to repeal the provisions of an act entitled "An act to amend sections 4488 and 4489 of the Revised Statutes, requiring life-saving appliances on steamers," approved March 2, 1889, so far as they relate to the carrying of line-carrying projectiles and the means of propelling them on steamers plying exclusively upon any of the lakes, bays, or sounds of the United States. But nothing contained in the act shall be construed to repeal or affect the provisions so far as they apply to ocean-going steamers.

Mr. COCKRELL. When was the bill reported—this morning?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. This morning.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let us have some explanation of it.

Mr. FRYE. The Committee on Commerce authorized the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SAWYER] to ask for the immediate consideration of the bill because the season in the lakes commences about the first of March, and we have been suspending this law so far as the lakes were concerned for the last three or four years. We have not reported in favor of a general repeal of the law because the matter related to human life, and the committee desired to go very slowly indeed in relation to it.

The Secretary of the Treasury, by resolution of the Senate, last year was requested to have this matter thoroughly investigated by experts and to report to the Senate. That investigation during vacation has been made, and they report very decidedly in favor of a repeal of the law so far as vessels exclusively used in lakes, sounds, and bays are concerned. This bill simply carries out that recommendation, repealing the law so far as steamships are concerned exclusively used in lakes, bays, and sounds.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. VANCE introduced a bill (S. 2069) for the relief of G. M. Woodruff; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland introduced a bill (S. 2071) granting a pension to Elizabeth M. Black; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 2072) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Pekin, in the State of Illinois; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2073) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Lewis D. Simmonds; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2074) for the relief of Eugene B. Payne; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. ALLISON introduced a bill (S. 2075) granting a pension to Mrs. Mahala Wood; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2076) for the erection of a public building at Creston, Iowa; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2077) for the erection of a public building in Atlantic, Iowa; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. DIXON introduced a bill (S. 2078) creating the office of private secretary to the Commissioner of Patents; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Patents.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2079) for the relief of Ebenezer Comstock; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2080) granting an honorable discharge to Barnes Robinson; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. DAVIS introduced a bill (S. 2081) to grant the Duluth, Missabe and Northern Railway Company a right of way through the Fond du Lac Indian Reservation in the State of Minnesota, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2082) to provide for the erection of a municipal building in the city of Washington, D. C.; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 2083) to provide for the enlistment as part of the Army of a force not exceeding 3,000 Indians; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2084) to amend the Articles of War; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SHERMAN. I introduce a bill, prepared at the Treasury Department, to prohibit the coming of Chinese persons into the United States, and for other purposes. The bill was framed in the Department with a view to carry out the provisions of the existing laws in regard to Chinese immigration. It is accompanied by correspondence which sets out the objects and purposes of the bill. I ask that the accompanying papers be printed with the bill, and that it be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The bill (S. 2109) to prohibit the coming of Chinese persons into the United States, whether subjects of the Chinese Empire or otherwise, and to provide for registration and certificates of residence, and determine the status of all Chinese persons now resident in the United States, and fixing penalties and punishments for violation of this act, and providing for deportation of criminals, was read twice by its title.

Mr. DOLPH. I should like to ask the Senator from Ohio to state again the purpose of the bill.

Mr. SHERMAN. The bill was prepared at the Treasury Department to enable the Department more readily and properly to enforce the provisions of the existing laws in regard to Chinese immigration.

Mr. DOLPH. The Senator is aware that the Committee on Foreign Relations reported a bill covering that subject, which is on the Calendar.

Mr. SHERMAN. I know; but that relates simply to the extension of time and not to details, which are set out in this bill. It is quite a long bill. As a matter of course, it will be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and the Senator will see it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, with the accompanying papers, which will be printed.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2110) for the relief of Henry Halteman; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2111) to correct the record of Christopher Parish; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2112) granting a pension to Lucinda Roberts; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SANDERS introduced a bill (S. 2113) amending section 2139 of the Revised Statutes, relating to the sale of intoxicants to Indians; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. SANDERS. I ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. WILSON. I desire to call the attention of the Senator from Montana to the fact that the Committee on the Judiciary reported a bill covering the entire subject of the sale of liquors to Indians in the Indian Territory, and that it is sufficiently comprehensive to include all classes of intoxicating liquors.

Mr. SANDERS. In that case I will ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. I had contemplated that the Committee on Indian Affairs might examine it, possibly change it, and then ask to have it referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, to which it would ultimately appropriately belong.

Mr. WILSON. I will state that before referring the bill reported from the Judiciary Committee to that committee I consulted with the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, and the bill to which I called attention has been reported unanimously by the Committee on the Judiciary.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SANDERS introduced a bill (S. 2114) for the relief of William H. Rhett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2115) for the relief of Henry R. Horr; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2116) for the relief of Ellen P. Clark; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2117) to prevent the sale of firearms and ammunition to Indians and providing for their disarmament; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2118) restoring the name of Ellen De Witt Hatch to the pension rolls of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2119) granting a pension to Eliza Adelaide Ball; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2120) declaring the function of patents for lands in confirmation of statutory grants thereof in certain cases; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. PELTON introduced a bill (S. 2122) making an appropriation for the improvement of Alviso River, or slough, in the State of California; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2123) to set apart a tract of land in the State of California for the use of the Lick Observatory of the astronomical department of the University of California; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 2124) granting an increase of pension to Anne M. Abbott; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McMILLIN (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2125) to authorize the construction of a bridge over the Anacostia River, in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2126) for the relief of Catherine E. Whitall; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. COCKRELL introduced a bill (S. 2127) granting an increase of pension to Clara B. Davidson; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PASCO (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2128) for the relief of John S. Sammit; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WHITE (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2129) for the relief of Amire R. Hertzog, of Natchitoches, La., for stores and supplies taken from her by the military forces of the United States during the war for the suppression of the rebellion; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PLATT introduced a bill (S. 2130) for the relief of Mrs. Mary P. C. Hooper; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Patents.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 2131) to correct the military record of Homer K. Nichols; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 2132) for the relief of Thierman & Frost; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GEORGE introduced a bill (S. 2133) to repeal the internal-revenue tax on the circulation of bank notes issued under State authority; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. GEORGE. This bill is an exact copy of one I introduced at the last session and upon which the Committee on Finance made no report. Two other bills of a similar character have been introduced at this session and referred to the committee. I move that the bill be referred to the Committee on Finance with the hope that they will make a report upon it.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. TURPIE (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2134) granting a pension to John F. Langenbough; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2135) to provide for the sale of surplus or unallotted lands of the Ottawa Indians of the Indian Territory; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2136) to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the National Union Insurance Company of Washington," approved February 14, 1865; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. SANDERS introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 39) to provide for removing obstructions in the Clarke Fork of the Columbia River, and making an appropriation therefor; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. SANDERS. I move that the joint resolution be referred, for the present, to the Committee on Fisheries.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. I introduce a joint resolution and ask that it may be read in full and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

The joint resolution (S. R. 40) creating a commission to inquire into the causes of depression in the prices of agricultural products and how far they may be removed by legislation was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, etc., That a commission is hereby authorized and constituted, to consist of five Senators, to be appointed by the Senate, seven members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker, and experts, not exceeding three in number, to be elected by and associated with them, with the authority to determine the times and places of meeting, and to take evidence, and whose duty it shall be to inquire into the depressed condition of the agricultural interest and low prices of agricultural products, especially of cotton, and the causes thereof, whether those causes are of a permanent character, and how far they have been created or can be remedied by legislation, and to report by bill or otherwise.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. PETTIGREW introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 41) extending an invitation to the Presidents of the American Republics and the governors of the American Colonies to participate in the World's Columbian Exposition; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 44) authorizing the Librarian of Congress to exhibit certain documents at the World's Columbian Exposition; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

PAPERS WITHDRAWN AND REFERRED.

On motion of Mr. PASCO, it was Ordered, That the papers in the case of Mrs. Mary E. Boyd be withdrawn from the files of the Senate and referred to the Committee on Claims.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 410) to amend the charter of the Eekington and Soldiers' Home Railway Company;

A bill (H. R. 4107) to change the corporate name of the National Safety Deposit Company of Washington; and

A bill (H. R. 4429) to empower the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to grant respites and pardons in certain cases.

The message also announced that the House had passed a concurrent resolution providing for the printing of 10,000 copies of the addresses delivered in the House of Representatives on January 21, 1892, upon the presentation of the portraits of Hon. Galusha A. Grow and Hon. Samuel J. Randall by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

The message further announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the enrolled bill (S. 1604) to provide for the creation of a fourth judicial district in the Territory of Utah; and it was thereupon signed by the Vice-President.

REMOVAL OF UTE INDIANS.

Mr. DAWES submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That there be reprinted for the use of the Senate Ex. Doc. No. 67 of the Fiftieth Congress, second session, and with it testimony taken for use of Committee on Indian Affairs at said session in relation to the removal of the Ute Indians.

TRANSFER OF REVENUE MARINE.

Mr. SHERMAN submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to communicate to the Senate any information in his Department in respect to the expediency of transferring the Revenue Marine Service to the Navy Department and to express his opinion whether the public service would be promoted by such a change.

WEST VIRGINIA DIRECT TAX.

Mr. FAULKNER. Mr. President, several days ago there was passed by the Senate, in the absence of the two Senators from Virginia, the joint resolution (S. R. 9) to direct the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the governor of the State of West Virginia the sum appropriated by the act of Congress entitled "An act to credit and pay to the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia all moneys collected under the direct tax levied by the act of Congress, approved August 5, 1861." The succeeding day, at their request, I entered a motion to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was passed and moved to recall the joint resolution from the possession of the other House, to which it had been sent, the understanding at that time being that if requested by those Senators, after consultation, I would ask that the motion to reconsider be passed; that the joint resolution be reestablished on the Calendar as Order of Business No. 74, and that it be laid for consideration before the Senate.

In pursuance of that agreement, I now ask unanimous consent that the motion to reconsider be agreed to, that the joint resolution take its place on the Calendar as Order of Business No. 74, and that it be now laid before the Senate for its consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair hears no objection, and lays the joint resolution before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. DOLPH. Has the resolution been referred to a committee and reported back?

Mr. FAULKNER. I will state to the Senator that the joint resolution has had the unanimous report of the Committee on Claims. It was on the Calendar for some time, and passed in the regular course of proceeding, and a motion to reconsider entered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution is before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. DANIEL. Mr. President, I move to refer the joint resolution to the Judiciary Committee. This resolution, which was offered by the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER] and referred to the committee of which he is a member, was reported back to the Senate in an elaborate report made by him with the indorsement of the entire committee, is one that involves the relations of the Government of the United States as the holder of certain bonds signed by the State of Virginia in 1860, when both the States of Virginia and West Virginia were in the Commonwealth of Virginia.

It is a question of great financial interest to Virginia, involving, it may be, an expression of opinion on the part of the Senate which will apply to a much larger amount (running up into the millions) than that which West Virginia now asks to put into her treasury.

The question involved, apart from its pecuniary importance, is one that concerns two States and the Federal Government. In its legal aspect, if we regard that alone, it is a question of the highest dignity. The position which I occupy upon this subject is one which has been expressed by the Attorney-General of the United States in an opinion which I shall presently quote for the information of the Senate, and the report which was made by the honorable Senator from West Virginia is one which undertakes to override and to set aside the opinion of the Attorney-General of the United States.

This, Mr. President, can scarcely be regarded as in the nature of a claim which should properly in the first instance have been referred to the Committee on Claims. There was no question as to the facts of the case and no fact for it to investigate. The mere question was whether or not the Attorney-General of the United States, who is the highest legal officer in this Government in an advisory relation to the President, should be overridden and an amount acknowledged to be due by the Government should be paid in contravention of his opinion.

This being the attitude of this matter, it seems to me patent that the appropriate reference in the beginning was to the Judiciary Committee, and I ask that that reference may now be made; that a tribunal entirely impartial passing upon a judicial question shall be that tribunal selected by the Senate for such purpose.

Mr. MITCHELL. Will the Senator allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. DANIEL. With pleasure.

Mr. MITCHELL. What is the legal question involved in this case, in the opinion of the Senator from Virginia?

Mr. DANIEL. I will state the legal question involved, in the language of the Attorney-General, by reading his opinion to the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. STEWART. I hope the Senator will be allowed by unanimous consent to complete his statement in regard to the pending matter.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection? [No objection.] The Chair hears none, and the Senator from Virginia will proceed.

Mr. DANIEL. The opinion of the Attorney-General, in a letter addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury, is as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, Washington, D. C., August 12, 1891.

SIR: By your letter of April 13 last, you ask whether, under the law, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and required to retain the whole or any part of the amount due to the State of West Virginia on account of the refund of direct taxes, under the act approved March 2, 1891, by reason of the are defined that he shall perform. I will suggest in reprinting the bill that those sections be transposed so as to make section 18 section 1, section 7 section 2, section 8 section 3, section 9 section 4, section 10 section 5, and then section 1 section 6, etc.

Mr. MANDERSON. I think the Senator is mistaken with regard to that matter. I know that some of the sections to which he refers describe the duties of the Joint Committee on Printing rather than of the Public Printer. I would sooner not make the transposition until we see the reprint of the bill.

Mr. GALLINGER. Very well; I have no objection to that. I will move an amendment in that form when the bill comes back.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The order to print the bill as amended will be made in the absence of objection.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. FRYE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 5 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Thursday, February 11, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate February 10, 1892.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate, February 10, 1892.

POSTMASTERS.

Richard Butler, to be postmaster at Clinton, in the county of De Witt and State of Illinois.

John E. Chatten, to be postmaster at Oxford, in the county of Butler and State of Ohio.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, February 10, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

CORRECTION.

Mr. WIKE. I rise to correct the RECORD. I introduced yesterday, under the third clause of Rule XXII, a resolution or series of resolutions which I find are not printed in the RECORD this morning. Now, the point I desire to submit—

The SPEAKER. The Clerk informs the Chair that the title of the resolution appears in the RECORD.

Mr. WIKE. The title of the resolution is printed, but the resolution itself is not. Now, I wish to state in this connection that every resolution that has been introduced except the one that I introduced yesterday has been printed at length in the RECORD. I wish now to prosecute the inquiry as to what the standard is as to when a resolution is entitled to be printed.

I will say that the rule on this subject is a substantial if not a verbatim copy of the rule of the last Congress; and that under the practice of the last Congress all resolutions presented in this way were published in full. If there is any discretion as to these matters, I desire to find it out; and if the length of the resolution is to be measured by any man's foot or his hand, or, what may be more to the point, by his judgment, I want that clearly understood.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Illinois that there is no provision in the rules for printing a resolution in full in the RECORD under such circumstances.

Mr. WIKE. I have stated that much myself.

The SPEAKER. Then what is the gentleman's complaint?

Mr. WIKE. Under the practice of the last House all resolutions were printed in full, every resolution submitted; and so far in this Congress since the adoption of the rules the same practice has been followed except in the case of my resolutions. There were four other resolutions introduced yesterday which are published in full in the RECORD, but mine are not. I desire to submit to the Chair what is to be the criterion—

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman that the attention of the Chair has never been called to this matter, but under the rules there is no provision for printing in the RECORD a resolution introduced in this way. Clause 3 of Rule XXII provides:

All other bills, memorials, and resolutions may in like manner be delivered, indorsed with the names of members introducing them, to the Speaker, to be by him referred, and the title and references thereof shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the RECORD of the next day.

Mr. WIKE. But, Mr. Speaker, if I may be indulged a moment, I desire to say that the present rule is a literal copy of the rule on this subject which prevailed in the Fifty-first Congress; and the practice then under the same rule was that all resolutions thus introduced should be published in full, and the practice thus far in this House since the adoption of our new rules has been the same.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will have to look into the matter—

Mr. WIKE. But I want to submit one further point. The Chair stated the other day in reference to permitting members to vote after a roll call had been completed, that he was disposed to follow what had been the ordinary practice on the subject notwithstanding the rule.

The SPEAKER. That is true, because such a practice was in the interest of justice; but the Chair can not, in the face of a strict rule of the House, permit a practice which might fill the RECORD with resolutions—

Mr. WIKE. Not necessarily.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not see the propriety of such a course. The gentleman understands that if every resolution introduced were printed in full in the RECORD it might make that publication quite cumbersome.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I only wish to say that the gentleman from Illinois is altogether mistaken in saying that it was customary in the last Congress and in preceding Congresses to print resolutions in full in the RECORD when introduced in this way. Such has not been the practice since I have been a member.

Mr. WIKE. I call the gentleman's attention—

The SPEAKER. There is no question before the House.

Mr. WIKE. Before we leave this subject I ask indulgence to submit a request for unanimous consent that these resolutions be printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will submit that question. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a resolution which he will send up, so that the title may be read by the Clerk.

The Clerk proceeded to read as follows:

By Mr. WIKE:

Resolved, That in the judgment of this House—

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires the title of the resolution only to be read. He will ask the gentleman to state what the resolution refers to.

Mr. WIKE. To the question of revenue and taxation.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent that there be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD a resolution the title of which the Clerk will report.

Mr. RAINES. Let the resolution itself be read for information.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will first cease the title to be read, after which objection will be asked for to the request.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolutions declaratory of some of the principles governing just taxation and instructing the Committee on Ways and Means to report a bill or bills enlarging the free list and reducing compensatory, specific, and ad valorem tariff duties; also to report a bill to levy a graduated income tax on all incomes in excess of $5,000, to meet any increased demands of the Treasury arising from any such reduction of tariff duties or from any other cause whatever.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Is that the title of the resolution which has just been read by the Clerk?

The SPEAKER. It is.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. If it bears any proportion to the length of the title I object to the printing of the resolution.

The SPEAKER. Objection is made.

RECIPROCITY TREATIES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

To the House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith, in answer to the resolution of the House of Representatives of the 13th of January last, a report from the Secretary of State and accompanying papers.

BENJ. HARRISON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, February 9, 1892.

REFUND OF CUSTOMS DUTIES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a detailed statement of the refund of customs duties, etc., for the year ending June 30, 1891: which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

IMPROVEMENT, YAZOO RIVER.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, the report of the examination and surveys for the improvement of the Yazoo River, Mississippi; which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

IMPROVEMENT, CYPRESS BAYOU.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, the report of the examination and survey of Cypress Bayou to the lakes, between Jefferson, Tex., and Shreveport, La.: which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

RED RIVER OF THE NORTH.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, the report of the examination and survey of the Red River of the North and tributaries above Fergus Falls and Crookston, Minn., and Big Stone Lake, Minnesota and South Dakota; which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

DAVID MILLER VS. THE UNITED STATES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the findings of the court in the case of David Miller against the United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims.

LIFE-SAVING APPLIANCES ON STEAMERS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (S. 2056) to repeal the provisions of an act entitled "An act to amend sections 4488 and 4489 of the Revised Statutes, requiring life-saving appliances on steamers," approved March 2, 1889, so far as they relate to steamers plying exclusively upon any of the lakes, bays, or sounds of the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted for ten days to Mr. POWERS, on account of important business; and also to Mr. NORTON, on motion of Mr. DOCKERY, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

LEAVE TO PRINT.

Mr. STOUT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution I have just sent to the desk may be read, and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will cause the resolution to be read, after which objection will be asked for its printing in the RECORD.

The resolution was read at length.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the printing of the resolution in the RECORD?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It has never been customary to print resolutions in the RECORD, and I object.

COMMITTEE ON NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Mr. HERBERT. Mr. Speaker, I am instructed by the Committee on Naval Affairs to ask unanimous consent that the committee may have leave to sit during the sessions of the House.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

BRIDGE AT BURLINGTON, IOWA.

Mr. SEERLEY. I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill H. R. 4631. It is a very short bill, and relates to the building of a bridge at Burlington.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SEERLEY] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill which will be reported by the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill to amend an act entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a railroad, wagon, and foot-passenger bridge at Burlington, Iowa, approved August 6, 1888," as amended by act approved February 21, 1890.

Be it enacted, etc., That the time for the commencement and completion of said bridge, authorized by said act entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a railroad, wagon, and foot-passenger bridge at Burlington, Iowa, approved August 6, 1888," as amended by act approved February 21, 1890, be, and is hereby, each extended two years from the passage of this act.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. SEERLEY, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid upon the table.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

On motion of Mr. WISE, the bill (S. 297) to increase the accommodations at the marine hospital at Detroit, Mich., was, by unanimous consent, recalled from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

ADDITIONAL MESSENGERS, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. RUSK. Mr. Speaker, I submit a privileged report from the Committee on Accounts, and ask its immediate consideration.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the report.

The Clerk read as follows:

"The Committee on Accounts, to whom was referred the resolution entitled 'A resolution to appoint special messengers for the House of Representatives,' have examined and considered the same, and report it back to the House and recommend its passage:

Resolved, That the Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives be, and he is hereby, authorized and empowered to appoint two special messengers, to be employed as such generally in and about the business of the House during the Fifty-second Congress, who shall be paid a salary of $400 each per month out of the contingent fund of the House, until other provision shall be made for such payments by order of the House or of Congress.

Mr. RUSK. Mr. Speaker, I will make a brief statement with reference to this resolution.

Mr. HOPKINS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call the attention of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. DOCKERY] to the fact that this is a Congress of retrenchment and reform.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Maryland [Mr. RUSK] is entitled to the floor.

Mr. RUSK. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Accounts have had the Doorkeeper of the House before them, and are satisfied from his statement that additional messengers are necessary. The messengers provided for in this resolution will bring the force up to the number in the last House. The Doorkeeper has informed the committee that he has been required to take men from the folding room and designate them to perform messengers' duty, while their services are required in the folding room. I will state further that the Committee on Accounts passed the resolution with the understanding that the messengers provided for in this resolution are to be accorded to the minority of the House.

Mr. McMLIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of order. There is so much confusion on the floor that it is impossible to hear what is being said.

The SPEAKER. The House will please be in order. The business transacted at this hour is sometimes extremely important, and members are entitled to hear what is going on.

Mr. RUSK. I had stated that it was apparently necessary from the statement of the Doorkeeper that there should be some slight increase in the force of messengers, and I was about to further state that the understanding was that the two messengers provided for in this resolution were to be accorded to the minority of the House. So far this session one messenger has been allowed to the minority of the House, and this provides two more, so as to bring the number up to the number of messengers allowed the minority in the last House.

Mr. HOPKINS of Illinois. I would like to ask the gentleman a question?

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. RUSK. For a question.

Mr. HOPKINS of Illinois. If that side desire to allow extra messengers to the minority, why not discharge two messengers that are already on the roll on the majority side, appointed by the majority, and fill the places with Republicans, without inon Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

A bill (H. R. 5428) for the relief of the widow and heirs of Samuel Kramer—Committee on Naval Affairs discharged, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (H. R. 5288) for the relief of the sufferers by the wreck of the United States steamer Tallapoosa—Committee on Naval Affairs discharged, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (H. R. 4286) for the relief of Cora Robinson—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 5505) to remove charge of desertion from the record of Winfield S. Barnett—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

A bill (S. 297) to increase the accommodations at the marine hospital at Detroit, Mich.—Committee on Commerce discharged, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (H. R. 5698) for the relief of Capt. John T. Bruen, late of Tenth Independent Battery of New York Volunteers—Committee on Claims discharged, and referred to the Committee on War Claims.

A bill (H. R. 5089) providing for the adjustment and payment of the accounts of laborers and mechanics arising under the eight-hour law—Committee on Labor discharged, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (H. R. 5156) providing for the adjustment of accounts of laborers, workmen, and mechanics arising under the eight-hour law—Committee on Labor discharged, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

A resolution to reprint Executive Document No. 51, first session, Fiftieth Congress—Committee on Pacific Railroads discharged, and referred to the Committee on Printing.

RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, the following resolutions were introduced and referred as follows:

By Mr. STOUT: To secure uniformity in regulating the organization and government of corporations—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BLAND: Making House bill 4426 the special order for Wednesday, February 17, 1892—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. BRODERICK: Concurrent resolution that article 4 of said agreement be, and the same is hereby, construed so as to authorize and direct the proper officers of the Department of the Interior to make the payments as they fall due to the members of said band residing in Kansas at some point in their original reservation in said State as will accommodate the greatest number of said Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. CAMERON. I ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. HARRIS. Should not that bill go to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads?

Mr. CAMERON. I think not, as it requires the appropriation of money for the purchase of the ground.

Mr. HARRIS. So it does; but the policy of purchasing the ground ought to be considered in the first instance by the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads. The appropriation must come later.

Mr. CAMERON. Very well; let the bill go to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, if there is no objection.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 2166) appropriating the sum of $25,000 for the purpose of determining the quantity of the so-called hawm or blows of locomotive driving wheels; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

the navigation, and to afford ease and safety to the trade and commerce of the Mississippi River, and to prevent destructive floods, with an appropriation therefor: which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

HOUSE BILL REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 4631) to amend an act entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a railroad, wagon, and foot-passenger bridge at Burlington, Iowa," approved August 6, 1888, as amended by act approved February 21, 1890, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

FLORIDA SENATORIAL ELECTION.

Mr. CALL. If the order of bills and joint resolutions is through, I offer a resolution, which I ask may be printed and lie upon the table, and I may have some remarks to make upon it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.
The Chief Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Privileges and Elections are hereby instructed to inquire and report to the Senate whether efforts were made by railway or other corporations, their agents, employes, or officers to control the election to the United States Senate by the Legislature of Florida in the year 1891; whether money and free transportation were used by them or any of them to influence the vote of the people for members of the Legislature, or to influence the votes of the members of the Legislature after their election; whether money was used by combinations of persons made under the influence of agents or persons acting in the interest of corporations to control the election of members of the Legislature and to control their votes after their election; whether newspapers were bought or subsidized by them or by persons acting in their interest or with money obtained either directly or indirectly from them or persons in any way connected with them to oppose the election of some persons and support the election of others; and to report to the Senate the evidence taken by them; and further to report what legislation, if any, either by an amendment to the Constitution or otherwise, is necessary to protect the people in their right to elect members of the Legislature, who are to choose Senators of the United States, and to protect the members elected from the influences of corporations and their foreign bondholders.

Resolved, That the committee have power to employ a stenographer, and to send for and compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of papers.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What action is desired by the Senator on the resolution?

Mr. CALL. I ask that the resolution lie upon the table, and at an early day I will call it up and submit some observations in regard to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will lie on the table and be printed.

AMOUNT OF CIRCULATING NOTES.

Mr. GEORGE submitted the following resolution: which was read and referred to the Committee on Finance:

Resolved, That the Committee on Finance be instructed to report a bill requiring the issue and keeping in circulation of legal-tender Treasury notes to an amount equal to $10 per capita of the population of the United States, and that such issue shall be increased each year so as to keep pace with the yearly increase of said population.

PRIVATE CLAIMS AGAINST FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS.

Mr. MORGAN. I offer the resolution which I send to the desk, and I ask that it may be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That all private claims of citizens of the United States against foreign governments, presented to the Senate by petition or otherwise, shall be referred to the committee now styled the Select Committee to Inquire into all Claims of Citizens of the United States against the Government of Nicaragua, which shall be hereafter styled the "Committee on Private Claims against Foreign Governments," and is hereby made a standing committee of the Senate.

Resolved, That said committee shall receive any proofs that shall be offered in support of any such private claim and refer the same to the Department of State for consideration as to the legality and value of the same as evidence; and if said committee shall make any recommendation in respect of any such claim the same shall be reported to the Senate for consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations in the absence of objection.

Mr. SHERMAN. That resolution ought to go by the established custom of the Senate, to the Committee on Rules. While I am not a member of the Committee on Rules I think that is the custom.

Mr. MORGAN. I chose the Committee on Foreign Relations because this is an infringement upon its present jurisdiction. The Committee on Foreign Relations now exercises the jurisdiction provided here to be conferred upon the select committee.

Mr. SHERMAN. The chairman of the Committee on Rules not being here and as the custom has always been to refer these resolutions about rules to that committee, I think it should be so referred or it may lie on the table until the chairman of the committee comes in.

Mr. MORGAN. I will say to the Senator from Ohio that I would not introduce a resolution of this kind to take from the Committee on Foreign Relations any part of its jurisdiction without first consulting that committee, and therefore I wish the resolution to be referred to them for their consideration, and if they approve it they can send it back here and send it to the Committee on Rules.

Mr. SHERMAN. I do not insist upon my suggestion. I will not stand upon a point of reference, but I think the resolution ought to go to the other committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, if there be no objection.

LANDS IN FLORIDA.

Mr. CALL submitted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Lands are hereby instructed to report a bill providing for opening to settlement under the land laws of the United States the reservations alleged to have been made of public lands in the State of Florida under the act of Congress approved on the 17th day of May, A. D. 1856, entitled "An act granting alternate sections of the public lands to the States of Alabama and Florida to aid in the construction of certain lines of railroads in said States," and for granting patents to all bona fide homesteaders and all actual settlers who have made improvements on such lands, and further granting patents to all innocent purchasers in good faith of land in quantities not exceeding 2 sections of land not including the improvements and the settlement of any actual settler to the extent of 160 acres, and further providing that the corporations claiming said land under the said act of Congress shall have the right to bring suit in the circuit court of the United States with the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States against the United States to decide whether under the said act of Congress and the acts of the Legislature of the State of Florida said railroad companies have ever acquired any right or title to said lands, and further providing that the Attorney-General of the United States shall bring suit against the corporations or the persons who have sold and appropriated the said public lands for their own use and benefit, and further for the indictment and prosecution under the acts of Congress of persons who have been engaged wilfully and maliciously in any conspiracy to defraud the United States and the actual settlers and homesteaders of the said public lands; and further to report such legislation as will protect actual settlers under the homestead laws of the United States who have been deprived of their homes under fraudulent practices and false statements either under the act of the 17th of May, 1856, or under the act of 1850 granting to the States the swamp or overflowed land thereby rendered unfit for cultivation to the States on condition that the proceeds of sale of said land should be applied to the construction of levees, ditches, and canals necessary for their reclamation and drainage or under any other laws of the United States.

Mr. CALL. I ask that that resolution lie upon the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will lie upon the table and be printed.

EXTENSION OF NORTH CAPITOL STREET.

Mr. SHERMAN. I offer a resolution of inquiry and ask for its present consideration.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are directed to inform the Senate the cost of the proposed extension of North Capitol street to the Soldiers' Home Park, and of grading and regulating the same, and report upon the expediency of such extension.

By unanimous consent, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the resolution.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is that a resolution of inquiry?

Mr. SHERMAN. Yes, purely.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

HEARINGS AS TO UTAH TERRITORY.

Mr. PLATT submitted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Territories be authorized to employ a stenographer to report hearings on all bills relating to the Territory of Utah at the present session of Congress, and to print the testimony taken for the use of the committee, and that the expense of reporting such hearings shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate when certified by the chairman of said committee when audited and allowed by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

Mr. PLATT. I inquire of the Chair if that resolution must not be referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair thinks so.

Mr. PLATT. Then I move that it be referred to that committee.

The motion was agreed to.

RECOMMITMENT OF A BILL.

Mr. PROCTOR. I ask unanimous consent to move a reconsideration of the vote by which the bill (S. 519) for the relief of Francis Irseh was indefinitely postponed, and that it be recommitted to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That order will be made if there be no objection.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS FOR POST-OFFICES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed and the Calendar under Rule VII is in order. The first bill on the Calendar will be stated.

The bill (S. 477) to provide for the erection of public buildings for post-offices in towns and cities where the post-office receipts for three years preceding have exceeded $3,000 annually was announced as first in order.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. President, that bill has always excited debate, and therefore I think it ought to go over under Rule IX.

Mr. PADDOCK. I hope that course will not be taken. I call the attention of the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] to this.

States of the Sturgeon Bay Ship Canal and making it forever free; which were referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. STANFORD presented three petitions of the Traffic Association of San Francisco, Cal., praying for the passage of such legislation as will hasten the completion and secure the national control of the Nicaragua Maritime Canal; which were referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. DAWES presented the petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Ashburnham, Mass., praying that no exposition or exhibition for which appropriations are made by Congress shall be opened on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills and joint resolution: in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 1923) granting an honorable discharge to William W. Wedgwood;

A bill (H. R. 3867) to amend the act concerning officers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, and for other purposes;

A bill (H. R. 5681) for the better control of and to promote the safety of national banks;

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by a majority of the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 258) for the relief of Lieut. Col. Michael P. Small, United States Army, to report it without amendment, with a written report, which I ask may be placed on the Calendar.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. MANDERSON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1501) for the relief of William H. Atkins, formerly commissary sergeant, United States Army, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were indefinitely postponed:

A bill (S. 201) to increase the efficiency of the infantry of the Army;

A bill (S. 881) to reorganize the infantry of the Army and increase its efficiency;

A bill (S. 1037) to reorganize the artillery and to increase its efficiency; and

A bill (S. 1778) to reorganize the line of the Army.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Military Affairs to report a bill to reorganize the artillery and infantry of the Army and to increase its efficiency. This is a bill in the nature of a substitute for the four bills which the Senate has indefinitely postponed. I ask that the bill be twice read and placed upon the Calendar with the written report.

The bill (S. 2170) to reorganize the artillery and infantry of the Army and to increase its efficiency was read twice by its title.

Mr. HALE. I report back from the Committee on Appropriations the bill (H. R. 5399) making appropriations to supply a deficiency in the appropriation for the expenses of the Eleventh Census, and for other purposes, with certain amendments. I ask that the amendments may be printed, and I give notice that I shall endeavor to call up the bill to-morrow morning.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. DOLPH, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 541) making appropriation for the improvement of the Columbia River, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1607) to amend the charter of the Rock Creek Railroad Company, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2045) to amend the act incorporating the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. STEWART, from the Committee on Mines and Mining, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1273) to authorize the entry of lands chiefly valuable for building stone, under the placer-mining laws, reported it without amendment.

Mr. DAVIS. I am directed by a majority of the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1026) for the relief of Sarah K. McLean, widow of the late Lieut. Col. Nathaniel H. McLean, to report it without amendment, and to submit a written report thereon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. ALLISON, from the Committee on Appropriations, to whom were referred the following memorials, asked to be discharged from their further consideration, and that they be referred to the Committee on Fisheries; which was agreed to:

A memorial of the Legislature of Oregon for the establishment of a fish hatchery on the Upper Columbia or Snake Rivers; and
A memorial of the Legislature of Oregon for the establishment of a fish hatchery on the Umpqua River.

Mr. PERKINS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1886) to authorize the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to grant pardons and respites in certain cases, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. DANIEL, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1544) for the erection of a public building at the town of Lexington, Va., reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. VEST, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4631) to amend an act entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a railroad, wagon, and foot passenger bridge at Burlington, Iowa," approved August 6, 1888, as amended by act approved February 21, 1890, reported it with an amendment.

STENOGRAPHER FOR COMMITTEE ON NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Mr. CHANDLER. From the Committee on Naval Affairs, I report a resolution for reference to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the stenographer employed to report the hearings before the Committee on Naval Affairs in relation to the bill transferring the Revenue Cutter Service to the naval establishment, be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

Mr. COCKRELL. Has that hearing ever been printed?

Mr. CHANDLER. It has been printed so far as it has proceeded.

Mr. COCKRELL. I have not seen it, and I did not know.

Mr. CHANDLER. It is partially printed, and I shall take pains to furnish the Senator with a copy.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should be very glad to see it.

NATIONAL SAFE DEPOSIT COMPANY.

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland. I am instructed by the Committee on the District of Columbia to whom was referred the bill (S. 1929) to change the corporate name of the National Safe Deposit Company, of Washington, to report adversely thereon. I move that the bill be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland. I am instructed by the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4407) to change the corporate name of the National Safe Deposit Company, of Washington, to report it back favorably. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be put upon its passage.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill, and there being no objection, the Senate, as in the Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CONDITION OF AGRICULTURE.

Mr. GEORGE, from the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, to whom was referred a resolution submitted by himself on January 26, 1892, relative to the appointment of a committee to inquire into the cause of the low price of cotton and the depressed condition of agriculture in the States raising cotton, reported it with an amendment to make it read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry be, and they are hereby, authorized and directed, by one or more subcommittees, or otherwise, to ascertain in every practicable way, and to report from time to time to the Senate, the present condition of agriculture in the United States, and the present prices of agricultural products, and if there be any of which the prices are depressed, then the causes of such depression and the remedies therefor.

And for this purpose that they be authorized by subcommittee, or otherwise, to sit during the recess and sessions of the Senate, at such times and places as they may deem advisable, and that they may employ a stenographer and such clerical assistance and experts as they may deem necessary, and they be authorized to send for persons and papers, and the expense of such investigation be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

DEALING IN FUTURES AND OPTIONS.

Mr. WILSON, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported the following resolution: which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary, or any subcommittee of their number appointed for the purpose, be authorized to investigate the subject of dealing in futures and options, and for that purpose to send for persons and papers, and to employ a stenographer; and that the expenses be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

MARITIME CANAL INVESTIGATION.

Mr. SHERMAN, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported the following resolution: which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the necessary expenses incurred under the resolution of the Senate of January 7, 1892, directing the Committee on Foreign Relations to make certain inquiries in regard to the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua, be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. I am directed by the Committee on Commerce to whom was referred the bill (S. 2169) to improve the navigation and to afford ease and safety to the trade and commerce of the Mississippi River, and to prevent destructive floods, with an appropriation therefor, to report it with amendments, and to submit a written report thereon.

I ask the indulgence of the Senate to make a brief explanation of the bill. Its purpose is to improve the Mississippi River in accordance with the plans of the engineers which have been matured after ten years of actual experiments and experience. This plan blends the jetty system, which has proved so successful at the mouth of the river, in fact wherever applied, with the levee system that has been equally successful wherever applied. The fact is a levee is called a jetty when placed in the bed of the river and the jetty a levee when placed on the banks. They are employed for the same purpose, and that is, to contract and maintain the width of the channel, the jetty in low water and the levee in high water, and thus to increase the velocity of the current and volume of discharge, and to deepen the bed of the river.

Wherever the river is narrow, say 3,000 feet wide, which is its normal width, there is deep water. Levees are necessary on its banks to hold the water in its channel at flood stages. When, by reason of crevasses, it has become unduly wide, say 10,000 feet, jetties are used to contract the channel to 3,000 feet, and thus to employ the increased velocity of the current to scour out the channel. At Plum Point and Lake Providence reaches, each of which is between 30 and 40 miles long, the depth has been doubled. There remain four others each reaches to be improved.

Besides improving the navigation this plan affords protection to the alluvial region against overflows. The effect will be not only to reclaim a territory larger than the State of Indiana and more fertile, now given over to destructive floods, but it will afford protection to all the vast regions already settled and cultivated.

The appropriation proposed to be made by the bill runs over a period of five years, so as to enable the engineers to carry on systematic and continuous work, for experience has demonstrated that great loss and wastage result from the biennial appropriations in the river and harbor acts.

It is confined to the Mississippi River, the main trunk line, into which discharge forty-three of the largest rivers in the world, which with their tributaries constitute a system of water ways navigable by steamboats for 16,000 miles and by barges, barks, and flatboats for 550,000 miles, the natural carriers for the products and commodities of the valleys that stretch from the Alleghany Mountains to the Rocky Mountains.

It is believed by those who have had the largest experience that the time has come when this work is indispensable to the people in this vast region of country, and especially to the farmers seeking European markets—should stand on its own merits before Congress, and that appropriations for this purpose, that so vitally concern so many millions of people, should not be hindered and complicated with appropriations for particular localities on its borders or for smaller streams, but that the appropriations for these particular works should be carried on in the regular river and harbor bill just as the harbors on the seas and lakes are provided for now.

Mr. ALLISON. I desire to ask the Senator from Louisiana, who makes this report, what amount is proposed to be appropriated by the bill?

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. There is an appropriation in the bill of $10,000,000 for the river from the jetties at the mouth to Cairo, not over $2,000,000 to be expended annually by the engineers. Then from Cairo up there is an appropriation of $5,000, 000, not more than $1,000,000 to be expended annually by the engineers.

Mr. ALLISON. From Cairo up how far?

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. Up to the mouth of the Illinois River.

Mr. ALLISON. Then there is no provision for appropriations above the mouth of the Illinois River?

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. Not in this bill.

Mr. ALLISON. It is intended that any appropriations above the mouth of the Illinois should be relegated to the river and harbor bill proper?

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. We have made no appropriation in this bill because it is desired to have the Mississippi River improved—the great trunk line, to which all the other rivers of the valley are tributary—before we attempt to make appropriations for stream in the upper valley.

Mr. ALLISON. I understand the Senator to say that this bill, so far as it relates to the Lower Mississippi, is to take the place of the annual appropriation in the river and harbor bill.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. Yes, sir; if this bill is passed; but not otherwise.

Mr. ALLISON. And is to be excluded from the river and harbor bill. Of course I do not know that it is important, but it seems to me it may become important to provide for appropriations for the whole river in the same manner. I am in thorough sympathy with the Senator as respects this appropriation for the Mississippi River, but I do not like the idea of drawing the line of these appropriations at the mouth of the Illinois.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

IMMIGRATION LAWS.

Mr. CHANDLER. I offer a concurrent resolution, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The concurrent resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring). That the Senate Committee on Immigration and the House Committee on Immigration and Naturalization, be, and hereby are, authorized jointly to investigate the workings of the various laws of the United States relative to immigration from foreign countries, and the importation of contract laborers to the United States, and the expenditures made in connection therewith, and especially the recent admission of immigrants infected with typhus fever into the port of New York; the investigation to be conducted at such times and places as said committees may deem proper; and the committees are hereby authorized jointly, as full committees or through subcommittees thereof, to send for and examine persons, books, and papers, and to administer oaths to witnesses.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. CHANDLER. I ask unanimous consent to make a statement, and I ask the attention of the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS], the chairman of the Committee on Epidemic Diseases.

I think there is urgent necessity for the passage of this resolution. I read from the New York Sun of February 12:

A PLAGUE OF TYPHUS FEVER—FIFTY-SEVEN CASES AMONG IMPORTED RUSSIAN HEBREWS HERE—FIFTEEN STRICKEN IN ONE LODGING HOUSE. PARIENTS FOLLOW THEIR CHILDREN TO THE HOSPITAL ON NORTH BROTHER ISLAND—HOW THE DISEASE BRED BY RUSSIA'S FAMINE WAS BROUGHT TO EAST-SIDE TENEMENTS.

On January 30 the steamship Massila, of the Fabre Line, landed at this port 717 immigrants, Italians and Russian Hebrews. The 450 Italians were taken aboard at Naples. The 267 Russian Hebrews had gathered at Odessa from all parts of southern Russia, and had arrived here after a long voyage of unusual roughness.

These Russian Hebrews were divided immediately among the seventeen lodging houses provided by the United Hebrew Charities' Association. Yesterday the board of health found that an epidemic of typhus fever, known under a dozen names as one of the most terrible fevers that can visit the human body and communicating itself by contagion as well as by infection, was raging among them. Fifty-seven of them, already down with typhus in its marked symptoms, have been taken to the hospital on North Brother Island, and the board of health is doing all in its power to stay the further spread of the disease. It is probable that preventive measures are already too late, and that it is now a question how far those infected for at least ten days have spread the fever among their friends whom they have been visiting in the crowded tenements of the lower east side.

I find in the Sun of the 13th the following statement:

All the Hebrew patients at North Brother Island will be supported at the expense of the United Hebrew Charities, which gave bond to Commissioner of Immigration Weber that the released Hebrew immigrants would not become a public charge within a year. It is likely that the bill against the organization will not be less than $100,000.

Mr. President, it is perfectly clear that these immigrants infected with this dangerous and deadly disease should not have been allowed to land in New York City. The law passed on the 3d of March, 1891, is explicit in two particulars: No persons are allowed to come who are suffering from a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease; and no persons are allowed to come into the country and be landed in our ports who are likely to become a public charge. On either ground these infected immigrants should have been excluded.

It may well be that the commissioner of immigration may be able to demonstrate that his physician did not discover symptoms of typhus before the immigrants were admitted, but the commissioner of immigration did discover that these immigrants were likely to become a public charge, and it was his duty to detain them as such. He did detain them as such, and if he had continued to detain them the typhus fever would have broken out among them before they were distributed over the city of New York and the city of Brooklyn and throughout the country, to bring contagion and death to our citizens. But being waited upon by an agent of the Baron Hirsch Hebrew Charity Fund, and receiving from this agent assurance that these paupers would be taken care of for one year, he opened wide the doors of Castle Garden and let them come in. They were immediately taken by this charitable organization and distributed in various boarding houses in New York and in Brooklyn, acknowledged paupers, acknowledge to be incapable of supporting themselves. They were placed there until this Hebrew charity society might make some provision for them, and within two days there came this outbreak of deadly typhus fever.

Mr. President, I shall not be behind any Senator or any citizen of the United States in regretting the sad fate of these poor people, nor, I trust, in condemning the policy of the Russian Government in driving them out. But, Mr. President, self-protection is the first law of nature. These men and women and children were infected with typhus at Odessa, went from Odessa to Constantinople, and Turkey refused them admission into that country. They went to Smyrna, and from there they were taken to Marseilles, and the French people refused to allow them to stay there. They could not go to England, for England, with all of her professed philanthropy, excludes the pauper Russian Hebrews, and so they took ship for America, and in contravention and disobedience of our laws they have been distributed from one end of the Eastern States to the other, perhaps to infect whole communities with typhus fever; and they have come in, in my judgment, much as I regret to say so, when they should have been excluded by the immigrant commissioner of New York City in the performance of his strict and imperative duties under a statute of the United States.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

Mr. HARRIS. I simply desire to say that I think it important that this investigation should be made and promptly made; and in all human probability, when made in the light of the facts developed by it, additional legislation will be found very necessary upon the general subject-matter. I hope the resolution will pass and pass promptly.

Mr. SHERMAN. I should like to have the resolution again read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be again read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 566) to amend the internal-revenue laws, and for other purposes.

A bill (H. R. 1086) for the relief of Louisa Q. Lovell and others; and

A bill (H. R. 610) extending the privileges of the first and seventh sections of the act approved June 10, 1880, governing the transportation of merchandise without appraisement to the port of Ogdenburg, in the State of New York.

DRY DOCK NEAR ALGIERS, LA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed, and the Calendar, under Rule VIII, is in order.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. I am compelled to leave the city this evening, and I ask the indulgence of the Senate to take up Order of Business 165, being Senate bill 1900.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 1900) for the establishment of a dry dock on the Government reservation near Algiers, La., with an appropriation therefor.

The bill proposes to appropriate $350,000, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy, toward the establishment of a dry dock on the Government reservation near Algiers, La., and to acquire such additional land as may be necessary for the site of a dry dock, in accordance with the recommendations of the two commissions appointed by the President under the provisions of the act approved September 7, 1888, and the act approved June 30, 1890, respectively, concurred in by the Secretary of the Navy.

Mr. ALLISON. That seems to be an important bill, and I trust the Senator from Louisiana will give us some explanation of it. It provides for the building of a dry dock by the Government. I should like to know the necessity for a dry dock at this point; and if there is such a necessity, why the Government of the United States should build it?

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. If the Senator so desires, the report can be read. It will show that this has been recommended by the Secretary of the Navy, that it has been recommended by two commissions appointed by the President of the United States, and that it is recommended by the unanimous voice of the Committee on Naval Affairs. I ask that the report may be read. It is a very short report.

gressional Library be supplied first, and then let the remainder of them go. Therefore I want the Senate library left out.

Mr. MANDERSON. I have no objection to that. I think the matter to which the Senator refers can very safely be left to the Congressional Librarian and the librarian of the Senate. Certainly it is not a matter with which the Committee on Printing has anything to do. We are not running the libraries.

Mr. COCKRELL. But we do not want the Senate library to be encumbered with a useless number of documents.

Mr. MANDERSON. I do not object to the amendment proposed, to except the Senate library.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move, after "Delegates," in line 12, to insert "and to the Senate library."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. In line 12 of section 70, after the word "Delegates," insert the words "and to the Senate library;" so as to read:

Shall cause an invoice to be made of all books stored in and about the Capitol, other than those belonging to the quota of Members of Congress and Delegates and to the Senate library; and all such documents, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. In section 75, line 8, I move to strike out all after the word "rooms." The sentence reads:

All reports or documents to be distributed for Senators, Representatives, and Delegates shall be folded and distributed from the folding rooms.

I move to strike out the rest of the sentence and insert "unless otherwise ordered," so as to show specifically that a Senator can give an order for them; that they shall go to this place unless otherwise ordered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After the word "rooms," in line 8, section 75, strike out the words—

under the general direction of the superintendent of documents, and whenever in his opinion it is advisable to fold and distribute any documents from the Government Printing Office, or the storehouses connected therewith, he shall so order—and insert "unless otherwise ordered;" so as to read:

shall be folded and distributed to the folding rooms unless otherwise ordered.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to ask the Senator from Nebraska if we did not make the amendment on page 43 in regard to the distribution of memorials. I was talking to the Senator about it, and I am not certain whether the formal amendment was made about the distribution of memorials.

Mr. MANDERSON. I think the amendment was made. The clerks can state.

Mr. COCKRELL. Have amendments been made there on page 43? I have it noted and I do not know whether I intended to put down "amended" or "amend." I think it was amended; that is my recollection. On page 43 of the bill it reads "there shall be printed of eulogies of deceased Members, Representatives, and Delegates."

Mr. MANDERSON. It is page 41 of the bill, commencing with with line 223.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The paragraph will be read.

Mr. COCKRELL. That has been amended, I think.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

There shall be printed of eulogies of deceased Senators, Representatives, and Delegates, 8,000 copies.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is all right. Then about either page 42 or 43 the clause in reference to the distribution of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD was amended, was it not?

Mr. MANDERSON. I think so.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The paragraph referred to will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

The Public Printer shall furnish the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD as follows: To the Vice-President and each Senator, 44 copies.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is right. Those amendments were made. What amendment has been made on page 63? I want to be sure about that. I refer to the last page of the bill, next to the last section.

No Government publications shall be delivered to officers and employes of Congress—

Mr. MANDERSON. "Except for the use of members thereof," is my impression of what was inserted.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the Chief Clerk read the next to the last clause.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chief Clerk will read as suggested.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

No Government publications shall be delivered to officers and employes of Congress except for the use of members thereof unless authorized by this act.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is all right.

Mr. MANDERSON. In the last line of the bill I move to strike out the word "bill" and insert "act" in lieu thereof.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In line 2 of section 102, page 59, strike out the word "bill" and insert the word "act;" so as to read:

All laws in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MANDERSON. I have one more amendment that I desire to offer. I think it should come in as an independent section, and I will move to insert it after section 98 of the changed bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. The sections will have to be renumbered, the Senator understands.

Mr. MANDERSON. Oh, yes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment moved by the Senator from Nebraska will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to insert a new section as follows:

Sec. —. Heads of Departments are authorized to exchange surplus documents for such other documents and books as may be required by them, when the same can be done to the advantage of the public service.

Mr. MANDERSON. That is to enable heads of Departments who find they have an accumulation of duplicates in their libraries to exchange them for other works needed to complete sets. It is suggested by some of the Departments, and it seems to me that it is a desirable thing to be done.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and was read the third time.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President, I do not propose to detain the Senate any length of time, but I desire to say that in my judgment there are objections to this bill which ought to prevent its passage in the form in which it now stands before the Senate.

The bill proposes by an act of Congress, to which the President's approval is required, that a Joint Committee on Printing shall be created, to consist of three members of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives. The question arises how far it is competent for either House of Congress to divest itself of the power to control its own proceedings and its communication with the people. In my mind there is no doubt upon the subject. The Constitution requires that each House shall determine its own rules of proceeding. The language is:

Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings.

Is this a rule of proceeding? Is the printing or communication which either House of Congress may wish to have with the people a proceeding? Are the methods which it shall employ for the transaction of its business, the publication of its proceedings, of its bills, and its reports, proceedings, and are these methods to be determined by rules of proceeding or are they not?

It is clear, unquestionably, that it is a proceeding of each House; that the method by which it is to be done is a rule of proceeding, and that this is a perpetual power in each House of Congress which can not be divested by any action of anybody, either of the two organic bodies, with the assent of the President of the United States.

The proposed law appoints the committee. The proposed law is incumbent, if it be a law, upon this body to create a joint committee to prescribe the number of the committee; that they shall be three; and then it vests in this unauthorized body of a joint committee unknown to the Constitution and the laws certain powers. They are not an executive body; they are the creation of a law by which the two Houses of Congress and the President determine a rule of proceeding for each House, and takes away from them their power over their own rules of proceeding.

Mr. President, is it important that each House in our theory of government should have the control of its own proceedings and of its own rules of proceeding? Is that an object which should be carefully guarded and preserved? It may be at some time absolutely necessary that each House shall preserve its communication with the people for some important purpose; then this proposed law, if it be a law, will deprive either House of the power to do it.

Mr. MANDERSON. I should like to ask the Senator from Florida a question, with his permission.

Mr. CALL. Certainly.

Mr. MANDERSON. Is the Senator under the impression that this encroachment upon the privileges of either House by a general act is a matter that is new in this bill?

Mr. CALL. I suppose there are some instances to the contrary, but it is new in respect to the public printing of this body; that is, in the extent to which this bill carries it.

Mr. MANDERSON. I beg the permission of the Senator to make a correction.

Mr. CALL. Certainly; I am glad to be corrected if I am wrong.

Mr. MANDERSON. Section 1 of the bill is identical in language with a section of the general statutes that has been the law for nearly forty years. I refer the Senator to page 741 of the revision of 1878, section 3756:

There shall be a Joint Committee on Public Printing, consisting of three members of the Senate, appointed by the President of the Senate, and three members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the Speaker of the House, who shall have the powers hereinafter stated.

So, for nearly forty years this gross violation of the privileges of the Houses of Congress has obtained.

Mr. CALL. I was aware of the statute; but that statute does not proceed so far in its minutiae, in its details in reference to all the proceedings of this body, as does the bill under consideration. But the fact that it was formerly done does not deprive the objection of any of its force and validity. In this bill it is extended to all the proceedings of this body. It even limits the number which may be printed of some of the documents and reports and bills which may be desired by this body. Therefore, while the principle was equally violated forty years ago, it was not violated in the essential respects and in the limitations which this bill provides; and that is the objection to it.

Mr. President, whenever and however it may have been that this body was divested of its right to publish whatever number of public documents it saw fit to do, it was wrong, it was essentially wrong, and it ought not to be further continued. I do not know of any more essential right of any power more absolutely necessary to each house of Congress than the right to declare the number and the kind of communications which it may send forth to the people in vindication of its own proceedings. Yet the whole theory of this bill is that the present Congress shall deny to a future Congress the right to do this without a two-thirds vote; that the majority of this body shall to-day declare to all future Congresses that they shall not exercise this right except upon the consent of two-thirds of their members without the approval of the President of the United States.

Mr. President, without continuing this debate, I wish to say that I regard this as a fatal objection to the bill, and it derives no justification from the fact that it may have been incautiously adopted years ago in reference to some part of the public printing.

There is no necessity for the legislation proposed. The reductions which have been made in the number of copies and in the amount of printing to be done by the Public Printer may be very important. I give the chairman of the committee, the Senator from Nebraska, credit not only for his careful examination of this subject but for his intelligent conduct of the discussion upon this subject; but it does not follow from any of his observations that this precedent ought to be followed now, that this bill should be passed and all its details applied to the proceedings of this body, and that future Houses of Congress shall be prohibited from the publication of documents which they consider important or necessary for the public and for maintaining their own relations with the people at large.

All the proper objects of this bill may be attained equally by a joint committee reporting to each House, and dependent on their sanction and approval. Why not? Why is not the joint committee of the future Houses of Congress equally competent, with the majority of the present Congress, to prescribe limitations to the public printing and to its cost? An intelligent joint committee examining this subject, responsible to the people and to their respective Houses, may, with far better judgment, prescribe a rule for each Congress in reference to the number of public documents than can this Congress without knowledge of the peculiar circumstances and conditions which may surround the future Congresses.

Mr. President, I do not believe that this bill will effect any very great change in the cost of public printing or diminish it, because it creates a great number of additional officials. To my mind that would not be a very serious objection, because the Department of Public Printing is one peculiarly essential to the conduct of public business and useful to the people of the country at large. While a great many documents are published that are unnecessary, there are others of great value, and I should not object to the employment of whatever number of persons, upon an economical scale, may be necessary for the proper conduct of the business, but that they should be placed beyond the control of each House of Congress, that the Senate and the Houses which may assemble in future shall have no right to say anything upon this subject except by the repeal of this law, with the consent of the President or by a two-thirds vote, is, in my judgment, a very serious public evil and equally violative of the theory of our Government constituting these two bodies, and of the Constitution of the United States.

Indeed, it may be said with truth that the preservation of the complete independence of the Senate and the House, and the absolute right of each to determine its rules of proceeding, is absolutely necessary to the continuance of our form of government. To subject their rules and their power to communicate with the people to the veto power of the President is a fatal mistake.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, while I do not agree with all the provisions of this bill, and if I had my way would make very radical changes in it in the line of greater simplicity and greater economy to the Government and to the people, yet I am impressed with the idea that as a whole it is good legislation and ought to be enacted into law. For one I am very glad of an opportunity to express my satisfaction with the very excellent work in the main that the committee have done and the painstaking care with which they have considered the various subjects connected with this proposed statute.

During the Fifty-fifth Congress it was my privilege, as a member of the other House, to be brought in contact with the Government Printing Office, and to learn something of the details of the work there carried on. One thing impressed me more than any other during the investigation of the office then had, and that was the necessity for a new printing house for the Government. I wish to devote a few minutes of time to calling the attention of the Senate to the urgent necessity that exists to-day, not only for legislation to codify the laws relating to printing, but more especially for legislation that will create a printing office that will be adequate to carry on economically and properly the work of the Government in this direction.

After leaving Congress I was exceedingly gratified to learn from the public prints that an appropriation had been made for the purchase of a site with a view to constructing a printing house for the Government. But I learned with great regret upon returning to Washington that for some reason or other that appropriation was not available, and that the construction of a new building was apparently as remote as it had been three years before.

A week or ten days ago I passed through Printing House Square in New York City. I looked with admiration upon the magnificent structures that private enterprise and private money have built for the purpose of accommodating the great newspapers which we are in the habit of reading every morning. There was the superb building which the Tribune Association has constructed, the elegant structure which the World has reared, and the buildings for the other great newspapers in that city, all of which have been built by private enterprise and with private means. I recalled to mind the fact that in the city of Boston the Globe and the Herald have palaces for the purpose of carrying on the work of those newspapers, where the operatives have every possible convenience, where sanitary arrangements are carefully attended to, and where the comfort, happiness, and care of the people who work in those buildings are looked after in every detail, and I remembered that the other large cities of the country are equally well supplied with modern printing establishments. Then my mind wandered back to Washington, and I saw the rickety old building over there on H street, the largest printing house, I believe, in the world, where nearly 3,000 men and women are employed, and I could not but feel that in contrast with what private enterprise has done, the condition of the Government Printing Office is a disgrace to the Congress of the United States.

Mr. President, not only is the Government Printing Office an utterly inadequate building so far as its capacity and comfort are concerned, but if my observations have been correct, its sanitary condition is extremely bad. It could not well be worse in that respect, and there is also great danger, according to the opinions of those who ought to know the facts, that some great calamity may befall the 3,000 people who are employed within those walls. I do not wish to be an alarmist, but nevertheless will venture to say that that printing house is not safe and ought to be condemned. There is danger every day that it may fall to the ground with the weight which is imposed upon it. I have it from a trusted official of the Government Printing Office that he has risen from his bed at night and gone to that building for the purpose of examining it, fearing that it would be crushed by the weight that is necessarily placed upon its floors.

Mr. President, it is a crime for the Government of the United States (and no other word will properly characterize it) to put 3,000 men and women within the walls of a building whose sanitary condition is as bad as that, and which is as unsafe as that building is.

I simply wanted to emphasize that point in rising at this time, and to say to the Senate of the United States that whether this legislation, of which I approve, is passed or not, whether the laws relating to the Government printing are collated and put into proper form or not, an imperative duty rests upon the Joint Committee on Printing, and an equal duty rests upon the Congress of the United States to see to it that an appropriation is forthcoming that will give to the Government a building adequate and proper in which to carry on the printing work of the country. I trust that a liberal appropriation for that purpose may be made at an early day and that the disgraceful condition of things that now exist may be wiped out.

Then, Mr. President, all the operations of the Government Printing Office can be carried on under one roof. The superintendent of documents, provided for in this bill, can have a local habitation in immediate proximity to the other departments of the office, and genuine economy will be practiced through the use of modern appliances, comfortable work rooms, and intelligent supervision. It will be my most earnest desire, during the time I shall be a member of this body, to see the consummation of this much-needed reform; and certainly no effort of mine will be withheld to aid in its accomplishment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is, Shall the bill pass?

Mr. COKE. On that I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FAULKNER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY].

Mr. PALMER (when his name was called). I do not understand the exact significance of pairs upon this question. I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. HANSBROUGH], and I shall not feel at liberty to vote, unless I knew that Senator would vote as I should.

Mr. CASEY. I can say that my colleague Mr. [HANSBROUGH] would vote "yea" on this question.

Mr. PALMER. If I were at liberty to vote I should vote "nay."

Mr. PUGH (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR]. On this question I am satisfied he would vote "yea," and I vote "yea."

Mr. SHERMAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. CARLISLE]; but I understand there is no politics in this vote, and as I believe he would vote the same way that I do, I vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. FAULKNER. I desire to state that my colleague [Mr. KENNA] is paired with the junior Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT]. My colleague is necessarily detained from the Senate.

Mr. CALL (after having voted in the negative). I wish to inquire if the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROCTOR] has voted?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted.

Mr. CALL. Then I withdraw my vote, as I am paired with him.

Mr. HISCOCK. I should like to inquire if a quorum has voted. I am paired with the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES], with the right to vote to make a quorum.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair is informed that no quorum has yet voted.

Mr. HISCOCK. Then I vote "yea."

Mr. CASEY. I desire to state that my colleague [Mr. HANSBROUGH] is detained from the Chamber by sickness.

Mr. MANDERSON. I have voted notwithstanding my pair with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN], because I am satisfied that he would vote "yea" if he were here; and I also vote to make a quorum.

The result was announced—yeas 41, nays 6; as follows:

YEAS—41.

Allen,	Dolph,	Morgan,	Squire,
Alison,	Dubois,	Morrill,	Stewart,
Blodgett,	Frye,	Paddock,	Stockbridge,

So the bill was passed.

FOOD AND DRUG ADULTERATION.

Mr. PADDOCK. Pursuant to the understanding had several days ago, I now ask that Senate bill No. 1 be taken up.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be laid before the Senate.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill S. 1 for preventing the adulteration and misbranding of food and drugs, and for other purposes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read at length.

Mr. PADDOCK. The amendment in the nature of a substitute is the bill which I desire to have considered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be read.

The CHIEF CLERK. The amendment of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry is to strike out all after the enacting clause of the bill and insert:

That, for the purpose of protecting the commerce in food products and drugs between the several States and Territories of the United States and foreign countries, the Secretary of Agriculture shall organize in the Department of Agriculture a section to be known as the food section of the chemical division, and make necessary rules governing the same, to carry out the provisions of this act under direction of the chief chemist, whose duty it shall be to procure from time to time, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture, and analyze or cause to be analyzed or examined samples of food and drugs sold or offered for sale in any State or Territory other than where manufactured. The Secretary of Agriculture is hereby authorized to employ such chemists, inspectors, clerks, laborers and other employees as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 2. That the introduction into any State or Territory from any other State or Territory or foreign country of any article of food or drugs which is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this act is hereby prohibited, and any person who shall knowingly ship or deliver for shipment from any State or Territory or foreign country to any other State or Territory, or who shall knowingly receive in any State or Territory from any other State or Territory or foreign country, or who, having so received, shall knowingly deliver, for pay or otherwise, or offer to deliver to any person, any such article so adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and for such offense be fined not exceeding $500 for the first offense, and for each subsequent offense not exceeding $300, or be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 3. That the chief chemist shall make, or cause to be made, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture, examinations of specimens of food and drugs which may be collected from time to time, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture, and under his direction in various parts of the country, and publish in bulletins the results of such analyses. But the names of manufacturers or vendors of such foods or drugs analyzed shall in no case be published in such bulletins until after conviction in the courts of violation of this act. If it shall appear from such examination that any of the provisions of this act have been violated the Secretary of Agriculture shall at once cause a report of the fact to be made to the proper United States district attorney, with a copy of the results of the analysis duly authenticated by the analyst under oath.

SEC. 4. That it shall be the duty of every district attorney to whom the food section shall report any violation of this act to cause proceedings to be commenced and prosecuted without delay for the fines and penalties in such case provided, unless, upon inquiry and examination, he shall decide that such proceedings can not probably be sustained, in which case he shall report the facts to the food section.

SEC. 5. That the term "drug," as used in this act, shall include all medicines for internal or external use. The term "food," as used herein, shall include all articles used for food or drunk by man, whether simple, mixed, or compound. The term "misbranded," as used herein, shall include all drugs, or articles of food, or which enter into the composition of food, the package or label of which shall bear any statement purporting to name any ingredients or substances as not being contained in such article, which statement shall be false in any particular; or any statement purporting to name the substances of which such article is made, which statement shall not fully give the names of all the substances contained in such article in any measurable quantities.

SEC. 6. That for the purposes of this act an article shall be deemed to be adulterated—

In case of drugs:

First. If when sold under or by a name recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia it differs from the standard of strength, quality, or purity according to the tests laid down therein.

Second. If when sold under or by a name not recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia, but which is found in some other pharmacopoeia or other standard work on materia medica, it differs materially from the standard of strength, quality, or purity according to the tests laid down in said work.

Third. If its strength or purity fall below the professed standard under which it is sold.

Fourth. If it be an imitation of and sold under the specific name of another article.

In the case of food or drink:

First. If any substance or substances has or have been mixed and packed with it so as to reduce or lower or injuriously affect its quality or strength, so that such product, when offered for sale, shall be calculated and shall tend to deceive the purchaser.

Second. If any inferior substance or substances has or have been substituted wholly or in part for the article, so that the product, when sold, shall tend to deceive the purchaser.

Third. If any valuable constituent of the article has been wholly or in part abstracted, so that the product, when sold, shall tend to deceive the purchaser.

Fourth. If it be an imitation of and sold under the specific name of another article.

Fifth. If it be mixed, colored, powdered, or stained in a manner whereby damage is concealed, so that such product, when sold, shall tend to deceive the purchaser.

Sixth. If it contain any added poisonous ingredient or any ingredient which may render such article injurious to the health of the person consuming it.

Seventh. If it consists of the whole or any part of a diseased, filthy, decomposed, or putrid animal or vegetable substance, or any portion of an animal, unfit for food, whether manufactured or not, or if it is the product of a diseased animal, or of an animal that has died otherwise than by slaughter.

Provided, That an article of food or drug which does not contain any added poisonous ingredient shall not be deemed to be adulterated.

First, in the case of mixtures or compounds which may be now or from time to time hereafter known as articles of food under their own distinctive names, and not included in definition fourth of this section;

Second, in the case of articles labeled, branded, or tagged, so as to plainly indicate that they are mixtures, compounds, combinations, or blends;

Third, when any matter or ingredient has been added to the food or drug because the same is required for the production or preparation thereof as an article of commerce in a state fit for carriage or consumption, and not fraudulently to increase the bulk, weight, or measure of the food or drug, or conceal the inferior quality thereof: Provided, That the same shall be labeled, branded, or tagged, as prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture, so as to show them to be compounds and the exact character thereof: And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be construed as requiring or compelling proprietors or manufacturers of proprietary medicines to disclose their trade formulas;

Fourth, where the food or drug is unavoidably mixed with some extraneous matter in the process of collection or preparation.

SEC. 7. That every person manufacturing or exposing for sale or delivering to a purchaser any drug or article of food included in the provisions of this act shall furnish a sample of such drugs or articles of food to any person duly authorized by the Secretary of Agriculture to receive the same, and who shall apply to such manufacturer or vendor, or person delivering to a purchaser such drug or article of food for such sample for such use, in sufficient quantity for the analysis of any such article or articles in his possession, and shall tender him the full value thereof. And in the presence of such dealer and an agent of the food section, if so desired by either party, said sample shall be divided into three parts and each part shall be sealed by the seal of the food section. One part shall be left with the dealer, one delivered to the food section, and one deposited with the United States district attorney for the district in which the sample is taken. Said manufacturer or dealer may have the sample left with him analyzed at his own expense, and if the results of said analysis differ from those of the food section, the sample in the hands of the district attorney shall be analyzed by a third chemist, who shall be appointed by the president of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists of the United States, in the presence of the chemist of the food section and the chemist representing the dealer and the whole evidence shall be laid before the court.

SEC. 8. That whoever refuses to comply, upon demand, with the requirements of section 7 of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be fined not exceeding $100 nor less than $10, or imprisoned not exceeding one hundred nor less than thirty days, or both. And any person found guilty of manufacturing, or knowingly offering for sale, or selling an adulterated, impure, or misbranded article of food or drug under the provisions of this act shall be adjudged to pay, in addition to the penalties heretofore provided for, all the necessary costs and expenses incurred in inspecting and analyzing such adulterated articles which said person may have been found guilty of manufacturing, selling, or offering for sale.

SEC. 9. That in prosecutions for violations of any of the provisions of this act proof of the act done shall be held to imply knowledge and intent on the part of the accused, unless such knowledge and intent shall be disproved on the trial. If it be shown that said dealer is innocent of any intentional fraud, then the action in court shall be against the dealers having furnished the accused the articles in question, and these dealers shall be parties to the suit.

SEC. 10. That this act shall not be construed to interfere with commerce wholly internal in any State, nor with the exercise of their police powers by the several States.

SEC. 11. That for the purpose of enabling the Secretary of Agriculture to carry this law into effect, there is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $100,000.

Mr. PADDOCK. In the last Congress, when this bill was reported by the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, a somewhat extended report accompanied the bill. I desire to have read as the report for the bill at this time certain portions of that report which I have marked, and which I will send to the Secretary's desk.

Mr. BATE. There is no objection to that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PASCO in the chair). The parts marked in the report will be read if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

The Chief Clerk read from the report submitted by Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, June 16, 1890, as follows:

The object of the proposed law is to provide for the inspection and to prohibit the introduction of, adulterated or misbranded foods or drugs into any State or Territory, or the District of Columbia, from any other State or Territory, or foreign country, and to provide, through the Department of Agriculture, proper administrative machinery for its enforcement.

The Department of Agriculture was chosen as the Department to which the execution of the law should be properly assigned, because it has for several years been carrying on investigations and examinations of a character similar to that which it would be required to perform under the provisions of the proposed legislation. The division of chemistry has made exhaustive researches into food adulteration. Five bulletins already issued not only give evidence of the excellent equipment of the Department for scientific work of this nature, but furnish a mass of conclusive arguments for the enactment of the law itself. These investigations afford a startling exhibit of the prevalence of food adulteration throughout the country and the widespread extent of the sophistication of articles of daily consumption by the people.

If the National Government is to interpose, to prevent, as your committee believes it should, the damage to health and morals which the practices of dishonest dealers are working in every community, it seems desirable that the information already gained and the experience acquired in the Department of Agriculture should be utilized. As the proper enforcement of the law will depend very largely upon accurate scientific investigations, it was felt that the officers charged with its execution should be connected with a distinctly scientific department.

Another reason, equally strong, presented itself as an argument for placing the execution of the law under the Department of Agriculture. By far the greater part of the articles of food consumption which would be beneficially affected by legislation of the character proposed are the products of American agriculture. The American farmer is primarily most deeply interested as a producer in the passage of laws which will maintain the standard of purity which he sets up for himself in the productions of his dairy, his meadow, his apiary, and his swinepen. Declining prices and restricted markets, the results of the sophistication of foods after they have passed from his hands, withdrawal of the confidence of consumers, which is affecting alike the reputation of the producer and the product, all have combined to arouse the American farmer to the necessity of such legislation by Congress as may be needed to supplement the imperfect and consequently ineffective legislation of the States.

The importance of the subject of adulteration has been conceded since the earliest times, and governments have been called to deal with it for centuries past. But it has only been since the great opportunities for fraud provided by modern science, and especially modern chemistry, have presented themselves that the sophistication of articles of commerce has reached its present height. Science has been called upon in the interest of honesty to trace and detect the frauds of scientific dishonesty, and the microscope, test tube, retort, and chemical reagent have opened to view the grave and growing consequences of a greed for gain which is assailing the public health, affecting the pocket of the consumer, and undermining what is so aptly denominated by Dr. Hassall as the very foundation of trade, viz., "Faith in commercial integrity." The report upon House bill 10320, from the Committee on Agriculture, Fifth Congress, tersely sums up the situation as follows:

"That one of the first considerations of every civilized government is its food supply can not be controverted, nor can it be contested that the purity of the supply is as important as the supply itself. Quantity alone will not meet the demand; quality, within certain limits, is as necessary to health and the prolongation of life as quantity is to its preservation.

"The recent exhaustive examination into the alleged adulteration of food by this committee demonstrated the prevalence of covetous and dishonest practices in the degeneration, counterfeit, and substitution of commodities by which inferior, cheaper, and sometimes injurious articles were made to represent those of standard quality and absolute purity.

"This state of facts amounts not only to a premium upon dishonesty, but is a threat to national health. Honest manufacturers and dealers are placed at a disadvantage or are forced into a reckless competition with fraud. Legitimate trade is handicapped and demoralized. It tends to make an Ishmaelite of both manufacturer and dealer, and the hand that is raised against competitors in trade falls in the case of the meat industries of the country necessarily upon the seven millions and over of farmers who produce the supply and fraudulently upon the entire population that consumes it at second hand."

"The same application can be made to every other manufactured food product which is the subject of fraudulent compounding and sophistications; and investigation has established that few articles of diet are exempt. While it is true that by far the greater proportion of these adulterations are commercial frauds, and not necessarily poisonous in character, it is undisputed that trickery and dishonesty have not stopped at the line of mere sophistication, and that in many instances unscrupulous manufacturers, manipulators, compounders, and dealers have not hesitated to color, stuff, and revamp their wares with dyes, drugs, and minerals of a death-dealing nature.

"A great variety of such substances," says Dr. Hassall, the eminent English expert, "are used for the purpose of adulteration. We have ourselves detected among others the following: The three chromates of lead, the three chromic blues, which are mixtures of the chromates of lead and indigo or Prussian blue, red oxide of lead or red lead, arsenite of copper, etc." "The list, it will be observed, contains the names of some of the most virulent poisons."

The Special Agent of the Agricultural Department, in Bulletin No. 25 of the division of chemistry, Department of Agriculture, after an exhaustive investigation of the subject, says:

"The investigations of the writer show, as will, I think, be conclusively proved by the evidence adduced, that adulteration of our food products is generally and steadily increasing. That most of these adulterations belong to the second class, namely the noninjurious to health, is a cause for congratulation, and in many cases of adulteration prejudicial to health the use of such adulterants ought to be charged rather to ignorance than to malice. The result to the consumer, however, is just as grievous, and calls as loudly for his protection from deleterious compounds fraudulently introduced into food, drink, and drugs as though he were the victim of malice.

"It may be noted here that among the most poisonous adulterants in use are those used to color and cheapen confectionery and liquors. Now, setting aside for a moment the consideration of this most grievous sort of adulteration, by which the public health is injured, we find what we have styled "non-injurious adulteration" so common that estimates as to the amount of which the American people are annually defrauded in this manner are simply appalling. Several features of this great and growing evil demand special consideration. First, this fraud bears most heavily upon the uneducated and the poor. While the poor man is compelled to patronize cheap stores, and in his struggle for existence and his endeavor to provide the quantity necessary to supply the daily wants of himself and family, is driven to purchase cheap goods, the rich man can to a certain extent protect himself by confining his dealings to the most reputable tradesmen and paying the highest prices.

"Again, we find that adulteration of many of our food products results in cheapening the product of the turn, thus lessening the profits of the husbandman and robbing both consumer and producer. It must not be forgotten, too, that even though adulterated with matter not positively injurious to health, such food, drugs, or liquors can not be as nutritious and wholesome as the pure articles, and especially important does this feature of adulteration become in the matter of drugs used to prevent or cure disease. To be fed on debased and poisoned food, tainted or diseased meat, until the body sinks is surely bad enough without the efforts of the physician to prevent or allay disease being frustrated by his inability to secure unadulterated drugs and remedies fitted to do his work."

The charge made by English chemists and the parliamentary commission that adulteration and sophistication was prevalent in every class of food products examined has been fully borne out in this country. A mere glance over the articles analyzed by state and national chemists with the results of the analyses is sufficient to show the startling prevalence of fraud in the manufacture and sale of products in daily consumption in our homes. It is shown that from bread to wine, through the whole commercial alphabet, dishonest and mercenary manufacturers are busily engaged in robbing the public to increase profits. In England, Hassall, and in our country Prof. Sharpless, the chemists of the Bureau of Agriculture and of various State boards of health have printed classified lists of adulterants commonly found in articles of food.

Of articles of food subject to adulteration the proportion which is adulterated is nothing if not startling. Dr. Lattimore, analyst of the New York State Board of Health, reported that of 375 articles of diet in daily use in every household 255, or more than two-thirds, were found to be adulterated. Of 265 samples of so-called cream of tartar analyzed, only 53 were unadulterated.

These reports are fully borne out by the investigations made by the American Society for the Prevention of the Adulteration of Food, which has done brave work in attracting public attention to the crying need of a national law to prevent these commercial frauds. The chemist of the society gives the following results of examinations made by himself and compared with the similar work of other examining analysts:

"Average of the per cent of adulteration of the more common articles of food and drugs: Olive oil, 60 per cent; castor-oil, 20 per cent; blue ointment, 61 per cent; tincture opium, 58 per cent; spices and condiments, 68 per cent; candies, 33 per cent; sirups, 50 per cent; cream tartar 40 per cent; baking powder, 44 per cent; butter, 40 per cent; bread and pastry, 15 per cent; milk, 40 per cent; lower grade sugar, 20 per cent; lard 70 per cent; tea, 40 per cent; ground coffee, 49 per cent; cider vinegar, 80 per cent; ice cream, 55 per cent; chocolate, 38 per cent; honey, 24 per cent; wine, 40 per cent; beer, 45 per cent; spirituous liquors, 33 per cent."

The enormous amount of adulterated food products under false pretenses can not be questioned in the face of the facts presented, or the menace to health in many of the adulterations used. But there is another point of view as important as it is practical, viz, the effect of these practices upon the pocket of the consumer. It is manifest from the investigations made that price no longer guarantees purity. But even where this is the case the wealthy alone reap the benefits. The purchasers of the inferior, because the cheaper, articles are naturally those of most moderate means. The robbery through food adulteration therefore falls most heavily on the poor. The annual sum gained by these commercial pickpockets is startling.

It is estimated by one of the leading trade journals of the United States that 2 per cent. of the entire food supply of this country is sophisticated. Taking the conservative estimate of $1,500,000,000 as the total value of the food supply consumed in the United States annually, there is, upon this basis of estimation, $90,000,000 a year of fraudulent food products foisted upon consumers. Dr. Abbott, of the Massachusetts board of health, asserts that in that State, as the result of stringent food and drug inspection laws, there has been a saving of 5 per cent. to the people in the increased purity of food products.

If the same results of deterrent legislation could prevail throughout the country, the annual saving to the consumer through pure food would reach a stupendous sum.

But there is another standpoint hardly less vital from which the importance of the subject presents itself. That is from the side of the food producer whose products are sophisticated and misbranded and whose market for a pure product is restricted because of the suspicion of fraud which discredits the purity of the products subject to adulteration. Both Houses of Congress have been deluged with petitions from farmers' organizations during the present session praying for legislation which will compel the manufacturers of hog products to conform to the laws of commercial honesty. They complain, and justly, that the sale of compounded products under the name of the genuine article is destroying a remunerative market for their hogs by displacing millions of pounds of pure lard with articles of a cheaper quality sold under the same name.

Our export market is already suffering from the discredit thrown upon American food products. Prosecutions in England of tradesmen selling adulterated American food has cast suspicion on other products. National inspection abroad is so rigid and thorough that its absence in this country is taken as evidence of a studied disinclination on the part of our Government to protect consumers against commercial avarice and fraud. In consequence there is an alarming decrease noticeable in the export demand of articles most subject to adulteration and which need most inspection to assure their edibility and healthfulness. Nothing but Congressional action can relieve the situation.

The demand for legislation by Congress to prevent dangerous adulterations and the sophistication of foods and drugs has been yearly increasing since attention has been directed by various State boards of health and commissions to the alarming prevalence of fraud in the preparation and sale of foods and medicines. In nine States pure-food laws are already operative. There is no dissent to the verdict that their operation and application have within the limited lines of State jurisdiction been productive of good, both by materially decreasing fraud through the fear of exposure and in inculcating greater watchfulness on the part of the purchasers and consumers. But, however efficient State regulation has been, it has entirely failed to meet the requirements of the situation, owing to the Federal restrictions against interference by local authorities with interstate commerce.

Repeated decisions of the courts have so contracted the surveillance of the States as to leave a wide and steadily growing margin which State legislation is incompetent to reach. But barely one-fourth of the States have awakened to the need of stamping out fraud in the manufacture and sale of these products, or have exercised their rights of inspection to the extent of their capacity. As a result throughout the greater part of the country, as shown by the most careful national investigation, the adulteration and sophistication of foods continue but slightly checked. The recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Lelsy vs. Hardin, better known as the original liquor package case, and the Minnesota dressed beef cases make legislation by Congress imperative if any legislation is to be effective.

The bill reported by your committee is believed to be at once conservative and comprehensive. It is drawn, in my judgment, alike in the interests of the honest manufacturer and of the general consuming public. It will render unnecessary the enactment of laws directed against special interests or designed to supplement trade jealousies. By its passage, adulteration and sophistication in foods and drugs will, it is believed, be reduced to the minimum, commercial integrity bulwarked by the detection and punishment of dishonest dealers, and millions of dollars annually saved now abstracted from the pockets of consumers. Supplemented as it has been by legislation dealing with the inspection of products of the slaughter houses intended for foreign sale, it will strengthen and build up a declining export trade in American food products and materially lighten the load now carried by the American farmer.

Mr. SAWYER. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. PADDOCK. I ask the Senator to yield to me for a moment.

Mr. SAWYER. All right; I withdraw the motion for the present.

Mr. PADDOCK. I desire simply to state that I understand the arrangement to be that this bill will go over as the unfinished business until to-morrow after the morning hour, and that it will come up at 2 o'clock as the regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is the parliamentary situation of the bill.

Mr. PADDOCK. I yield to the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SAWYER].

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. SAWYER. I renew my motion that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 4 o'clock and 50 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, February 16, 1892, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate February 15, 1892.

ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTER PLENIPOTENTIARY.

Rowland B. Mahany, of New York, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Ecuador.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT JUDGE.

Joseph McKenna, of California, to be United States circuit judge for the ninth judicial circuit, vice Lorenzo Sawyer, deceased.

ASSISTANT SURGEON IN THE NAVY.

Merritt Wright Barnum, a resident of New York, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy, to fill a vacancy in that grade.

POSTMASTERS.

Samuel B. Boder, to be postmaster at Boulder, in the county of Boulder and State of Colorado, in the place of Valentine Butsch, whose commission expires February 28, 1892.

Le Baron B. Willard, to be postmaster at Greeley, in the county of Weld and State of Colorado, in the place of Rudolph H. Johns, whose commission expires February 28, 1892.

Samuel F. Cole, to be postmaster at Pella, in the county of Marion and State of Iowa, in the place of John H. Stubenrauch, whose commission expires February 24, 1892.

Joseph H. Reynolds, to be postmaster at Harlan, in the county of Shelby and State of Iowa, in the place of Jonathan B. Stutsman, whose commission expired February 9, 1892.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, February 15, 1892.

The House was called to order at 12 o'clock m. by the Clerk, Hon. JAMES KERR, who read the following communication:

Hon. JAMES KERR,
Clerk House of Representatives.

I name Hon. BRENTON McMELEN to perform the duties of the Chair for this day.

CHARLES F. CRISP, Speaker.

Mr. McMELEN accordingly took the chair as Speaker pro tempore.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Saturday was read and approved.

WILLIAM McDONALD VS. THE UNITED STATES.

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House a letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the findings of the court in the French spoliation claims case of William McDonald vs. The United States; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:
To Mr. TAYLOR of Tennessee, for ten days, on account of important business.

To Mr. BACON, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

To Mr. SCOTT, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois (on motion of Mr. SCOTT), indefinitely, on account of sickness.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA SUBURBAN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. RICHARDSON, by unanimous consent, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, submitted a report to accompany the bill (H. R. 429) to incorporate the District of Columbia Suburban Railway Company; which was ordered to be printed, and referred to the House Calendar.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will direct the Clerk to read the first clause of Rule XXVIII, which defines the order of business for this day's session.

The Clerk read as follows:

No standing rule or order of the House shall be rescinded or changed without one day's notice of the motion therefor, and no rule shall be suspended except by a vote of two-thirds of the members present; nor shall the Speaker entertain a motion to suspend the rules except on the first and third Mondays of each month, preference being given on the first Monday to individuals, and on the third Monday to committees, and during the last six days of a session.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will, under the rule just read, call the committees for motions to suspend the rules. Under this rule authority from the committee is required in order to entitle a member to make the motion to suspend the rules.

PORT OF OGDENSBURG, N. Y.

Mr. WISE (when the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce was called). Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H. R. 610) extending the privileges of the first and seventh sections of the act approved June 10, 1880, governing the transportation of merchandise without appraisement to the port of Ogdensburg, in the State of New York.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The bill will be read.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the privileges of the first and seventh sections of the act approved June 10, 1880, governing the transportation of merchandise without appraisement, be, and the same are hereby, extended to the port of Ogdensburg, in the State of New York.

Mr. WISE. I will simply state, Mr. Speaker, that the bill has been referred to the Secretary of the Treasury. It involves no expenditure—

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I believe debate is not in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Debate is not in order at this time. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Virginia to suspend the rules and pass the bill. Is a second to the motion demanded?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I demand a second, but am perfectly willing, Mr. Speaker, that a second may be considered as ordered.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Speaker, I object to that.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Then the question is on seconding the demand of the gentleman from Virginia, and the Chair will appoint as tellers the gentleman from Virginia, Mr. WISE, and the gentleman from Tennessee, Mr. RICHARDSON.

Mr. OATES. Let the title of the bill be again read.

The title of the bill was again read.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my demand for a second. It was made under a misapprehension as to the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If there be no further demand for a second it will be considered as ordered.

There was no further demand.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule thirty minutes are now allowed for debate, fifteen on either side; and the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Virginia to control the time in support of the motion.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Virginia, before he proceeds, have the act to which this bill refers read for information?

Mr. WISE. I will state to the gentleman that I have sent for the act, and will have it read as soon as it reaches me.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say nothing except that this bill has been referred to the Secretary of the Treasury and meets his approval; it involves no expenditure, but is simply designed to extend to this port of Ogdensburg the same privilege that has been extended to numerous other ports in the United States.

I have now before me the act in question to which the gentleman from Alabama refers.

Mr. OATES. I hope the gentleman will have it read.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I will have the first and seventh sections of the act read for the information of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES]. They are the sections which it is proposed to amend.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the sections.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That when any merchandise, other than explosive articles, and articles in bulk not provided for in section 4 (1) of this act, imported at the ports of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Portland and Bath, in Maine, Chicago, Port Huron, Detroit, New Orleans, Norfolk, Charleston, Savannah, Mobile, Galveston, Pensacola, Florida, Cleveland, Toledo, and San Francisco, shall appear by the invoice or bill of lading and manifest of the importing vessel to be consigned to and destined for either of the ports specified in the seventh section of this act, the collector at the port of arrival shall allow the said merchandise to be shipped immediately after the entry prescribed in section 2 of this act has been made.

Mr. McCREARY. Now, Mr. Speaker, I ask for the reading of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The bill has been read, but if there be no objection it will be reported again.

The bill was again read.

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope the report will be read.

Mr. OATES. Let the Clerk read the seventh section of the act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report section 7. The Clerk read as follows:

Sec. 7. That the privilege of immediate transportation shall extend to the ports of New York and Buffalo, in New York; Burlington, in Vermont; Boston, in Massachusetts; Providence and Newport, in Rhode Island; New Haven, Middletown, and Hartford, in Connecticut; Philadelphia and Pittsburg, in Pennsylvania; Baltimore, Crisfield, and Annapolis, in Maryland; Wilmington and Seaford, in Delaware; Salem, Massachusetts; Georgetown, in the District of Columbia; Norfolk, Richmond, and Petersburg, in Virginia; Wilmington and New Bern, in North Carolina; Charleston and Port Royal, in South Carolina; Savannah and Brunswick, in Georgia; New Orleans, in Louisiana; Portland and Bath, in Maine; Portsmouth, in New Hampshire; Chicago, Cairo, Alton, and Quincy, in Illinois; Detroit, Port Huron, and Grand Haven, in Michigan; St. Louis, Kansas City, and St. Joseph, in Missouri; St. Paul, in Minnesota; Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Toledo, in Ohio; Milwaukee and La Crosse, in Wisconsin; Louisville, in Kentucky.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it is necessary to read that seventh section any further. It simply shows that since the original act was passed this privilege has been extended to numerous ports, and there are other acts by which it has also been extended to other ports than those named in the seventh section. I want to state also that this does not involve the expenditure of another dollar.

Mr. HOLMAN. This is already a port of delivery?

Mr. WISE. Yes, sir.

Mr. OATES. And it does not interfere with customs collections.

Mr. WISE. Not at all. It is unanimously reported by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and there can certainly be no objection to it.

Mr. OATES. I have no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WISE] desire the remainder of the section read?

Mr. WISE. No, sir; I do not think so. My friend from Alabama does not wish it read any further.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WISE] to suspend the rules and pass the bill which has been reported.

The question was taken and two-thirds voting in favor thereof the rules were suspended and the bill passed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The Committee on Rivers and Harbors having been called—

Mr. BLANCHARD said:

Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the Committee on Rivers and

SENATE.

TUESDAY, February 16, 1892.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.
The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

CREDENTIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented the credentials of JOHN SHERMAN, chosen by the Legislature of Ohio a Senator from that State for the term beginning March 4, 1893; which were read, and ordered to be filed.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a communication from the chief of the division of stationery, printing, and blanks of that Department, stating that the Public Printer has informed the Department that the Treasury allotment of $285,000 for printing and binding for the current fiscal year is exhausted, estimating that it will require the additional sum of $100,000 for that service for the remainder of the fiscal year, and recommending that an appropriation of that amount be included in the urgent deficiency bill; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a favorable recommendation, a letter from the Acting Judge-Advocate-General of the Army, submitting a draft of a bill to authorize the administration of oaths by certain civil and military officers of the United States; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. BLODGETT presented petitions collected by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, signed by 50 citizens of New Jersey, and petitions collected by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, signed by 133 citizens of New Jersey, praying that no exposition or exhibition for which appropriations are made by Congress shall be opened on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. FAULKNER presented a petition of Forest Grange, No. 29, Patrons of Husbandry, of Jefferson County, W. Va., praying for the passage of the pure-food bill now pending in the Senate; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. FAULKNER. I present a petition, signed by B. F. Eshleman and 31 other citizens of New Orleans, La., praying that the present postal law which provides for third and fourth class mail matter may be changed so as to consolidate both classes into one, to be designated as the third class, and that the rate of postage be fixed at 1 cent for 2 ounces. I also present a similar petition, signed by J. L. Lyons & Co. and 40 other citizens and firms of New Orleans, La., making the same prayer. I will state that I present these petitions at the request of the junior Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE], who was unexpectedly called from the city yesterday. I move that the petitions be referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. GORDON presented a resolution adopted by the Savannah Cotton Exchange, indorsing the action of the convention held at Kansas City, Mo., December 15 and 16, 1891, in reference to the improvement of the Missouri River; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. DOLPH presented a petition of the Board of Trade, of Oregon City, Oregon, praying that increased appropriations be made for the improvement of the Columbia River and other rivers of Oregon; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. PADDOCK presented a petition of the State Beet Sugar Convention of Nebraska, praying that an appropriation of $50,000 be made for the establishment of a sugar school at Lincoln, Nebr.; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a petition of the Board of Trade of Tampa, Fla., praying that an appropriation be made for maintaining the special fast railway mail service between New York and Florida; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of the State Grange of Nebraska, Patrons of Husbandry, praying for the prompt passage of the pending pure-food bill, or some similar measure, to protect the people against the adulteration of food and drugs; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PERKINS presented a petition of the Ministerial Union of Topeka, Kans., praying for the prohibition of the liquor traffic in the national capital; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. WILSON presented a petition of 21 citizens of Monroe County, Iowa, praying for the passage of what is commonly known as the Conger land bill; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a memorial of 8 citizens of Salt Lake City, Utah, remonstrating against the passage of the so-called Faulkner-Caine and Teller bills in reference to the Territory of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. ALLEN presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Port Townsend, Wash., praying that suitable appropriation be made for the completion of the customs building at that place in accordance with the original design of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department; which was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also presented a resolution passed at a special meeting of the Thurston County (Wash.) Farmers' Alliance, held at Tumwater, Wash., favoring the free delivery of mail in rural districts and the extension of the money-order system to all fourth-class post-offices; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. MANDERSON presented a petition of citizens of York County, Nebr., praying for the passage of what is known as the Butterworth option bill; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of the congregation of the United Presbyterian Church of Salineville, Ohio, praying for the passage of legislation looking to the closing of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. BRICE presented a petition of 15 citizens of Carroll County, Ohio, praying for the passage of what is commonly known as the option bill; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of Farmers' Grange, No. 13, Patrons of Husbandry, of Wayneville, Ohio, praying for the passage of the measure known as the anti-option bill; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of 28 citizens of Johnston, Ohio, praying that no exposition where United States funds are expended be opened on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a petition of 42 citizens of Carroll County, Ohio, praying for the passage of what is commonly known as the Conger land bill; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. HANSBROUGH presented a memorial of the officers and members of the congregation of the Gurley Memorial Presbyterian Church of Washington, D. C., remonstrating against the proposed repeal of the act prohibiting the sale of liquor within one mile of the Soldiers' Home grounds; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. VANCE. The bill (S. 141) providing an income tax to pay pensions and the salaries of retired officers was referred to the Committee on Finance. I am instructed by that committee to report it back adversely and to move its indefinite postponement on the ground that it is a revenue bill and should originate elsewhere.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. GALLINGER, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 741) to incorporate the Eclectic Medical Society of the District of Columbia, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. VILAS, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 574) to change the boundaries of the Uncompahgre Reservation, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. MORGAN. I am instructed by the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1518) to extend the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States, as the same is defined in section 709 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, to include the judgments and decrees of the highest courts of the Cherokee, Creek, Seminole, Choctaw, and Chickasaw tribes of Indians, respectively, to report it without amendment. Within a few days I shall ask permission to present a written report thereon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the calendar.

WASHINGTON MARKET COMPANY.

Mr. McMILLAN. From the Committee on the District of Columbia I report favorably, with an amendment, the resolution submitted by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] directing the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to inform the Senate in regard to the pavement of B street, between Seventh and Ninth streets NW., in front of the Center Market. I ask for the immediate consideration of the resolution.

Mr. DAWES. I have not risen for the purpose of making any opposition to that report. It is a subject-matter which to those of us who have been here some time it is not new; it has all been under investigation. I rose simply to ask to have read at the desk the answer of the market company to this proposition, that it may appear in connection with the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution submitted by Mr. MORGAN on the 10th instant, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate. That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby directed to inform the Senate under what authority and under what appropriation B street, between Seventh and Ninth streets NW., in front of the Center Market, has been paved 20 feet out from the footwalk on each side, while the rest of the carriage-way is left as heretofore. Also, under what authority of law the Washington Market Company has been allowed to obstruct the footwalks of said B street, in front of said market house, by the erection of an elevator, a stairway, and an eating house thereon, and the width of said footwalks and the number of feet said obstructions are extended out from the building line, with the amount of rental received per month by said market company for said eating house.

Also, under what law the said market company is allowed to space off and rent out the footwalks on B and Ninth streets, around the Center Market, to farmers and others, and what is the total amount received annually by said market company for rent of said spaces, and what disposition is made of the money.

Also, if the corporation attorney for the District of Columbia, or his assistant, has given an opinion adverse to the right of said market company to jurisdiction over the footwalks outside of its walls, or to collect rents for the use thereof; and, if so, what action, if any, has been taken upon said opinion.

Also, the amount of franchise rental paid to the District of Columbia by said market company for the year ending June 30, 1891; whether said franchise rental has been reduced, which was fixed in amount and set aside by act of Congress for the benefit of the poor of Washington; and, if so, how much, and for what reason or reasons.

Also that said Commissioners furnish a statement showing the assessed value of the land and improvements of the Washington Market Company under the assessment recently made.

And also, a statement of the rental paid said market company for the District militia armory during the year ending June 30, 1891, and the amount paid said market company by farmers and others for the use of footwalks covering the same period, stated separately, with the total of said amounts, and whether they do not amount to more than the franchise rental received from said company for the benefit of the poor during the same period.

Also under what law or permit the Washington Market Company has been granted permission to erect a bridge leading from Pennsylvania avenue on the line of Eighth street to said market, with the number of square feet of land occupied by said bridge, its market value, and what rental is paid for the use of the same, and if said bridge was not erected for the purpose of giving access to certain rooms over said market building, to enable said market company to rent said upper rooms to the District government for an armory, and if the amount of rental paid for said upper rooms does not amount to more than the entire rental paid for all the other District buildings that are used for executive or clerical purposes.

Also, a statement showing under what law said market company is allowed to hold possession of the two squares of ground bounded by Tenth and Twelfth streets, B street, and Ohio and Louisiana avenues, given by act of Congress to the city of Washington for a wholesale market; the present assessed value of said squares; what rental said market company receives for them, and what proportion of said rentals, if any, is paid over to the District of Columbia; and why farmers are not required to sell their produce on said squares, as required by act of Congress approved May 29, 1870, instead of selling said produce on the public streets, in violation of law, and to the great obstruction thereof.

Also, the date of the establishment of a cold storage and ice plant by said market company, and the extra quantity of water used in consequence thereof, with the date that water meters were put on to measure water used by said company, and if there was any increase in the water rents charged against said company in consequence of the extra water used by said plants up to the time meters were put on, and if there was no increase in said water rents the reason why said market company has not been required to pay its just proportion of water rents as private citizens are required to pay.

Also, if said market company is in arrears for special assessment or other taxes, and if so, to what amount, how long such taxes have been due, and why they have not been collected.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment reported by the Committee on the District of Columbia will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. At the end of line 13, on the third page, add the following:

And why private parties are allowed to sell produce on the side-walks of Louisiana avenue and B street between said squares and Ninth street?

Mr. DAWES. Now I ask that the answer of the market company may be read. I shall offer no opposition to the passage of the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The letter will be read.

The CHIEF CLERK read as follows:

OFFICE OF THE WASHINGTON MARKET COMPANY,
CENTER MARKET, SEVENTH STREET WING,
Washington, D. C., February 13, 1892.

SIR: The officers of the Washington Market Company have noticed the reference by the Senate to your committee of a resolution making sundry inquiries of the District Commissioners concerning the affairs of the company, and they direct me to write you that they have no objection to the passage of the resolution. They recognize, however, in the movement another of those acts of hostility to the company which were frequent during the first years of its existence, and which were all successfully met and shown to be without just foundation.

The subjects mentioned for the first time in the resolution are without importance, but all the others have been fully investigated at different times. The attention of the committee is called to the following reports and papers:

1. No. 5, committee reports, house of delegates, first session of the Legislative Assembly of the District of Columbia by the committee on laws and judiciary.

2. Senate Report No. 449, of the first session of the Forty-third Congress, June 13, 1874, by Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

3. Memorial to Congress of the stockholders and officers of the Washington Market Company, January 16, 1875.

4. House of Representatives Report, No. 277, at the second session of the Forty-third Congress, March 3, 1875, by the Committee on the Judiciary.

5. House of Representatives Report, No. 139, second session of the Forty-third Congress, by the Committee on the District of Columbia.

6. Senate Report, No. 661, second session, Forty-third Congress, February 17, 1875, by the Committee on the Judiciary.

There was also an investigation during the session of 1870-1871, by the House Committee on Appropriations, but no written report was made. It is needless to notice any of the frequently offered resolutions in the House of Representatives touching the affairs of the company, except the one of December 4, 1877, which instructed the Committee on the District of Columbia to inquire into five alleged breaches of its charter by the market company, and gave it power to send for persons and papers. The evidence collected by said committee was transmitted to the Senate to accompany act, H. R. 4126, and was printed in 1878 by order of the Senate for use of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Various questions relating to the rights, duties, and proceedings of the company, especially that of the legality of the reduction of the original rental to be paid by the company, in consideration of the transfer by the company to the District of the most valuable front land on Pennsylvania and Louisiana avenues to be used for the erection of a District building thereon, have been considered by the courts of the District and, on appeal, by the Supreme Court of the United States, and in every case the final decision of the latter court has fully justified the company. (See District of Columbia vs. The Washington Market Company, 108 U. S. Rep. Hoffman vs. The Washington Market Company, No. 38, October term, 1879.) As to the inquiry relating to the squares known as the wholesale market grounds, granted for that purpose by Congress, in the sixteenth section of the market company's charter, all questions at issue between the District of Columbia and the market company are now before the courts upon an amicable equity suit, which ought to satisfy fair-minded citizens, at least until a decision is reached by the courts.

The company will gladly give to the District Commissioners and to the committee all the information in its possession on the subjects covered by the resolution of inquiry.

Respectfully,

N. G. ORDWAY,

President of the Washington Market Company.

Hon. JAMES McMILLAN,

Chairman of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment reported by the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

POTTAWATOMIE INDIAN AGREEMENT.

Mr. DAWES. From the Committee on Indian Affairs I report favorably, with a verbal amendment, a resolution relative to the Pottawatomie Indian agreement, and as time is of great importance, I ask that it may be considered now, if there be no objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The resolution, submitted by Mr. PERKINS on the 1st instant, was read, as follows:

Resolved by the United States Senate, etc. That whereas the provisions of the articles of agreement by and between the United States and the Citizen band of Pottawatomie Indians residing in Oklahoma Territory and elsewhere, ratified by Congress March 3, 1891, require that large sums of money be paid to them in said tract of country, which is construed to mean said Territory of Oklahoma; and whereas many members of said band of Indians reside in Kansas, who through age, poverty, and sickness suffer great hardships by being compelled to go to said Territory to receive their payments: Therefore,

Resolved. That article 4 of said agreement be, and the same is hereby, construed so as to authorize and direct the proper officers of the Department of the Interior to make the payments as they fall due to the members of said band residing in Kansas at some point in their original reservation in said State as will accommodate the greatest number of said Indians.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Committee on Indian Affairs will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In the fourth line strike out the word "and" and in lieu thereof insert "the Secretary of the Interior in his discretion to;" so as to read:

That article 4 of said agreement be, and the same is hereby, construed so as to authorize the Secretary of the Interior in his discretion to direct the proper officers, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DAWES. I move to strike out the words making it a simple Senate resolution and to insert the ordinary words which are prefixed to a joint resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That change will be made, if there be no objection.

The resolution as amended was changed to a joint resolution (S. R. 49) construing article 4 of the agreement with the Citizen band of Pottawatomie Indians in Oklahoma Territory and elsewhere.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be regarded as having been read twice, and it is before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SENATOR FROM IDAHO.

Mr. MITCHELL. I desire to give notice that when the hour of 2 o'clock arrives to-day and after the pending measure is taken up I shall ask that that measure be laid aside temporarily and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the contested case of Clagett vs. Dubois, from Idaho.

Mr. PADDOCK. I shall ask at 2 o'clock that the pure-food bill be laid before the Senate.

Mr. MITCHELL. Certainly.

Mr. PADDOCK. With the understanding that temporarily I shall yield for the purpose suggested by the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. MITCHELL. Certainly. I shall ask that the regular order be laid aside temporarily.

Mr. HALE. I will state to the Senator from Oregon that there is an appropriation bill which will come up after the morning business, and that we shall proceed with, I hope, until it is completed. I do not expect that it will take much time.

Mr. MITCHELL. We shall probably get through with the appropriation bill by 2 o'clock.

Mr. HALE. We will get through with it by 2 o'clock, I think.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 2245) to increase the efficiency of the Inspector-General's Department, and to provide for the more thorough examination of accounts; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2246) to correct the military record of Henry C. Seaman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a bill (S. 2247) to provide for the sale of navy-yard lands in the city of Brooklyn; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2248) to appropriate $18,184.57 for the completion and dedication of the monument commemorating the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Library.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 2249) for the appointment of a corps of superintendents of construction and repairs of public buildings under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill (S. 2250) to extend the time for adjudicating certain claims arising from Army or Navy service; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the urgent deficiency appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

DISTRICT WATER SUPPLY.

Mr. SHERMAN submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the report of the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army of the date of January 29, 1892, in respect to the completion of the tunnel in process of construction in the District of Columbia, be referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, with instructions to inquire into the expediency of completing and testing said tunnel and of appropriating out of the sum already appropriated the sum of $50,000 for testing said tunnel.

HEIRS OF HON. JOSHUA HILL.

Mr. GORDON submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to the legal heirs of Joshua Hill, late a Senator from the State of Georgia, the amount due him from the beginning of his term on the 4th day of March, 1867, until the 29th day of July, 1878, the date from which he was paid; said payment to be made from a special appropriation for the contingent fund of the Senate.

EX-SENATOR H. R. REVELS.

Mr. GEORGE. I wish to introduce a resolution by request, and to state that it seems to me to be one like that offered by the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON], to get some back pay by a former Senator. I offer the resolution and ask that it be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The resolution was read, and referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to Hon. H. R. Revels, late a Senator from Mississippi, $—, the amount due him as Senator in the Fortieth Congress from the 4th of March, 1867, till he was paid, said payments to be made from the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate.

URGENT DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. HALE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the urgent deficiency appropriation bill.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 5339) making appropriations to supply a deficiency in the appropriation for the expenses of the Eleventh Census, and for other purposes, which had been reported from the Committee on Appropriations with amendments.

Mr. HALE. I ask that the formal reading of the bill be dispensed with, and that it be proceeded with and considered as the amendments are reached in the reading.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That course will be pursued in the absence of objection.

The Chief Clerk proceeded to read the bill.

The first amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, under the head of "Eleventh Census," on page 1, after line 9, to insert:

For the work of the division of farms, homes, and mortgages, $50,000

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Indian affairs," on page 2, line 8, before the word "hundred," to strike out "fifty thousand five" and insert "forty-three thousand nine" so as to read:

For subsistence of the Sioux, as per agreement ratified by act of Congress approved February 25, 1877; being for the service of the fiscal year 1892, $143,914.17, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, line 10, after the word "necessary," to strike out:

And the sum of $25,000 which remains of the allotment for the establishment of substations from the appropriation for subsistence of the Sioux Indians for the fiscal year 1892 shall also be used for the purchase of subsistence for said Sioux Indians.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, line 17, after the word "shall," to insert "include in his annual," so as to make the clause read:

Proviso, That hereafter the Commissioner of Indian Affairs shall include in his annual report to Congress the names of all employees under the supervision and direction of the Indian Bureau, under what lawsaid employees are appointed, the amount of compensation paid to each, and the services rendered by them.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, after line 21, to insert:

To pay the expense of purchasing goods and supplies for the Indian service, including rent of warehouse and pay of necessary employees; advertising, at rates not exceeding regular commercial rates; inspection, and all other expenses connected therewith, including telegraphing, being for the service of the fiscal year 1892, $12,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 3, after line 3, to insert:

To enable the Secretary of the Interior to complete the ascertainment of damages resulting to any person who had settled upon the Crow Creek and Winnebago Reservations, in South Dakota, between February 27, 1885, and April 17, 1886, as authorized by the act approved October 1, 1890, $2,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 3, after line 11, to insert:

To enable the Secretary of the Interior to cause the lands embraced within the diminished Fort Berthold Reservation, in North Dakota, or such portion thereof as may be necessary, to be surveyed for allotment to the Indians of said reservation, as provided in article 3 of the agreement with said Indians, of December 14, 1886, and ratified by act of Congress approved March 3, 1891, $5,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 3, after line 20, to insert:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

For paper for internal-revenue stamps, freight, and salary of superintendent, messenger, and watchman, fiscal year 1892, $10,000.

For transportation of silver coin, including fractional silver coin, by registered mail or otherwise, fiscal year 1892, $5,000, to be expended under the same limitations provided for the appropriation for this purpose for said fiscal year.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 4, after line 4, to insert:

NATIONAL ZOOLOGICAL PARK.

For care, subsistence, and transportation of animals for the National Zoological Park, and for the purchase of rare specimens not otherwise obtainable, including salaries or compensation of all necessary employees and general incidental expenses not otherwise provided for, being a deficiency for the fiscal year 1892, $1,434; to reimburse the Smithsonian fund for assuming the expenses of labor and materials for repairs urgently necessary for the preservation of the Holt mansion, $49.45; in all, $1,933.45; one-half of which sum shall be paid from the revenues of the District of Columbia and the other half from the Treasury of the United States.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 4, after line 20, to insert:

FISH COMMISSION.

Green Lake Station, Maine: For payment of outstanding bills, purchase of lands and rights, completing ponds, repairs to quarters, and for dist. gas, pump, and well, $2,150.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, at the beginning of page 5, to insert:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

To enable the Government of the United States to be properly represented at the International Art Exhibition to be held in Munich, in the Kingdom of Bavaria, from June 1 to October 31, 1892, $5,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 5, after line 6, to insert:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

For salary and expenses in defense of the Indian depredation claims, fiscal year 1892, $10,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 5, after line 10, to insert:

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR.

For per diem, in lieu of subsistence, of special agents while traveling on duty outside of the District of Columbia, at a rate not to exceed $2 per day, and for their transportation, and for expenses of officers and employees made necessary by services rendered the Senate Committee on Finance, fiscal year 1892, $10,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 5, after line 18, to insert:

BOARD OF ORDNANCE AND FORTIFICATION.

To pay the salary of the civilian member of the Board of Ordnance and Fortification for the fiscal year 1892, $5,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 5, after line 22, to insert:

SENATE.

For expense of inquiries and investigations ordered by the Senate, including compensation to stenographers to committees, fiscal year 1892, $10,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further amendments the bill will be reported to the Senate.

Mr. SHERMAN. Before the bill is reported to the Senate there is one provision in it that I should like to have read, that in relation to the Zoological Garden, and to call the attention of the Senate to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The part referred to by the Senator from Ohio will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

NATIONAL ZOOLOGICAL PARK.

For care, subsistence, and transportation of animals for the National Zoological Park, and for the purchase of rare specimens not otherwise obtainable, including salaries or compensation of all necessary employees and general incidental expenses not otherwise provided for, being a deficiency for the fiscal year 1892, $1,434; to reimburse the Smithsonian fund for assuming the expenses of labor and materials for repairs urgently necessary for the preservation of the Holt mansion, $49.45; in all, $1,933.45; one-half of which sum shall be paid from the revenues of the District of Columbia and the other half from the Treasury of the United States.

Mr. SHERMAN. Does the provision about the payment of one-half of the expenses apply to the Zoological Garden?

Mr. HALE. Yes, that applies to the Zoological Garden.

Mr. SHERMAN. That question ought to be met, and I think it ought to be met now. It seems to me it is an act of gross injustice to the people of this District, who are getting to be pretty heavily taxed, to have to pay one-half of the expenses of the Zoological Garden. I think this is about as good a time as any to make the question whether it is right and just that the expenses of the Zoological Garden, the creature of the United States, belonging as much to the people of one State as another, certainly as much as to the people of the District of Columbia, should be required to be paid one-half by the people of the District. I have no doubt it will be a somewhat expensive toy to the people of the United States, but is it right, is it just, to take from the limited means of the people of the District of Columbia to pay for this thing?

It is not in any sense a part of the government of this District. It is admitted on all hands that the city of Washington, a city of 200,000 inhabitants, is totally unable to maintain a zoological garden. The city of London can do it, the city of Paris can do it, and some other cities have undertaken the task, but most of them have made failures. The great cities of the world which maintain zoological gardens for the instruction and for the interest of the inhabitants of the empire to which those cities belong are very large and wealthy; but to charge one-half of this expense—and an expense constantly growing and increasing—upon the District, is unjust. The Government establishes this entirely under its own management. The Commissioners of the District have nothing to do with it. We have an organized force for the purpose of maintaining and caring for it. I hope now the Senate will at least take the ground that it will not put this expense upon the District of Columbia, upon the few people here. Let it be borne by the people of the United States, where it will be a very small addition to their burden, while to the people of the District it might be a very serious one before it goes very far.

Mr. HALE. Does the Senator from Ohio move to strike out the clause?

Mr. SHERMAN. I move to strike out so much as relates to the District of Columbia paying one-half for the Zoological Garden.

Mr. HALE. The committee in reporting this bill has taken a new ground on the subject.

The provision that is found at the end of the amendment which obliges the District to pay half of the bills for the running of the Zoological Garden is the present law, the present rule, and all action in regard to that park was taken deliberately in the last Congress. It was discussed most fully.

Mr. SHERMAN. This is a mere limitation in an appropriation bill.

Mr. HALE. Of course it can be changed at any time. It is law so far as appropriations have been made heretofore and which did not pass sub silentio. It was thoroughly debated here and in the other branch during the Fifty-first Congress, and the deliberate decision of Congress was that this park was so largely for the benefit of citizens of Washington, for the benefit of the taxpayers of Washington and their families, that the next which should be asked of the General Government was that it should pay one-half of the bills and the District the other half.

I suppose, Mr. President, that the action for the purchase of this property, the movement which resulted finally in its purchase, and the setting it up as a great institution and a great feature of Washington, came largely from the citizens of the District.

But I do not choose to go largely into that question now, only saying to the Senate that the Committee on Appropriations has simply followed in the line that was set for it in the last Congress, and it is for the Senate to decide now. It is a question

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT HELENA, MONT.

The bill (S. 786) to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of Helena, Mont., was announced as next in order on the Calendar.

Mr. SANDERS. I move that that bill be recommitted to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and I ask that it may not lose its number on the Calendar by reason of the recommitment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be recommitted to the committee, retaining its place on the Calendar when reported, if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT OMAHA, NEBR.

The bill (S. 196) to increase the appropriation for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building at Omaha, Nebr., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM R. WHEATON AND CHARLES H. CHAMBERLAIN.

The bill (S. 1216) for the relief of William R. Wheaton and Charles H. Chamberlain, of California, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

It provides for the payment to William R. Wheaton, ex-register, and to Charles H. Chamberlain, ex-receiver, of the land office at San Francisco, Cal., jointly, of $3,800, being a portion of the amount deposited in the Treasury of the United States by them as fees for testimony which was taken by clerks whose compensation was paid from the private funds of the ex-register and ex-receiver.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, in my opinion the bill ought not to pass, and if I can get the attention of the Senate for a moment, I will state that it is a proposition to appropriate $3,800 to Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Wheaton, formerly register and receiver of the land office at San Francisco, Cal.

Under the law in existence at the time they were holding these offices there was, I think, a $500 salary provided for each of these officers, and furthermore certain fees, and if the fees and the salary combined amounted to more than $3,000 a year, then the excess was to be paid into the Treasury of the United States, each of these officers being permitted to receive the sum of $3,000 a year, but no greater sum under any circumstances.

There was also then and is to-day a law in existence that these officers had no authority to employ any clerk unless the order had previously been made by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, or unless they were authorized to do it by previous authority.

In 1864 certain fees were provided for the land offices, 15 cents a hundred words for copying testimony taken in contested and other cases. For some cause or other, but certainly directly in the face of the law, for a number of years the receivers and registers were permitted to use these fees to employ clerks. It was directly contrary to the law; it was in the face of the statute which provided that they should not receive more than $3,000 per annum each, and that they should not pay for any clerk under them unless previously authorized so to do.

In 1877, however, the General Land Office made a correct ruling that the fees arising from taking testimony should be paid into the Treasury of the United States, and the officers were so informed. That, as I have said, was in 1877, and it ordered that thereafter these fees must be paid into the Treasury, and they would not be permitted to retain them to pay for clerk hire where they were not authorized to employ such clerks. These two officers in the State of California disregarded that order of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, refused for the time being to turn over the fees, but still retained them until some time in 1879, when a peremptory order was made requiring them to turn over all fees received after this notice had been given them. They thereupon paid the fees into the Treasury of the United States, the amount of fees between those two dates, amounting to, I think, something over $5,000.

This bill seeks to pay these officers $3,800, which it is claimed they paid clerks between 1877 and 1879, between the dates when they were notified that these fees should be paid into the Treasury of the United States, and when they refused to comply with it.

Now, they claim that they employed these clerks, and that they paid two of them $100 a month each during that time. That is proven by the testimony of one witness, one of the clerks swearing he was paid that sum and that he had knowledge that another clerk was.

These are the facts of the case, that these officers, directly in the face of the law, for a number of years retained fees to which they were not entitled; these officers, after they had received due notice that they would not thereafter be permitted to retain these fees, did retain them in the face of the order of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and when they were compelled to pay them into the Treasury they come to the Congress of the United States and ask this Government to give them $3,800 out of the people's money when they had openly, notoriously, and knowingly violated the law in retaining these fees.

This bill passed this body before and was vetoed by Mr. Cleveland. It came back here, vetoed on two grounds. It was insisted by the friends of the bill that it was only vetoed on one ground; that is, that the proof was insufficient as to the amount paid, but it was vetoed upon the ground that these parties had notice in 1877, and also upon the further ground that the proof was insufficient, and if the Senator from Oregon will read the veto message he will find that both causes were put down as the reasons why the bill should not become a law.

I ask the Senate to bear in mind that we are not seeking to make these parties pay back the clerk hire which they retained from 1864 to 1877, because they were permitted to do that under the ruling of the Department here, but they were required, after they had received due notice that thereafter the fees must be paid into the Treasury, and the law upon its face says that they should not employ clerks unless they were authorized to do so previously. Therefore there is no shadow of claim, as I conceive, against the Government of the United States on behalf of these parties.

Now, Mr. President, it is true that if the Senate of the United States wants to donate to these two officers the sum of $3,800 it has doubtless the power to do so; but if it is done under any theory that the Government is indebted to these parties, I protest against any such idea, because the proof shows that we do not owe them equitably or legally $1. I therefore think that this bill ought not to pass. It is true the sum is not very great, but it is like hundreds of other claims that come here of parties seeking year after year to get money, not that the Government owes them, but upon some theory of equity that they have paid it out in the face of the law, and therefore the Government should make it good.

It is true, as I said, the sum is not great, but it will set a precedent for hundreds of other cases, and if we are going to give away money, I do not know any claim that Mr. Wheaton and Mr. Chamberlain have to have it given to them over and above any other citizens of the United States.

These are the objections I have to the passage of the bill.

Mr. DOLPH. I shall not take up the time of the Senate at any length, but I should like to be heard on this bill.

It is strange how people will differ in regard to a matter. I think that the Government of the United States would be dishonored if it should refuse to pay to the parties named in this bill the amount for which the bill is reported. I believe that the Senator who has just spoken would charge an individual with being a dishonest man who would refuse to pay money under similar circumstances.

This bill has repeatedly passed the Senate. It passed both Houses in the first session of the Fiftieth Congress and was sent to the President of the United States within ten days before Congress adjourned, was not approved, and therefore failed to become a law. It again passed both Houses of Congress during the next session. It was returned with a veto, the principal objection of the President being that the proof was not ample in his judgment to show that the amount proposed to be paid to these parties was paid out by them for the United States. That proof was filed, and the bill passed the Senate over the President's veto by a vote of 35 yeas to only 8 nays.

Mr. President, the facts are as follows: Prior to the date mentioned by the Senator who has just spoken, registers and receivers were allowed to use the fees received by them in taking testimony for the purpose of clerk hire. At the date mentioned a different ruling was made by the Department. It is alleged by the Senator that the register and receiver in this case were notified of the ruling. They deny that that notice was received.

Mr. BERRY. Will the Senator permit me to interrupt him there?

Mr. DOLPH. No; not at all. I did not interrupt the Senator.

Mr. BERRY. Will the Senator permit an interruption in order to correct a misstatement?

Mr. DOLPH. There is nothing to show that that notice was received; and if it had been received it would not have changed the facts so as to affect the merits.

This register and receiver afterwards paid into the Treasury $5,000 and over earned by the very clerks the compensation of whom it is proposed to refund to the register and receiver in taking testimony during a period of a little over a year, during which time the register and receiver paid out to two clerks $100 each per month, or $200 per month. It is now proposed to refund to them, out of the fees so earned for clerical work, the sum paid out by them for clerk hire during this time for the benefit of the United States. The United States, after refunding this clerk hire, will make a profit of more than $1,000 out of the labor of these clerks. As soon as the register and receiver were required to pay this money into the Treasury, and at the expiration of the time for which they claim to be reimbursed for payments made to clerks, the Interior Department authorized the employment of two clerks at $100 per month each, which has been continued from that time, to perform the very same labor performed by these clerks. I repeat, if the honorable Senator was aware that any private individual refused to pay money under such circumstances he would charge him with being a dishonest man and a thief.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Under the rule a Senator is entitled to speak but once.

Mr. BERRY. I ask unanimous consent to make a few remarks in reply to the Senator from Oregon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. DOLPH. I object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection is made.

Mr. BERRY. Who made the objection?

Mr. DOLPH. I withdraw it.

Mr. BERRY. I want to know what Senator made the objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The objection is withdrawn, and the Senator will proceed.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, the Senator from Oregon says these gentlemen denied that they received the notice in 1877. I state to the Senate there is no denial in the record nor in the papers anywhere nor can the Senator find it, but on the contrary the Commissioner of the General Land Office, a Republican Commissioner, says that they did have notice, and that this particular office had notice in 1877 that thereafter they could not retain these fees for the purpose of paying clerk hire. The law furthermore said that they should have no clerks unless they were previously authorized.

I repeat that the record shows that they were notified in 1877, that they refused to obey the order of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that they continued for sixteen or eighteen months to employ these two clerks in the face of the law, in the face of the notice, and now they come here and say that the Government should pay them this money.

The Senator says a man would be dishonest in private life if he refused to do this. I say that I do not think there is a man anywhere who would have the check to come to a private individual after he had received due notice that he could not have this thereafter, that the law does not authorize it and he must pay it into the Treasury, and notwithstanding that notice still retain it, and when eighteen months afterwards he was forced to pay it in, then he comes back begging this Government to return to him the money that he says he paid to these clerks which the law did not authorize him to pay. These are the facts.

As I said before, if this Senate wants to give these gentlemen $3,800 they have the power to do so, but in the name of all that is just and honorable, do not give it under false pretenses or under any idea that we owe it, but give it straight out like men.

President Cleveland vetoed this bill, and said it was unjust and ought not to pass. I agree with him in that. I think they have no shadow of claim against the Government of the United States, and the sooner the Senate sits down on such claims the better it will be for the country, and the fewer of these people will be lobbying around the Senate.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and read the third time.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is, Shall the bill pass?

Mr. BERRY. I ask for the yeas and nays on the final passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DAVIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE]. If he were present, I should vote "yea."

Mr. FAULKNER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY].

Mr. KENNA (when his name was called). I am paired on all questions with the Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT].

Mr. MANDELSON (when his name was called). I ask if the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] has voted?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not.

Mr. MANDELSON. I am paired with that Senator, and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. MITCHELL (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the junior Senator from New York [Mr. HILL].

Mr. POWER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE].

Mr. PUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR].

Mr. SHERMAN (when his name was called). I am paired with Senator from Kentucky [Mr. CARLISLE].

Mr. WILSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT]. I do not see him present, and therefore withhold my vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. ALLISON. I am paired with the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL]. Not knowing how he would vote if present, I withhold my vote.

Mr. CAREY. I am paired with the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. IRBY] on political questions only; so I will vote "yea" on this question.

Mr. PROCTOR. I am paired with the Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL], and therefore withhold my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 30, nays 19; as follows:

YEAS—30.

Allen,	Dolph,	Higgins,	Squire,
Brice,	Dubois,	McMillan,	Stewart,
Carey,	Felton,	Paddock,	Stockbridge,
Casey,	Frye,	Peffer,	Teller,
Chandler,	Gallinger,	Platt,	Warren,
Cullom,	Hale,	Sanders,	Washburn,
Dawes,	Hansbrough,	Sawyer,
Dixon,	Hawley,	Shoup,

NAYS—19.

Barbour,	Daniel,	Kyle,	Vance,
Bate,	George,	McPherson,	Vest,
Berry,	Gray,	Morgan,	Voorhees,
Chilton,	Harris,	Palmer,	Walthall,
Coke,	Jones, Ark.	Pasco,

NOT VOTING—39.

Aldrich,	Davis,	Jones, Nev.	Quay,
Allison,	Faulkner,	Kenna,	Ransom,
Blackburn,	Gibson, La.	Manderson,	Sherman,
Bodgett,	Gibson, Md.	Mitchell,	Stanford,
Butler,	Gordon,	Morrill,	Turpie,
Call,	Gorman,	Perkins,	Vilas,
Cameron,	Hill,	Pettigrew,	White,
Carlisle,	Hiscock,	Power,	Wilson,
Cockrell,	Hoar,	Proctor,	Wolcott,
Colquitt,	Irby,	Pugh,

So the bill was passed.

Mr. DOLPH. In regard to this bill, I ask, in view of the vote which has just been had, to have inserted in the RECORD, as part of my remarks on the bill, the vote of the Senate on the question as to whether the bill should pass over the veto of President Cleveland, and let the two votes be contrasted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. PALMER. I ask for information; does that request refer to the bill just passed?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It does refer to the bill just passed.

Mr. BERRY. The vote was taken before the Senator from Oregon submitted his request.

Mr. PALMER. I think it proper that we should understand this matter. I think it may place those of us who have voted against this bill in a very false position to insert in the RECORD evidence that we have never seen. I endeavor to act in regard to matters of this sort with something like judicial fairness, and I should dislike to have it appear that I had voted against a measure, where, if the evidence had been before us when the subject was under consideration, I might have voted otherwise. I object to the request of the Senator from Oregon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection is made.

Mr. BERRY. The only thing that the Senator from Oregon proposes to insert in the RECORD is the vote that was taken upon a similar bill at a previous time for the purpose of showing, I suppose, that certain Senators have changed their minds.

Mr. PALMER. I withdraw my objection.

Mr. HARRIS. That record will show that I voted just as I vote now. It may show that some others did not; but the bill has passed, the debate is ended. This proposition is in the nature of continuing the debate, and I object to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection is made.

Mr. DOLPH. Mr. President, the first time I get the floor I will put it in with some pertinent remarks upon the action of the Senate on this bill.

EULOGIES ON L. C. HOUK.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BERRY in the chair) laid before the Senate the following concurrent resolution of the House of Representatives; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring). That there be printed the eulogies delivered in Congress upon Leonidas C. Houk, late a Representative from the State of Tennessee, 12,500 copies, of which 2,500 copies shall be for the use of the Senate and 10,000 for the use of the House of Representatives; and the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, directed to have printed, at the earliest date possible practicable, a portrait of the said Leonidas C. Houk, to accompany said eulogies. That of the quota of the House of Representatives the Public Printer shall set apart 50 copies, which he shall have bound in full morocco, with gilt edges, the same to be delivered when completed to the family of the deceased.

SENATOR FROM IDAHO.

Mr. MITCHELL. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the contested-election case of Clagett vs. Dubois.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Oregon.

The motion was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be reported.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution as reported by the majority of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, as follows:

Resolved, That Fred T. Dubois is entitled to retain the seat he now holds as Senator from the State of Idaho for the full term commencing March 4, 1891.

Resolved, That William H. Clagett is not entitled to be admitted to a seat in the Senate from the State of Idaho for the term commencing March 4, A. D. 1891.

LICENSES TO THEATERS IN WASHINGTON.

Mr. McMILLAN. I am instructed by the Committee on the District of Columbia to report with amendments the joint resolution (S. R. 45) to regulate licenses to proprietors of theaters in the city of Washington, D. C.

Mr. MITCHELL. If it will lead to no discussion I shall not object.

Mr. McMILLAN. I think there will be no discussion upon it.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution (S. R. 45) to regulate licenses to proprietors of theaters in the city of Washington, D. C.

The amendment reported by the Committee on the District of Columbia was, after the word "Columbia," in line 2, to strike out the remainder of the joint resolution and insert:

To proprietors of theaters or other public places of amusement in the city of Washington, D. C., and now in force be, and the same are hereby, terminated, unless the persons holding such licenses shall within ten days after due notice comply with such regulations as may be prescribed for the public safety by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 2. That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and empowered to make and enforce all such reasonable and usual police regulations, in addition to those already made under the act of January 26, 1887, as they may deem necessary for the protection of the lives, limbs, health, comfort, and quiet of all persons, and the protection of all property within the District of Columbia.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment reported by the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. FAULKNER, the title was amended so as to read: "A joint resolution to regulate licenses to proprietors of theaters, and for other purposes."

SENATOR FROM IDAHO.

Mr. MITCHELL. I call for the regular order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution reported by the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. PADDOCK. What is the regular order? What are we to understand about that?

Mr. MITCHELL. The Clagett-Dubois contested-election case.

Mr. PADDOCK. How does it become the regular order?

Mr. MITCHELL. It has been taken up by the vote of the Senate.

Mr. HARRIS. There is no unfinished business in the morning hour. There is no objection, I imagine, to taking up the contested-election case again, but that is the method and the only method by which we can proceed with it.

Mr. MITCHELL. It is a privileged question, and has been taken up by a vote of the Senate.

Mr. HARRIS. As a privileged question the Senator can insist on taking it up, but it is not unfinished business in the technical sense and therefore does not come under that designation.

Mr. MITCHELL. No Senator has claimed that it is the unfinished business that I know of. It is the pending measure, taken up by a vote of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution reported by the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. GRAY. Mr. President, the question that is before the Senate is one, as has just been stated, of the highest privilege and one of very great importance. It concerns the regularity and legality of the election of a Senator from a State of this Union, and therefore challenges the serious attention of Senators, who are made by the Constitution the sole judges of the elections and returns of members of this body. It concerns the interpretation of a law passed by the Congress of the United States more than twenty-five years ago under the grant of power conferred by the Constitution of the United States upon Congress practically to regulate the time and manner of electing Senators.

This law was passed after discussion; it was carefully framed, and was meant to meet irregularities and mischiefs that had been recognized very widely in the then practice of electing Senators to this body. The necessity for that law being thus recognized and the practice under it having been settled for more than a quarter of a century, as the minority of the committee conceive, it becomes a matter of very serious moment to the Senate when the suggestion is made that that practice, thus settled, should be changed, or that anything of confusion should be restored to this high function of electing a Senator, a confusion which the law was intended to remove.

The facts in the case that is now before us lie within a very narrow compass. The State of Idaho, one of the last to enter the sisterhood of States, was admitted under an act of Congress passed on July 3, 1890, which, after reciting that the people of the Territory of Idaho had theretofore, by a convention assembled for that purpose, formed a constitution for themselves, which was duly ratified by the people of the said Territory, proceeded to state:

Whereas said convention and the people of said Territory have assented the admission of said Territory into the Union of States on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever: Therefore,

Be it enacted, etc., That the State of Idaho is hereby declared to be a State of the United States of America, and is hereby declared to be admitted into the Union, etc.

Section 20 of said act, admitting the State, reads as follows:

That the Legislature of the said State may elect two Senators of the United States, as provided by the constitution of the said State.

The constitution of the State provides that—

Within ten days after the organization of the Legislature both houses of the Legislature shall then and there proceed to elect, as provided by law, two Senators of the United States for the State of Idaho.

So that this state of things came about, that in filling what may be called the original vacancies in the office of Senator from the State of Idaho the act of Congress superseded the general law on that subject which was passed in July, 1866, so far as to authorize the election of two Senators within ten days after the organization of the Legislature; whereas the general law for the election of Senators provides that the election for Senators shall be initiated on the second Tuesday after the meeting and organization of the Legislature. The enabling act provides that they shall proceed to elect within ten days after the organization, as "provided by law;" that is, I take it, that the manner of electing was to conform to what was prescribed in the act of 1866; but the time of election, which is the other feature of the election that is committed to the regulation of Congress by the Constitution, was to be within ten days, instead of the second Tuesday, after the organization. That was all.

It was necessary that, as soon as this State was admitted and entitled to representation in the Senate, those two original vacancies, so called, should be filled, and this enabling act and the constitution of the State, which the enabling act recognized in that regard, provided for a speedy performance of that duty. On this point there is no difference in your Committee on Privileges and Elections.

We find that within the ten days prescribed by the enabling act and the constitution of the State the Legislature of Idaho did proceed to perform the duty thus imposed upon it, to fill immediately the positions of Senators of the United States who were immediately to represent that State. I repeat, we find that on the 16th of December, within the ten days, the Legislature having met upon the 8th of that month, the Legislature proceeded to perform the duty thus imposed upon it by the act of Congress, to elect two Senators. So we find that on the 13th this concurrent resolution was passed by the Senate:

Resolved by the senate (the house concurring), That the senate and house of representatives proceed to elect, as provided by law

Quoting the very language of the enabling act—

United States Senators at the hour of 12 o'clock m., on Tuesday, the 16th day of December, 1890.

And the house concurred in that resolution on the morning of the 16th by passing it in the words I have just read. The houses met separately on the 16th, which happened to be Tuesday. They each, as evidenced by their journals, proceeded to vote for Senators agreeably to this concurrent resolution, which was read in each house. Having taken one vote without result, they adjourned to meet in joint assembly upon the next day, which was Wednesday, and which it was their duty to do, because the enabling act, as well as the constitution of the State, said that they should proceed to elect in "the manner provided by law." "The manner provided by law" is the statute of the United States regulating the manner of electing Senators, which prescribed that after the vote had in the separate houses, the next day the members of the two houses shall meet in joint assembly, and the record shall be read by the clerks of the houses respectively, and if it shall appear that any one has been elected by the votes of the two houses separately, when combined, it shall be so declared, but if there shall have been no election, or if either house shall have failed to vote, then the joint assembly shall proceed.

So they met on the next day, which was Wednesday, to perform another part in the process of electing Senators under this enabling act. Nothing had been said up to that time, so far as the journals of either house disclose, in regard to the election of a third Senator, that is, of a Senator to fill the vacancy that would occur by the expiration of the term of that Senator, or who should be elected for the shortest term; nothing had been mentioned in either house by any member thereof, so far as the journals show, in regard to proceeding with that election.

Mr. MITCHELL. Will the Senator allow me?

Mr. GRAY. With great pleasure.

Mr. MITCHELL. Will the Senator not agree, in addition to what has just been stated, which is correct, that nothing was said in the resolution which passed the two houses separately, or by any other resolution or any other statement, which limited in any manner the number of Senators that they proposed to elect? There was nothing said about electing two Senators only.

Mr. GRAY. I have not said that. I have simply read, in the first place, what the enabling act and the constitution of the State prescribe, that within ten days after the organization they shall proceed to elect. Let me read it again. The constitution of the State prescribes:

Within ten days after the organization of the Legislature both houses of the Legislature shall then and there proceed to elect, as provided by law, two Senators of the United States for the State of Idaho.

Mr. MITCHELL. From what is the Senator reading?

Mr. GRAY. I am reading from the constitution of the State. The enabling act says:

That the Legislature of the said State may elect two Senators of the United States, as provided by the constitution of the said State.

May elect two Senators of the United States, as provided by the Constitution of the United States.

The Legislature met upon the 8th of December. Upon the 13th of December this concurrent resolution was passed by the senate:

That the senate and house of representatives proceed to elect, as provided by law, United States Senators at the hour of 12 o'clock m., on Tuesday, the 16th day of December, 1890.

Which was within the ten days prescribed in the constitution and in the enabling act.

So, up to the time of the meeting of the joint assembly, nothing, so far as we can gather from the journal, had been said or done by either branch of the Legislature in regard to the election of any other Senators than those that were required to be elected within the ten days to fill the original vacancies; but when the joint assembly met upon Wednesday they proceeded in the manner prescribed under the Revised Statutes, that being the manner prescribed by law. Having voted—I do not recall now whether once or twice—

Mr. MITCHELL. Once.

Mr. GRAY. They failed in electing any one to either place, and therefore they adjourned to meet upon the next day, which was the 18th.

Mr. MITCHELL. There were two ballots on Wednesday.

Mr. GRAY. It is immaterial. Then there were two ballots. I did not recollect. They failed, however, to elect. They then adjourned to meet upon the next day, which was Thursday. That was December 18. Up to that time nothing had been said as to the election of any other Senators than the Senators to fill the original vacancies; but on December 18, the second day of the meeting of the joint assembly of the two houses, Senator Gunn offered in joint assembly the following resolution:

Resolved by the joint assembly of the senate and house of representatives of the Legislature of the State of Idaho, That we proceed to elect two United States Senators to fill vacancies, and that after such elections we immediately proceed to elect one United States Senator to fill vacancy occurring March 4, 1891.

That was debated somewhat, as appears by the journal of the joint convention. An amendment was moved and voted down, and the resolution finally passed in about that shape. So, after the election of the two Senators, whom, as the minority contend, they were met to elect, they did proceed to do what neither house had authorized them to do, what the enabling act certainly did not authorize them to do, and which, if legally done, could only have been done under the general statute in regard to the election of United States Senators as to time as well as manner.

Now, there does not seem to have been any discussion in that joint assembly in regard to the day upon which this third Senator was to be elected; the point does not seem to have been raised; and I agree with the Senator from Oregon, that so far as this record discloses anything, there is not one single syllable in it from one end of it to the other to indicate that any protest was made or any argument had in regard to the time for the election of the third Senator being contrary to the statute in that case provided, but all through that record there is the clear demonstration that its members were acting under the belief that the election of a third Senator was prescribed and imposed upon that Legislature and the joint assembly by the enabling act of Congress and the constitution of the State of Idaho. In other words, it is a clear inference from everything that is disclosed by that journal of the joint assembly that the controlling opinion in that assembly was that the election of the third Senator within ten days was just as lawful and just as peremptory upon that assembly in its obligation as the election of two Senators to fill the original vacancies.

Mr. MITCHELL. Will the Senator allow me?

Mr. GRAY. In one moment I will. It is, therefore, on that account that we are here to-day with the duty imposed upon us to inquire and decide whether in that view of their duty they were mistaken or not. I am not here, nor do the necessities of this case fortunately require me, to impute motives to one of these contestants or the other.

Mr. MITCHELL. The Senator says that this record taken altogether justifies the inference that all parties at that time were proceeding upon the theory that they were acting not under the Revised Statutes, but under the constitution of the State and the enabling act. Now, does not the record justify another inference fully as much as the one referred to by the Senator? Does it not justify the inference that the parties, at least those favoring Mr. Clagett, were proceeding on the theory that that Legislature had no right to elect more than two? Then, again, is not the fact that the majority of the Legislature did actually elect three not only an inference but positive testimony to refute the inference put forth by my friend from Delaware? In other words, does not the very fact that they elected three show at least a majority of the Legislature believed that they were proceeding under the Revised Statutes, because if they were proceeding under the other acts they had only the right to elect two, according to the Senator's theory?

Mr. GRAY. Mr. President, the inferences which the Senator from Oregon draws from the facts disclosed by this record were fully stated yesterday and have been stated very emphatically again to-day. I am only contending that he was wrong, and that the reasonable inference to be drawn from this whole record and from the facts and circumstances that are in evidence here before the Senate is, that inasmuch as we find a resolution passed by both houses of the Legislature to proceed under the enabling act, and a joint assembly that met in pursuance of that resolution and the election of Senators to fill original vacancies under it, and that afterwards the same joint assembly proceeded to elect a third Senator, that that election of a third Senator was also presumably under the supposed authority of the enabling act. I do not see any other inference to be drawn from it in the absence of any express declaration to the contrary.

I am fortified in the inference that I draw from the record by the contention of Mr. Dubois, the sitting member. I am fortified in that view of it by the statement made by the Senator from Oregon yesterday, which as he has made it I am at liberty to repeat it, that in the Committee on Privileges and Elections there was a difference of opinion, some of its members stoutly contending that the election of the third Senator was properly held under the enabling act and under the constitution; that the time prescribed, within ten days after the organization, governed the election of the third Senator as well as of the two Senators to fill the original vacancy. But that was abandoned afterwards in the report of the committee. So far as the committee is concerned we are unanimous now; I believe there is no dissent. The committee report and find that the election of the third Senator to be legal must have been held under the Revised Statutes and not under the enabling act.

Mr. CHANDLER. Mr. President—

Mr. GRAY. One word. When I get through with this point in a moment I shall be very glad to hear the Senator from New Hampshire. I was proceeding to say that I am also fortified in the opinion that I have by the fact that the contestee, Mr. Dubois, himself, in the brief which he has submitted to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, takes that view, for he says, on the second page of his brief:

The time for the election of a Senator of the United States by the Legislature of Idaho was not fixed by the Revised Statutes of the United States, but was fixed by the constitution of Idaho and the act of Congress admitting that State to the Union.

What, then, are we to say in the face of the declaration by the contestee himself, that that was the theory upon which the joint assembly proceeded that elected him to a seat in this body? He tells you so in his brief and argument produced before the Committee on Privileges and Elections; and therefore I think that country; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented resolutions recently adopted by the Oregon City (Oregon) Board of Trade, urging appropriations generally for the improvement of the various rivers and harbors of the State of Oregon; which were referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I present a petition of citizens of North Dakota, praying for the passage of legislation authorizing the removal of the Chippewa Indians from Turtle Mountain and the settlement of their claim to lands in that region. I ask unanimous consent that the body of the petition be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. HARRIS. I object.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I ask, then, that the petition be printed as a document.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no objection the petition will be printed as a document, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs. The Chair hears none.

Mr. HISCOCK presented a petition of C. E. Smith and other citizens of the United States; a petition of the New York State Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Attica, N. Y., and other places; and a petition of Abram M. Calyer and other citizens of New York and elsewhere, praying for the passage of legislation looking to the closing of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a petition of the New York State Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Masonville, N. Y.; a petition of the New York State Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Wappingers Falls, N. Y.; a petition of the New York State Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Walworth, N. Y.; a petition of the New York State Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Allegany, N. #### REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. VEST, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1935) to establish a railway bridge across the Illinois River, between a point at or near the city of Havana, in Mason County, and a point on the opposite side of said river, in Fulton County, in the State of Illinois, reported it with amendments.

Mr. COCKRELL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2251) for the relief of Francis W. Wickham, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. DAWES, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1796) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Tonkawa tribe of Indians in Oklahoma Territory, and to make an appropriation to carry the same into effect, reported it with an amendment.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE, from the Committee on Fisheries, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1028) to continue in force the provisions of an act approved March 2, 1885, and entitled "An act to protect the fish in the Potomac River in the District of Columbia, and to provide a spawning ground for shad and herring in the said Potomac River," reported it without amendment.

Mr. FRYE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2229) for the relief of the owners and crew of the Hawaiian bark Arctic, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations; which was agreed to.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 610) extending the privileges of the first and seventh sections of the act approved June 10, 1880, governing the transportation of merchandise without appraisement to the port of Ogdensburg, in the State of New York, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the joint resolution (H. Res. 81) investigating mining debris in California, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was recommended the bill (S. 1393) to amend an act entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes," approved June 10, A. D. 1880, by extending the privileges of the first section thereof to the port of Fernandina, Fla., reported it without amendment.

Mr. FRYE. From the Committee on Commerce I report back adversely the bill (S. 2099) to amend section 4114 of the Revised Statutes relating to inspectors of hulls and boilers, and ask that it be indefinitely postponed, the adverse report being for the reason that the provisions of the bill are contained in another bill already reported and on the Calendar.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. WALTHALL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 1809) to authorize the Secretary of War to amend the military record of commissioned officers of the late war under certain circumstances, and for other purposes; and

A bill (S. 1938) authorizing the restoration of the name of Wilbur P. Melbourne, late first lieutenant Fifteenth United States Infantry, to the rolls of the Army, and providing that he be placed on the list of retired officers.

Mr. BATE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 584) for the relief of Charles Squire Wood, of the city of New York; and

A bill (S. 499) for the relief of Jonathan Myers.

Mr. PETTIGREW, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 697) to provide for building and maintaining an Indian industrial school at or near Chamberlain, in the State of South Dakota, and at or near Rapid City, in the State of South Dakota, and to provide a farm in conjunction therewith, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, reported an amendment intended to be proposed to the Indian appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

He also, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported an amendment intended to be proposed to the sundry civil appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

TREATY RIGHTS OF FOREIGN RESIDENTS.

Mr. SHERMAN, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That so much of the President's annual message communicated to the present Congress as relates to criminal offenses committed within the United States against the treaty rights of foreigners domiciled in the United States be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, with instructions to report such provisions of law as will empower the Federal courts to try all such causes involving the consideration of international questions, and with such police and judicial process as will enable the Government of the United States to use its constitutional power to define and punish crimes against treaty rights conferred upon such foreigners.

AFFAIRS IN ALASKA.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the following resolution, submitted by Mr. PLATT, January 27, 1892, reported it favorably without amendment:

Resolved, That the Committee on Territories, or any subcommittee thereof, is hereby authorized and instructed to institute and conduct an investigation and inquiry into the resources of the district of Alaska; the character, occupations, and social condition of its inhabitants, white, Indian, and of mixed blood; its form and system of government; whether the same is adapted to the present and prospective development of the district; its laws and whether they are enforced or allowed to be violated; what other or further legislation is necessary for the better government and needs of the said district and for the protection and well-being of its people; and any and all matters relating to the civil administration and future welfare of the people of Alaska.

Such committee shall have power to send for persons and papers, and to employ a stenographer; and shall make report with recommendations as to future legislation.

The necessary expenses consequent upon such inquiry and investigation shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate when certified by the chairman of the committee, and audited and allowed by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

Mr. PADDOCK. I ask for the present consideration of the resolution. It will take but a moment.

Mr. HALE. Let that resolution lie over for a day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. TURPIN in the chair). The resolution will lie over, objection to its consideration being made.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 2275) for the relief of purchasers of timber and stone lands under the act of June 3, 1878; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. DOLPH. The act of June 3, 1878, is known as the timber and stone act. The bill simply proposes to give purchasers under that act the right to take affidavits and make final proof before any officer authorized to take proofs in homestead entries. I move that the bill, with the accompanying papers, be referred to the Committee on Public Lands. The motion was agreed to.

Mr. FELTON introduced a bill (S. 2276) granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Mallett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2277) granting an increase of pension to Margaret Hayes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2278) granting a pension to Robert Turnbull, father of William Turnbull, late of the United States ship Baltimore; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2279) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. H. A. de Russy; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2280) to amend sections 727 and 729 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2281) regulating the sale of distilled and fermented liquors in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2282) to provide for the sale of surplus or unallotted lands of the Eastern Shawnee Indians, of the Indian Territory; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2283) to authorize the Denison and Northern Railway Company to construct and operate a railway through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 2284) for the relief of C. M. Gilbert & Co.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 2285) to increase the pension of Capt. Henry S. La Tourrette, late a captain in Company G, Eighty-fifth Regiment of Illinois Volunteer Infantry; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CARLISLE introduced a bill (S. 2286) to grant right of way through the Yellowstone National Park to the Montana Mineral Railway Company; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland introduced a bill (S. 2287) removing the charge of desertion against Philip Bradley, late of Company F, Seventy-second New York Volunteer Infantry; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2288) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the adjudication and payment of claims arising from Indian depredations," approved March 3, 1891; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Select Committee on Indian Depredations.

Mr. ALLISON introduced a bill (S. 2289) to grant to the State of Iowa a certain meandered pond in Greene County, Iowa, in trust, for drainage purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a bill (S. 2290) granting a pension to Celeste A. Boughton, widow of Bvt. Brig. Gen. Horace Boughton, late of the United States Army, retired; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2291) for the relief of inform us whether or not this was all the legislation which they expected to report on this subject at this session?

Mr. SHERMAN. So far as I know, it is; but I can not say what the Senate may send to us to be considered hereafter.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to continue in force all existing laws prohibiting and regulating the coming into this country of Chinese persons and persons of Chinese descent for a period of ten years, and for other purposes."

HENRY ZELL.

The bill (S. 209) to place Henry Zell on the retired list of the Army was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

It proposes to authorize the Secretary of War to place Henry Zell, late a private of Company D, Third Regiment United States Infantry, on the retired list of the Army, to date from February 14, 1885, he to have from that date the benefits and allowances given under the provisions of "An act to authorize a retired list for privates and noncommissioned officers of the United States Army who have served for a period of thirty years and upwards," approved February 14, 1885, having served in the Army of the United States for more than thirty years prior to his last discharge therefrom on April 1, 1879.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROAD TO NATIONAL CEMETERY, PENSACOLA, FLA.

The bill (S. 78) making an appropriation for the improvement of the road to the national cemetery near Pensacola, Fla., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES OF S. W. MARSTON.

The bill (S. 12) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to settle the claims of the legal representatives of S. W. Marston, late United States Indian agent at Union Agency, Ind. T., for services and expenses, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. S. B. DUVAL.

The bill (S. 478) for the relief of Mrs. S. B. Duvall, widow of the late Rev. W. P. Duvall, deceased, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs with amendments, in line 8, after the word "dollars," to strike out "a" and insert the words "upon satisfactory evidence being presented to the proper accounting officers of the Treasury that said;" and in line 10, after the word "sum," to insert "is;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That Mrs. S. V. Duvall, widow of the late Rev. W. P. Duvall, late principal in charge of the Indian boarding school for the Sac and Fox Indians of Kansas, be allowed and paid, out of any moneys accruing from the sale of their lands or any other funds belonging to them in the Treasury, the sum of $757, upon satisfactory evidence being presented to the proper accounting officers of the Treasury that said sum is due for the boarding, clothing, and care of the Indian children belonging to that tribe for the years 1863, 1864, and 1865, and this shall be received in full payment of the claim.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN McBEAN.

The bill (S. 734) for the relief of John McBean, of Umatilla County, Oregon, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to direct the Secretary of the Interior to allot to John McBean, for a long time an interpreter at the Umatilla Indian Reservation, in the State of Oregon, a tract of land not exceeding in amount 160 acres, out of the lands of the Umatilla Reservation, which lands, when so selected by the Secretary of the Interior, shall be patented to McBean on the same terms and conditions as patents are issued to the Indians selecting lands on such reservation in pursuance of existing law; but the consent of the Umatilla Indians upon the reservation to such allotment is to be first obtained in manner and form satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. CHILFON. I see nothing in the shape of a report accompanying this bill, and there is nothing in the bill itself to give any information as to the facts connected with it. I should be glad if some Senator familiar with the facts would state them.

Mr. DAWES. The facts in reference to the McBean case are these: McBean is an old interpreter, a white man, in that reservation, who has spent all his life there as an interpreter. He has become very much attached to the Indians and the Indians to him. He desires very much to make his abiding place, his home, there. He is too old to act as interpreter for the Government.

The Indians would like to have him among them, and he would like to take an allotment just as an Indian does. He can not do it because he is a white man, and with the consent of the Indians the consent of the Government is asked that he may take 160 acres just like an Indian.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SIoux INDIAN RESERVATION.

The bill (S. 698) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to carry out, in part, the provisions of "An act to divide a portion of the reservation of the Sioux Nation of Indians in Dakota into separate reservations, and to secure the relinquishment of the Indian title to the remainder, and for other purposes," approved March 2, 1889, and making appropriations for the same and for other purposes, was announced as next in order.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let that be passed over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be passed over.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT SPOKANE FALLS, WASH.

The bill (S. 617) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Spokane Falls, in the State of Washington, was announced as next in order.

Mr. ALLEN. My colleague [Mr. SQUIRE], having that bill more especially in charge, wished it to be passed over without prejudice. On account of a death in his family he was of necessity called from the Chamber. I wish the bill to retain its place without prejudice.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be passed over, retaining its place on the Calendar.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT TACOMA, WASH.

The bill (S. 1136) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Tacoma, in the State of Washington, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EFNICE TRIPLER.

The bill (S. 298) for the relief of Eunice Tripler, widow of Charles S. Tripler, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment to Mrs. Eunice Tripler, widow of Surg. Charles S. Tripler, United States Army, of $3,000, for services by Charles S. Tripler in his lifetime in preparing, superintending, and directing the publication of a manual for the medical officers of the United States; and this payment shall be a bar to any further claim against the Government for the use of the book referred to.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROBERT H. MONTGOMERY.

The bill (S. 780) for the relief of Robert H. Montgomery was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides that Robert H. Montgomery, major of cavalry, United States Army, shall be entitled to credit, for all purposes of pay and allowances, for the period of time from November 19, 1863, to February 16, 1865, during which time he was a prisoner of war in the hands of the enemy, the same as though he had actually been in the military service of the United States as a second lieutenant of cavalry during that period.

The same section proposes to remit and discharge the judgment of the Court of Claims in the case of Robert H. Montgomery vs. The United States, rendered April 7, 1884, against Montgomery for the sum of $1,651.37, upon a counter-claim presented by The United States, that sum having been received by him as pay for the period during which he was a prisoner of war.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment.

Mr. COCKRELL. Mr. President, I should like to call the attention of the Senator from Nebraska to this bill. The object of it is all right, to give this officer credit for the sum of $1,651.37; but the first section of the bill authorizes him to be allowed this amount for the purposes of pay and allowances. Then the second section wipes out the judgment against him. If that remits the judgment, which is for this identical sum, would he not then turn around and get the $1,651.37? He has already been paid that amount, as I understand.

Mr. MANDERSON. The bill is in the form in which it passed the Senate before.

Mr. COCKRELL. I know that.

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask that it be passed over. I will look into the question.

Mr. COCKRELL. I wanted to call the attention of the Senator to that point.

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask that it be passed over not to make any delay, and I will call it up again.

LIEUT. COL. CHARLES G. SAWTELLE.

The bill (S. 547) for the relief of Lieut. Col. Charles G. Sawtelle, deputy quartermaster-general, United States Army, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

It is a direction to the proper accounting officers, in settling and adjusting the accounts of Lieut. Col. Charles G. Sawtelle, deputy quartermaster-general, United States Army, to credit him with the sum of $126.40, being the amount of internal-revenue tax due from employes of the United States, employed by Maj. Gen. E. R. S. Canby, at New Orleans, in the secret service, in the year 1865, and paid by Sawtelle, the same amount appearing to have been withheld from those employes, but no receipt of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue being presented for the amount as required by law.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HENRY E. RHOADES.

The bill (S. 247) for the relief of Henry E. Rhoades, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to empower the Secretary of the Navy to place Assistant Engineer Henry E. Rhoades upon the list of officers of the Navy who have been retired on account of incapacity resulting from long and faithful service, from wounds or injuries received in the line of duty, or from sickness and exposure therein, as provided for in section 1588 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HOWARD D. POTTS.

The bill (S. 1079) for the relief of Assistant Engineer Howard D. Potts, United States Navy, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to authorize the President of the United States to place the name of Assistant Engineer Howard D. Potts on the retired list of the Navy "for disabilities incurred in the line of duty from sickness or exposure therein."

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. PETTIGREW. Mr. President, I should like to know what disposition was made of Senate bill 698, relative to the Sioux lands in Dakota?

Mr. COCKRELL. It was objected to by me and passed over. The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair understood the bill to have been passed over without prejudice.

Mr. PETTIGREW. Do I understand that it was passed over without prejudice?

Mr. COCKRELL. I objected to it emphatically because there was no report with it. If the Senator desires that it should go over without prejudice, I have no objection to that.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I should like to have it passed over in that way.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It was the understanding of the Chair that it was passed over without prejudice.

Mr. COCKRELL. I objected to it unconditionally. That is what I intended to do, and I did not put any conditions in it.

JOSEPH G. UTTER.

The bill (S. 337) to remove the charge of desertion standing against the name of Joseph G. Utter was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to remove the charge of desertion standing against the name of Joseph C. Utter, late a music boy, general service, United States Army, and to have issued to him by the Secretary of War an honorable discharge; and that Utter shall be held to have been regularly mustered into Company F, Fifth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, as of the date of such discharge.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS H. CARPENTER.

The bill (S. 614) authorizing the restoration of the name of Thomas H. Carpenter, late captain Seventeenth United States Infantry, to the rolls of the Army, and providing that he be placed on the list of retired officers, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HENRY UNTERLEITER.

The bill (S. 333) for the relief of Henry Unterleiter, alias Cook or Koch, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to authorize the Secretary of War to remove from the record of Henry Unterleiter, alias Henry Cook or Koch, late a member of Company B, Fifty-second New York Volunteers, any charge of desertion that may exist against him, and to issue to him an honorable discharge as of date January 1, 1864.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SURETIES OF WILLIAM J. STOKES.

The bill (S. 46) for the relief of William B. Stokes, M. M. Brien, sr., Thomas Waters, and William T. Haskins was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to release William B. Stokes, M. M. Brien, sr., Thomas Waters, and William T. Haskins, sureties on the bond of William J. Stokes as pension agent at Nashville, Tenn., their heirs, executors, and administrators, from all liability to the United States upon the bond.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS A. McLAUGHLIN.

The bill (S. 246) for the relief of Thomas A. McLaughlin was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to authorize the Secretary of War to revoke and set aside Special Orders No. 298, War Department, Adjutant-General's Office, Washington, September 8, 1864, dismissing First Lieut. Thomas A. McLaughlin, One hundred and second Pennsylvania Volunteers, for absence from hospital at Annapolis, Md., without proper authority, and conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman, and to accept the resignation of McLaughlin as of date August 15, 1864, and to issue to him a certificate of honorable discharge of the last-named date.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DULUTH AND MANITOBA RAILROAD COMPANY.

The bill (S. 1094) granting the right of way to the Duluth and Manitoba Railroad Company across the Fort Pembina Reservation, in North Dakota, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ARREARS OF PAY AND BOUNTY.

The bill (S. 1190) to facilitate the settlement of claims for arrears of pay and bounty, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

It declares that nothing in section 277 of the Revised Statutes of the United States shall be so construed as to prevent the Second Auditor of the Treasury from disallowing claims for arrears of pay and bounty in cases where it appears from the records and files of his office that payment in full has already been made to the soldier himself or to his widow or legal heirs. But if any person whose claim may be disallowed be dissatisfied with the action of the Auditor, he may, within six months, appeal to the Second Comptroller; otherwise the Auditor's action shall be deemed final and conclusive and be subject to revision only by Congress or the proper courts.

Mr. MITCHELL. What is the necessity for that bill, I should like to know?

Mr. COCKRELL. I will explain the necessity of it. There have been thousands and hundreds of thousands of claims presented to the Second Auditor by soldiers for arrears of pay and bounty. A great many of those claims have been investigated two, three, four, and five times. At one time it was the procedure in the Auditor's office only to allow the particular item applied for by the soldier, and if a soldier applied for arrears of pay no allowance was made to him for bounty, although the record showed bounty due him; if he applied for bounty and not for arrears of pay, no adjustment of his pay account was made, although the record showed that pay was due him. That, however, has been changed under the present Auditor, if not before, and now, when a soldier applies for an adjustment of his claim for arrears of pay or bounty, his claims of all kinds under the jurisdiction of the Second Auditor are adjusted. They have been adjusted time and again under a decision of the Second Auditor.

When a soldier applies the second, or third, or fourth, or fifth this country is taxed to make men who are fortunate enough to have made good investments in the suburbs of Washington City richer than they already are by taking the taxes of the people and improving that property so that they may sell it; but if we have got to go into that sort of thing let us go into it on that basis which will be least burdensome to the people of the United States. I suppose that when we take into consideration this fine capital, this great city, and all that sort of thing, the capital of a nation of 65,000,000 people, and see how grand it is when we come up to Congress to live in a grand city and get away from the poor people at home who are making all the money by which the country is kept up—when we remember all that, I suppose it would be going too far to hope that any consideration for the laboring and toiling masses of this country will prevent us from making this appropriation. If it has got to be, let us make it so that it will hurt the people of this country as little as possible.

Will any man dispute here now to-day—if there is such a one I should like him to get up and say so—that we can borrow this $4,000,000 without paying one cent of interest? If you will just issue the obligations of the Government in the shape of legal-tender Treasury notes in sums of five and ten and twenty dollars, you will get your money, you will pay for your improvements, and the people who are not able to own $500,000 in nontaxable bonds and $1,000 in nontaxable bonds will give their property, their labor, for these five and ten and twenty dollar notes of the Government, and charge no interest—not only not charge any interest, but will thank the Congress of the United States for giving them the poor privilege of getting these notes without interest. Why not do it? I should like to hear a sensible reason why we should not do it. Will any man say that that means inflation; that that means fiat money, and all that sort of thing?

If it does, my answer is that the $4,000,000 increase will not affect in quantity materially the amount now in circulation, and next, that owing to the increase of our population year by year—I believe it is about a million and a half—owing to the tremendous activities and enterprise of our people as exhibited everywhere and at all times, more and more of what we call money is needed, not money locked up in thousand-dollar bonds or five-hundred-dollar bonds, but money in small sums fit for circulation among the class of people who earn the money of this country.

Why not give the people in this country a chance to get this $4,000,000 without interest? I should like to hear a sensible reason why not. You pay for the improvements necessary in order to enable these men who are expecting to grow rich out of these improvements; you pay for these improvements; they are just as good made in that way as when made by gold borrowed upon the bonds. Why not do it? Then, Mr. President, the controversy between the distinguished Senator from Missouri and the distinguished Senator from Ohio as to the rate of interest would be all settled. We do not want any interest. The people do not want to pay any interest. They only want to have a chance by labor, by toil, by self-denial, to acquire some of the obligations of the Government which circulate as money, which will enable them to transact their business in life.

I shall say no more. I shall vote for the amendment of 2 per cent offered by the Senator from Missouri. If that is voted down, then, at the proper time, I shall offer an amendment to strike out all of this bond business, and let the legal-tender Treasury notes be put out in payment of these improvements.

Mr. HARRIS. I am not at liberty, representing the committee, to accept the amendment of the Senator from Missouri, but if the majority of the Senate think it safe to make the experiment of a 2½ per cent bond I certainly shall not antagonize it.

Mr. KYLE. Mr. President, I had not thought of saying anything at this time, as the question was being discussed so well by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL], by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BERRY], and by the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE], but I want to say this, that it does not take a Western man very long to see through the plan which is on foot as set forth by the provisions of this bill. It is a scheme for the purpose of improving the streets in the suburbs of the District of Columbia. I have seen perhaps as many cities boomed in the West as any man upon the floor of the Senate, and I know the plans also by which they are improved and the streets made.

In the city of Chicago and in all the cities of our Northwest we have had additions platted one after the other in the suburbs. Real-estate firms are there in large numbers, advertising their various advantages and putting up their blocks of lots and acres of lots for sale. The plan is to lay out the lots and the streets, grade them, put down the sidewalks, and then offer the blocks for sale. It would be a very fine thing for speculators in Chicago, or Minneapolis, or St. Paul, or any Western city, to have their streets laid out, graded, and improved by the State or by the United States, but they do not have the face to ask this, as do some of the capitalists in this vicinity.

Now, in the District of Columbia I believe the scheme is this:

Real-estate speculators have interests lying outside the city of Washington. Here are corporations who own large tracts of land just adjoining the city. These tracts would be materially advanced in value by the construction of highways as proposed in the bill now before us.

Mr. President, the plan is that the United States shall aid in constructing these highways by issuing bonds and throwing them upon the market.

I object to this, because I believe it is bad financial policy. Out in the West we are told that our farmers have adopted a bad financial policy. They are living beyond their means. They are buying more lands than they really need to live. We were told only a few days ago by the distinguished Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] that the cause of our farm mortgages in the West is that we have been borrowing money upon our farms for the purpose of adding other quarter sections, and that machinery was being bought perhaps before we were able to pay for it. Such a policy was thought unsound.

Now, I believe what is economy for the farmer, what is economy for the municipality, is economy for the Government. I believe that it is bad financial policy for us to issue bonds for the purpose of extending or improving the streets in the District of Columbia. We have staring us in the face at the present time an empty Treasury. If we have not the money in the Treasury of the United States to improve these streets, and if they need to be improved, then by all means let us wait until the money is on hand and we can pay for it like men, and not saddle bonds upon us and upon our children.

If there is one subject in the United States at the present time upon which the people are tender it is the subject of bonds. Ever since the war of the rebellion, twenty-five or thirty years ago, we have had nothing but bonds and interest upon bonds, and now we have before us a provision for the issuing of more bonds, the people to pay the interest upon them, and to run for a period of twenty or perhaps thirty, forty, or fifty years.

Mr. President, I believe that this principle is wrong. I think a wise economy should be practiced by the Government of the United States as well as by corporations and individuals. Only within two days we have had bills up before the Senate of an extravagant kind. One appropriated a half million of dollars to the city of Salt Lake in Utah Territory, and to-day a bill which passed the Senate appropriates $400,000 to the city of Tacoma in the State of Washington. I have furthermore read upon my Calendar that one of our Western cities, Chicago, comes forward and has the modesty to ask for $4,000,000 for the purpose of erecting a post-office building.

We have spent much valuable time during the past two months passing public-building bills, appropriating twenty-five or thirty millions, as though our Treasury were overflowing. It is time for us to call a halt when we are confronted by an empty Treasury and are asked to issue bonds to pay the small sum of $2,000,000.

If in one week we can appropriate $4,000,000 of cash for public buildings, why do we have to issue bonds running twenty to thirty years for the purpose of paying $2,000,000 to improve the streets of the District of Columbia, intended, as I think, to advance the property of individuals and corporations? Real-estate men, for aught I know, are behind this bill and are urging its passage by the Senate.

Mr. President, if it is necessary to have these streets extended, and the money must be forthcoming, then I will take the position of the Senator from Arkansas and the Senator from Mississippi, and declare for the issuance of legal-tender notes that shall bear no interest, and which will very materially increase the volume of our currency. Our people want more money and less bonds, and therefore I think the bill should not pass.

Mr. FAULKNER and Mr. ALLISON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PLATT in the chair). Does the Senator from West Virginia yield to the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. ALLISON. I do not wish to interfere with the Senator from West Virginia. I merely desired to make a motion to adjourn.

Mr. FAULKNER. I do not feel that I should detain the Senate at this late hour by any remarks, but I desire to answer some allusions made by the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE], and the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. KYLE], who has just taken his seat, in reference to the character of this bill. It has been entirely misunderstood, as I conceive, and I do not like the use of the term "scheme" and terms of that sort when applied to a bill that has my name attached to it, especially as I do not own a dollar's worth of property in this District. However, I will now give way to a motion to adjourn and make my remarks when the bill again comes up.

Mr. ALLISON. I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to: and (at 4 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Tuesday, February 23, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, February 19, 1892.

The House was called to order at 12 o'clock m. by the Clerk, Hon. JAMES KERR, who read the following communication:

SIR: I name Hon. BENTON McMILLIN, of Tennessee, to perform the duties of the Chair for this day.

CHARLES F. CRISP,
Speaker

Hon. JAMES KERR,
Clerk House of Representatives.

Mr. McMILLIN accordingly took the chair as Speaker pro tempore.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

LEAVE TO PRINT.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer certain resolutions of the Legislature of Massachusetts, and I ask unanimous consent that they be printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I do not like to object to these requests every morning; but it has been unusual to print such resolutions in the RECORD, and I do not think it proper to cumber that publication with matters of this kind that are not immediately before the House for consideration. I object.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Tennessee will not object to my request. I am ill and am necessarily going away for a few days, but would like to print in the RECORD a few remarks which I propose to submit with regard to the pending amendment to the interstate-commerce law.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. MORSE, indefinitely, on account of sickness; to Mr. MOSES, for twelve days, from Tuesday, February 23, and to Mr. LIVINGSTON, for the same period.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. PLATT, one of its secretaries, announced that the Senate had passed the bill (S. 1209) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon, at Ogden, in the Territory of Utah; in which concurrence was requested.

It also announced that the Senate had passed the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Preston B. Plumb, late a Senator from the State of Kansas.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the business of the Senate be now suspended to enable his associates to pay proper tribute of regard to his high character and distinguished public services.

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate communicate these resolutions to the House of Representatives.

EULOGIES ON THE LATE SENATOR PLUMB.

Mr. FUNSTON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask unanimous consent to introduce for immediate consideration a resolution fixing a day for eulogies on the late Senator Plumb.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution will be read, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Saturday, March 12, 1892, beginning immediately after the reading of the Journal, be set apart for tributes to the memory of Hon. Preston B. Plumb, late a Senator from Kansas, and that the Senate resolutions remain on the Speaker's table until that day.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires to call the attention of the gentleman from Kansas to the following order which has been already made by the House with reference to the date named in his resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Saturday, March 12, beginning at 2 o'clock p. m., be set apart for paying tribute to the memory of Hon. John R. Gamble, late a member of the House of Representatives at large from the State of South Dakota.

Mr. FUNSTON. Then, Mr. Speaker, I desire to change the date to the 19th, one week later than the date fixed in the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution of the gentleman from Kansas as amended?

There being no objection, the resolution was considered and adopted.

THEATER LICENSES, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The SPEAKER pro tempore also laid before the House the joint resolution (S. R. 45) to regulate licenses to proprietors of theaters in the city of Washington, D. C.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution just laid before the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution will be read, subject to objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, etc., That all licenses issued by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, pursuant to paragraph 41, section 21, of the act of the Legislative Assembly approved August 23, 1871, to the proprietors of all theaters in the city of Washington, D. C., and now in force, be, and the same are hereby, terminated, and the use of such building prohibited until such time as the owner or lessees of the same shall comply with such provisions relative thereto for the public safety as the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall prescribe.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. ENLOE. I do not want this day to be taken up with other business.

Mr. HEMPHILL. This, I will state to the gentleman from Tennessee, will take but a moment, I think.

Mr. ENLOE. With the understanding that it shall be withdrawn if there is discussion upon it, I will not object.

Mr. HEMPHILL. If it leads to any debate I will withdraw it. I ask unanimous consent for its present consideration.

There being no objection, the joint resolution was considered, read a third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. HEMPHILL, the motion to reconsider the vote last taken was laid on the table.

REPRINT OF A BILL.

Mr. BLAND. I ask to have reprinted the bill (H. R. 4426) for the free coinage of gold and silver, for the issue of coin notes, and for other purposes. There have been a great many calls for it, and it is not to be had in the document room. I ask also that 5,000 copies of the majority and minority reports be printed with it. A great many members are asking for it.

Mr. TRACEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to object, but I think that number is scarcely sufficient.

Mr. DICKERSON. I wish the gentleman would make it 10,000 copies. There is a general demand from all over the country for copies of this bill and the report.

Mr. BLAND. I would like to have 10,000 copies if the House will order it.

Mr. TRACEY. I would like to suggest to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. BLAND] an amendment—to make it 10,000 copies.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the proposition of the gentleman from Missouri, as amended by the gentleman from New York, for the reprint of the bill, and to make the number of the majority and minority reports to be printed 10,000? [After a pause.] The Chair hears no objection, and it so ordered.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not object, but I simply want to say that if it costs over $500 the House can not order it by a simple resolution.

Mr. BLAND. If it costs more than that the Committee on Printing can rectify it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If it costs more than $500, it will take a concurrent resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair hears no objection, and the order is made.

Mr. COBB of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, I want to suggest that those reports when reprinted should be equally distributed among the members.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If there be no objection, that distribution will be ordered.

There was no objection.

PRINTING DEFICIENCY.

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Public Printer, with inclosures, submitting estimates of deficiency in appropriations for the public printing; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will now call the committees for reports. This being private bill day, only reports of a private nature are in order.

Mr. ENLOE. Mr. Speaker, only reports of a public nature are required to be presented in the open House. Reports of a private nature go through the petition box.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will examine the rule. [After a pause.] The Chair finds upon examination that the new rule that was adopted does authorize the submission of the reports on private bills through the petition box, and does not require them to be publicly reported.

Mr. BYNUM (after conferring with the Speaker pro tempore). I move to dispense with the call of committees for reports.

submit for the consideration of Congress what amounts can be profitably expended during the coming year to carry out the recommendations made by the Commission of Engineers, United States Army, appointed under the provisions of an act of Congress approved October 1, 1888, entitled "An act to investigate mining débris in California," for "restriction works, dams and wing dams, to restrain the mining débris where now situated, and prevent its lodgment in the rivers of California, to the injury of navigation and commerce."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

There being no objection, the joint resolution was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. ALLISON. I should be glad to have the joint resolution read again, and I ask for information respecting the matter. Is it reported from a committee?

Mr. FRYE. It is a House joint resolution. It passed the House of Representatives.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It was reported favorably by the Senator from Maine [Mr. FRYE].

Mr. FRYE. It was referred to the Committee on Commerce, and reported favorably from that committee.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask that the joint resolution be again read.

Mr. FELTON. I wish to say to the Senator from Iowa that the measure carries no appropriation with it. It is simply a joint resolution for obtaining some information from the Secretary of War.

Mr. SHERMAN. Let it be read again.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be again read.

The Chief Clerk read the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that Hon. BENTON McMILLIN, a Representative from the State of Tennessee, had been elected Speaker pro tempore, to serve during the temporary absence of the Speaker.

JOHN W. BLAKE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate will now proceed to the consideration of bills on the Calendar under Rule VIII.

The bill (S. 356) for the relief of John W. Blake was announced as first in order on the Calendar.

Mr. VOORHEES. In the absence of my colleague [Mr. TURPIE], I want that ease to go over without prejudice. I am under the impression that that claim has been allowed at a former Congress. In fact, Judge TURPIE told me so the other day. He is not in his seat. Let it pass over for the present, and when he comes in, if we are mistaken about it, the bill can be taken up again.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will go over without prejudice.

Mr. TURPIE subsequently said: I wish to call attention to Order of Business 133, being the bill (S. 356) for the relief of John W. Blake. I move that that bill be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT NEWPORT NEWS, VA.

The bill (S. 602) for the erection of a public building for the use of the custom-house and post-office at Newport News, in the district of Newport News, Va., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with an amendment, in lines 13 and 14, to strike out the words "and fifty" where they occur, so as to make the amount in each case $100,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BUILDING FOR DISTRICT GIRLS' REFORM SCHOOL.

The bill (S. 1351) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of buildings for the Girls' Reform School of the District of Columbia was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on the District of Columbia with an amendment, in line 5, after the word "appropriated," to insert "one-half of which sum shall be charged against the revenues of the District of Columbia," so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the sum of $75,000 be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, one-half of which sum shall be charged against the revenues of the District of Columbia, for the purchase of a site and the erection or alteration and furnishing of buildings for the Girls' Reform School of the District of Columbia, said sum to be expended by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and to be immediately available.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CONDITION OF AGRICULTURE.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, some ten days ago, by the direction of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, I reported a resolution with an amendment authorizing certain investigations as to the condition of agriculture in the United States. I suppose there will be no objection to the passage of the resolution, and I should like to have it called up and passed. I ask that that be done.

Mr. COCKRELL. What is the resolution?

Mr. GEORGE. It is a resolution for investigating the cotton question.

Mr. SHERMAN. I have not been able to understand what the resolution refers to.

Mr. HARRIS. Let it be read.

Mr. GEORGE. It is a resolution which has been reported from the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title of the resolution will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. Order of Business 304, resolution by Mr. GEORGE, for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into the cause of the low price of cotton and the depressed condition of agriculture, etc.

Mr. SHERMAN. That should go to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Mr. GEORGE. It was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, and they reported it with an amendment.

Mr. SHERMAN. The law requires that such a resolution should go to the Committee on Contingent Expenses. That will not occasion much delay.

Mr. GEORGE. Does the Senator suggest that the resolution be referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate?

Mr. SHERMAN. Yes. In order to get any money the resolution must be referred to that committee.

Mr. PADDOCK. Under the rule that is necessary.

Mr. GEORGE. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be so referred.

C. M. SHAFFER.

The bill (S. 268) for the relief of C. M. Shaffer was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for paying to C. M. Shaffer, of Berkeley County, W. Va., $1,500 for rent and occupation of his warehouse, in the town of Martinsburg, as a commissary storehouse during the war of the rebellion.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ESTATE OF A. H. HERR, DECEASED.

The bill (S. 657) for the relief of the estate of A. H. Herr, deceased, late of the District of Columbia, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay to the estate of A. H. Herr, deceased, late of the District of Columbia, $17,288.53, allowed by the Secretary of War for the use of his premises, known as Herr's Island, near Harpers Ferry, by the Army during the late war.

Mr. PLATT. Is there a report in that case?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is.

Mr. PLATT. If the report is not long, I should like to have it read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be read.

The Secretary read the report submitted by Mr. FAULKNER January 25, 1892, as follows:

The Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 657) for the relief of the estate of A. H. Herr, have considered the same and respectfully report.

Your committee adopt the report submitted by them during the first session of the Fifty-first Congress, and recommend that the bill do pass. The bill passed the Senate last Congress.

The adopted report is as follows:

"This claim has been before Congress since the first session of the Forty-second Congress, and has received favorable consideration in both the House and Senate.

"The report of Mr. Rowell, made to the House of Representatives at the first session of the Forty-eighth Congress, is so full and conclusive that your committee have adopted it as a fair statement of the grounds for relief. He states:

"This claim is for the use and occupation of Herr's Island, near Harpers Ferry, W. Va., by Federal troops from February, 1862, to February, 1865.

"The property in question was a very extensive and valuable estate embracing 12 acres of land, thirty-two dwelling houses, a large four-story cotton factory building, a large iron foundry, sawmill, and many other buildings, and was all occupied at various times during the period named and under control of acting quartermasters in the United States Army.

"Mr. Herr, the owner of the property, was a loyal citizen, who for his loyalty suffered imprisonment at the hands of the rebels, and many other vexations—besides great destruction of property.

"February 28, 1866, Maj. Gen. W. S. Hancock made an order commanding a board of officers to examine and report upon the condition of property in the department lately used by the Government, under the direction of the Quartermaster's Department, with a view of determining what would be required to put it in the same condition as when first occupied by the Government.

"In accordance with such order, the board convened and proceeded to examine the various property covered by the order, and on July 3, 1895, entered upon a critical examination of the property involved in this case, and of the evidence of its occupation, and its rental value; and reported in detail each building occupied, the time of its occupancy, and the rental value. The result of this examination was a report of a total rent of $17,288.53.

"This report was not approved by the Quartermaster-General, but the claim was by him referred to Gen. Blunt, chief Quartermaster, Department of the Potomac, who, on December 27, 1893, made a term of his conclusions, in which he stated that he had made personal examination of the premises, accompanied by his agent, and was satisfied that the buildings were occupied for military purposes for the whole of the time alleged in the claim. He expressed the opinion that the occupation tended to preserve the buildings from being destroyed by the rebels, and also says that the works not being in operation would prevent the owner from deriving any material benefit from it. Yet, he says, the Government derived material benefit from its use, and he carefully recites the estimates of the board of officers and recommends the allowance of $15,243.58.

"Upon receipt of this report, Acting Quartermaster-General Rickard disallowed $8,408.33 of the claim, and recommended the payment of $6,835.25.

"This reduction was made upon the statement in the report of Gen. Blunt, that the occupancy of the property by the Army had the effect to protect it from destruction by the rebels, and the assumption that the works were not in operation, and therefore were of little use to their owner.

"This finding was approved by Quartermaster-General Meigs, but the claimant refused to accept the amount.

"Subsequently, the whole matter was referred to Deputy Quartermaster-General Ekin, who, on June 7, 1899, made an elaborate report upon the findings of the board of officers, the report of Gen. Blunt, and the action of the Quartermaster-General on the same. He also considered additional evidence, which showed that the supposed facts in regard to the operation of this property by the owner, as reported by Gen. Blunt, did not in reality exist, and that the condition of the property, with reference to its use by the owner had been misunderstood.

"The report also contains the idea that its occupancy by the Union troops tended to preserve it from destruction.

"After reviewing the history of the case, and reciting the evidence upon which his findings were based, the report concludes with a recommendation of an allowance of $15,000.

"This report is returned by the Quartermaster-General to Gen. Ekin, with a suggestion that it is like another case cited. Whereupon Gen. Ekin makes response as follows:

"The ruling in the Murfreesboro decision could be made applicable in this case, but in view of the fact that it has been the custom of this Department to pay rent for property at Harpers Ferry, which was occupied by the United States during the war, and in the absence of any law or order prohibiting its payment, I can not perceive any just reason why Mr. Wilson should not be paid such rent as may be found to be due him."

"March 16, 1874, the claim was taken before the Secretary of War for review, who, upon an examination of all the papers in the case, approved the finding of the board of officers convened by Gen. Hancock, but on reference to the accounting officers the Third Auditor reported adversely, and the claim was disallowed by the Comptroller April 7, 1874.

"On the ground that the prohibitory act of February 19, 1867, was not repealed by the joint resolution of July 28, 1866, extending the benefit of the act of July 4, 1874, to the counties of Jefferson and Berkeley, W. Va.

"On reargument this decision was reaffirmed May 26, 1874.

"The case was finally reviewed by the Comptroller July 23, 1875. In that review he says:

"There is but one question now to be determined in the case. The claimant's loyalty and ownership, the occupancy of the property by the Federal forces, the proper administrative action in the War Department, and perhaps the amount of compensation to be allowed, are all sufficiently shown."

"After reciting the various acts of Congress bearing upon the right to adjust and pay his claim the report says:

"It [the act of 1867] expressly prohibits the settlement of certain claims originating in a State, or part of a State, described in the proclamation of July 1, 1862. * * * Jefferson County, Virginia, is among the counties described in that proclamation, and the prohibition, it seems to me, is as positive as if the act had repeated the words of the proclamation."

"And so this claim was rejected—not because it ought not to be paid, but because the Department before which it was pending was expressly prohibited by act of Congress from settling claims of this character."

"The committee are of the opinion that the allowance of this claim is an act of justice which ought no longer to be delayed for want of a tribunal in which to enforce it.

"Claimant's property was occupied by United States troops without any express agreement as to the amount of compensation. Its use was of great value to the Government, and effected a saving of much more than the amount claimed. Its occupancy was a necessity at the time. The officers taking possession and the claimants both supposed that reasonable rent was to be paid. Large damage was done to the property, for which no claim is made."

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM F. WILSON.

The bill (S. 284) for the relief of William F. Wilson, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for paying to William F. Wilson, of Berkeley County, W. Va., $1,530, in full, for the use and value of his house at Harpers Ferry, Jefferson County, W. Va., during the war of the rebellion.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the report be read in that case.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be read.

The Secretary read the following report, submitted by Mr. FAULKNER January 25, 1892:

The Committee of Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 284) for the relief of William F. Wilson, have considered the same and respectfully report: We adopt the report hereto annexed, made by this committee in the first session of the Fiftyeth Congress and also in the first session of the Fifty-first Congress, and recommend the passage of the bill.

[Senate Report No. 200, Fiftyeth Congress, first session.]

Mr. Wilson, in 1864, was a foreman in the armory at Harpers Ferry, W. Va. In 1868 he filed his claim against the Government in the office of the Quarmaster-General, and Special Agent Thomas P. Chiffelle was appointed to examine into the merits of the claim and the loyalty of the claimant. His report is as follows:

Claim of William F. Wilson, Harpers Ferry, Jefferson County, W. Va.

1864—Dec. For use and occupation of house and lot from March, 1862, to December, 1864, 33 months, at $40 per month.....	$330
Destruction of dwelling, outbuildings, fences, etc., .....	1,200
Total .....	1,530

The above claim is instituted for the purpose of recovering the sum of $1,530, alleged to be the amount due the claimant for the use and occupation of his premises, and for the destruction of his dwelling, etc., by United States troops.

The claimant in the above case, Mr. William F. Wilson, was at the time this claim originated a resident of Harpers Ferry, in Jefferson County, W. Va., and the owner of a very fine one-and-a-half story brick dwelling and of the lot on which it was built, situated upon a hill known as Camp Hill, overlooking the village of Harpers Ferry.

Mr. Wilson bears a very high reputation amongst his neighbors for being a person of strict integrity of character and honesty of purpose. He has always been, both during and since the rebellion, loyal to the United States.

Mr. Wilson, previous to the war, was employed in the United States service in the armory at Harpers Ferry as one of the foremen in the rifle works. On the breaking out of the rebellion he was very active in his exertions in endeavoring to secure to the United States the arms and ammunition deposited there. By his course, as well as by the warm and hearty support which he gave to the General Government, he made himself very obnoxious to several of the citizens of Harpers Ferry, and on the occupation of this place by the rebel forces he was forced to flee for his life. He succeeded in reaching Washington and obtained employment in the navy-yard, where he remained for some time; afterwards he was employed, up to the close of the war, at Hagerstown, Pa., by Alfred Jenks & Son, in superintending their musket works.

His witnesses are all men of standing and character in Harpers Ferry, were loyal during the war, and are registered as voters in that district.

It appears upon examining this claim that in the year 1862 Col. Benjamin Huger, U. S. Army, then in charge of the armory at Harpers Ferry, sold at public auction, by authority of the Department, to Mr. Wilson, a brick house and a lot in that village, situated on Camp Hill, at the corner of Ellmore and McDowell streets, for the sum of $600. The building was a one-and-a-half story brick dwelling, 22 by 28 feet, containing some six rooms, with a small one-story brick kitchen attached thereto. The premises not being in very good repair at the time of purchase Mr. Wilson expended in repairing and improving the property by painting, by the erection of a front porch, a stable, a large brick cistern, and a garden house, and also enclosing the entire lot with a good and substantial post-and-rail fence, some 5,000 feet of putting the buildings and lot when completed cost him nearly $1,400. I have obtained from all the information that I can gather, that the same character of dwelling, together with the outbuildings, can not be erected at this time for less than $1,800, and therefore think that Mr. Wilson's charge of $1,200 is not only reasonable but just.

It further appears that on or about the month of March, 1862, this house and lot was taken possession of by the United States troops and used by them until December, 1864, as a hospital and quarters for officers and soldiers; that the interior of the dwelling, the outbuildings, and the fence having been entirely destroyed during the occupancy by the soldiers, Gen. Stevenson, United States Army, commanding, gave permission to Col. Graham, Fifth New York Heavy Artillery, to pull the building down and to use the material of which it was composed in the construction of winter quarters for his command. The permission or order was, so well and effectually complied with that there is nothing now remaining to designate the former site but a portion of the foundation of the main dwelling.

Mr. A. Cox, now a resident of Harpers Ferry, but during the war a lieutenant in the Fifth New York Heavy Artillery, stated to me that while stationed at Harpers Ferry, he, by order of Col. Graham, assisted in superintending the tearing down of Mr. Wilson's dwelling and in the subsequent use of its material in the construction of winter quarters for his command.

It still further appears that on February 27, 1866, Capt. W. G. Young, military storekeeper for United States ordnance, by direction of the Ordnance Department, sold the bricks from Mr. Wilson's dwelling, together with others belonging to different individuals, at public auction in Harpers Ferry, for and on account of the United States, and accounted for the proceeds of the sale on his property return for that month.

The amount of rent charged by Mr. Wilson for the time his premises were occupied by the United States troops is also exceedingly reasonable; it is somewhat less than that for which similar buildings rented for at that time in Harpers Ferry.

I see no reason for recommending any alteration in the account. The claim seems to be in every respect just and proper.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS P. CHIFFELLE, Agent.

BY: Maj. Gen. STEWART VAN VLIET,

Deputy Quartermaster-General, U. S. Army.

This report, on April 21, 1868, was endorsed as follows:

Respectfully forwarded to the Quartermaster-General, with the recommendation that Mr. Wilson's claim be allowed in full.

STEWART VAN VLIET,

Deputy Quartermaster-General, Baltimore, Md.

The Quartermaster-General, in a letter to the Secretary of War dated June 2, 1868, approved the claim for $330 for rent, but the item for the destruction of the building was disapproved, as there was no appropriation out of which the sum could be paid. The recommendation of the Quartermaster-General was approved by the Secretary of War. The Third Auditor, on the 13th of January, 1870, disapproved the claim, holding that the act of February 19, 1867, which construed the act of July 4, 1864, extended to the counties of Jefferson and Berkeley, in West Virginia, and that all claims "on account of occupation or injury to real estate could not be entertained by the accounting officers of the Treasury when such claims originated in either of said counties and during the war of the rebellion." This view was concurred in by the Second Comptroller of the Treasury.

The report of the special examiner shows this to be a most meritorious claim, and the bill is therefore reported favorably, with the recommendation that it do pass.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to ask the Senator from West Virginia, reporting this case, if I understand the case properly, if I do, it is that this claimant in 1862 purchased from the Government a lot and house in Harpers Ferry at and for the sum of $600; that thereupon he moved into the house, made improvements costing, as alleged, between seven and eight hundred dol-

Idaho and the enabling act, and without reference to the act of Congress. That is plain, it seems to me, to any man who will judicially examine the journal and the evidence in this case, and I say that those proceedings, in consequence of a combination, were abandoned and the election of a member to fill the long term beginning on the 4th of March, 1891, was sprung upon the house without having gone through the initial process of a separate vote in the two houses, and was not begun on the right day at that. Therefore, the proceeding is void.

Suppose that we take it for granted that the statute requiring a separate vote of the two houses is waste paper, is brutum fulmen in the air, and is not to be obeyed, then let us see if the statute is to be obeyed in regard to the beginning of the proceedings on the second Tuesday after the meeting and organization. The one is to the manner and the other is to the time.

I was wonderfully interested, Mr. President, as we all were, in the eloquent and astute argument of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE] on the matter of organization. I must say, as much as I expected, I was surprised at the knowledge he displayed. It is a great gratification and satisfaction to me to know anything. George Selwyn, the English wit, said: "If I was as cocksure of anything as Brougham is of everything, how happy I would be." I have often wondered at and regretted the ignorance of the swineherds of Admetus, who, when Apollo stalked among them, did not know that they were honored by the society of the sun god. They were not what I have heard termed "knowledgeable people."

Now, sir, the people of America have lived in ignorance ever since the formation of their Government, and perhaps ever since the first organization of a town meeting after the landing at Plymouth Rock and Roanoke Island, of all these facts of organization which the Senator from Indiana threw open to us and with which he enlightened us yesterday. He said that it was not necessary to have any officers at all to effect an organization; that they were organized as soon as the members of the house or the senate were sworn in. The expression of the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER] was, I believe, that they were organized as soon as they were assembled. We were treated yesterday to a philological disquisition about the use of the words "two" and "either," "either one of two," and the moons of Jupiter, and so on and so on, and these "creatures" who sit around here, the clerks and pages and reporters, sergeant-at-arms, and so on—the idea that they were a part of the National Congress was laughed out of court.

Mr. President, I want to say this, that if a body is organized as soon as it comes together, without doing anything else, nobody in America except the Senator from Indiana and the Senator from Illinois has ever found it out yet. Since the establishment of legislative communities in America, colonial or State, there never has been a body assembled for legislative business in this country that was not organized by the election of some officers to preside over the body, to record its will, and to execute its behests.

In my own personal experience I remember to have sat nine long weeks in the House of Representatives in the vain endeavor to procure what we called an organization. We had no Speaker. We did not know any better. We did not undertake to pass any bills. We could not even draw a dollar of our salaries. We were for nine long weeks on the borrow from one another and from everybody else. Why? We had all met. There was no doubt about it in the world. We had all been sworn in. A good many of us had been sworn in and a good many cursed out, but we could not draw a dollar of money; we could not pass a bill; we could not entertain a motion for nine long weeks, simply because we were not organized, yet we had all met in due form, and as for swearing in, I reckon there was about as much swearing done about that time as there ever had been in the history of the American Congress. [Laughter.]

On another occasion the House of Representatives had a Clerk to die. We were not organized on the previous occasion to which I have just referred because we had no Speaker, but on this occasion we had a Clerk to die. Howell Cobb, of Georgia, a man of no mean talents and ability, was Speaker of the House of Representatives, and what were the proceedings there? Excuse me for reading them again. They are set out in the report, but they are peculiarly and specially and religiously applicable to the argument of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE] on the subject of organization. After the death of the Clerk had been announced, on the day following a deputy clerk began to read the Journal. Objection was made, and the inquiry was propounded to the Speaker by what authority that individual read the Journal:

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the House that the Journal has been prepared as usual under the direction of the Speaker. The individual at the desk, who was reading the Journal, was one of the subordinate officers of the late Clerk of the House of Representatives. The positions occupied by these officers previous to the death of the Clerk are still, in the judgment of the Chair, occupied by them. They are not authorized, however, to discharge the duties of Clerk. In the opinion of the Chair until a Clerk—

One of these "creatures" who are no part of the organization of a Legislature—shall have been elected the House is not organized, and no business can be transacted until an election shall have taken place.

Was that the opinion of Speaker Cobb alone? Certainly not. A motion was made to repeal a resolution concerning the organization of the House, which was thought to be in the way. The Speaker refused, and decided the motion out of order.

The SPEAKER. In the opinion of the Chair no resolution, no business is in order until a Clerk shall have been elected, and the House cannot take action upon no subject whatever until the election of a Clerk, that being necessary to the organization of the House.

Then from that decision an appeal was taken to the judgment of the House, and the House without a division sustained the Chair, and it became the opinion of the House of Representatives.

Now, what a pity it was that that House of Representatives did not know the fact that they were already organized, if only they had had the sense and the perspicacity to see it. There they were in that disorganized condition, the wheels of legislation stopped, and all the time, while they were perishing for water, all they had to do was to let down their buckets over the side and take up enough to drink.

When the act of Congress of 1866 was under discussion I believe it was introduced and managed by Mr. Clark, a Senator from New Hampshire.

I read from the proceedings as follows:

Mr. CLARK. I move now to take up for consideration the bill (S. 414) to regulate the times and manner of holding elections for Senators in Congress.

That was July 11, 1866.

The motion was agreed to, etc.

Here is what Mr. Fessenden said, another name which I suppose it will be admitted carries some weight with it as a lawyer and a statesman:

I would suggest to the Senator who called up this bill that one provision of it may lead to trouble. It provides that the Legislature "shall, on the second Tuesday after the meeting thereof, proceed to elect a Senator in Congress." It not infrequently happens—it has happened, I think, twice or three times in my own State—that the Legislature does not succeed in organizing until several weeks after the regularly appointed day for the meeting.

That great man did not know, he had not any idea, that there could be such a thing as that as soon as they met and were sworn they were organized. Afterward, in the same debate, this occurred. On the next page, 3731, Mr. Trumbull, another name of very considerable consequence and authority in legal matters, said what I shall read. I will first, however, read what Mr. Clark said just one paragraph previous. Mr. Clark quoted from the bill, as follows:

And if a vacancy shall happen during the session of the Legislature, then on the second Tuesday after the Legislature shall have been organized and shall have notice of the vacancy—

They shall proceed to elect, etc.

Mr. TRUMBULL. I suggest to the Senator from New Hampshire that that can hardly be necessary. This provision is, "if a vacancy shall happen during the session of the Legislature." Is it a "session" of the Legislature until it is organized?

Mr. Trumbull, you will notice, doubted if there could be a "session" without "organization," but—

Mr. CLARK. It may be. The Legislature may be together and sitting, but not organized. I want to avoid that difficulty.

These poor deluded souls were under the impression, Mr. President, that you and I are under, that it was necessary for a legislative body when it came together to organize; that there was something more meant by organizing than to merely meet together and take the oath of office. They thought it was something more, and they spoke so, and they provided for it in this very bill.

Mr. STEWART. Would it interrupt the Senator if I should call attention to a provision of the constitution of Idaho?

Mr. VANCE. Not at all. I would be very glad to be interrupted, or to yield for a motion to adjourn.

Mr. STEWART. I wish to call attention to that ninth section of the constitution of Idaho, which is as follows:

A quorum being in attendance, if either house fail to elect an organization within the first four days thereafter, the members of the house so failing shall be entitled to no compensation from the end of the said four days until an organization shall have been effected.

Mr. VANCE. You see the men who made the constitution of Idaho were ignorant of the fact that all they had to do to organize was to come together.

Mr. GEORGE. Will the Senator from North Carolina allow me to move an adjournment?

Mr. VANCE. Certainly.

Mr. GEORGE. Unless some Senator desires to have an executive session, I will move that the Senate adjourn.

Mr. VOORHEES. Mr. President, is that motion amendable? The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BERRY in the chair). It is not.

Mr. VOORHEES. I move that when the Senate adjourn it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

Mr. MITCHELL. I hope that motion will not be insisted on by the Senator from Indiana.

Mr. VOORHEES. I will not insist on it if the Senator from Oregon wishes to go on with the privileged question to-morrow.

Mr. MITCHELL. I am urged on all sides to go on to-morrow. As I am in charge of the matter, and as I shall be compelled to be absent at the beginning of the coming week, I am very desirous of bringing it to a vote as soon as possible.

Mr. VOORHEES. There is urgency in that case. I withdraw the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Mississippi that the Senate adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 4 o'clock and 35 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, February 26, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, February 25, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon, and was called to order by the Speaker. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a message, in writing, from the President of the United States, relative to the World's Columbian Exposition; which was read at length, ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on the World's Columbian Exposition.

[For the message, see Senate proceedings of yesterday.]

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting information to the House of Representatives, pursuant to resolution of January 16, 1892, relative to immigration, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

LIEUT. COL. G. H. ELLIOTT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of War, transmitting a copy of a letter from Lieut. Col. G. H. Elliott to the Chief of Engineers, relating to the suspension of $40 against him in the settlement of his account, and recommending favorable action upon the accompanying draft of a bill for the relief of said officer; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that a large number of Senate bills were received yesterday, the titles of which have been printed in the RECORD. If there be no objection, they will be appropriately referred by the Chair without reading each title or laying them before the House. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The bills were referred as follows:

A bill (S. 2315) to protect foreign exhibitors at the World's Columbian Exposition from prosecution for exhibiting wares protected by American patents and trade-marks—to the Committee on Patents.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. SNOW, for one week, on account of a death in his family.

PRINTING FOR COMMITTEE ON NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Mr. HERBERT. Mr. Speaker, I am instructed by the Committee on Naval Affairs to ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk to be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be, and is hereby, authorized to have printed and bound such documents and papers for the use of such committee as may be deemed necessary in connection with subjects considered or to be considered by the committee during the Fifty-second Congress.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

There was no objection.

The resolution was agreed to.

DISEASES OF THE HORSE.

Mr. PICKLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer a resolution and ask for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read at length. It provides for the printing of 300,000 additional copies of the work entitled "Special Report on the Diseases of the Horse."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I object.

Mr. PICKLER. I move that it be referred to the Committee on Printing, with instructions to report within five days upon this resolution.

The SPEAKER. That motion would not be in order, because, unless the House gives unanimous consent for the consideration of the resolution, it must come in through the channel prescribed by the rules.

Mr. PICKLER. I move to refer to the committee with instructions.

The SPEAKER. That motion is not in order, because the resolution is not before the House. It was read merely for information, in order that the request for unanimous consent for present consideration might be made. If the House had given that consent, then a motion to postpone, or to recommit with instructions, would have been in order.

Mr. PICKLER. Will it be referred to the Committee on Printing?

The SPEAKER. Yes, to the Committee on Printing.

PENSION INVESTIGATION.

Mr. WHEELER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, the special committee to investigate the Pension Bureau desire leave to sit during the sessions of the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. WHEELER], chairman of the special committee to investigate the Pension Bureau, asks leave for the committee to sit during the sessions of the House. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The committees were then called for reports.

NORTHERN JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF GEORGIA.

Mr. RAY, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 2787, the bill (H. R. 6491) to amend an act entitled "An act to create a new division in the northern judicial district of Georgia;" which was read a first and second time, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed and referred to the House Calendar.

SECTION 828, REVISED STATUTES.

Mr. RAY also, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 5569, the bill (H. R. 6492) to amend section 828 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was read a first and second time, and, with the accompanying report, was ordered to be printed and referred to the House Calendar.

By unanimous consent, the original bills were ordered to lie on the table.

DEPOSITIONS IN CRIMINAL CASES.

Mr. POWERS, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 3871, the bill (H. R. 6493) providing for the taking of depositions in criminal cases; which was read a first and second time, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed and referred to the House Calendar.

ENGINEER CORPS OF THE NAVY.

Mr. HERBERT, from the Committee on Naval Affairs (for Mr. McALEER), reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 378) terminating the reduction in the numbers of the Engineer Corps of the Navy; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

FUNDING ACT OF ARIZONA.

Mr. SMITH of Illinois, from the Committee on the Territories, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 5499) to amend an act entitled "An act approving, with amendments, the funding act of Arizona," approved June 25, 1890; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT COURT AT LITTLETON, N. H.

Mr. STOCKDALE, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 821) to provide for a term of the circuit and district court at Littleton, N. H.; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SUBPORT OF ENTRY AND DELIVERY AT WEST POINT, VA.

Mr. WISE, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 4004) to establish West Point, Va., a subport of entry and delivery in the collection district of Richmond, Va.; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The SPEAKER. This concludes the call of committees for reports.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

A message, in writing, from the President of the United States, was communicated to the House by Mr. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries.

CONTESTED ELECTION CASE—CRAIG vs. STEWART.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I desire, on behalf of the Committee on Elections, to call up the contested-election case of Craig vs. Stewart.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the resolutions of the majority.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Andrew Stewart was not elected as a Representative to the Fifty-second Congress from the Twenty-fourth district of Pennsylvania, and is not entitled to the seat.

Resolved, That Alexander K. Craig was duly elected as a Representative from the Twenty-fourth district of Pennsylvania to the Fifty-second Congress, and is entitled to his seat as such.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. Before the gentleman from Indiana proceeds to make his speech I think it would be proper that some arrangement be made as to the distribution of time.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Elections have directed me to request that there be four hours on each side for debate, and that at the close of the debate the previous question shall be considered as ordered and the vote taken.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. I want to say, Mr. Speaker, that so far as the minority is concerned it is likely that that is more than sufficient time, and more than might be used by this side.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana asks unanimous consent that there be allowed four hours debate on each side, and that at the close of the debate the previous question shall be considered as ordered and the vote taken. Is there objection?

Mr. MILLER. I object.

Mr. O'FERRALL. What is the objection?

The SPEAKER. Objection is made by the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. MILLER. We do not need so much time.

Mr. O'FERRALL. I suppose that after such time is consumed in the discussion of the case as is desired the previous question can be demanded.

The SPEAKER. It is entirely within the power of the House to regulate the time before demanding the previous question. Unanimous consent is asked that at the expiration of eight hours the previous question be considered as ordered. Of course the committee have it in their power and control, with the approval of the House, to terminate debate by demanding the previous question.

Mr. COBB of Alabama. Does this end the matter for the time or not? I do not understand.

The SPEAKER. Objection was made to the request for unanimous consent; therefore the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana to proceed with his argument.

Mr. COBB of Alabama. Without limit?

The SPEAKER. Only under the rule. Debate will be limited when the House so desires by ordering the previous question.

Mr. HAUGEN. I would like to have the attention of the gentleman from Indiana. There are a number of members on this side who want to understand definitely about the time the gentleman will move the previous question. If no arrangement is made they will not know.

Mr. BROWN. I can not make any promise about that. I may do so as soon as I get through.

Mr. HAUGEN. I want to ask the gentleman if he will promise not to move it before 1 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. BROWN. I hope the gentleman from Wisconsin will withdraw his objection, because it is desired by all hands, and we may not take up that much time.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make an inquiry. Is the power to move the previous question limited? Is only the gentleman from Indiana entitled to move the previous question, or can it be moved by any member?

The SPEAKER. Any gentleman having the floor in his own right can demand the previous question.

Mr. HAUGEN. Do I understand the gentleman from Indiana to say that he will not move the previous question before 1 o'clock to-morrow?

Mr. BROWN. I can not make any promise.

Mr. HAUGEN. I hope the gentleman from Indiana will be able to make that promise.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, after consulting with gentlemen around me, it has been proposed that the gentleman from Indiana call it three hours on a side. I would not object to that.

Mr. BROWN. There can be no agreement reached as to the time.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana—

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, it is impossible to hear what the gentleman from Indiana said.

Mr. BROWN. I said that no agreement could be reached.

Mr. DALZELL. Why can not the gentleman from Indiana agree to make it three hours?

Mr. HAUGEN. There is no objection made on this side about the time. We will agree to any time the gentleman from Indiana suggests.

Mr. BROWN. I can only suggest what the committee agreed to, that was four hours on a side.

Mr. HAUGEN. Well, then, it is safe to say that the previous question will not be moved to-day.

Mr. BROWN. I can not make any agreement. The only one I am authorized to make, as a member of the Committee on Elections, is the one I have suggested. I am not authorized to make any other agreement.

Mr. HAUGEN. Then I will ask unanimous consent that the previous question shall not be called to-day.

Mr. BROWN. I decline to yield the floor.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana will proceed; his time is going on.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. If the gentleman will yield to me for a minute—

Mr. BROWN. The trouble is on your side and not on ours.

Mr. HAUGEN. It is not on our side; it is on your side. The gentleman from Indiana labors under a misapprehension if he thinks the objection is raised on this side. It comes from the gentleman's own side.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. The objection comes from this side of the aisle, not this side of the House.

Mr. HAUGEN. It may be the objection is made on this side of the center aisle, but it is not made on this side of the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that the object sought may be accomplished by simply announcing that, by direction of the Committee on Elections, at the expiration of eight hours the gentleman will demand the previous question, if that is the wish of the committee.

Mr. BROWN. I can make no agreement except that which I am authorized to make. That I have offered to make, and it has been objected to.

Several MEMBERS. Try it over again.

Mr. BROWN. I repeat that I am directed by the Committee on Elections to ask unanimous consent of the House that four hours on each side be allowed for debate, and that at the expiration of that time the previous question be considered as ordered and the vote be taken.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I wish to state that so far as the minority are concerned they do not insist upon anything except that it be definitely understood before the debate commences how long a time is to be consumed and how it is to be apportioned; and I trust that my colleague from Indiana [Mr. BROWN] will not begin his remarks until that question has been determined.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will again submit the request. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BROWN], on behalf of the Committee on Elections, asks consent that the debate on the pending case be continued for eight hours, at the expiration of which time the previous question shall be considered as ordered. Is there objection?

Mr. MILLER. I object.

The SPEAKER. Objection is made. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BROWN] will proceed.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, this is a contest from the Twenty-fourth Congressional district of the State of Pennsylvania—

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, there seems to be still some misunderstanding as to the time for debate. Will the gentleman [Mr. BROWN] please announce the agreement?

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BROWN] yield?

Mr. BROWN. I can not. I have twice tried to reach an agreement as to time.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. Then, Mr. Speaker, I understand that the debate proceeds without an agreement as to the time?

The SPEAKER. It does.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, this contest is from the Twenty-fourth Congressional district of the State of Pennsylvania. The district is composed of the counties of Fayette, Greene, Washington, and part of the county of Allegheny. The election was held on the 4th day of November, 1890, and the record shows that, on the face of the election returns, contestee, Andrew Stewart, appeared to have been elected over the contestant, Alexander K. Craig, by a plurality of 123 votes. The total vote of the district was 11,288 votes.

The grounds on which the contestant bases his contest, as stated in his notice of contest, are, chiefly, that the election officers in a large number of the polling places of the district received the votes and accepted and counted the ballots of a large number of persons whose names did not appear on the registry list of voters, and who did not make, or have made, the affidavits required by the tenth section of the act of January 30, 1874, of the laws of Pennsylvania applicable in such cases. That the election officers of such polling places received the ballots, and counted them for contestee, of a large number of persons who were not legally entitled to vote at the election, because they had not severally paid a State or county tax within two years preceding such election, which they severally were required to pay by the laws of the State of Pennsylvania to entitle them to vote at said election. That the election officers of such polling places received and counted the votes for contestee of a large number of persons who were not legally entitled to vote at said election, because they were not citizens of the United States.

On the 10th day of January, 1891, the contestee filed his answer to contestant's notice of contest, in which he specifically denied all the statements contained in contestant's notice of contest, and, in addition averred that a large number of votes were received, accepted, and counted for contestant which were illegal for substantially the same reasons given in contestant's notice of contest.

On the 26th day of January, 1891, the contestee filed an additional answer to contestant's notice of contest, in which he averred that a large additional number of votes were received, accepted, and counted for contestant which were illegal for the reasons already given; and further, that many of the election officers of some of the foregoing precincts and polling places were not qualified to hold the election, because the oath of each of such election officers was not attested by the officer who administered the oath, if any oath was administered.

The first question in the case I deem worthy of consideration the Secretary of War to issue him an honorable discharge; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a memorial of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Merchants' Exchange, remonstrating against the passage of the bill to prohibit dealing in future contracts, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented the petition of William P. Clyde & Co., of New York; the petition of the Quintard Iron Works of New York; the petition of Samuel E. Ward & Co., and other citizens of New York, praying for the passage of the bill to transfer the Revenue Marine to the Navy; which were referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also presented the petition of D. Harrington and other citizens of New Berlin, N. Y.; the petition of S. K. Jones and other citizens of Cortland, N. Y., and the petition of D. C. Morrell and other citizens of New York City, praying for an adoption of an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting any State from passing any law respecting an establishment of religion, etc.; which were referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also presented the petition of W. E. Brown and other citizens of East Windsor, N. Y.; the petition of G. W. Calkins and other citizens of West Sand Lake, N. Y.; the petition of John E. Fort and other citizens of Saratoga County, N. Y.; the petition of William B. Lewis and other citizens of Madison County, N. Y., and the petition of E. B. Sanders and other citizens of Montgomery County, N. Y., praying for the passage of legislation providing for the free delivery of mails in country districts; which were referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented the petition of E. H. Mead, president of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, and 100 other citizens of New York, praying that the Secretary of War be authorized to contract with Charles Stoughton for the completion of the Harlem River improvement and for the construction of the Harlem Kills Canal; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HAWLEY presented the petition of Charles W. Hodges and other citizens of Fairfield County, Conn., praying for the free and more frequent delivery of mails in country districts, and for the classification of mail matter into two parts, viz. written and printed; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented the petition of H. P. Stearns and 37 other citizens of Hartford, Conn., praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution forbidding the establishment of religion by any State; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. CULLOM presented a memorial of the Elgin (Ill.) Board of Trade, remonstrating against the passage of the free-coinage bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. GEORGE presented a petition of T. W. Moore and 20 other citizens of Iuka, Tishomingo County, Miss., praying for the passage of what are commonly known as the Washburn-Hatch anti-option bills; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. TELLER presented a petition of the Chickasaw Indians, relative to the President's message of February 17, 1892, praying for the passage of certain legislation for their protection and relief; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVALS.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had this day approved and signed the following act and joint resolution:

An act (S. 1183) to extend the privileges of the transportation of dutiable merchandise without appraisement to the port of Sandusky, Ohio; and

A joint resolution (S. R. 45) to regulate licenses to proprietors of theaters in the city of Washington, D. C., and for other purposes.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. MORRILL, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom were referred the following bills and joint resolutions, reported them severally without amendment:

A bill (S. 1758) to provide for the erection of an additional fire-proof building for the National Museum;

A bill (S. 828) authorizing the purchase of a site for a building for the accommodation of the Supreme Court of the United States; and

A joint resolution (S. R. 15) for the erection and location of a bronze statue of Christopher Columbus, and the removal of the Naval Monument to a new site.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1866) to incorporate the Georgetown, Arlington and Falls Church Railway Company of the District of Columbia, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. HIGGINS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1715) to amend "An act to authorize the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to make police regulations for the government of said District," approved January 26, 1887, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. DOLPH, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2169) to prohibit the coining of Chinese persons into the United States, whether as subjects of the Chinese Empire or otherwise, and to provide for registration and certificates of residence, and determine the status of all Chinese persons now resident in the United States, and fixing penalties and punishments for violation of this act, and providing for deportation of criminals, reported adversely thereon; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. HANSBROUGH, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1651) to amend an act approved February 28, 1891, entitled "An act to prohibit the granting of liquor licenses within 1 mile of the Soldiers' Home," reported adversely thereon; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. HAWLEY, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1721) to increase the pay of certain noncommissioned officers of the Army, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 13) to authorize the Secretary of War to issue ordnance and ordnance stores to Howard University, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the joint resolution was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. CAREY. I am directed by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was recommitted the bill (S. 333) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Boise City, in the State of Idaho, to report it with amendments and submit a report thereon. Under the order of the Senate the bill is to be restored to its former place on the Calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be placed on the Calendar as ordered.

Mr. MORRILL, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 699) for the erection of a public building at Brockton, Mass., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. VEST, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1574) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Grand Island, in the State of Nebraska, reported it without amendment.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed a concurrent resolution providing for the printing of 12,500 copies of the eulogies delivered in Congress upon Hon. W. H. F. Lee, late a Representative from the State of Virginia.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. DAWES introduced a bill (S. 2352) to punish intruders in either of the five civilized tribes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2353) for the relief of Narsario Gonzales; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Select Committee on Indian Depredations.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2354) to restore the pension of George Lucius Felch; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 2355) to amend the laws relating to shipping commissioners, seamen, and owners of vessels, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. FRYE. I ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on Commerce. I wish to say in relation to it that it is a bill which I have not read. It was sent to me by the secretary of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, and in his letter sending it he says:

This bill has been drafted by a committee of seamen sailing before the mast on the Pacific coast, men who have sailed in American vessels to all parts of the world, thereby gaining the experience that nothing else could furnish. We, by experience, know how the present maritime law affects the sailors; hence these amendments, which are the result of careful research into the marine laws of other nations, more especially the English, German, Danish, and Swedish.

The bill will be referred to the committee, and then by the committee submitted to the Commissioner of Navigation for his opinion in reference to it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 2356) granting an increase of pension to William Polk; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2357) granting a pension to Matthias Reed; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2358) for the relief of legal representatives of John Wightman, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2359) to place John M. Cunningham on the retired list; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. ALLEN introduced a bill (S. 2360) to increase the pension of Benjamin Brink; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FELTON introduced a bill (S. 2361) to provide for the sale of a portion of Lime Point Reservation, adjoining the town of Sausalito, in the county of Marin, Cal.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 2362) to restore to the pension roll the name of Mary F. Prindler; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2363) granting a pension to Nancy Patterson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2364) to provide for allotment of lands in severalty to the Seneca Indians, in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2365) making appropriations for fulfilling treaty stipulations with the Seneca Nation of Indians; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a bill (S. 2366) for the relief of Robert Swan; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. WASHBURN introduced a bill (S. 2367) granting a pension to Charles H. Webster; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2368) to punish false swearing before trial boards of the Metropolitan police force and fire department of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. HAWLEY introduced a bill (S. 2369) granting a pension to Newton M. Allen, guardian of John M. Allen, insane; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2370) correcting the military record of Ireneus Shortridge; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PUGH introduced a bill (S. 2371) for the relief of the heirs of Dr. Nathan Fletcher; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. RANSOM introduced a bill (S. 2372) to provide for the settlement of accounts with the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 2373) to establish the boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. COCKRELL introduced a bill (S. 2374) for the relief of Ernest Ulrich; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 55) to encourage the establishment and endowment of institutions of learning at the national capital; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

CONDITION OF DISTRICT BRIDGES.

Mr. McMILLAN submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be instructed to report to the Senate the condition of the various public bridges in the District of Columbia as regards strength and safety under the loads they are required to bear; and also whether, in the judgment of the Commissioners, the regulation that horses shall not pass over said bridges faster than a walk is a necessary one in all cases, and especially in the case of the new bridge across the Eastern Branch of the Potomac.

REGULATION OF STEAM VESSELS.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there be no further morning business, the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. FRYE. Mr. President, I desire to say a word or two in reference to a bill which is pending in Congress. It is the bill

(S. 1755) to amend certain sections of Title LII of the Revised Statutes of the United States and to carry into effect certain recommendations of the United States delegates to the International Marine Conference, introduced by me and referred to the Committee on Commerce, where it now is. Senators are inquiring of me every day in reference to this bill, they having received criticisms from their constituents. I desire to make a statement in reference to that bill so that Senators can answer inquiries without difficulty.

We had in this city a maritime congress a few years ago which made certain recommendations for amendment in shipping laws; and in addition to that, our own delegates made additional suggestions in the same direction. The Committee on Commerce considered the recommendations of that congress and of our delegates, and so far as they could understand and approve them reported them by bills favorably to the Senate. The bills have passed the Senate and the most of them have become laws. But of course there were many recommendations it was utterly impossible that Senators could understand anything about. They were technical largely—the inspection of boilers and engines, signals, laws of the road, and things of that kind.

The Committee on Commerce directed me to offer a resolution in the Senate directing the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint a board of experts to take into consideration all of the recommendations of that congress not acted upon and report by bill. A committee of experts was appointed. The committee had been some five or six months in consideration of those questions, and at the early part of this Congress made a report of a bill. That bill was presented by me without ever having read a line of it. It was referred to the Committee on Commerce, and then by the Committee on Commerce the experts were requested to make a report to accompany the bill. That report was finally made, and then both bill and report were sent to every expert, every large owner and builder of ships, every board of trade, and every maritime association known to the committee or the clerks of the committee, with the request that they would examine it with care and send to the committee such criticisms as they had to make on the bill.

Those criticisms have been coming in now for the last four weeks, and when they seem to be completed then the committee will refer all of the criticisms to the same board of experts for their reply and report; and the country may rest assured that the Committee on Commerce will report to the Senate no bill changing and affecting the existing laws unless that committee is fully satisfied by evidence before it that such changes and amendments ought to be made.

INTERNATIONAL BIMETALLIC CONFERENCE.

The joint resolution S. R. 24 to provide for an international bimetallic agreement was announced as first in order on the Calendar, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question pending is upon the amendment of the Senator from Nevada [Mr. STEWART] to the amendment reported by the Committee on Finance. Is the Senate ready for the question?

Mr. GORMAN. Let it be read.

Mr. SHERMAN. I should like to have it read.

Mr. COCKRELL. I wish to call the attention of the Senator from Nevada [Mr. STEWART] to his amendment, so that he will know what action is being taken upon it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Secretary will report the pending amendment to the amendment of the committee.

The CHIEF CLERK. In the amendment reported from the Committee on Finance, line 4, after the word "and," strike out the words "to maintain at all times a parity in the value of its coins of both metals," and insert:

The established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other upon the present legal ratio, or such ratio as may be provided by law.

Mr. SHERMAN. In the absence of the chairman of the Committee on Finance and the other members of that committee, I hope that the joint resolution will not be acted upon at the present time. I hope it will be put over for the present. How does it come up?

Mr. FRYE. It is the regular order on the Calendar.

Mr. COCKRELL. I think the joint resolution had better lie over. I do not think the Senate is ready for a discussion of it this morning, and it can not well be discussed under the five-minute rule anyway.

Mr. SHERMAN. The chairman of the committee is not here; the subject is a very important one, and I think it ought not to be taken up in this hurried way. I think the joint resolution had better lie over.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Holding its place on the Calendar?

Mr. SHERMAN. Yes, sir; going over without prejudice.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there be no objection that tunnel, submitted a report thereon, which was ordered to be printed.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 55) to encourage the establishment and endowment of institutions of learning at the national capital, reported it with amendments.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. GRAY introduced a bill (S. 2448) receding to the State of Delaware a certain old and abandoned pier, in the river Delaware, at Newcastle; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill (S. 2449) to correct the muster of A. G. Robb as second lieutenant, Twenty-sixth Indiana Volunteers; which was read by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2450) granting increase of pension to Henry Reiter; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 2451) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to reconvey to Lucius N. Maltby and Louise W. Maltby, his wife, Margaret Elizabeth Lucas, and the Sea Girt Land Improvement Company, a piece of land selected as a site for the Squan Inlet light-station, New Jersey, but found to be unsuitable for the purposes of said station; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2452) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to place the name of Joshua Daggett upon the pension roll of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. COKE introduced a bill (S. 2453) for the relief of William S. McKnight and James W. Richardson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SHERMAN (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2454) for the application of the accretions of the Caracas awards of 1868 to the new awards made in 1889 and 1890; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2455) granting a pension to Angelina Hyde; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2456) to authorize the extension of Massachusetts avenue, and the construction of a bridge across Rock Creek on Massachusetts avenue extended; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2457) to provide for the erection of a building for a flower market in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 2458) for the relief of William W. Lowe; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MANDERSON. I introduce a bill to amend a section of the Revised Statutes punishing corporations and individuals for making or using private scrip or metal tokens of denominations less than $1 in payment of labor or other debts. The object of the bill (and I desire to call attention to it for a moment) is to prevent the issue by corporations or individuals of what are known as trade tokens, trade certificates, by which those who labor are compelled to take pay for their labor in what is known as store pay. This measure is to reach that evil, and I ask its reference to the Committee on the Judiciary for their consideration of the subject.

The bill (S. 2459) to amend section 3583 of the Revised Statutes of the United States and to prevent and to punish corporations, associations, and individuals for making or using private scrip or metal tokens of denominations less than $1 in payment for labor or other debts, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 2460) to repeal the license tax of $25 per year now imposed upon produce dealers in the markets of the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2461) granting an honorable discharge to James Parrish; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2462) granting relief to William Gregory; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2463) granting a pension to Andrew Smith; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 2464) to grant to the Pan-American Transportation Company a right of way through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. FAULKNER introduced a bill (S. 2465) for the relief of D. T. Farnsworth, of Upshur County, West Virginia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2466) for the relief of the county court of Berkeley County, West Virginia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CHILTON introduced a bill (S. 2467) to fix terms of holding courts in the eastern district of Texas; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. STANFORD introduced a bill (S. 2468) directing the purchase of silver bullion and the coining thereof; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BUTLER introduced a bill (S. 2469) for the relief of the heirs of William Laval; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

STATUE OF GEN. STARK.

Mr. GALLINGER. On the 11th day of February I introduced a bill (S. 2158) for the erection of an equestrian statue of Maj. Gen. Stark in the city of Manchester, N. H., and it was laid on the table. I ask that the bill be taken from the table, and referred to the Committee on the Library.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be so referred.

ELECTION OF SENATORS.

Mr. WALTHALL submitted the following resolution: which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections:

Resolved, That the Committee on Privileges and Elections be directed to inquire and consider whether further legislation is not necessary to put at rest such questions as have from time to time arisen out of the construction of the existing law regulating the time and manner of holding elections for United States Senators, and that said committee have leave to report by bill or otherwise.

ESTATE OF HON. A. H. STEPHENS.

Mr. GORDON submitted the following resolution: which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Secretary be, and hereby is, authorized and directed to pay to the estate of the late Hon. Alexander H. Stephens $—, the same being for expenses incurred by him while prosecuting his claim for a seat in the United States Senate, said payment to be made from the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate.

SUPPLY OF CIRCULATION.

Mr. DOLPH. I desire to give notice that on Friday next, one week from to-day, if it be the pleasure of the Senate to hear me, I shall call up the bill (S. 1204) to provide the Government with means sufficient to supply the national want of a sound circulating medium, introduced by the Senator from California [Mr. STANFORD] and now on the table, for the purpose of submitting some remarks. While I shall incidentally in the course of my remarks refer to the bill, they will be mainly directed to a consideration of the present condition of the agricultural interests of this country as compared with those of other countries and with their condition at previous periods, to the measures which Congress has taken to encourage agriculture, and what it is practicable to do to promote our agricultural interests by Congressional legislation.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

On motion of Mr. JONES of Arkansas, it was ordered, That when the Senate adjourn to-day it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

DISTRICT APPROPRIATION BILL.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 6746) making appropriations to provide for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, and for other purposes; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

On motion by Mr. ALLISON, the bill was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

FOOD AND DRUG ADULTERATION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further morning business, that order is closed, and the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. PADDOCK. Pursuant to an understanding yesterday evening before the Senate adjourned, I ask that the regular order, Senate bill No. 1, be now laid before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the regular order.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 1) for preventing the adulteration and misbranding of food and drugs, and for other purposes.

Mr. PADDOCK. I understand that the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] is entitled to the floor.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, when the Senate adjourned yesterday evening I was endeavoring to give my understanding as to the scope and compass of the measure pending before the Senate. I was unfortunate enough, as I see by the morning papers, to have made the impression that I was arguing in behalf of the bill. I had not stated what my opinions were as to the general tendency of such legislation or as to this specific bill, but had contented myself so far with simply examining the scope and compass of the provisions of the bill if enacted as it now stands before the Senate. I was particularly addressing myself to the question of what is interstate commerce, or, as the Constitution expresses it, "commerce among the States." I took issue with my friend from Texas [Mr. COKE] when he stated that everything throughout the entire country is the subject of commerce among the States. It is true that everything in the United States may become the subject of commerce among the States.

Mr. COKE. That is exactly what I stated, if the Senator will permit me.

Mr. VEST. Then we were unfortunate in not understanding each other. As I understand the decisions of the Supreme Court and the plain language of the Constitution itself, everything throughout the country which is the subject of commerce in the States or out of the States may be the subject of interstate commerce, or commerce among the States, quoting the language of the Constitution. But that is very different from what has already become the subject of commerce among the States. The Supreme Court of the United States have decided that diseased meat, poisonous substances, deleterious to health or life, can not be the subject of commerce among the States. It is impossible that they should be the legitimate subject of commerce anywhere, either among the States or with foreign nations. But that is a subject of commerce among the States which is in a healthy condition or a legitimate subject of commerce and has passed into the hands of a common carrier or is in process of transportation from one State or Territory to another.

Therefore, if we adopt the amendment proposed now by the Senator in charge of the bill and interpolate the words "the subjects of interstate commerce," then the pending bill would simply be narrowed and restricted to articles which have gone into the possession of a common carrier or are in process of transmission from one State to another.

Mr. PADDOCK. Will the Senator permit me to ask him a question?

Mr. VEST. Certainly.

Mr. PADDOCK. I should like to ask the Senator if he thinks the act would be narrowed down beyond what it is already narrowed down by the provisions of section 10, if the bill shall pass with the amendment to which he is addressing his remarks?

Mr. VEST. Of course not, and I understand that section 10 of the bill simply attempts in general terms to restrict the operation of the bill to the subjects of interstate commerce.

Mr. PADDOCK. That amendment was simply in the direction of definiteness to satisfy some of our friends who are hypercritical in respect to matters of this kind.

Mr. VEST. Waiving the term "hypercritical," Mr. President, permit me to say that as I understand the Senator from Nebraska now, he does not propose that this measure shall affect any except articles which are the subject of commerce among the States.

Mr. SHERMAN. Or which may become the subject.

Mr. PADDOCK. As to that I shall state further when I come to make some remarks. I do go a good way beyond that.

Mr. VEST. If it means anything further than that, it is unconstitutional, unless you find the power to pass an inspection law by Congress in the "general-welfare" clause of the Constitution. I was peculiarly unfortunate if that is the construction intended by the Senator from Nebraska in being reported this morning as favoring any such bill. I do not belong to the school, to use the expression, to the party which, from the beginning of this Government, has believed that under the general-welfare clause of the Constitution Congress could do anything. I have never believed for an instant that that was a separate and independent grant of power in the Constitution. Without going into that much debated and discussed field, I simply content myself with saying now that if that is the meaning of the Senator from Nebraska, and he puts this power of national inspection upon the general-welfare clause of the Constitution, I can not go with him in any such construction.

I assume that he gets this power under the interstate-commerce clause, for in his amendment he interpolates the words "subjects of commerce among the States;" and if that be so, then the irresistible conclusion is that nothing except an article the subject of interstate commerce can be touched for inspection. I said yesterday that if, under that construction, any United States inspector coming from the Department of Agriculture should go into any retail or wholesale establishment in any State and demand the right to inspect any package, he would immediately be met with the unanswerable statement "by what authority do you come inside of a State with a national power in order to make me exhibit my goods to you as an officer of the United States Government?"

Every Senator will see how utterly impotent is this legislation if confined to the regulation of the subjects of interstate commerce or commerce among the States. If it be—and I admit that it is greatly to be desired—necessary to establish inspection as to all articles of drink and food in the United States, in the interest of the public health, then the only sure and safe way in which to do it is to use the instrumentalities and exercise the power which I believe the Constitution of the United States intended to leave to the States in the shape of police regulations. In the case of Gibbons vs. Ogden, 9 Wheaton, which is the leading case, and was decided by Chief Justice Marshall, that great jurist stated that all the powers as to quarantine, as to inspection, as to the health and morals of the people, belonged to that large class of powers called the police powers, that are reserved by the States.

There has been no question about which there has been such diversity of opinion among jurists and between the judges of the Supreme Court as in regard to the line between the police powers of the States and the commercial power of the General Government or of Congress. In the case of Leisy vs. Hardin, decided in 135 United States Reports, the Supreme Court divided, with five judges on one side and four on the other, and that division arose as to what was the effect of the Congress of the United States declining to legislate as to intercommercial regulations and whether that gave the States the power to make such regulations, and also as to the distribution between the powers conferred under the commerce clause of the Constitution upon Congress and the police powers reserved by the States.

Mr. PADDOCK. I should like to ask the Senator a question, if he will yield.

Mr. VEST. Certainly.

Mr. PADDOCK. Does the Senator say that either of the powers may not be used to supplement the other in order to carry out the special purpose or the particular purpose as it may be of either?

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, that is another question. The Supreme Court has decided that the quarantine laws and the inspection laws of a State, and the instrumentalities used for that purpose by the States, may be used by the General Government, but it is no concession of power to the State. That is simply a question of using certain means to effect an end. We are discussing now the question of whether the General Government, under the commerce clause of the Constitution, exercise the police powers of the States. I do not propose to read all these decisions, but if any Senator is curious on the subject I refer him to the last decision made, which he will find in 140 United States Reports, and in which Chief Justice Fuller delivered the opinion of the court. I will not read from it except to give the syllabus. This is the case in re Rohrer, and in it Chief Justice Fuller summarized this whole discussion in the following words, quoting from a decision of Justice Catron:

And here is the limit between the sovereign power of the State and the Federal power. That is to say, that which does not belong to commerce is within the jurisdiction of the police power of the State; and that which does belong to commerce is within the jurisdiction of the United States. And to this limit must all the general views come, as I suppose, that were suggested in the reasoning of this court in the cases of Gibbons vs. Ogden, Brown vs. The State of Maryland, and New York vs. Miln. What, then, is the assumption of the State court? Undoubtedly, in effect, that the State had the power to declare what should be an article of lawful commerce in the particular State, and, having declared that ardent spirits and wines were deleterious to morals and health, they ceased to be commercial commodities there, and that, then, the police power attached, and consequently the powers of Congress could not interfere. The exclusive State power is made to rest, not on the fact of the state or condition of the article, but that it is property usually passing by sale from hand to hand, but on the declaration for what the State laws, and asserted as the State policy, that it shall be excluded from commerce. And by this means the sovereign jurisdiction in the State is attempted to be created, in a case where it did not previously exist.

If this be the true construction of the constitution, then the paramount power of Congress to regulate commerce is subject to a very material limitation; for it takes from Congress, and leaves with the States, the power to determine the commodities, or articles of property, which are the subjects of lawful commerce. Congress may regulate, but the States determine what shall not be regulated. Upon this theory, the power to regulate commerce, instead of being paramount over the subject, would become subordinate to the State police power. It is obvious that the power to determine the articles which may be the subjects of commerce, and thus to prescribe its scope and operation, is, in effect, the controlling one. The police power would not only be a formidable rival, but, in a struggle, must necessarily triumph over the commercial power, as the power to regulate is dependent upon the power to fix and determine upon the subjects to be regulated.

I shall not quote any further from this decision, and I quoted so much for the purpose of showing what the Supreme Court has

Petitions praying for the passage of a bill making certain issues of money full legal tender in payment of all debts—referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KYLE presented a petition of 200 citizens of Milbank, S. Dak., praying for the passage of a bill making certain issues of money full legal tender in payment of all debts; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills: in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 1080) for the relief of the inhabitants of the town of Ferron, county of Emery, Territory of Utah:

A bill (H. R. 6836) making appropriations to supply a deficiency in the Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes; and

A bill (H. R. 6876) to provide for certain of the most urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills: and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (H. R. 532) to constitute Newark, in the State of New Jersey, a port of immediate transportation; and

A bill (H. R. 5399) making appropriations to supply a deficiency in the appropriation for the expenses of the Eleventh Census, and for other purposes.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. WOLCOTT, from the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, to whom was referred the bill (S. 521) extending the privileges of the free delivery of mails, reported it without amendment.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1742) to amend the act giving the approval and sanction of Congress to the route and termini of the Anacostia and Potomac River Railroad in the District of Columbia, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. ALLEN, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1504) for the relief of David Dealy and Moses Younkin, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PROCTOR, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2081) to amend the Articles of War, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom the subject was referred, submitted a report accompanied by a bill (S. 2470) to amend the Articles of War, and for other purposes, which was read twice by its title.

Mr. SQUIRE, from the Committee on Coast Defenses, submitted a report to accompany the bill (S. 537) to provide for the establishment of a gun factory for the finishing and assembling of heavy ordnance on the Pacific coast, heretofore reported by him.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Territories, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1843) to provide for the punishment of offenses committed in the Yellowstone National Park, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1486) granting to the State of California 5 per cent of the net proceeds of the cash sales of public lands in said State, reported it without amendment.

Mr. WARREN, from the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation of Arid Lands, reported an amendment intended to be proposed to the urgent deficiency appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

He also, from the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation of Arid Lands, reported an amendment intended to be proposed to the sundry civil appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

LAND IN OKANOGAN COUNTY, WASH.

Mr. ALLEN. I am instructed by the Committee on Public Lands to report back favorably the bill (H. R. 2568) for the relief of the inhabitants of the town of Chelan, in Okanogan County, State of Washington. This is a very short bill; it has passed the House of Representatives; it is approved by the Interior Department; and I ask unanimous consent that it may be now considered. It will take but a moment.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was read, as follows:

Be it enacted etc. That the Commissioner of the General Land Office be, and he is hereby, authorized to issue a patent for the following tract of public land, to wit: The northeast quarter of section 13, in township 27 north, range 22 east, in Okanogan County, Wash., upon the entry made at the North Yakima local land office for said land by Charles H. Ballard, probate judge for said county, in trust for the use and benefit of the inhabitants of the town of Chelan, in said county, under the town-site laws, being cash entry numbered 1064 of said North Yakima series of entries.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

STATISTICAL ABSTRACT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing to report back favorably a concurrent resolution for printing the Statistical Abstract of the United States. I ask that it may be now considered.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution; which was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring). That there be printed 12,000 copies of the Statistical Abstract of the United States for the year 1891, prepared by the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department, 3,000 copies for the use of the members of the Senate, 6,000 copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives, and 3,000 copies for the use of the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to ask if that is the number heretofore printed?

Mr. MANDERSON. It is somewhat less than the number heretofore printed, but the same number that is provided in the general printing bill that has passed the Senate. I think the number is sufficient for all purposes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the concurrent resolution.

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 1080) for the relief of the inhabitants of the town of Ferron, county of Emery, Territory of Utah, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Appropriations:

A bill (H. R. 6836) making appropriations to supply a deficiency in the Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes; and

A bill (H. R. 6876) to provide for certain of the most urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill (S. 2471) granting a pension to John S. Coleman; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2472) for the relief of Thomas G. Corbin; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 2482) granting a pension to Gust Spitznagel; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WILSON introduced a bill (S. 2483) granting a pension to Eliza A. Criner; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2484) granting a pension to Mary R. Henderson; which was read twice by title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2485) for the relief of James R. D. Morrison; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2486) to provide for the creation of a board of regents of education for the Indian and Oklahoma Territories for the promotion of the industrial and academic education of Indians, and other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2487) for the relief of W. H. Collards, John A. Elsasser, Peter Johnson, George Shade, M. G. Brown, Jonas F. Reitz, and L. H. Boyd; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2488) for the relief of Louis O. Farnighy; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2489) increasing the pension of Titus F. Wiles; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2490) granting a pension to Thomas H. Williams; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2491) granting an increase of pension to James Morgan; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 2492) to authorize the establishment of postal-telegraph service, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. WOLCOTT introduced a bill (S. 2493) granting a pension to Theodore H. Brown; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. COCKRELL introduced a bill (S. 2494) granting an increase of pension to Michael Herbst; which was read twice by

AMENDMENTS TO BILLS.

Mr. PADDOCK submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the Indian appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. WARREN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the urgency deficiency appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. VEST submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the District of Columbia appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE SITE.

Mr. CULLOM. I submit the following resolution, and ask for its present consideration:

Resolved, In pursuance of the legislation heretofore taken for the acquisition of a suitable site for a Government Printing Office, that the Committee on Printing, acting jointly with the House committee, be, and the same are hereby, empowered and instructed to ascertain the most suitable site for that purpose (in the District), looking to the future growth of the country and the growing demands upon the printing establishment, ascertain the fair value of the same, and make report of such investigation and result; and all authority heretofore given in this respect is hereby revoked.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. ALLISON. I hope that the last clause will not be left in, stating that all steps heretofore taken are hereby revoked. I shall object to that.

Mr. CULLOM. I have no objection to those words being stricken out, as they are suspended at any rate, I understand.

Mr. ALLISON. They are suspended.

Mr. CULLOM. The words indicated by the Senator from Iowa may be stricken out from the resolution, as far as I know.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The modification will be stated.

The SECRETARY. Strike out the words:

And all authority heretofore given in this respect is hereby revoked.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be so modified. The question is on agreeing to the resolution as modified.

The resolution as modified was agreed to.

PORTRAIT AND BUST OF ADMIRAL PORTER.

Mr. VOORHEES submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Whereas the heirs and legal representatives of the late Admiral David D. Porter having signified their desire to present to the United States Government the portrait of the said admiral, painted by Carl Becker, and also his bust in marble, by William Simmons; Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Committee on the Library be, and is hereby, instructed to consider and arrange for the proper acceptance of said portrait and bust, and for the positions to which they shall be assigned in the Capitol.

NICARAGUA CANAL COMPANY.

Mr. HIGGINS. I call the attention of the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] to the resolution of inquiry which I introduced some time ago directing the Secretary of the Interior to communicate certain information in respect to the Nicaragua Maritime Canal. At the time of the introduction of that resolution the Senator from Alabama suggested that it be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. I now ask that that action be taken, with the understanding that the inquiry directed by the resolution to the Secretary of the Interior will be made the subject of full inquiry by the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. MORGAN. The Committee on Foreign Relations really considered themselves instructed by the first resolution adopted to the full extent of the resolution presented by the Senator from Delaware, and I am very glad that he has put it in specific form. Let that be sent to the Committee on Foreign Relations as being superadded in the nature of instructions for the inquiry, because that committee, in entering upon this investigation, are acting solely and only for the people of the United States, and they propose, and they have the power to do it, I think, to control any agency or any corporation that stands in the way as an obstruction in the slightest degree to the rights and interests and welfare of the people of the United States.

Mr. HIGGINS. I ask that the resolution as it stands be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The resolution submitted by Mr. HIGGINS February 10, 1892, was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, instructed to obtain and transmit to the Senate, at the earliest convenient day, a detailed statement, properly certified by the chief engineer of the Nicaragua Canal Company, of the amount and kind of work done, and of the materials, tools, and supplies furnished upon the said canal, and the cash cost of the same.

Also a detailed statement, properly certified by the appropriate officer of the canal company, of all contracts and obligations now in existence between the said canal company and all other governments, persons, or companies, and the actual cash received and expended by it, and for what purposes; the amount of cash paid in upon subscriptions to its stock and bonds; the amount of cash now on hand available for the prosecution of its work; the amount of bonds and stock issued, to whom, and for what purposes; the amount subscribed, for and by whom, and upon what terms, together with a complete balance sheet showing the said company's resources, assets, and liabilities of every name and nature, all as of January 1, 1892.

Also a detailed statement showing the capital and organization of any contracting or constructing company with whom the said canal company may have entered into a contract or contracts for constructing any part of its canal, or furnishing any labor, services, machinery, materials, or supplies for the said canal, and setting forth the amount of stock and bonds issued by the said contracting company, to whom, and under what terms, the amount of cash received by the said contracting company from all sources, the amounts paid out, and to whom and for what purposes; the amount of stock or bonds subscribed for, and by whom and upon what terms; the amount of cash on hand available for carrying out its contracts with the said canal company and others; the amount and cash value of its assets of every kind, and, finally, a complete balance sheet as of January 1, 1892, showing the said contracting company's assets, resources, and liabilities, of every name and nature.

The Secretary of the Interior is also requested to furnish copies of all contracts made and entered into by either of the companies heretofore described, together with any other information he may have or can obtain in reference to the operations or responsibility of either of the said companies.

EDWIN GOMEZ.

Mr. PLATT. Early in the session I presented the petition of Edwin Gomez, of New York City, praying compensation for losses, etc., and it was referred to the Committee on Claims. On the 10th of February the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEPPER] reported back the petition asking that the committee be discharged from its further consideration. I was not in the Senate at the time the vote was passed discharging the committee. It is too late, of course, to move a reconsideration, but I ask unanimous consent of the Senate that that action may be reconsidered, and that the petition be recommitted to the Committee on Claims.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request made by the Senator from Connecticut? The Chair hears none, and the petition will be recommitted to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PLATT. Some papers that I have in my hand I wish also to go to the Committee on Claims in connection with the petition.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered.

HOUSE BILL REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 6875) making appropriations for the payment of invalid and other pensions of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, and for other purposes, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

THE CALENDAR.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business?

Mr. SQUIRE. I ask that the Senate proceed to consider the bill (S. 617) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Spokane Falls, in the State of Washington. I understand the Chair to state that we have arrived at the Calendar.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Calendar is in order under Rule VIII.

Mr. SQUIRE. This bill was passed over without prejudice under Rule VIII.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is the Calendar in order?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Calendar is now in order.

Mr. COCKRELL. I hope that those bills which have been passed over under objection will lie over until to-morrow morning. Let us get at the unobjected cases this morning anyway, and then I shall have no objection to-morrow morning. There are several others bills in the same situation. Let them be taken up then, but let the unobjected cases have a showing this morning.

Mr. SQUIRE. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill indicated by the Senator from Washington was passed over owing to the temporary absence of that Senator.

Mr. COCKRELL. It is true that it was passed over without prejudice.

Mr. SQUIRE. I accept the suggestion of the Senator from Missouri, and assent that the bill may be passed over until to-morrow, unless it shall be reached to-day.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be passed over.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President—

Mr. COCKRELL. Now, let us have the regular order.

Mr. ALLEN. I wish to say that the bill was passed over by unanimous consent without prejudice, with the express understanding that it did not lose its place upon the Calendar, and that it should be taken up on the return of the Senator from Washington to the Chamber.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is all true, there is no doubt about it; I did not observe it at first; but let us go on this morning with the other cases that have not been called.

Mr. SQUIRE. I consent to the bill going over until to-morrow.

Mr. PROCTOR. I ask that the bill (S. 1233) to establish a military post on the line of railway between Burlington and Highgate, Vt., be taken up. It was passed over at the request of the senior Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHANDLER], who now informs me that he withdraws his objection.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is in the same condition that the other bill is. Let us commence with the Calendar where cases have not been called up, and give somebody who has had no opportunity an opportunity, and then in the morning hour to-morrow let it be understood that cases passed over without prejudice shall be called up. There are a number of cases on the Calendar which have not been called at all, which have had no hearing, and I make this suggestion because it will create less trouble and everybody will be better satisfied.

Mr. PROCTOR. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The first business on the Calendar will be stated.

The joint resolution (S. R. 24) to provide for an international bimetallic agreement was announced as first in order on the Calendar.

Mr. ALLISON. That had better go over for the present. It can not be considered now.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be passed over without prejudice.

JOHN W. LEWIS.

The bill (S. 1106) for the relief of John W. Lewis, of Oregon, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay to John W. Lewis, register of the land office at The Dalles, Oregon, $521.97, being the amount of his maximum compensation in addition to his salary from April 17, 1890, to July 7, 1890.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, this bill was reported by a bare majority of the Committee on Public Lands. It is a bill that a large minority of that committee thought ought not to pass. It does not carry a great deal of money with it, only providing for an appropriation of $500 to be given to a register of the land office in Oregon.

The facts are these: The law provides that the register and receiver shall each receive a salary of $500 a year, but it also allows them certain fees, and if those fees do not exceed $3,000 a year they retain them. If the fees do exceed that sum then they are paid into the Treasury. During the quarter from April to July, 1890, there were no fees received in this office. This register or receiver, as the case may be—I forget which he is—received his salary for that time, and there were no fees during that quarter. The reason why no fees were paid him was because there was a vacancy in the other office and business could not be done until both offices were filled, and therefore no fees were received during that quarter. The ruling of the Comptroller of the Treasury was, and properly, that there being no fees received in that quarter, he was only entitled to the salary provided by law, and that he was paid.

This bill seeks to give this officer $500 for that quarter because no fees were paid him by reason of one of the offices being vacant. That is all there is in the bill. He says that if the other office had been filled he would have received fees amounting to this much; but the office was not filled, and under the law he is entitled to no fees unless fees are paid him during the quarter. He received the salary which the law authorized him to receive, and this is a proposition to give him $500 because no fees were received during that quarter, the reason being, as I have stated, that there was a vacancy in the other office. If this officer be the register, then there was a vacancy in the receiver's office, and if he be the receiver, then there was a vacancy in the register's office.

Mr. HARRIS. I should like to ask for my own information, as to the failure to receive fees during that quarter, whether those fees would not come in another quarter when the other office was filled?

Mr. DOLPH. No.

Mr. HARRIS. Would not the same work have to be done at another day when that office was filled, for which fees would be received?

Mr. BERRY. The law is that the receiver or register shall not receive more than $3,000 a year for both fees and salary, and this is paid quarterly, each quarter depending upon itself. That is the law, and if there are no fees received during one quarter, then under the law the officer is entitled to no fees, but he is entitled to his salary whether any work is done or not. If no work is done, no fees come in, and then he receives only the salary. He did not receive any fees for this quarter, and therefore the proposition is to give him $500 upon the supposition that the fees would have been received if the other office there, which was vacant, had been filled. It is an absolute gift out of the Treasury to this person of that much money, to which he is no more entitled than any other citizen in the United States of America.

Mr. DOLPH. I should like to be able to be heard for a moment. This gentleman at the time of his appointment resided at a point distant from this land office. He qualified on the 17th of April, 1890. After he qualified, but before he entered upon the duties of the office, the receiver of the land office in that district, Thomas W. Slusher, died. The President failed to make an appointment or the Senate to confirm a successor to the receiver until the 7th day of July, 1890. Mr. Lewis left his business and went to the place where the land office was located. He received and filed the applications which were made to him, received the money and deposited it in bank until the 7th of July, when a receiver was appointed, when the papers and the money which had been received were turned over. He attended to the business of the office, kept the office open, and was constantly employed in the transaction of such business as could be transacted without the presence of a receiver. His salary was $500 per annum, not enough to pay his board during the time, and the fees received during the entire year would not pay his full compensation during the time. This is as meritorious a measure as ever came from the Committee on Public Lands.

I do not think that the committee was divided as the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BERRY] has stated. I think at least one member of the minority, the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE], favored the bill.

Mr. BERRY. I think the Senator is mistaken. I think the committee was divided five to four.

Mr. DOLPH. No. The case the Senator has in mind is the case of refunding the dollar and a quarter an acre to those who purchased within railroad limits.

Mr. BERRY. I think the minority of the committee was opposed to this bill.

Mr. DOLPH. The Senator himself was opposed to it.

Mr. BERRY. If the Senator intends to state that I am the only member of the committee who was opposed to it, then the Senator is wrong.

Mr. DOLPH. No, I do not so state.

Mr. BERRY. As I remember, the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. WALTHALL] who sits near me, was opposed to it.

Mr. WALTHALL. Mr. President, I do not know that it is at all material, but I can state that the committee on this bill, according to my distinct recollection, divided on party grounds.

Mr. DOLPH. I will state to the Senator that he is mistaken about that. It is the bill to refund a dollar and a quarter an acre which he has in mind. The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE] voted for this bill and he now nods his assent, so that the Senator from Mississippi is mistaken.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and read the third time.

Mr. BERRY. Upon the passage of the bill I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CULLOM (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY]. I see he is not in his seat, and I withhold my vote.

Mr. FAULKNER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY], and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. PLATT (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]. I do not see him in his seat, and therefore withhold my vote. I should vote "yea" if he were present.

Mr. PROCTOR (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL], who is not in his seat. I therefore withhold my vote for the present.

Mr. PUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR].

Mr. WALTHALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON]. If he were present, I should vote "nay."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BUTLER. I am paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON]. Not knowing how he would vote if present, I withhold my vote.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I am paired with the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER]. Were he present, I should vote "yea."

Mr. RANSOM. I am paired generally with the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE]. He is not present, and I decline to vote; otherwise I should vote "nay."

Mr. CULLOM. I have a general pair, as I stated, with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY], but with an understanding that where a question is not political, in order to make a quorum either of us may have the right to vote. I therefore venture to cast my vote in favor of the bill. I vote "yea."

Mr. PALMER. I am not familiar with the question before the Senate, but to make a quorum, I will vote "nay."

Mr. HANSBROUGH. The Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER] now being present, I shall vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 31, nays 20; as follows:

YEAS—31.

Allen.	Gallinger.	Perkins.	Stockbridge.
Allison.	Hansbrough.	Pettigrew.	Teller.
Casey.	Hawley.	Sawyer.	Warren.

Cameron.	Gibson, Md.	McPherson.	Walthall.
Carey.	Gordon.	Mitchell.
Chandler.	Gray.	Peller.
Cockrell.	Hale.	Platt.

So the bill was passed.

ELECTION OF SENATORS—IDAHO CASE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a resolution which he inadvertently omitted to do before, coming over from a previous day, offered by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN], relative to the election of United States Senators.

Mr. MORGAN. I have conferred with the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] about that resolution, and we have agreed to let it lie over until the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] returns.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The next bill on the Calendar will be stated.

SALE OF FIREARMS AND AMMUNITION TO INDIANS.

The bill (S. 438) to prohibit the sale of firearms and ammunition to the Indians residing upon reservations was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM W. BURNS.

The bill (S. 115) for the relief of William W. Burns was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment of $7,987 to William W. Burns, in full payment of the balance due him for royalty on 3,195 Sibley tents used by the United States Government.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ESTATE OF WILLIAM MOSS, DECEASED.

The bill (S. 114) making an appropriation for the benefit of the estate of William Moss, deceased, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay $14,175 to the administrator of the estate of William Moss, deceased, late of Arkansas, for the benefit of the heirs at law of the deceased, for extra services in transporting the United States mails from Washington, Ark., to Clarksville, Tex., and back, three times a week, from July 1, 1854, until June 30, 1858, which services were not provided for in his contract.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MOSES PENDERGRASS.

The bill (S. 8) for the relief of Moses Pendergrass, of Missouri, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for settling and auditing the accounts and claim of Moses Pendergrass as contractor in carrying the mails on route numbered 28630, in the State of Missouri, from July 1, 1887, to May 6, 1888, upon the basis and amount of $317 per annum as his bid for such service, under the advertisement of September 15, 1886, and of the orders of the Post-Office Department increasing the service thereon, and for paying him for such service an amount not exceeding $379.56, in full satisfaction therefor.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

E. R. SHIPLEY.

The bill (S. 9) for the relief of E. R. Shipley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment of $460 in full to E. R. Shipley for moneys paid, by direction of Post-Office Inspector Edgerton, to parties having money in registered packages stolen from the post-office in Springfield, Mo., on the 23d of June, 1884.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY L. ROSS.

The bill (S. 852) for the relief of Mary L. Ross was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay to Mary L. Ross, former postmaster at Newport, Ky., $89.27 for light, fuel, and miscellaneous items disallowed in the settlements of her accounts in the third and fourth quarters of 1882 and the first and third quarters of 1883.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MAJ. GREEN CLAY GOODLOE.

The bill (S. 205) to reimburse Maj. Green Clay Goodloe, paymaster United States Marine Corps, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to appropriate $3,333.31 to reimburse him for money stolen by Benjamin A. Jones, alias Benjamin A. Jaeger, a clerk in his office, who committed suicide December 25, 1889, and who was indicted by the courts of the District of Columbia for this theft.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The attention of the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] is called to this bill. The name of Maj. Goodloe is omitted in the body of the bill.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I ask unanimous consent to make the insertion now. I move to strike out the word "him," in line 6, and insert the words "Maj. Green Clay Goodloe, paymaster United States Marine Corps."

Mr. COCKRELL. That is right.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. In line 6, after the word "reimburse," it is proposed to strike out "him" and insert "Maj. Green Clay Goodloe, paymaster United States Marine Corps;" so as to read:

To reimburse Maj. Green Clay Goodloe, paymaster United States Marine Corps, for money stolen, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time, and passed.

G. M. HAZEN AND OTHERS.

The bill (S. 16) for the relief of G. M. Hazen and others was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment to the following-named persons, their assigns or legal representatives, the amounts due on their respective contracts with the United States, as appears by certified accounts on file in the Treasury Department, viz: To George M. Hazen, $175; to J. J. Donegan, $446; to A. Burwell, $125; to N. C. Blanton, $430; to Mrs. J. P. Williams, $900; to Masonic Hall Company, Atlanta, Ga., $475.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAVIDSON DICKSON AND OTHERS.

The bill (S. 19) for the relief of Davidson Dickson and others was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment to the following-named persons, or to their legal representatives, of the amounts due on their contracts with the United States, as appears by certified accounts on file in the Treasury Department, viz: To Davidson Dickson, $10; to W. B. Daniels, $28; to J. C. McCrary, $12.50; to A. Pike, $100; to estate of James A. Radson, $771.25; to E. E. Rawson, $246.33; to M. Sparks, $100; to Trustees Old Fellows' Lodge, Pulaski, Tenn., $64.16; to E. Rouff, $45; to E. C. Clements, $200; to R. W. Corbin, $22.50; to J. A. Henry, $52; to Robert Stevenson, $54; to Miles S. Draughn, $60.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM BOND &amp; CO. AND OTHERS.

The bill (S. 236) for the relief of William Bond & Co. and others was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment of certain balances of commissions due them on their purchases of internal-revenue stamps printed from their private dies, as provided in section 3425 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, on the full amount, face value, of stamps purchased, without distinction as to the time when such purchases were made.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ESTATE OF ISAAC P. TICE, DECEASED.

The bill (S. 972) for the relief of the administrators of the estate of Isaac P. Tice, deceased, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to confer jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to retry and determine according to law and in equity the case of the administrators of Isaac P. Tice, deceased, against the United States, decided by the Supreme Court at the October term, 1878, and also to try and determine according to law and in equity the claims of Tice for money collected, but not paid over to him, under the regulations of the Treasury, based upon his contract with the United States. In the retrial the statute of limitations shall not be available against the rights and claims of Tice, but the United States may offer in evidence any evidence given and filed in the prior trial. The court may render a judgment in favor of the administrators of Tice for such sums as may be found to be due and unpaid to him on any of the accounts named.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM M. KEIGHTLEY.

The bill (S. 978) for the relief of William M. Keightley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay to William M. Keightley, postmaster at Durango, Colo., $1,350, being amount of clerk hire paid by him from January 4, 1881, to March 31, 1882, during which period the office was in the fourth class.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROYAL M. HUBBARD.

The bill (S. 975) for the relief of the legal representatives of Royal M. Hubbard was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment to the legal representatives of Royal M. Hubbard, late postmaster at Longmont, Colo., $600 for rent of post-office during the period from April 1, 1881, to June 30, 1883.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HORACE A. W. TABOR.

The bill (S. 976) for the relief of Horace A. W. Tabor was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay to Horace A. W. Tabor, of Colorado, $3,869.94, or so much thereof as shall appear to the proper accounting officer of the Government to have been paid by Tabor for necessary expenses in the Leadville post-office over and above the allowances made for that purpose.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

B. F. ROCKAFELLOW.

The bill (S. 977) for the relief of B. F. Rockafellow was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment of $614.11 to B. F. Rockafellow, on his account as postmaster at Canyon City, Colo., or so much of that amount as shall appear to the proper accounting officer of the Government to have been paid by Rockafellow for necessary clerk hire in the Canyon City post-office.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ESTATE OF JOHN ERICSSON.

The bill (S. 938) for the relief of the estate of John Ericsson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay to the personal representatives of John Ericsson $13,930, for the balance found due Ericsson by the Court of Claims, in February, 1857, for his services in planning the United States war steamer Princeton, and planning and superintending the construction of the machinery of that steamer.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

J. C. IRWIN &amp; CO., AND OTHERS.

The bill (S. 21) for the relief of J. C. Irwin & Co. and C. A. Perry & Co. was announced as next in order.

Mr. COCKRELL. That bill being adversely reported, let it be passed over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be passed over.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT SPOKANE FALLS, WASH.

Mr. SQUIRE. I ask that Order of Business 100, Senate bill 617, which was passed over without prejudice, may be now considered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title will be stated.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 617) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Spokane Falls, in the State of Washington.

By unanimous consent the bill was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. DOLPH. Mr. President—

Mr. CULLOM. I insist upon the regular order.

Mr. SHOUP. I ask for the present consideration of a bill which was passed over without prejudice.

Mr. CULLOM. I insist upon the regular order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The regular order is called for.

Mr. CULLOM. We can get along better with these bills in that way, I think.

The bill (S. 1674) incorporating the Society of American Florists was announced as next in order on the Calendar.

Mr. PLATT. That bill was reported by the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. PADDICK], who is not in his seat at this moment. I do not know that I object to it at all, but I wish that it may go over, so that I may examine it.

Mr. DOLPH. I should like to have an explanation or at least have the Senator point out under what clause or section of the Constitution this comes.

Mr. PLATT. I had that in mind, and therefore I asked to have it passed over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be passed over.

OTTO A. RISUM.

The bill (S. 232) for the relief of Otto A. Risum was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the allowance to Otto A. Risum, postmaster at Pulcifer, Wis., of $78, lost in transit by reason of the robbery of the mail.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

REVENUE CUTTERS ON THE GREAT LAKES.

The bill (S. 1681) making an appropriation for the construction of two United States revenue cutters for service on the Great Lakes was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT ALAMEDA, CAL.

Mr. STANFORD. I desire to call up the bill (S. 1207) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Alameda, in the State of California.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the bill (S. 1207) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Alameda, in the State of California, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. STANFORD. This bill has been reported favorably. Alameda has a population of 11,165; the postal receipts during 1889 were $7,648.74 and the net revenue $5,878.40. The town has entirely outgrown the accommodations. The accommodations are such as when the town had only two or three thousand inhabitants. Now the building is entirely insufficient to accommodate a population of over eleven thousand.

Mr. COCKRELL. Mr. President, only a moment ago the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUP] asked to call up a bill on the Calendar which was in the same condition as this bill and the Senator from Illinois [Mr. CULLOM] called for the regular order.

Mr. DOLPH. The bill of the Senator from Illinois has passed since.

Mr. COCKRELL. He called for the regular order. The question is, what is the regular order? I asked the Senator from Idaho, the Senator from Washington, and one or two other Senators to allow their bills to be passed over until we had acted for some time upon the regular order of the Calendar. Now, I have no objection to the Senator from California getting up his bill, because it comes upon the Calendar without objection; but then the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUP] and the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROCTOR] ought to be treated in the same way.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. This bill was passed over heretofore without prejudice.

Mr. COCKRELL. So was the bill of the Senator from Idaho, and so with the bill of the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. STANFORD. This bill was passed without prejudice. I can see no impropriety in considering and passing the bill now, as it was heretofore passed over without prejudice.

Mr. COCKRELL. If the Senator will just stop his speech the bill will be passed. Nobody has objected to it.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MILITARY POST BETWEEN BURLINGTON AND HIGHGATE, VT.

Mr. PROCTOR. I ask that Senate bill 1233, Order of Business 150, may be taken up.

Mr. COCKRELL. That was passed over without prejudice, was it not?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It was passed over without prejudice.

There being no objection, the bill (S. 1233) to establish a military post on the line of railway between Burlington and Highgate, Vt., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT BOISÉ CITY, IDAHO.

Mr. SHOUP. I now ask for the consideration of Senate bill 393, which was passed over without prejudice.

There being no objection, the bill (S. 393) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Boise City, in the State of Idaho, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with amendments. The first amendment was, on page 2, line 12, after the word "dollars," to insert "which sum is hereby appropriated;" so as to read:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, a site, and cause to be erected thereon a suitable building, including fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, elevators and approaches, for the use and accommodation of the United States post-office and other Government offices in Boise City, and State of Idaho, the cost of said site and building, including said vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, elevators, and approaches, complete, not to exceed the sum of $200,000, which sum is hereby appropriated.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, to insert at the end of the bill the following paragraph:

The building shall be unexposed to danger from fire by an open space of at least 40 feet on each side, including streets and alleys.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

COLLECTION DISTRICT OF PUGET SOUND.

Mr. DOLPH. Order of Business 125, Senate bill 722, is an important general measure, but very brief, which went over on the objection of one of the Senators from Washington. That objection is withdrawn, or at least no further opposition is made to the bill. I ask to have it taken up for action at this time.

Mr. VANCE. I ask for the regular order.

Mr. DOLPH. This is a very brief bill of general importance.

Mr. FRYE. This is the regular order.

Mr. DOLPH. It can be disposed of in a moment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill was passed over without prejudice.

Mr. DOLPH. Let it be reported for information.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read.

The bill (S. 722) to amend an act entitled "An act to reorganize and establish the customs collection district of Puget Sound," approved August 28, 1890, was read, and, by unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider it.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FORLORN HOPE STORMING PARTY.

The bill (S. 692) authorizing the Secretary of War to procure and present medals to the survivors of the "forlorn-hope storming party" of Port Hudson was announced as next in order.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask that that bill may be passed over in order that the Senator from Wyoming may have an opportunity of examining it, without losing its place on the present Calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FAULKNER in the chair). It will be so ordered, if there be no objection.

ROPES PASS, TEXAS.

The bill (S. 1295) to authorize the construction of jetties, piers, and breakwaters at private expense in the Gulf of Mexico, at the mouth of Ropes Pass, in the State of Texas, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with an amendment, on page 2, section 3, line 11, after the word "desired," to insert "by the Government of the United States;" so as to make the section read:

SEC. 3. That at any time after said improvements and works have been completed as herein provided, and a depth of 20 feet has been obtained, the United States shall have the right to pay the said company, or their assigns, successors, or legal representatives, the value of the works constructed under this act or under or by virtue of any authority granted by the State of Texas, and on such payment being made by the United States all rights to said work on the part of said parties shall cease; but nothing in this act shall be construed as compelling or requiring the Government to take possession of and pay for said works unless so desired by the Government of the United States.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HOSPITAL CORPS OF THE ARMY.

The bill (S. 552) to amend the act approved March 1, 1887, relating to the Hospital Corps of the Army, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to amend section 6 of the act approved March 1, 1887, entitled "An act to organize the Hospital Corps of the Army of the United States, to define its duty, and fix its pay," so as to read as follows:

SEC. 6. That the pay of privates of the Hospital Corps shall be $19 per month, with the increase on account of length of service as is now or may hereafter be allowed by law to other enlisted men. They shall be entitled to the same allowance as a corporal of the arm of service with which they may be on duty.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

REPRESENTATIVES OF ADELICIA CHEATHAM, DECEASED.

The bill (S. 43) for the relief of the personal representatives of Adelia Cheatham, deceased, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment to the personal representatives of Adelia Cheatham, deceased, of $32,074, with interest from October 29, 1868, in full discharge of all claims for money illegally assessed on the 10th of May, 1867, and again on the 14th of March, 1868, by the assessor for the fifth collection district of the State of Tennessee, under the internal-revenue law of the 30th of June, 1864, chapter 173, on crops of cotton raised in Louisiana during the years 1861 and 1862.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

AUGUSTUS BOYD.

The bill (S. 256) for the relief of Augustus Boyd was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs with an amendment, in line 5, before the word "place," to insert "appoint and;" and in line 9, after the word "disability," to insert "and the retired list is hereby increased in number to that extent;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the President be, and hereby is, authorized to nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint and place on the list of retired officers of the United States Army the name of Augustus Boyd, with the rank of captain of staff, this being the actual rank in the regular Army held by him when in the service he received the injury from which he suffers permanent disability; and the retired list is hereby increased in number to that extent: Provided, That no pay or allowances shall accrue or be paid to said Augustus Boyd under this act prior to his confirmation.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BRIDGE ACROSS KOOTENAI RIVER, IDAHO.

The bill (S. 1668) to authorize and regulate the construction of a bridge across the Kootenai River, at the town of Fry, County of Kootenai, State of Idaho, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments. The first amendment was, in section 4, line 6, after the word "purposes," to insert—

Equal rights and privileges shall be given to all telegraph and telephone companies to place their wires on said bridge, and any railroad company desiring to use said bridge for the crossing of its cars and trains thereon shall have the right to do so upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the parties, and if they shall be unable to agree, the Secretary of War shall fix the terms upon which said bridge may be so used—

so as to make the section read:

SEC. 4. That any bridge constructed under the provisions of this act and according to its limitations shall be a lawful structure, and shall be recognized as a post route, upon which no charge shall be made for the transmission over the same of the mails of the United States or for the right of way for United States postal-telegraph purposes. Equal rights and privileges shall be given to all telegraph and telephone companies to place their wires on said bridge, and any railroad company desiring to use said bridge for the crossing of its cars and trains thereon shall have the right to do so upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the parties, and if they shall be unable to agree, the Secretary of War shall fix the terms upon which said bridge may be so used.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 5, line 2, after the word "such," to strike out "bridges" and insert "bridge;" so as to make the section read:

Sec. 5. That all parties owning, occupying, or operating such bridge shall maintain, at their own expense, from sunset to sunrise, throughout the year, such lights thereon as the United States Light-House Board may prescribe.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 7, line 1, after the word "shall," to strike out "take effect immediately after its passage" and insert "be null and void if actual construction of the bridge herein authorized be not commenced within one year and completed within three years from the date hereof;" so as to make the section read:

Sec. 7. That this act shall be null and void if actual construction of the bridge herein authorized be not commenced within one year and completed within three years from the date thereof.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELIZA K. STARR.

The bill (S. 1220) granting a pension to Eliza K. Starr was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 8, to strike out "Fifth" and insert "Sixth," and in line 9, after the words "rate of," to strike out "fifty" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Eliza K. Starr, widow of Samuel H. Starr, late colonel Fifth New Jersey Volunteers, and major and brevet colonel Sixth United States Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 a month.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MILITARY POST NEAR LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

The bill (S. 113) to establish a military post near Little Rock, Ark., was announced as next in order.

Mr. PADDOCK. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, I ask that the regular order may be laid before the Senate.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I hope that the bill the title of which has been stated may be disposed of.

Mr. PADDOCK. Allow me to have the regular order laid before the Senate, and, when that is done, I will yield to the Senator.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Very well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which is the bill (S. 1) for preventing the adulteration and misbranding of foods and drugs, and for other purposes.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I ask that the regular order may be informally laid aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas asks that the unfinished business may be temporarily laid aside until the consideration of the bill the title of which has been read shall be concluded.

Mr. PADDOCK. I yield to the Senator for that purpose.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 113) to establish a military post near Little Rock, Ark.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs with an amendment, in section 2, line 6, after the words "sum of," to strike out "two hundred" and insert "fifty;" so as to make the section read:

Sec. 2. That for the purpose of defraying the expenses of locating said army post as aforesaid, and of constructing barracks, quarters, kitchens, mess halls, stables, storehouses, magazines, and other necessary and suitable buildings, there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $50,000, or so much thereof as is necessary, the same to be drawn from the Treasury and applied to said purposes under the direction of the Secretary of War: Provided, That no part of said sum hereby appropriated shall be expended until the aforesaid tract of land shall have been conveyed to and accepted by the United States.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CUSTOMS COLLECTION DISTRICT OF TAMPA.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumes the consideration of the unfinished business, the pending question being on the motion of the Senator from Texas [Mr. COKE] to strike out sections 7 and 8 of the committee's amendment, upon which the yeas and nays have been ordered.

Mr. FRYE. Before that is considered, I should like to have the next bill of the Calendar, Order of Business 185, passed over without prejudice, so that it may not be called up first at the next meeting.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The title of the bill will be stated.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 1956) to amend an act entitled "An act establishing a customs collection district in Florida, to be known as the collection district of Tampa, and for other purposes," approved March 4, 1889.

Mr. FRYE. Now let that bill be passed without prejudice.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It will be so ordered in the absence of objection.

FOOD AND DRUG ADULTERATION.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 1) for preventing the adulteration and misbranding of food and drugs, and for other purposes, the pending question being on the amendment submitted by Mr. COKE to strike out sections 7 and 8 of the amendment reported by the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. FAULKNER. I move to strike out lines 1 and 2 of the 8th section and part of line 3, down to the word "shall," and insert the amendment which I send to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. In section 7, beginning in line 1, it is proposed to strike out the words—

"That every person manufacturing or exposing for sale or delivering to a purchaser any drug or article of food included in the provisions of this act which is a subject of interstate commerce.

And insert in lieu thereof:

"That every person who manufactures for shipment and delivers for transportation from any State or Territory to any other State or Territory any drug or article of food, and every person who exposes for sale or delivers to a purchaser any drug or article of food received from a State or Territory other than the State or Territory in which he exposes for sale or delivers such drug or article of food, and which article is in the original unbroken package in which the same was received.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER].

Mr. PADDOCK. I desire to say for myself that I very cheerfully accept that amendment. It improves the phraseology and I do not think it weakens the bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. I did not catch the point where the amendment is proposed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Secretary will report the amendment.

The Secretary read the amendment of Mr. FAULKNER.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from West Virginia to the matter proposed to be stricken out.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. Now let that section as amended be read. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The section as amended will be read.

The Secretary read as follows:

Sec. 7. That every person who manufactures for shipment and delivers for transportation from any State or Territory to any other State or Territory any drug or article of food, and every person who exposes for sale or delivers to a purchaser any drug or article of food received from a State or Territory other than the State or Territory in which he exposes for sale or delivers such drug or article of food, and when article is in the original unbroken package in which the same was received shall furnish a sample of such drugs or articles of food, etc.

Mr. COCKRELL. Mr. President, that amendment has been agreed to, has it not?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It has.

Mr. COCKRELL. Now I move to amend, after the words "shall furnish," in line 3, by inserting "within business hours and upon tender and full payment of the selling price;" and by striking out, in line 9, the words "and shall tender him the full value thereof." That will obviate a serious objection made by the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER].

Mr. PADDOCK. So far as I am concerned I will accept that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Missouri will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After the word "furnish," in line 3 of section 7, it is proposed to insert the words "within business hours and upon tender and full payment of the selling price;" and in line 9, after the word "possession," to strike out the words "and shall tender him the full value thereof."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there be no objection, the two amendments will be considered as one, and the question will be put on them as one amendment.

Mr. WHITE. In consequence of this change it will be necessary in the first section, in line 14, after the word "manufactured," to insert: "Provided, The same be in the original or unbroken packages."

Mr. COCKRELL. That does not pertain to this amendment.

Mr. WHITE. Yes, I think it does.

Mr. COCKRELL. It has nothing to do with the amendment pending.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the amendment moved by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL] to the matter proposed to be stricken out.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. President, as the amendment offered by the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER] has been adopted, I move to insert, after the word "manufactured," in section 1, line 14, the words I before indicated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair would state that the original motion before the Senate is to strike out sections 7 and 8, and that amendments are now being offered to perfect those sections before the motion is taken upon striking them out.

Mr. WHITE. Very well.

Mr. VEST. I should like to inquire of the Senator from West Virginia if it is his intention to confine the operation of his amendment to persons who manufacture for shipment and deliver for transportation? It seems to me that would be the meaning of it. I have not the amendment before me, and of course I am dependent upon what I hear from the desk, but it struck me that that would be the operation of the amendment. It says, as I remember, "every person who manufactures for shipment and delivers for transportation." Then, of course, it would be only the manufacturer, and if a person in a State was the manufacturer and then shipped he would be excluded from the operations of the amendment.

Mr. FAULKNER. The object and purpose of the amendment is, as stated by the Senator from Missouri, to limit the right of the investigation as to samples of drugs sold or transhipped from one State to another, or of articles of food shipped from one State to another, so far as the manufacturer is concerned, to the fact that he had brought the article by his own act under the interstate-commerce clause; and until the manufacturer had delivered it or entered, as stated in different decisions of the Supreme Court, the article for transportation, it does not become a subject of interstate commerce under the provisions of the Federal Constitution. I do not think, and never have thought, it was the right of Congress to pass any act authorizing its agents to go into a State and investigate and inquire into the purity of an article, which article had not come within the interstate-commerce clause of the Federal Constitution.

This amendment of mine brings the article before it can be touched in that relation to the Federal Government. Then I think it becomes the right of the agent of the Government to go and ask of the parties a sample of the articles so shipped. The latter part of it refers to individuals, and that limits the right of the agent of the Government to go to a party who has received articles of food or drugs from another State and demand a sample of those while they exist as a subject of interstate commerce, which is up to the time that they remain in the original package, unbroken, and before they become mixed with the great mass of property in the State. When that time comes then the State laws come in and operate upon the question of purity and the examination and inspection of the article. The purpose of my amendment was to make that clear and distinct. Perhaps the bill meant really the same, but I believe we should be very clear in this matter and leave no room for doubt.

My amendment covers the case where there is a sale of an article in the original package. The article is still subject to interstate-commerce regulations, but as soon as it becomes subject to the jurisdiction of the police power of the States, up to the time that it passes from the hands of the party who received it from another State by sale or by the breaking of the package and mixing it with the mass of property in the State, it is still the subject of interstate commerce.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, let the amendment be reported again.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment already adopted will be read.

The Secretary read section 7 as amended on the motion of Mr. FAULKNER.

Mr. BUTLER. Is that a substitute?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is the section as it has been amended, which has been read as far as the Secretary proceeded with the reading.

Mr. HARRIS. I should like to ask the Senator from Missouri or the Senator from West Virginia, for I have not kept up with these amendments, if the taking of these samples and the analysis of them is confined to the thing that has entered into interstate commerce?

Mr. VEST. Precisely.

Mr. HARRIS. Then I do not see exactly why you should go to a manufacturer for a sample, because while the thing remains in the hands of the manufacturer it is not a thing in interstate commerce. When it has gone into the hands of the common carrier on its way to its final destination and has been received by the common carrier I understand it to be a subject of interstate commerce and it continues in interstate commerce until it reaches its destination.

I desire to know if this system of demanding samples is broadcast in respect to manufactories and productions of States while in the States and before they have become things actually in interstate commerce, because in the one case I think the legislation would be constitutional, and in the other I am quite satisfied it would not be.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, of course I do not hold myself at all responsible for this amendment, but it passed the Senate without any negative vote. I simply call the attention of its friends to the fact that the operation of it is confined exclusively to the manufacturer. Under this amendment, as adopted, if a manufacturer in a State sells an article manufactured to another party, and that party ships it or makes it the subject of interstate commerce, puts it into the hands of the common carrier, then this amendment does not apply. That is the meaning, as I understand, of the Senator from West Virginia. In other words, an article may be adulterated and deleterious to health and life; but if it passes out of the hands of the manufacturer to another citizen of the State and he becomes the shipper to another State or Territory, then the article shipped is not subject to this amendment.

Mr. FAULKNER. I should like to ask the Senator from Missouri whether he thinks, if the manufacturer adulterates an article and sells it in the State and is not in any way responsible for its transportation from that State into another State, he can be made criminally responsible under any Federal statute?

Mr. VEST. I do not know.

Mr. FAULKNER. My idea is that he can not be, and for that reason I have limited it to the manufacturer who adulterates in the manufacture of the article and delivers for transportation to another State.

Mr. VEST. I may be mistaken, Mr. President, as to the scope and purpose of this proposed legislation, but it has been my impression, and nothing in the debate has removed it, that the friends of this measure intended it to apply to all products which were being shipped from one State or Territory to another or from this country to a foreign country; that it was not a penal statute alone intended to punish the adulteration of food or drugs, but that it was intended to get rid of a confessed abuse which now exists in this country in regard to adulteration. The amendment of the Senator from West Virginia, I simply suggest, confines the operation entirely to the manufacturer, and in any event, however much adulteration there may be in an article of food or medicine, if it passes out of his hands in the State and then is shipped to another State or Territory, this proposed law does not affect it. But I am not posing here as a friend of the measure; I simply make the suggestion.

Mr. KENNA. I should like to ask the Senator whether it is his understanding if a manufacturer of any particular article of food manufactures such article in such manner as to bring it within the terms of this bill, will it be any the less an article of interstate commerce because it is sold to a second or third party who ships it to another State than if he ships it himself? And if he ships it or sells it to somebody else who ships it, would it not still be just as much a matter of jurisdiction for Congress as an article of interstate commerce adulterated as if the original manufacturer shipped it himself?

Mr. VEST. Unquestionably it would.

Mr. KENNA. That being the case, ought not this provision—and I make the same suggestion to my colleague—apply just as well in that particular case to the manufacturer as to the second, third, or tenth man who shipped it across the line?

Mr. VEST. I am not talking about the amendment as to the manufacturer, but I am talking about the fact that it stops with the manufacturer. Of course it never becomes an article of interstate commerce unless it is put in transit, into the hands of a common carrier, and is actually upon its passage from one State or Territory into another. We all agree about that. Whether we are friendly to the bill or against it we all agree as to that definition.

This amendment confines its operation to the product in the hands of the manufacturer, and when he makes it an article of interstate commerce he lifts it out of the class of cases to which the other Senator from West Virginia referred. Where the manufacturer has sold it in the State to a person who has purchased it and takes it to a common carrier, he starts it from that State to another. That is the operation of the amendment. If that is the intention of it, very well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there be no further amendments intended to perfect the sections, the question recurs on the motion to strike out, on which the yeas and nays have been ordered.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, I think undoubtedly the construction put by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] upon the amendment offered by the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER] is correct, and because it is correct I think it is a very meritorious amendment to the bill. I regard this whole legislation as vicious. As the bill now stands it can have no operation upon any shipper except the manufacturer, and for that reason I hope that no amendment will be made which will enlarge the scope and operation of that part of the bill.

Mr. WHITE. I should like to ask a question as to the operation of this amendment. Suppose a manufacturer manufactures adulterated goods and sells them to a third party, and that third party ships them before the original package is broken, would they come under the provisions of this bill?

Mr. FAULKNER. If in the hands of the consignee in the State to which they are shipped in the original or unbroken package, they come under the terms of this bill, and not until then.

Mr. WHITE. Then the criticism made by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] is not well taken. As I understand the amendment, it only makes the shipment wrong when it is done by the manufacturer. Therefore, if he sells the goods to a third person and that third person ships them, the provisions of the bill do not apply.

Mr. VEST. Of course not.

Mr. WHITE. That makes the section wholly inoperative.

Mr. FAULKNER. Mr. President, it strikes me that there can not be any misunderstanding about my amendment. I, of course, intend to limit it to the action of the manufacturer in shipping an article and making it an article of interstate commerce, because if he sells an adulterated article to any one in the State where manufactured, then the State law takes care of that matter and will punish him; but if he sells it to a third party and that party then ships it into another State, the consignee who receives it would be required under the terms of this amendment to give a sample of it to the officers of the Government and have it analyzed, and if it were found to be adulterated he could be punished.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, the remarks of the Senator from West Virginia illustrate the operation of this bill better than anything I have said about it. He says if an article is adulterated by the manufacturer and sold in the State, then the State laws will take hold of it. The very object of this legislation is to do what the States are presumed not to have done, or else to make this legislation apply to an article that becomes the subject of interstate commerce. Now, it is very evident that if the State laws are enforced in regard to the adulteration of food or drugs there can be, except the ordinary defects which arise in all human legislation, no shipment from one State to another of adulterated food or drugs. If the State does its duty and enforces its statutes, as a matter of course there will be nothing the subject of interstate commerce which is adulterated.

But we are attempting here now to supplement, or, in other words, to do what the State ought to do by the instrumentalities of the General Government and under the interstate-commerce clause of the Constitution. I think he is a very bold legislator who will rise here and say that the police powers of the States do not apply to the quarantine and inspection laws. I take it that no Senator will do so. But we are now attempting under the interstate-commerce clause of the Constitution to supplement the police power of the States. If what the Senator from West Virginia contemplates should be done, and the police power of the State is fairly and honestly exercised upon all the articles of food and drugs within its limits, there will be nothing to be shipped to any other State or Territory from that State which is adulterated. The whole meaning and object of this bill is to do by the General Government what the States have already done or what they should have done.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending question is on the motion to strike out sections 7 and 8 as they have been amended. On this question the yeas and nays have been ordered.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BUTLER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON]. If he were present I should vote "yea." I do not know how he would vote.

Mr. CULLOM (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY], and therefore am not at liberty to vote.

Mr. FAULKNER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY]. I am informed by the Senator in charge of this bill that he has authority to state that the Senator from Pennsylvania is in favor of the bill. That being so, I vote "nay."

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PLATT, when his name was called). The present occupant of the chair is paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]. He would vote "nay" if the Senator from Virginia were present.

Mr. PROCTOR (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL]. If he were here I should vote "nay."

Mr. WALTHALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON]. If at liberty to vote I should vote "yea."

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Montana [Mr. POWER]. If at liberty I should vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BERRY. I desire to state that my colleague [Mr. JONES of Arkansas] is paired with the Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK]. My colleague, if present, would vote "yea."

Mr. CAREY. I am paired with the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. IRBY]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. MANDERSON. I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN], but I am informed that the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] is not paired on this question. I will therefore pair him in his absence with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN], and will vote. I vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 19, nays 31; as follows:

YEAS—19.

So the amendment to the amendment was rejected.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move to strike out section 9.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Senator from Missouri will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out section 9, as follows:

Sec. 9. That in prosecutions for violations of any of the provisions of this act proof of the act done shall be held to imply knowledge and intent on the part of the accused, unless such knowledge and intent shall be disproved on the trial. If it be shown that said dealer is innocent of any intentional fraud, then the action in court shall lie against the dealers having furnished the accused the articles in question, and these dealers shall be parties to the suit.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL].

Mr. FAULKNER. What is the amendment?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. To strike out section 9. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Missouri. [Putting the question.] The ayes appear to have it. The ayes have it, and the amendment to the amendment is agreed to.

Mr. FAULKNER. Mr. President, is that vote on the adoption of the amendment?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is. The Chair will put the question again. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Missouri to strike out section 9. [Putting the question.] The ayes appear to have it. The ayes have it, and the amendment to the amendment is agreed to.

Mr. PADDOCK. Mr. President, I understood that my friend the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER] desired to offer a modification of the section. I do not think he quite understood the stage of parliamentary progress.

Mr. FAULKNER. I understood very well the stage of the question, but the President did not give me a chance to offer my amendment.

Mr. HARRIS. The Chair put the question the second time. Mr. FAULKNER. I do not think the amendment of the Senator from Missouri will affect the bill very much, and therefore I did not insist upon recognition by the Chair in order to offer the modification which I proposed to offer.

Mr. PADDOCK. I think, under the circumstances, the Sena-of intoxicating liquors, would oppose it. The Committee on Territories, of which Senator PLATT is chairman, and who is a strict temperance man, no doubt moved thereto by my representations concerning affairs in Alaska, are investigating by witnesses matters concerning Alaskan affairs, and I hope will be able to report some measure that will accomplish something to preserve the natives of Alaska from the evils of intemperance.

Yours, truly,

J. N. DOLPH.

To the EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN,
Portland, Oregon.

Mr. DOLPH. I will ask leave to have printed as part of my remarks the two bills relating to this question introduced by me, that they may go together.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The bills referred to are as follows:

A bill (S. 628) to enlarge the jurisdiction and to fix the compensation of United States commissioners in Alaska, to regulate appeals from their judgments, to provide for the appointment of additional commissioners, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in addition to the duties and powers exercised by the United States commissioners in and for the district of Alaska they shall have and exercise all the duties, powers, and jurisdiction vested in, exercised, and held by county judges under the general laws of the State of Oregon so far as said laws may be applicable in said district, and not in conflict with the laws of the United States; and they shall receive such fees as notaries public and for recording instruments as are allowed by said laws of Oregon for similar services, and in addition thereto an annual salary of $2,000 each, payable out of the Treasury of the United States, which salary shall be in lieu of all fees for services rendered in a judicial capacity or as United States commissioners. An appeal shall lie from the orders and judgments of said commissioners to the district court of said district in all cases, civil and criminal, where an appeal is allowed under said general laws of the State of Oregon from an order or judgment given in the county court or by a justice of the peace, and in the manner prescribed by such general laws.

SEC. 2. That there shall be appointed by the President three additional commissioners in and for said district of Alaska, who shall have the jurisdiction and powers conferred upon commissions by an act entitled "An act providing a civil government for Alaska," approved May 17, 1884, and by this act, and the President shall designate the place where each of said commissioners shall reside, and may determine and establish by executive order the limits and boundaries of the districts of each of the commissioners of said district.

SEC. 3. That all violations, after the passage of this act, of chapter 3, Title XXIII, of the Revised Statutes, and of section 14 of an act entitled "An act providing a civil government for Alaska," for which the penalty provided by law is, or under any act of Congress passed hereafter shall be, not exceeding $500 fine, or six months' imprisonment, or both such fine and imprisonment, shall be tried by the court without the intervention of a jury.

SEC. 4. That hereafter no special tax shall be collected by the United States from any wholesale or retail liquor-dealer, or any wholesale or retail dealer in malt liquors, or license to retail spirituous or malt liquors granted to any such dealer within the district of Alaska, unless such dealer has been designated in the manner provided by law to sell such spirituous or malt liquor for medicinal, mechanical, scientific, and sacramental purposes.

SEC. 5. That it shall be the duty of the marshal and deputy marshals of said district, of the collector of customs, and all deputy collectors of customs and customs officers to seize and destroy all spirituous and malt liquors found in process of manufacture in said district, or offered, exposed, or intended for sale therein by any person or persons who have not been lawfully designated to dispose of the same for medicinal, mechanical, scientific, or sacramental purposes, and to forthwith report the same, with a statement of the time, place, and circumstances, to the collector of customs, if the seizure is made by an officer other than the collector of customs, and the collector of customs shall at once report all seizures to the Secretary of the Treasury. It shall be the duty of the marshal and of all deputy marshals when called upon by any customs officer to aid him in making any such seizure, and the marshal and any deputy marshal whenever he is forcibly resisted in endeavoring to enforce or aid in enforcing this section, or is by violence, threats, or menace prevented from enforcing this section or aiding in its enforcement, is empowered to summon and call to his aid any bystanders or posse comitatus of his district. Spirituous or malt liquors displayed or found in a saloon, brewery, or other place where liquors are offered for sale, shall be conclusively presumed to be intended for sale.

SEC. 6. That so much and such parts of an act entitled "An act providing a civil government for Alaska," approved May 17, 1884, as are in conflict with this bill are hereby repealed.

A bill (S. 1076) to license and regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors in the district of Alaska.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the passage of this act, upon the written or printed application of any white resident of the district of Alaska over 21 years of age, of good character, to the governor of Alaska for a license to sell intoxicating liquors at some designated place in said district for a period of not exceeding one year, and upon the execution and presentation and filing with the treasurer of said district of the bond of the applicant, with sufficient sureties satisfactory to the governor, in the penal sum of $1,000, conditioned that the applicant shall keep an orderly house, and will not sell intoxicating liquors to Indians or minors under the age of 18 years, and upon the payment into the treasury of the said district of the sum of $250, to be disposed of as other moneys received for public dues in said district, the governor of said district, if it shall be made to appear to him that said applicant is a proper person to receive such license, and that a license should be issued to sell intoxicating liquors at the place mentioned in the petition, shall issue a license to said applicant, authorizing him to sell on week days and between 6 o'clock ante meridiem and 12 o'clock midnight only, distilled, malt, or fermented liquors, wines, or cordials, to be drunk on the premises, or in quantities of less than one quart, to persons other than Indians or minors under the age of 18 years.

SEC. 2. For any breach of the conditions of said bond, by keeping a disorderly house, by selling liquor to Indians or minors under the age of 18 years, for smuggling liquors into said district, or aiding or abetting such smuggling, for any violation of the provisions of chapter 3, of Title XXIII, of the Revised Statutes of the United States, or of section 14 of an act entitled "An act providing a civil government for Alaska," as modified by this act, such license shall be revoked by the governor of said district, who shall cause suit to be brought upon said bond, the penalty whereof shall be considered and treated as liquidated damages, and the licensee shall in addition be liable to all the pains and penalties provided by law for such violation of the statute.

SEC. 3. Upon application of said licensee the collector of customs for said district of Alaska shall issue to him a permit to import into said district, for sale in accordance with and under the limitations and restrictions provided in said license, distilled and malt liquors, wines, and cordials, in such quantities as he shall deem reasonable.

SEC. 4. So much and such parts of chapter 3, of Title XXIII, of the Revised Statutes of the United States and of an act entitled "An act providing for a civil government for Alaska," approved May 17, 1884, as are in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed.

Mr. PEPPER. Will the Senator from Oregon allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. DOLPH. Certainly.

Mr. PEPPER. In what respect does he think the bill proposed by him will improve the condition of affairs with reference to the sale of liquor in Alaska?

Mr. DOLPH. I attempted to state that the other day when I was interrogated by the Senator from North Dakota. As it is now, there is nobody except a few missionaries, school teachers, ladies, and persons in Government employ who are willing to assist the officers of the Government in suppressing the traffic. There is no public opinion in Alaska in favor of enforcing the law. The white population consists of about 4,000 whites, half-breeds, Russians, nearly all of whom will have liquor, and who are there for the purposes of mining, prospecting, and trading. The population is not such a population as will aid the officers in enforcing the law.

The proposition here is to license a few, such as the governor of the Territory shall deem to be suitable persons, and at places where he thinks liquor may be safely sold; but to require them to pay a license fee, require them to give a bond with a penalty conditioned that they will not sell liquor to Indians or to minors, and that they will not violate the law in regard to the introduction and sale of liquors in Alaska, and providing that in case they do the penalty of the bond shall be collected from them, that their license shall be revoked, and that they shall be subject to all the other penalties provided by law. The hope is that if some of these saloon-keepers are licensed who can sell liquor under a license to the white people who will have it, they will be interested in looking after others who do not pay license but smuggle liquor into Alaska and sell it to Indians, and that they will aid the officers in preventing that from being done. That is the only practicable way, in my judgment, to regulate or suppress the liquor traffic in Alaska. If anybody who knows me, or ever has known me, supposes that I would propose a measure concerning the introduction or sale of liquor that would be injurious to the natives of Alaska, or a measure that was not intended to restrict rather than to enlarge the sale, I am sorry that such persons have so poor an opinion of me.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL.

A message from the President of the United States by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had this day approved and signed the act (S. 821) to provide for a term of the circuit and district court at Littleton, N. H.

PRINTING OF A BILL AND REPORT.

Mr. PROCTOR. I offer a resolution providing for printing 500 copies of Report 317 for the use of the Committee on Military Affairs, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the Committee on Military Affairs 500 copies of Report No. 317, being a report on the bill (H. R. 328) to establish lineal promotion throughout the several lines of the artillery, cavalry, and infantry of the Army.

By unanimous consent, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. MANDERSON. I think that should be amended to include the bill as well as the report; and I will state that the Committee on Printing has made the needed investigation and finds the cost of printing much below the limit of $500 fixed by the law. I move to amend the resolution the way I have indicated.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution as proposed to be amended will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the Committee on Military Affairs 500 copies of the bill (H. R. 328) to establish lineal promotion throughout the several lines of the artillery, cavalry, and infantry of the Army, and report No. 317 thereon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

ADDITIONAL CLERK TO JUDICIARY COMMITTEE.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following resolution: which was read:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to appoint an additional clerk, to be paid at the rate of $6 per day, out of the contingent fund of the Senate, said appointment to expire on the 1st day of June, 1892.

Mr. HOAR. I should like to state for the information of the chairman of the Committee on Contingent Expenses that the Judiciary Committee have found it necessary in years past to have an additional clerk for a limited time. That was done when the then Senator from Vermont, Mr. Edmunds, was chairman. At the present session the business of that committee has accumulated, for causes which are known to the Senate very well for the last five or six weeks, and the present clerk has broken down on account of trouble with his eyes occasioned by his work. I hope they will be restored in four or five weeks, but that is the occasion for asking for this additional clerk at the present time.

I ask that the resolution may be referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That reference will be made under the rules.

Mr. PADDOCK, subsequently, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, reported the resolution without amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be received in the absence of objection.

Mr. PADDOCK. In view of the situation explained by the Senator from Massachusetts, the Committee on Contingent Expenses have considered it to be their duty to report the resolution which he submitted this morning. I ask for its present consideration.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT DEFICIENCY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further morning business that order is closed, and the Calendar under Rule 8 is in order.

Mr. HALE. I ask that the deficiency bill for the Department of Agriculture may be taken up at this time.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 6836) making appropriations to supply a deficiency in the Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NATHANIEL MAGRUDER.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The first bill on the Calendar will now be stated.

The bill (S. 1759) for the relief of the heirs of Nathaniel Magruder was announced as first in order, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It provides for the payment of $950 to the heirs of Nathaniel Magruder, of the District of Columbia, in full compensation for damages inflicted upon his property and the health of himself and family by the grading of Thirty-fifth street, in West Washington; one-half of the sum to be chargeable to revenue derived from taxation in the District of Columbia.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the report be read in that case.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be read.

The Secretary read the following report, submitted by Mr. VANCE February 1, 1892:

The Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1759) for relief of the heirs of Nathaniel Magruder, respectfully report: Nathaniel Magruder, during his life, was the owner of a house and lot situated on Thirty-fifth street, in Georgetown, D. C. It was located in a hollow or basin-like depression of the ground on the upper or west side of said street. In pursuance of a system of improvements made by the city authorities, Thirty-fifth street, in front of complainant's house, was filled up to a level with the second floor of his house, and the arrangement for the carrying off the surface water was such as to be entirely beyond the means of Magruder, who was a very poor man. The authorities neglected or refused to incur the expense necessary for the proper drainage, and the consequence was that the whole surplus water of the entire basin was emptied into and around the foundation of complainant's house.

These facts appeared on a personal visitation by a member of your committee. The premises were, in fact, rendered uninhabitable, and the complainant and his family suffered greatly in health in addition to the utmost discomfort and inconvenience.

The committee is satisfied that the bill (S. 1759) is a just one, and that the amount fixed, $950, is a very small sum, indeed, in compensation of the injuries and damages inflicted by this improvement in behalf of the public.

Your committee, therefore, recommends that the bill be passed, believing that this case is so obviously deserving as to make it an exception to the general policy adopted in regard to street improvements.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS G. HAYES.

The bill (S. 1612) to compensate Thomas G. Hayes for legal services rendered under direction of the Attorney-General was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment to Thomas G. Hayes, late United States attorney for the district of Maryland, of $800, the amount approved by the Attorney-General, for legal services rendered, under direction of the Attorney-General, in defending the Government's title to the site of Hawkins Point light-house, Maryland, and for like services in the ejectment suit of Ferguson vs. Hamlen, to recover possession of certain land adjacent to Battery Island, Susquehanna River, and occupied by the United States Fish Commission.

Mr. WILSON. There is no written report accompanying the bill, and I will make a brief statement concerning it. The bill was referred by the committee to the Attorney-General for information, and he gives this response:

Senate bill 1612 is a bill to compensate Thomas G. Hayes for legal services rendered under the direction of the Attorney-General. I do not now remember the amount approved as due Mr. Hayes by this office, except as is stated in this bill. If the amount stated be correct as approved, then I not only have no objection to the bill, but think to thus provide for a just debt of the Government would be a most commendable piece of legislation.

Further examination of the subject by the committee establishes the fact that the amount specified in the bill was the amount found due by the Government to the party for the services rendered. I therefore see no objection to the passage of the bill, and hope that it may be passed immediately.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DISTRICT INSPECTOR OF PLUMBING.

The bill (S. 1492) to authorize the appointment of an inspector of plumbing in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on the District of Columbia with amendments.

The first amendment was, in section 1, line 16, after the word "not," to strike out "less than twenty-five nor;" and in line 19, after the word "imprisonment," to strike out "for" and insert "not to exceed;" so as to make the section read:

That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and their successors be, and they hereby are, authorized and empowered to make, modify, and enforce regulations governing plumbing, house drainage, and the ventilation, preservation, and maintenance in good order of house sewers and public sewers in the District of Columbia, and also regulations governing the examination, registration, and licensing of plumbers and the practice of the business of plumbing in said District; and any person who shall neglect or refuse to comply with the requirements of the provisions of said regulations after ten days' notice of the specific thing required to be done thereunder, within the time limited by the Commissioners for doing such work, or as the said time may be extended by said Commissioners, shall upon conviction thereof be punishable by a fine of not more than $300 for each and every such offense, or in default of payment of fine, to imprisonment not to exceed thirty days.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 4, line 4, after the word "necessary," to insert "which may be authorized by appropriations made by Congress;" so as to make the section read:

SEC. 4. That the said Commissioners of the District of Columbia and their successors be, and they hereby are, authorized and empowered to appoint an inspector of plumbing and such number of assistants as they deem necessary, which may be authorized by appropriations made by Congress, not exceeding four, in and for the District, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of said Commissioners, and they are hereby empowered accordingly, to inspect or cause to be inspected all houses when in course of erection in said District, to see that the plumbing, drainage, and ventilation of sewers thereof conform to the regulations heretofore provided for; and also at any time, during reasonable hours, under like direction, to inspect or cause to be inspected any house in said District, to examine the plumbing, drainage, and ventilation of sewers thereof, and generally to see that the regulations heretofore provided for are duly observed and enforced.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 5, as follows:

SEC. 5. That the salary of the inspector of plumbing shall be $2,000 per annum, and that of each of the assistants $1,200 per annum, payable monthly.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DISTRICT WATER REVENUES.

The bill (S. 1884) to prevent fraud upon the water revenues of the District of Columbia was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

By the bill, any person who, with intent to injure or defraud the District of Columbia, shall make or cause to be made any pipe, tube, or other instrument or contrivance, or connect the same or cause it to be connected with any water main or service pipe or other pipe for conducting or supplying Potomac water, in such manner as to pass or carry the water, or any portion thereof, around or without passing through the meter provided for the measuring and registering of the Potomac water supplied to any premises, or who shall, without permission from the Commissioners of the District, tamper with or break any water meter or break the seal thereof, or in any manner change the reading of the dial thereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by fine not exceeding $250.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

that under the law receive copies of public documents there would be duplicates.

Mr. WILSON. As we shall not be able to conclude this subject this afternoon—

Mr. VEST. I think we can get a vote now.

Mr. WILSON. In order that Senators may recollect upon this particular phase of the bill at this time and in order that we may attend to some executive matters, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. ALLISON. Before that motion is put I ask my colleague to yield to me for a moment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PLATT in the chair). Does the Senator from Iowa yield to his colleague?

Mr. WILSON. I will hear my colleague.

Mr. ALLISON. I have been absent on committee work most of the afternoon and therefore have not listened to all of this interesting debate, but I did listen to the observations of the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] wherein he quoted somewhat from valuable tables. I should like to ask the Senator if those tables are to be printed in the RECORD?

Mr. VEST. Yes, sir; except the one I hold in my hand, which I shall ask to have printed as an executive document.

Mr. ALLISON. Very well. I think those documents may be of value to us when we come to a final vote on the bill, and I should like to have them in print.

Mr. MANDERSON. Not in the RECORD?

Mr. ALLISON. Not the large one.

Mr. VEST. I ask that it be printed as a document.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri asks that the document which he holds in his hand may be printed as a public document. If there be no objection, it will be so ordered.

Mr. VEST. Now, if the Senate is to adjourn over I will ask that the substitute which has been adopted by the Senate be printed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That order will be made, if there be no objection.

Mr. GEORGE. I should like to offer an amendment to the bill and have it printed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi submits an amendment which he proposes to offer to the bill and he asks that it be printed.

Mr. GORMAN and Mr. VEST. Let it be read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The proposed amendment will be read.

The CHIEF CLERK. Insert as an additional section the following:

SEC. —. That all expenditures under the act shall be paid for by the issue, in addition to the amount now authorized by law, of legal-tender Treasury notes, which shall be engraved and printed and be redeemable and be received when taken up in the Treasury, in all respects as now provided by law for legal-tender Treasury notes.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had agreed to the amendment of the Senate to the resolution of the House to print 10,000 copies of the addresses upon the presentation of the portraits of Hon. Galusha A. Grow and Hon. Samuel J. Randall by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The message also announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 552) to amend the act approved March 1, 1887, relating to the Hospital Corps of the Army, with an amendment in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bills and joint resolution; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 4275) to grant to the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railroad Company a right of way across the Fort Montgomery military reservation;

A bill (H. R. 6071) to amend section 1216 of the Revised Statutes, relative to certificates of merit to the enlisted men of the Army;

A bill (H. R. 6493) providing for the taking of depositions in criminal cases; and

A joint resolution (H. Res. 96) to authorize the loan of certain ensigns, flags, and signal numbers for the purpose of decoration of the streets and buildings of Washington on the occasion of the Grand Army encampment in September, 1892.

The message also announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the following concurrent resolutions of the House, and asked conferences with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon;

A resolution to print the eulogies delivered in Congress upon Hon. Leonidas C. Houk, late a Representative from the State of Tennessee; and

A resolution to print the eulogies delivered in Congress upon

Hon. William H. F. Lee, late a Representative from the State of Virginia.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. WILSON. I now renew my motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After 5 minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened and at 4 o'clock and 55 minutes p. m. the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, March 11, 1892, at 12 o'clock meridian.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, March 10, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

GOLD AND SILVER CERTIFICATES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting, in response to resolution of February 29, 1892, information relative to the amount of gold and silver certificates issued since January 1, 1878; which was referred to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures, and ordered to be printed.

PORTRAITS OF EX-SPEAKERS GROW AND RANDALL.

The SPEAKER also submitted to the House the House concurrent resolution providing for the printing of addresses delivered in the House of Representatives upon the presentation of the portraits of Galusha A. Grow and Samuel J. Randall, with an amendment of the Senate thereto.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that that Senate amendment, which simply gives the Senate 1,000 copies of these addresses, be concurred in.

The amendment of the Senate was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the concurrent resolution of the House of Representatives to print 10,000 copies of the addresses on the presentation of the portraits of Hon. Gabusila A. Grow and Hon. Samuel J. Randall by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania do pass with the following amendment:

After "portraits," insert "1,000 to the folding room of the Senate, for the use of Senators."

The amendment was agreed to.

The concurrent resolution as amended was adopted.

Mr. RICHARDSON moved to reconsider the vote by which the resolution as amended was adopted; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

THE LATE REPRESENTATIVE HOUK.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the House concurrent resolution to provide for printing the eulogies delivered in Congress upon Leonidas C. Houk, late a Representative of the State of Tennessee, with an amendment of the Senate thereto.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House disagree to that Senate amendment and ask for a committee on conference.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the concurrent resolution of the House of Representatives to print "the eulogies in Congress upon Leonidas C. Houk, late a Representative of the State of Tennessee," do pass with the following amendment:

"Line 5, strike out all after 'Tennessee' to end of resolution, and insert: 'Eight thousand copies; of which number 2,000 copies shall be delivered to the Senators and Representatives of the State of Tennessee, and of those remaining 2,000 shall be for the use of the Senate and 4,000 for the use of the House of Representatives; and the Secretary of the Treasury is directed to have printed a portrait of the said Leonidas C. Houk to accompany the said eulogies.'"

The House, by unanimous consent, disagreed to the Senate amendment and asked for a committee of conference.

THE LATE REPRESENTATIVE LEE OF VIRGINIA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the concurrent resolution providing for the printing of the eulogies upon Hon. W. H. F. Lee, late a Representative of the State of Virginia, with an amendment of the Senate thereto.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, that amendment is similar to the Senate amendment just disagreed to; and I ask unanimous consent that in this case also the House disagree and request a conference.

The Senate amendment was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the concurrent resolution of the House of Representatives to print the eulogies delivered in Congress on Hon. W. H. F. Lee, a Representative of the State of Virginia, do pass with the following amendment:

"Line 5, strike out all after 'Virginia,' to the end of the resolution and insert: 'Eight thousand copies; of which number 2,000 copies shall be delivered to the Senators and Representatives of the State of Virginia, and of those remaining 2,000 shall be for the use of the Senate and 4,000 for the use of the House of Representatives; and the Secretary of the Treasury is directed to have engraved and printed a portrait of the said W. H. F. Lee to accompany the said eulogies.'"

There being no objection, the House disagreed to the Senate amendment and asked for a committee of conference.

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a Senate concurrent resolution providing for the printing of 23,000 of the eighth report of the United States Civil Service Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Printing.

MILITARY POST BETWEEN BURLINGTON AND HIGHGATE, VT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a bill (S. 1233) to establish a military post on the line of railway between Burlington and Highgate, Vt.

Mr. GROUT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that that bill be now considered without being referred to the Committee on Military Affairs. I make the request for the reason that an identical bill has been examined by that committee and reported favorably and unanimously to the House.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Vermont?

Mr. McMILLIN. Reserving the right to object, let us have the title of the bill read again.

The Clerk again read the title of the bill.

Mr. McMILLIN. Still reserving the right to object, I will ask to have the bill read.

The Clerk proceeded to read the bill.

Mr. McMILLIN (interrupting the reading). Mr. Speaker, I think that bill ought to take the regular course. Its provides for buildings and expenditures.

Mr. GROUT. One word of explanation, if the gentleman pleases. The bill calls for no appropriation. It does not even direct the Secretary of War to construct this post—

Mr. McMILLIN. But it gives him authority to do so.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. If the gentleman from Tennessee will permit me, I will state that a similar bill has been reported favorably by the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. McMILLIN. I understand that; but this bill ought to be considered by the House in the regular way. What it proposes may be the correct thing to do, but I want it deliberately considered by the House.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Then, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be allowed to lie on the Speaker's table for the present.

Mr. McMILLIN. Until what time?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Until the Committee on Military Affairs shall be reached in its order.

Mr. GROUT. Then the bill can be considered in the regular way.

Mr. McMILLIN. I shall have no objection to that.

Mr. BAILEY. A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. In the event that that permission is given, can this bill be then taken up without unanimous consent?

The SPEAKER. No. The Committee on Military Affairs could not call up this Senate bill. They would have to call up a bill reported by themselves.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER. The Chair lays before the House a number of Senate bills; and as the titles of these bills have already been printed in the RECORD, if there be no objection, the Chair will refer them without having the titles read.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

The following are the bills severally referred:

A bill (S. 8) for the relief of Moses Pendergrass, of Missouri—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 9) for the relief of E. R. Shipley—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 1207) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Alameda, in the State of California—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 1220) granting a pension to Eliza K. Starr—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

A bill (S. 1295) to authorize the construction of jetties, piers, and breakwaters at private expense, in the Gulf of Mexico, at the mouth of Ropes Pass, in the State of Texas—to the Committee on Commerce.

A bill (S. 1312) for the relief of Dr. John B. Read—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 1668) to authorize and regulate the construction of a bridge across the Kootenai River, at the town of Fry, county of Kootenai, State of Idaho—to the Committee on Commerce.

A bill (S. 1681) making an appropriation for the construction of two United States revenue cutters for service on the Great Lakes—to the Committee on Commerce.

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring). That 23,000 copies of the eighth report of the United States Civil Service Commission be printed, of which 1,000 copies shall be for the use of the Senate, 2,000 copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and 20,000 copies for the use of the United States Civil Service Commission; to the Committee on Printing.

NAVAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. HERBERT, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported a bill (H. R. 7093) making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, and for other purposes; which was read twice, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. McMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, it is understood that all points of order are reserved.

The SPEAKER. That is understood.

ANNUAL CLERK FOR COMMITTEE ON ACCOUNTS.

Mr. PEARSON. I am directed by the Committee on Accounts to report back favorably the resolution which I send to the desk, and to ask for its present consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved. That the Committee on Accounts be allowed an annual clerk at the rate of $2,000 per annum; and the Committee on Appropriations are hereby instructed to make provision for such clerk in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill at the rate of $2,000 per annum from July 1, 1892.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this resolution?

There was no objection.

The report of the committee was read as follows:

The Committee on Accounts, to whom was referred the resolution of Mr. Rusk of February 29, 1892, respectfully report that the importance and scope of the work before the Committee on Accounts warrants them in asking an annual clerk. Current accounts which have to be paid during the recess of Congress should receive as much attention as they do during the session of Congress. When the present clerk was appointed, on the 12th day of December, there were over one hundred and eighty accounts, involving the payment of $33,000, which had accumulated from the 5th of March, 1891, and which should have been audited monthly, but could not be done because of no clerk. It took the present clerk two months, and from fourteen to sixteen hours work per day, to catch up with his current work. The prompt audit of these accounts during the recess of Congress, when the facts can be more definitely ascertained, would naturally result in the more correct disbursements of the public money for the payment of debts contracted and falling due during that period. Owing to the facts set forth in the above report, your committee respectfully recommend that the resolution do pass.

Mr. PEARSON. Mr. Speaker, the reasons for asking that the clerk of this committee be made an annual instead of a session clerk, are fully set forth in the report just read. I may be permitted to say that there are few committees in this House whose work is more important than that of the Committee on Accounts. When the committee took charge of the matters referred to it, we found that there were pending before the committee 180 accounts which had accumulated during the recess, involving the expenditure of $33,000 in round numbers. It is important that accounts of this kind should be audited monthly, while the items composing them are fresh in the minds of the persons concerned; and I am perfectly confident that the additional amount which will be required to make this an annual clerkship will be fully made up by the money which will be saved by reason of having a clerk always on duty who can audit these accounts at the proper time. I ask that the resolution be adopted.

The resolution was adopted.

On motion of Mr. PEARSON, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

Mr. McMILLIN. I think we had better have the regular order, so that we may proceed with the measure pending before the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee demands the regular order.

CORRECTION OF A RULE.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I desire to make a privileged report. It is to correct an error in clause 3 of Rule XXII. In the pamphlet copy of the rules, as printed immediately after their adoption at this session, I find in the clause I have mentioned three words which should not be there. The clause has relation to the correction of errors of reference—

The SPEAKER. The Chair suggests to the gentleman that if there is simply an improper print of the rule, there is no occasion for any motion in the House.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The difficulty is that in reprinting the rules this error, already appearing in the pamphlet copy, may be perpetuated. However, if the Chair will take occasion to examine the rule and ascertain the fact, of which I am myself satisfied, that there has been an error—

The SPEAKER. Of course the Journal must be the guide as to the form in which the rules were adopted.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But, Mr. Speaker, the proof which was sent to the Government Printing Office and from which the pamphlet copy of the rules was printed contains the words to which I refer, and which were not in the amendment adopted by the House. If the Chair thinks the error can be corrected without any action by the House—

The SPEAKER. The Chair suggests that the gentleman look at the Journal and ascertain how the matter is.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That course will be satisfactory to me. My wish is simply that the error may not be perpetuated in the rules as printed in permanent form.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will please examine the Journal.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The regular order being demanded, the committees will be called for reports.

PROOF OF LOYALTY IN PENSION CASES.

Mr. OATES, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 4518) to repeal in part and to limit sections 3180 and 4716 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BRIDGE ACROSS BRAZOS RIVER, TEXAS.

Mr. GEARY, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 2753) authorizing the Velasco Terminal Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Brazos River, in the State of Texas; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PIER AT THE MOUTH OF CHICAGO RIVER.

Mr. GEARY also, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 4330) to repeal House resolution No. 191, first session, Fifty-first Congress, granting to the Secretary of War a permit to license to use a pier at mouth of Chicago River; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BRIDGE ACROSS RIO GRANDE RIVER AT BROWNSVILLE, TEX.

Mr. GEARY also, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 2752) authorizing the Continental Bridge Company to construct a bridge across the Rio Grande River at or near Brownsville, Tex.; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BRIDGE ACROSS OSAGE RIVER, MO.

Mr. GEARY also, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back with amendment the bill (H. #### BRIDGE ACROSS MISSISSIPPI RIVER AT DAVENPORT, IOWA.

Mr. GEARY also, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 4476) to authorize the construction of a pontoon bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Davenport, Iowa; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BRIDGE ACROSS TENNESSEE RIVER AT CLIFTON, TENN.

Mr. GEARY also, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back as a substitute for House bill 2712, a bill (H. R. 7092) to authorize the building of a bridge across the Tennessee River at or near Clifton, Tenn.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

House bill 2742 was, by unanimous consent, laid on the table.

IMPROVEMENT OF HARBOR AT PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back favorably the joint resolution (S. R. 23) relative to the improvement of the harbor at Philadelphia, Pa.; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MILITARY POST AT HELENA, MONT.

Mr. OUTHWAITE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 5198) to establish a military post at or near the city of Helena, in Lewis and Clark County, in the State of Montana; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SALARIES RAILWAY POSTAL CLERKS.

Mr. CROSBY (for Mr. ENLOE) reported favorably the bill (H. R. 5671) to reclassify and prescribe the salaries of railway postal clerks; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

STATISTICS OF CITIES.

Mr. BUNTING, from the Committee on Labor, reported a joint resolution (H. Res. 104) providing for the collection of statistics relating to cities; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PROTECTION OF FOREIGN EXHIBITORS, WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

Mr. TILLMAN, from the Committee on Patents, reported favorably the bill (S. 2315) to protect foreign exhibitors at the World's Columbian Exposition from prosecution for exhibiting wares protected by American patents and trade-marks; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PROOFS IN PENSION CASES.

Mr. BUTLER, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported favorably the bill (H. R. 5757) concerning the burden of proof of soundness and forbidding discrimination in the evidence of witnesses on account of want of official rank in applications for pensions; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PUNISHMENT OF FALSE SWEARING, POLICE TRIALS, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEMPHILL, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported favorably the bill (H. R. 6295) to punish false swearing before trial boards of the Metropolitan police force and fire department of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

LAND TITLES, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEMPHILL, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported favorably the bill (H. R. 6013) to amend the laws relating to land titles in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

CONDEMNATION OF ALLEY, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mr. HEMPHILL, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported favorably the bill (H. R. 6646) to pay for an alley condemned in square No. 493 in the city of Washington, D. C.; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

FRAUDULENT DEALINGS IN CONSIGNMENTS, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEMPHILL, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported favorably the bill (S. 1058) to prevent fraudulent transactions on the part of commission merchants and other consignees of goods and other property in the District of Columbia; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. MCCOOK, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment the bill (H. R. 6836) making appropriations to supply a deficiency in the Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes.

It also announced that the Senate had passed the bill (S. 1) for preventing the adulteration and misbranding of food and drugs, and for other purposes; in which concurrence was requested.

PUNISHMENT FOR THEFT, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEMPHILL, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported favorably the bill (S. 1057) to punish the unlawful appropriation or use of the property of another in the District of Columbia; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PAYMENT OF A CERTIFICATE OF INDEBTEDNESS, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. MEREDITH, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported favorably the bill (H. R. 6891) authorizing the payment of a certificate of indebtedness of the District of Columbia, No. 4987; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The morning hour for the call of committees begins at 12 o'clock and 32 minutes. The call rests with the Committee on the Judiciary, and the Clerk will report the title of the bill under consideration at the expiration of the morning hour on yesterday.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 6493) providing for the taking of depositions in criminal cases.

The SPEAKER. At the expiration of the hour on yesterday the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. ELLIS] was occupying the floor.

Mr. CULBERSON. I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky three minutes longer.

Mr. ELLIS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer an amendment to the bill.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Texas yield? The gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. ELLIS] desires to offer an amendment.

Mr. CULBERSON. I will yield for the purpose of hearing the amendment read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by striking out the last three words in line 15 and all of lines 16, 17, and 18, and all of line 19 except the last word.

Mr. CULBERSON. I will withhold my consent until I hear the statement of the gentleman.

Mr. ELLIS. I will state the nature of the amendment. The amendment which I propose leaves the bill reported by the committee intact, except that it strikes out that provision in the bill providing that the court may make an order directing that the deposition be taken at the cost of the Government. That feature in the bill I regard as vicious. It ought to be no part of the policy of the Government to take the depositions of the defendant's witnesses. When the Government has furnished the defendant in a criminal or penal prosecution with a speedy trial, and given him compulsory process for the attendance of his witnesses, there the functions of the Government ought to rest. The defendant in every case ought to be required to obtain his own witnesses, and in the case of depositions, as provided in this bill, he ought to be left to take the depositions at his own expense. I do not care to add anything further in support of the amendment.

Mr. CULBERSON. I will yield further time to the gentleman later if he wishes it.

Mr. REILLY. I hope the gentleman from Texas [Mr. CULBERSON] will allow us to have a vote upon that amendment.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. Speaker, I only want to call the attention of this House to the fact that this bill merely extends a right which now already exists in a limited degree. I will read the section which this bill originally proposed to amend.

Whenever any person indicted in a court of the United States makes affidavit setting forth that there are witnesses whose evidence is material to his defense, that he can not go safely to trial without them, what he expects to prove by each of them, that they are within the district in which the court is held, or within 100 miles of the place of trial, and that he is not possessed of sufficient means, and that he is actually unable to pay the fees of such witnesses, the court in term, or any judge thereof in vacation, may order that such witnesses be subpoenaed, if within the limits aforesaid. In such cases the costs incurred by the process and the fees of the witnesses shall be paid in the same manner that similar costs and fees are paid in cases of witnesses subpoenaed in behalf of the United States.

Now, it will appear that if a defendant in a criminal case makes affidavit stating the facts prescribed in this statute, and showing that the witness or witnesses live within the jurisdiction of the court or within 100 miles of the place where the court is held, the Government of the United States provides the process and pays the expenses of bringing the witnesses to court in his behalf, if he is unable to incur the expense. This bill simply provides that if the witness or witnesses reside over 100 miles from the place where the court is held, when the defendant makes the affidavit prescribed in the bill the court may issue an order allowing him to take the deposition of such witnesses upon notice to the district attorney; and the bill reported does provide that the Government shall pay the expenses of taking

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. BLACKBURN, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, submitted a report to accompany the bill (S. 294) in relation to the pay of Rear-Admiral James E. Jouett, United States Navy, heretofore reported by him.

He also, from the same committee, submitted a report to accompany the bill (S. 1558) to remit the time penalties exacted by the Secretary of the Navy from the Pneumatic Dynamite Gun Company of New York, in the construction of the cruiser Vesuvius, heretofore reported by him.

Mr. HAWLEY, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1912) granting a right of way through the Fort Missoula military reservation in the State of Montana, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HALE. From the Committee on Appropriations I report back favorably, with amendments, the bill (H. R. 6876) to provide for certain of the most urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, and I give notice that as soon as the bill as proposed to be amended is printed and on the desks of Senators, I shall call it up this afternoon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Meanwhile the bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. DOLPH. By direction of the Committee on Commerce, I report back the bill (H. R. 1627) providing for sundry light-houses and other aids to navigation, with amendments, and a written report thereon. These are principally confined to the great lakes and their tributaries.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 110) to amend the charter of the Eckington and Soldiers' Home Railroad Company, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PROCTOR, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1139) for the relief of Leonard L. Brownson, late first lieutenant Company K, Fifth Vermont Volunteers, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PERKINS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2289) to amend sections 727 and 729 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PERKINS. I am directed by the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4129) to empower the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to grant respites and pardons in certain cases, to report it back favorably without amendment. It is a very brief bill, and I ask for its present consideration.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it be read for information.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. COCKRELL. Is there any urgency about this measure any more than any other general legislation in regard to the District?

Mr. PERKINS. The bill is very brief, it has passed the other House, and I thought it could be disposed of when reported. The committee have previously reported the Senate bill upon the same subject, which is upon the Calendar, and I shall, of course, ask that the Senate bill be indefinitely postponed when the House bill is passed. The Commissioners are without this authority now, and they ask for it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. BUTLER. I think the bill had better go on the Calendar.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection being made, the bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. HARRIS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1969) to provide for the disbursement of money appropriated by the acts of 1874 and 1878, making appropriation for the payment of workmen who worked on public improvements under the late board of public works of the District of Columbia, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. VANCE, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1714) to prevent cruelty to children in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, reported it with amendments.

Mr. TURPIE, from the Committee on the Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 323) granting a pension to Thomas Cooper, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2498) to authorize the sale of the old custom-house and post-office in Wilmington, Del., reported it with an amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2331) for the erection of a public building in the city of Woonsocket, R. I., reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 880) to provide for the construction of a public building at Helena, Mont., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. GIBSON, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 52) to authorize the Secretary of War to make a survey, plan, and estimate of the cost of constructing a bridge across the Eastern Branch of the Potomac River in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Appropriations; which was agreed to.

Mr. BUTLER, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1290) to provide for the purchase of lands adjoining the United States naval station, Port Royal, S. C., reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1543) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Navy to contract for the purchase of a lot of land opposite to the Gosport navy-yard, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

COMPILATION OF A. W. CHURCH AND H. H. SMITH.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHANDLER] January 5, 1892, to report it favorably without amendment, and I ask for its present consideration.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the Senate 500 copies of the Table showing the contents of the several volumes comprising the Annals of Congress, Congressional Debates, Congressional Globe, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, Statutes at Large, and United States Supreme Court Reports, arranged by years and Congresses, which was compiled for the Senate library by A. W. Church and H. H. Smith; the same being brought down to January 1, 1892.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. COCKRELL. Mr. President—

Mr. MANDERSON. I will explain to the Senator that this is a small pamphlet, prepared by the librarian of the Senate library. It presents the contents in general form of the Annals of Congress, the Congressional Globe, the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, the Statutes at Large, and I think the Supreme Court Reports, giving all the periods of time that each volume covers. It is a very valuable little publication. The resolution was introduced by the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHANDLER]. The cost of printing 500 copies will be $132. It is valuable enough surely to print it for the use of Congress.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the resolution be read again.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be again read.

The Secretary read the resolution.

Mr. COCKRELL. Now, let me understand. Does the pamphlet contain a reference to all the publications now extant of the proceedings of Congress down to this time?

Mr. MANDERSON. Yes, giving the date that each volume covers, to the present.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

DISTRICT SEWERAGE.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the concurrent resolution submitted by the Senator from Michigan [Mr. McMILLAN] February 1, 1892, to report it back favorably without amendment, and I ask for the present consideration of the same.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution; which was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be printed 500 additional copies of the report of the board of sanitary engineers of the District of Columbia upon the sewerage of the District for the official use of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Mr. MANDERSON. I desire to state that the resolution comes from the chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia, and this limited number of copies of the report on the sewerage of the District is desired by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

The resolution was agreed to.

REPORT OF THE NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the concurrent resolution submitted by the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. HAWLEY] February 3, 1892, to report it back favorably with an amendment, and I ask for its present consideration.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution; which was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be printed in addition to the usual number, 3,500 copies of the annual report of the National Academy of Sciences for 1891, in octavo form, of which 1,000 copies shall be for the use of the Senate, 2,000 copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and 500 copies for the use of the National Academy of Sciences; and that there be printed, in addition to the usual number, 2,000 copies, in quarto form, of the memoirs of the National Academy of Sciences, which accompany the annual report for 1891, of which 300 copies shall be for the use of the Senate, 500 copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and 1,500 copies for the use of the National Academy of Sciences.

Mr. MANDERSON. I move to strike out all after the word

"number," in the second line, and to insert, so as to make the resolution read:

That there be printed, in addition to the usual number, of the report of the National Academy of Sciences for 1891, 2,000 copies, 500 for use of the Senate, 1,000 copies for use of the House, and 500 for use of the Academy of Sciences; and of the memoirs which accompany the report for 1891, 2,500 copies, 500 for the Senate, 1,000 for the House, and 1,000 for distribution by the Academy of Sciences.

This amendment brings the resolution exactly to the number provided for in the general printing bill which has passed the Senate.

The amendment was agreed to.

The concurrent resolution as amended was agreed to.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY REPORT.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the concurrent resolution submitted by the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT] January 6, 1892, to report it back favorably with amendments, and I ask for the present consideration of the same.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution, which was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be printed at the Government Printing Office, in addition to the number already ordered by law, 15,500 copies of the thirteenth annual report of the Director of the United States Geological Survey, uniform with the preceding volumes of the series, of which 3,500 shall be for the use of the Senate, 7,000 for the use of the House of Representatives, and 5,000 for distribution by the Geological Survey.

Mr. MANDERSON. I offer certain amendments to make the resolution conform to the general printing bill passed by the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendments will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. Strike out "15,000" and substitute in lieu thereof "12,000;" strike out "3,500" and insert "3,000;" strike out "7,000" and insert "6,000;" strike out "5,000" and insert "3,000."

The amendments were agreed to.

The concurrent resolution as amended was agreed to.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. DAVIS introduced a bill (S. 2556) authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Red River of the North; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. COCKRELL introduced a bill (S. 2557) for the relief of William P. Buckmaster; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PROCTOR (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2558) for the relief of Joel T. Winn; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. DOLPH. I introduced a bill to create and establish the Pilot Service of the United States and to regulate the pilotage of vessels in the ports and harbors along the coast of the United States. This is a copy of a bill introduced in the other House. I have not examined it sufficiently to desire to be committed to all of its provisions, but I do believe in the general proposition. I wish to state also that I do not introduce it for the purpose of antagonizing any bill now before the Committee on Commerce, but for the sake of bringing the matter before that committee. I ask that the bill be read twice and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (S. 2559) to create and establish the pilot service of the United States, and to regulate the pilotage of vessels in the ports and harbors along the coast of the United States, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HANSBROUGH introduced a bill (S. 2560) granting to the State of North Dakota a site for the State reform school; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. SHOUP introduced a bill (S. 2561) for the relief of William G. Langford; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2562) to provide for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in the States of Montana and Idaho; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 2563) for the relief of Anna Ella Carroll; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2564) to amend section 6 of the act approved March 3, 1891, entitled "An act to repeal timber-culture laws and for other purposes;" which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. WHITE introduced a bill (S. 2565) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to refund certain moneys collected by the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

this statement so that the facts may be brought out clearly, not specially with reference to the effect upon myself, but rather with reference to the effect upon the good feeling of the House. It does not seem to me to be proper that a member who is willing and anxious to do his duty, and who, even when he is feeling unwell, makes every effort to respond to the requirement of the House as soon as he is notified of it, should be put upon record as having been brought here by force, and for that reason I object to the Journal so far as it puts me in that light.

Mr. BYNUM. Mr. Speaker, the officer of the House has no right to be heard in this matter on the floor, and therefore I think it is only just to him that I should make a short statement in answer to the gentleman from New York. It is well known, even if the Journal does not show the fact, that there was a call of the House last evening, that there was no quorum responding, that the House ordered the arrest of absent members, and that a warrant for such arrest was issued and placed in the hands of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

According to what has been the custom (and I apprehend that no member ought to make any complaint because of this fact) the Sergeant-at-Arms or his deputy, in the execution of the warrant (which simply calls for all absent members, the name of each member being upon a slip of paper), when he meets a member, simply hands him his name and puts him upon his parole to appear at the House. Instead of accompanying the member here, the officer probably says, "Will you go to the Capitol and report at the Sergeant-at-Arms' office?" This has always been done. Of course in such a case the member is constructively under arrest, though in fact not brought here by the officer, but coming voluntarily at his request. This fact, I think, does not free any member from the arrest under which he has been placed; and I believe the Sergeant-at-Arms when he brought here the gentleman from New York [Mr. COOMBS] and the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. WALKER], under the circumstances, was discharging the orders of this House.

There is simply one other thing I wish to say. There was some complaint last evening that the Sergeant-at-Arms was executing the orders of the House upon Republican members and not upon Democrats. I take this opportunity to say that while this complaint was made and was probably believed because of the fact that the gentlemen from Massachusetts [Mr. RANDALL and Mr. WALKER] were the first to be arraigned at the bar of the House, yet subsequently the gentlemen from New York [Mr. WARNER and Mr. COOMBS] were brought in. I think the Sergeant-at-Arms was endeavoring to execute the authority of the House fairly and legally, and yet as mercifully as he could. I do not believe he is justly liable to any criticism.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York [Mr. COOMBS] makes a motion to correct that part of the Journal which states he was arrested and brought before the House last night. The Chair will cause a portion of the rule to be read, after which he will submit the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Members who voluntarily appear shall, unless the House otherwise direct, be immediately admitted to the Hall of the House, and they shall report their names to the Clerk to be entered upon the Journal as present.

Mr. COOMBS. I had come here to report my name to the Clerk under that rule.

Mr. DOCKERY. I ask that the first paragraph of clause 2 of Rule XXV, be read:

The Clerk read as follows:

2. In the absence of a quorum, fifteen members, including the Speaker, if there is one, shall be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, and in all calls of the House the names of the members shall be called by the Clerk, and the absentees noted; the doors shall then be closed, and those for whom no sufficient excuse is made may, by order of a majority of those present, be sent for and arrested, wherever they may be found, by officers to be appointed by the Sergeant-at-Arms for that purpose, and their attendance secured; and the House shall determine upon what condition they shall be discharged.

Mr. COOMBS. I wish to make only one further remark in relation to this matter. If I am to be a victim in this proceeding on account of being a Democrat, I am perfectly willing to stand in that position. I have received benefits from the Democratic party, and there is no reason why I should not be willing to stand somewhat in the attitude of a sacrifice on their behalf. [Laughter.] But I do not believe it is the intention or desire of the House to be discourteous or unjust to any member. Hence, I ask a vote on my proposition.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read that portion of the Journal which the gentleman from New York moves to amend.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Sergeant-at-Arms appeared at the bar of the House, having in custody Mr. RANDALL and Mr. WALKER, who submitted their excuses for failure to attend.

The Sergeant-at-Arms again appeared at the bar of the House, having in custody Mr. WARNER, Mr. COOMBS, and Mr. QUACKENBUSH.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York moves to correct the Journal—

Mr. WALKER. I ask to be heard before that question is put, because if the gentleman from New York is not excused I ought not to be; and if he is excused, I ought to be. I would like the privilege of saying a word.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman on this motion.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I do not ask for any change or modification of the rules of the House on my behalf, and, as I understand, neither does my friend from New York. But the rule explicitly provides, according to my understanding, that members who voluntarily appear when it comes to their knowledge that they are personally wanted at the House to make a quorum, shall be treated differently from those who are arrested and brought before the bar of the House. According to the express provision of the rule, if members voluntarily appear under "a call of the House" they give their names to the Clerk, as has been customary in previous Congresses, and he is required to enter their names on the roll, and that closes the matter.

When I came here last evening I had not been informed that there was any warrant out for my arrest; I was not told that I was under arrest. I supposed I was coming up here voluntarily. When I got halfway here, and while we were talking in the carriage about coming here, the Doorkeeper, who was in the carriage with me, said that certain words had been said to him by one of the officers of the House indicating I was in his charge before we started in the carriage, but not in my hearing.

When I came to the House I was stopped at the door by the assistant sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Hill. I was endeavoring to enter the House, as I had a right to do under the rule of the House. He refused to allow me to come alone, and entered with me, my protestations to the contrary notwithstanding. After the fact came to my knowledge that I was wanted at the House, as I stated, last evening in pursuance of the rule here referred to, I voluntarily appeared, and hence this part of the Journal is manifestly incorrect so far as I am concerned. Either that, or else this rule means nothing at all. It is mere surplusage. I was coming into the House, as I had a right to come in under the rule, to have my name recorded as being present.

Mr. BYNUM. Let me ask the gentleman a question: If it is usual to send for members of the House with a carriage when they are wanted here?

Mr. WALKER. I knew nothing about the carriage.

Mr. BYNUM. You came in it.

Mr. WALKER. I did; but I did not know that it was in the employ of the House. I supposed I was going to pay for it until I got here. [Laughter.]

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a correction of the Journal.

The SPEAKER. There is a motion to correct the Journal now pending.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, one word further and then I am done. I wish to state, so that there can be no mistake about it, that before I knew there was an officer of the House present I was on my way here to the House, and was detained from executing my purpose by the officer and not permitted to proceed.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from New York to correct the Journal by striking therefrom so much as shows that he was arrested under the proceedings of the call of the House last evening and brought before the bar.

Mr. BYNUM. I understand, Mr. Speaker, that this House is required by the Constitution to keep a journal of its proceedings. It is a fact that certain gentlemen were brought here last night under an order of the House, and were presented at the bar of the House, which matter forms a part of the record of the proceedings of this body. If you strike that out now you simply strike from the proceedings of the House that which the Constitution requires to be kept there.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from New York [Mr. COOMBS].

The question was taken: and on a division there were—ayes 72, noes 51.

Mr. DUNGAN and Mr. PEARSON made the point that no quorum had voted.

Mr. COOMBS. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to embarrass the business of the House, and I will withdraw my motion if the opposition is insisted upon.

Mr. PEARSON. I want to insist upon the point that no quorum has voted.

Mr. COOMBS. I have stated that I would withdraw my motion, but I wish to give the reasons: not that I think I am making an unjust or improper request, but simply that I do not want to embarrass the business of the House by further delay.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection the gentleman's motion will be withdrawn.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. If there be no further objection the Journal will be approved.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. I rise to a question of privilege.

The SPEAKER. With reference to the Journal?

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. With reference to the Journal.

Mr. Speaker, I am entered on the Journal as one of those who was excused from attendance on the session last night when a call of the House was ordered. Owing to the kindness of my good colleague [Mr. REILLY], ever kind and considerate to me, he had me excused from attendance. What I want to state to the House is that I was not sick, and was not infirm, nor was I prevented from coming by any other reason except that I did not come, having no bills upon the Private Calendar—no pension bills—and, as has been my custom always under such circumstances, I absented myself from the Friday night session.

But, sir, while I do not think that I should have been excused, I certainly do not want to be excused upon any such grounds as those which were stated. For, in my now twenty-seventh year of service in this House, by the blessing of God I never have been detained from the House by sickness but one and one-half days, and I want the Lord to continue his blessing to me so long as I shall be permitted to remain here. [Laughter and applause.]

The SPEAKER. If there be no further objection, the Journal will be approved.

There was no objection.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. MCCOOK, announced that the Senate had passed, with amendments, the bill (H. R. 6876) to provide for certain urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892.

It also announced that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles, in which concurrence was requested:

A bill (S. 2451) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to convey to Lucius U. Maltby and Louise W. Maltby his wife, Margaret Elizabeth Lucas, and the Sea Girt Land Improvement Company a piece of land selected as a site for the Squan Inlet light station, New Jersey, but found to be unsuitable for the purposes of said station.

A bill (S. 1616) making Laredo, Tex., a subport of entry.

ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN STUDENTS IN PARIS.

The Speaker laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of State, submitting an estimate of appropriation for the rent of a building for the use of the Association of American Students in Paris; which was ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

BINDING MANUSCRIPT PAPERS, DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

The Speaker laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of State, submitting an estimate of appropriation for continuing the work of binding manuscript papers, Department of State; which was ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

AMENDMENT TO ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Speaker laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a letter from the Commissary-General of Subsistence, suggesting an amendment to the bill (H. R. 6923) making appropriations for the support of the Army; which was ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

G. W. SMITH, DECEASED.

The Speaker laid before the House a communication from the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the finding of the court in the case of G. W. Smith, deceased, against the United States; which was ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on War Claims.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. McKAIG, and Mr. BRODERICK as conferees upon the disagreeing votes of the two Houses upon the amendment to the resolution of the House providing for the printing of the eulogies upon Hon. W. H. F. Lee, late a Representative from the State of Virginia; and upon the disagreeing votes of the two Houses upon the amendment to the resolution of the House to provide for printing the eulogies delivered in Congress upon Hon. Leonidas C. Houk, late a Representative from the State of Tennessee.

REPORT OF THE NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES, 1891.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the resolution of the Senate providing for the printing of 2,000 additional copies of the report of the National Academy of Sciences for 1891; which was referred to the Committee on Printing.

THIRTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT, UNITED STATES GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the resolution of the Senate providing for the printing of 12,000 additional copies of the thirteenth annual report of the Director of the United States Geological Survey; which was referred to the Committee on Printing.

SEWERAGE, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the resolution of the Senate providing for the printing of 700 additional copies of the report of the board of sanitary engineers of the District of Columbia upon the sewerage of the District, for the official use of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia; which was referred to the Committee on Printing.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following bills of the Senate; which were severally read a first and second time, ordered to be printed, and referred to the committees named below:

A bill (S. 44) for the relief of William Clift—to the Committee on War Claims.

A bill (S. 218) donating to the county of Clallam, in the State of Washington, for public buildings, the proceeds of the sale of certain public lands—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A bill (S. 370) granting an increase of pension to James H. Osgood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

A bill (S. 620) to amend an act entitled "An act to promote the administration of justice in the Army," approved October 1, 1890—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

A bill (S. 621) to provide for the collection, custody, and arrangement of the military records of the American Revolution and the war of 1812—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

A bill (S. 695) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to survey and mark the boundary between the State of Nebraska and the State of South Dakota which lies west of the Missouri River—to the Committee on Appropriations.

A bill (S. 798) for the relief of the legal representatives of John H. Jones and Thomas D. Harris—to the Committee on War Claims.

A bill (S. 839) granting a right of way to the Jamestown and Northern Railway through the Devils Lake Indian Reservation, in the State of North Dakota—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

A bill (S. 1492) to authorize the appointment of an inspector of plumbing in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

A bill (S. 1612) to compensate Thomas G. Hayes for legal services rendered under direction of the Attorney-General—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 1644) authorizing the Continental Bridge Company to construct a bridge across the Rio Grande River at or near Brownsville, Tex.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

A bill (S. 1647) to authorize the Alabama Grand Trunk Railroad Company to bridge across the Tallapoosa and Coosa Rivers—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

A bill (S. 1759) for the relief of the heirs of Nathaniel Magruder—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 1884) to prevent fraud upon the water revenues of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

A bill (S. 2001) for the relief of the sufferers by the wreck of the United States revenue cutter Gallatin off the coast of Massachusetts—to the Committee on Claims.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. PLATT, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed the following concurrent resolution:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring). In pursuance of the legislation heretofore taken for the acquisition of a suitable site for a Government Printing Office, that the Committee on Printing, acting jointly with the House Committee, be, and the same are hereby, empowered and instructed to ascertain the most suitable site for that purpose (in the District), looking to the future growth of the country and the growing demands upon the printing establishment, ascertain the fair value of the same, and make report of such investigation and result.

EDWARD S. ARMSTRONG.

Mr. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the bill (S. 18) for the relief of Edward S. Armstrong may be permitted to lie on the Speaker's table until such time as the Com-they defined the nature of these invitations, the extent to which they should go, and the authority to borrow articles of great interest to the people of the United States. It is a mere loan from persons who regard the articles as almost priceless treasures, and the question of appropriation and how far it should be limited, whether it should be $1,000 or $100,000, is all left to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. COCKRELL. By having the joint resolution printed we can judge of it with a great deal more accuracy, and there is plenty of time during the remainder of the week. It must therefore go over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I am instructed by the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select), to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 41) extending an invitation to the Presidents of the American Republics and the governors of American colonies to participate in the World's Columbian Exposition, to report it back favorably with an amendment. I shall not ask its consideration at this time.

I will state that the committee in considering these joint resolutions struck out all the appropriations, because it was objected that no appropriation should be made without a limit being fixed upon it. We thought as we were inviting people to be our guests it would not look well to tell them in advance just how much money we were going to spend to entertain them, and that we would allow the particular item to be provided for in some regular appropriation bill without calling too much attention to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be placed on the Calendar.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 1216) for the relief of the First Methodist Church, in the city of Jackson, Tenn.;

A bill (H. R. 2576) for the relief of the estate of Andrew J. Duncan, deceased; and

A bill (H. R. 3885) to increase the pension of George R. Allen.

The message also announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6875) to provide for certain of the most urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, asked a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. SAYERS, Mr. HOLMAN, and Mr. DINGLEY managers at the conference on the part of the House.

The message further announced that the House had appointed Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. MCKAIG, and Mr. BRODERICK, managers on the part of the House at the conferences on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the following concurrent resolutions of the House:

Resolution to print the eulogies delivered in Congress upon Hon. Leonidas C. Houk, late a Representative from the State of Tennessee; and Resolution to print the eulogies delivered in Congress upon Hon. W. H. F. Lee, late a Representative from the State of Virginia.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the enrolled bill (H. R. 6836) making appropriations to supply a deficiency in the Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes; and it was thereon signed by the Vice-President.

URGENT DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. HALE. I ask that the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, which has just come over from the House of Representatives, may be laid before the Senate with the request of the House for a conference.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives on the bill (H. R. 6876) to provide for certain of the most urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate to the bill and asking for a committee of conference thereon.

Mr. HALE. I move that the Senate insists on its amendments, and agree to the request of the House for a conference.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. HALE, Mr. ALLISON, and Mr. COCKRELL were appointed.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Mr. DOLPH. On the last business day of the session the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUP] introduced a bill (S. 2562) to provide for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in the States of Montana and Idaho, which was referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining. Looking at the bill I think the subject-matter should go to the Committee on Public Lands, as the Committee on Public Lands have already jurisdiction of a bill introduced by the Senator from Montana on the same subject. I understand that the Senator who introduced this bill is willing that the reference shall be changed. It should be referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and I therefore ask that that be done.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That change of reference will be made in the absence of objection. The Chair hears no objection.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 2569) for the relief of the legal representatives of Thomas L. Alexander; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. CARLISLE introduced a bill (S. 2570) to increase the pension of Margaret E. Merrill; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BUTLER introduced a bill (S. 2571) to amend section 19 of an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. FAULKNER introduced a bill (S. 2572) to carry out the findings of the Court of Claims in the case of Henry T. Woody; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HOAR introduced a bill (S. 2573) for the relief of Albert J. Pratt, administrator; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. ALLISON introduced a bill (S. 2574) to promote the safety of railway employes and travelers and requiring common carriers engaged in interstate commerce to equip their cars with automatic couplers of a standard uniform type and continuous train brakes and their locomotives with power brakes, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. ALLISON. I wish to say that this bill has been prepared by a committee of railway State commissions, of which Mr. Spencer Smith of my State was chairman, and I expect that it is a valuable contribution to the general subject. I move that the bill be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2575) to provide for the sale of certain lots in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. SANDERS introduced a bill (S. 2576) for the relief of C. L. Coder; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. ALLEN. For the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS], who is necessarily called from the Chamber, I introduce a bill. The bill (S. 2577) for the relief of the legal representatives of Jacob H. Smysen was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. ALLEN introduced a bill (S. 2578) granting the use of certain land in Walla Walla County, State of Washington, to the city of Walla Walla, for the purposes of a public park; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. ALLEN. In connection with this bill I wish to present the memorial of the city council of the city of Walla Walla, signed by Hon. John L. Roberts, mayor, praying for the passage of this bill; also, a like memorial signed by Hon. Thomas H. Brents, ex-Delegate in Congress, Hon. George T. Thompson, State senator, Hon. S. C. Wingard, late justice of the supreme court, W. H. Upton, judge of the superior court of Washington, and 150 others of Walla Walla, to like effect. I accompany the bill with a map also. I move that these petitions and the map accompanying the bill be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CHANDLER introduced a bill (S. 2579) for the final settlement of the claims of the State of New Hampshire for the reimbursement of national bounties advanced to recruits mustered into the service of the United States under the President's call of October, 1863; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DIXON introduced a bill (S. 2580) granting a pension to Henry A. Frink; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 2581) granting an increase of pension to Mary A. Curtiss; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. COKE (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2582) to provide for an inspector of mines in the Indian Territory, and for other purpose; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Select Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2583) for the relief of William J. Murtagh, late proprietor of the National Republican, of Washington, D. C.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WHITE introduced a bill (S. 2584) to remove the charge of desertion standing against the name of John L. Arms; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. BLODGETT introduced a bill (S. 2585) granting a pension to Jacob Dissenger; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DANIEL introduced a bill (S. 2586) to reimburse George C. Tanner, late consul, etc., the sum of $200, paid by him for rent of rooms; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HIGGINS introduced a bill (S. 2587) to grant a pension to Emily T. McMurtrie; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2588) granting an honorable discharge to Henry W. Cartist; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2589) for the relief of Francis Seala; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2590) granting a pension to Clara D. Hoyt; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 2591) to relieve John Davis of the charge of desertion, and to grant him an honorable discharge; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

HON. THOMAS J. ROBERTSON.

Mr. BUTLER submitted the following resolution; which, with the accompanying brief, was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections:

Resolved, That the Secretary be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to Hon. Thomas J. Robertson, late a Senator from South Carolina, $—, the amount due him as Senator in the Fortieth Congress from the 1st of March, 1867, until he was paid; said payment to be made from the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate.

STATUE OF GEN. JOHN PATTERSON.

Mr. DAWES submitted the following; which was read:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Library be instructed to inquire into the expediency of giving permission to the descendants of Gen. John Patterson, of the Revolutionary army, to place in the Capitol at their own expense a statue of him; and that said committee indicate the character and location of the same.

Mr. DAWES. I wish to say, in asking for the consideration of the resolution at this time, that Gen. Patterson rendered conspicuous service in the Revolutionary war at the battle of Bunker Hill, at the siege of Boston, and at Ticonderoga, and among other things was one of the court-martial that tried Maj. André. I have caused to be prepared a sketch of his military services, which I will ask to have referred to the committee if the Senate shall adopt the resolution. His descendants now propose, with the permission of Congress, to place in the Capitol, at their own expense, if that be proper, a statue of Gen. Patterson, under the direction of the Committee on the Library.

I hope there will be no objection to the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the resolution be again read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be again read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. COCKRELL. I fear that might be forestalling the committee by requiring them before they had passed upon the propriety of receiving the statue to designate a location for it.

Mr. DAWES. They are only to inquire into the expediency of it. The resolution only gives them jurisdiction.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the last part of the resolution be again read. I think the resolution goes further than that.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be again read.

The Chief Clerk again read the resolution.

Mr. DAWES. That is, if the committee conclude to give permission they will indicate the place and character.

Mr. COCKRELL. If that is the understanding, I have no objection.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

Mr. DAWES. I ask that the paper which I had in my hand may be referred to the committee with the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That order will be made in the absence of objection.

ANTONIO MAXIMO MORA.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the President be requested to communicate to the Senate, if not in his opinion incompatible with the public interests, the diplomatic and consular correspondence in regard to the claim of Antonio Maximo Mora, a citizen of the United States, against the Government of Spain, since and including Mr. Caleb Cushing's note of October 21, 1875, to the Count of Cava Valencia; also the correspondence between the Government of the United States and Mr. Mora, his agents or attorneys, during the same period on the same subject.

COLLECTION DISTRICT OF PUGET SOUND.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed, and the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. DOLPH. I ask that the motion of the Senator from Washington [Mr. SQUIRE] to reconsider the vote by which the Senate passed the bill (S. 722) to amend the act entitled "An act to reorganize and establish the customs-collection district of Puget Sound," approved August 28, 1890, was passed, be now taken up.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed.

Mr. SQUIRE. Mr. President, this is a measure that affects the State of Washington in an important degree. It is proposed by this bill to cut off all that portion of Washington which borders on the Columbia River for more than 100 miles from its mouth. I have proposed a reconsideration of this bill with a view of asking the Senate to commit the bill to the Committee on Commerce, for the reason that I had no notice of the bill until it was reported favorably by the Committee on Commerce and I saw it on the Calendar. I think fair play entitles the State through her representatives here to such a showing as can be made and ought to be made on this subject.

However, I understand the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH] proposes to have the discussion take place right here and now on this question of reconsideration, and then he proposes to make a motion to lay it on the table. With that understanding of the matter, I shall proceed to present a few suggestions briefly in an offhand manner to the Senate.

I learn from the Treasury Department that in the erection or institution of new customs collection districts it is the policy of the Government to follow State lines as near as practicable. And it seems to me this is done for a very good reason. It assimilates the habits of the people in all respects as regards the operations of the different departments of the Government. For example, this is done in reference to the United States courts and the administration of State affairs. In this way the operation of law becomes simple so far as relates to the boundaries of districts, and the people are less likely to be confused. Besides this, it is important that the statistics of commerce of the various States, so far as practicable, should be exhibited through the reports made from the collectors of customs.

In accordance with this view a very excellent act was passed, approved August 28, 1890, providing for the reorganization and establishment of the customs-collection district of Puget Sound. In this act it was provided that there be a head port of entry at Port Townsend and that there be subports of entry at Seattle, at Tacoma, at Port Angeles, and at some point on Bellingham Bay, and at some point on Gray's Harbor, "and such other points as the Secretary of the Treasury may from time to time designate."

Under this provision there have been made since the passage of this act subports of entry at Aberdeen, on Gray's Harbor, at New Whatcom, on Bellingham Bay, and at Blaine, which is right on the boundary line between the State of Washington and British Columbia. It is contemplated that at no distant day a subport be located near the mouth of the river, on the Washington State side.

There are already indications of a much larger development there than has been going on heretofore. The nature of the country is such that it can be easily developed. The nature of the holding ground there for vessels is such that they like to lie there at Baker's Bay; and I myself have alighted from an ocean steamer just after getting over the turbulent waters of the Columbia River bar. When we had arrived at the placid waters of Baker's Bay I stepped right upon an elegant river steamer that goes up to Portland, and therefore I judge that it is a place which can naturally be developed into a fine port of entry.

The point I make is this: Under the present law all that is needed is the action of the Secretary of the Treasury to designate this place as a port of entry. That is combated by the Senator from Oregon with the statement that whenever a subport of entry is needed there, one can be created by law. That, of course, is true. But why throw away the opportunity that these people possess to have a subport created there by the action of the Secretary of the Treasury at any time?

The State of Washington is growing very rapidly. It is not like some of the older States, and even in the older States I doubt

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. TURPIE, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of William C. Tarkington, of Marion County, Ind., praying for an increase of pension, submitted a report thereon, accompanied by a bill (S. 2592) granting an increase of pension to William C. Tarkington; which was read twice by its title.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the petition of Samuel M. Campbell, of Marion County, Ind., praying for an increase of pension, submitted a report thereon, accompanied by a bill (S. 2593) granting an increase of pension to Samuel M. Campbell, of Marion County, Ind.; which was read twice by its title.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1303) to increase the pension of Mrs. S. A. Farquharson, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the petition of Adelia New, praying to be allowed a pension, submitted a report thereon, accompanied by a bill (S. 2605) granting a pension to Adelia New; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon, which were agreed to; and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 1572) granting an increase of pension to H. Cook Griffith;

A bill (S. 542) granting an increase of pension to Ezra A. Miller; and

A bill (S. 870) for the relief of Daniel W. Boutwell.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1188) granting a pension to Samuel P. Glenn, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1675) granting an increase of pension to John Kinney, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1535) to increase the pension of Andrew J. Monroe, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. GALLINGER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 453) granting a pension to Eliza Conroy, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1148) granting a pension to Mary A. Wise, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. SHOUP, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 520) granting an increase of pension to Oliver P. Goodwin, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. WHITE, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2123) to set apart a tract of land in the State of California for the use of the Lick Observatory of the astronomical department of the University of California, to report it adversely, because a similar bill, a House bill, has already passed the Senate. I move that this bill be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DAWES, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom were referred three amendments submitted by Mr. PERKINS and one amendment by Mr. CAREY on the 9th inst, intended to be proposed to the Indian appropriation bill, reported them favorably, and moved their reference to the Committee on Appropriations; which motion was agreed to.

Mr. ALLEN, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1140) for the relief of John C. Smith, Milton Evans, and others, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1624) to authorize the Quamah and Oklahoma Railway Company to construct and operate a railway in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes, reported it with an amendment.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BERRY introduced a bill (S. 2594) for the adjustment of the rights of the Indians and Indian tribes to lands owned or occupied by them in the Indian Territory, and for other arrangements with a view to the creation of a State embracing such Territory; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. MORGAN. I have a bill that I desire to introduce and to send to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads. We have had for several days a very earnest debate here about providing facilities for post-offices in the different towns and cities and villages of the country. I have had some personal observation and experience about this matter, especially during the last summer, and I think that without changing any law that is on the statute book, but by adding to the facilities of the Post-Office Department for obtaining the use of buildings for post-office purposes, we can very easily interest private capital and private enterprise in the building of these post-offices upon long terms of lease, say renewable after the lapse of 10 years at the instance of the Post-Office Department, at a fixed rate of rental which shall be the maximum, a rate not to be exceeded and liable to be reduced, if it may be, by biddings between people in the localities for the contract of rental, the house to be in all respects according to a plan and specifications to be arranged by the Postmaster-General, and to be located within a district of town, or village, or city where the commercial and industrial convenience of the people would be best subserved, to be furnished in a style to be prescribed in the specifications, to have either iron safes or fire-proof vaults, or both, as the Postmaster-General might require, according to the importance of the business to be done, and to have an open policy of insurance taken out in the name of the lessor for the benefit of the United States, to cover from time to time any property of the Government that might be exposed to fire and loss thereby in the course of years, and other details which are presented in the bill and which I now mention for the purpose of inviting the attention of the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads to the subject, for it is really a crying want in the country to have safe, secure, convenient, and healthy post-offices. Not only so, but the system of leasing as it is now conducted is one of reckless extravagance, and necessarily so, not because the Post-Office Department wants to spend money recklessly, but because it cannot help itself.

In various towns and villages, say villages of three or four thousand inhabitants and towns of twelve or fifteen thousand inhabitants, especially in the Southern country, the post-offices are almost entirely found in some building that is occupied by other business, above stairs usually. It is a building that has been erected for the purpose of carrying on merchandise or some mechanical industry, not at all fitted for the purposes of a post-office, inconvenient as to light, as to heat, as to drainage, as to water supply, and in various other ways very inconvenient and very unsafe. The bill that I propose prevents the occupation of a post-office building for any other purposes than for those that belong legitimately to the service of a post-office.

Having said this much about it, Mr. President, I will introduce the bill and have it referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, with the sincere hope that they may take the subject up and dispose of it. I think it is presented in a simple form.

The bill (S. 2595) to increase the facilities of the Post-Office Department for obtaining the use of buildings for post-office purposes was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. COLQUITT. The bill which I now introduce is a bill to provide salaries for United States marshals and for divers other objects connected with the collection of internal revenue. It was prepared by a very capable lawyer, who, by reason of his connection with one of the Departments in this city for a long time and subsequently being attached to the revenue service in the States, is well acquainted with the evils which are sought to be remedied, and after consultation with divers officers engaged similarly he has sent me this draft of a bill. All of its specific provisions I do not approve of; but the object of the bill is in perfect accord with my views, and it is introduced with the hope that in the discussion of it by the able Committee on the Judiciary some measure may be prepared that will remedy the evils which are recognized to exist everywhere, and the result will be generally acceptable.

Mr. VEST. I simply wish to remark to the Senator from Georgia that a bill has been prepared and is now pending in the Judiciary Committee, coming from a subcommittee, and it will be examined by the full committee, which fixes the fees of United States district attorneys. A bill fixing the fees of United States marshals is now pending before the Judiciary Committee and is under the consideration of the Attorney-General, who will, I understand, send it back to the committee for their action in a few days. Of course this bill will be considered by the committee, but the chairman is here to speak for the committee.

Mr. HOAR. I did not understand what the Senator was referring to.

Mr. VEST. The Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT] proposes to introduce a bill fixing the fees of United States attorneys and marshals, and I simply remarked that there was already such a bill pending before the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. HOAR. I may add, Mr. President, that the matter has received very industrious attention from the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] and the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] as a subcommittee, who have taken great pains to collect the necessary data with reference to the proper amount of salaries to be allowed, if the salary system should be substituted. The bill of the Senator from Georgia will be referred to those gentlemen as a subcommittee, and they will obtain such information as is necessary about it.

The bill (S. 2696) to provide salaries for United States marshals, United States attorneys, and clerks of circuit and district courts of the United States, and to regulate fees of United States deputy marshals, circuit court commissioners, and for other purposes, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas introduced a bill (S. 2597) to include lot 89, at Hot Springs, Ark., in the public reservation at that place; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. GALLINGER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2598) for the relief of George W. Quintard; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FELTON (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2599) releasing the right, title, and interest of the United States to the piece or parcel of land known as the Cuartel lot to the city of Monterey, Cal.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. PEPPER introduced a bill (S. 2600) to regulate the value of certain coins and pieces of money, to give to all sorts of current money equal qualities of legal tender, and to prohibit and prevent discriminations in favor of gold coin or bullion as money; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2601) to amend an act entitled "An act to grant the right of way to the Pittsburg, Columbus and Fort Smith Railway Company through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes;" which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. KYLE introduced a bill (S. 2602) to establish a military post near the city of Forest City, in Potter County, in the State of South Dakota; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PALMER introduced a bill (S. 2603) for the erection of a public building at the city of Lincoln, Ill.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2604) to reclassify and prescribe the salaries of railway postal clerks; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. CASEY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the Indian appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS WITHDRAWN AND REFERRED.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask for the adoption of an order. I am not sure that the order is necessary, but I think it is.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The order will be read.

The order was read, as follows:

Ordered. That the petitions of the Iowa Farmers' Alliance in favor of the anti-option bill, introduced at the last Congress, be withdrawn from the files of the Senate and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. ALLISON. I would strike out "of the Iowa Farmers' Alliance" and insert "all," after the first word, "that." There are a great number of such petitions, I will state to the Senate, which were presented during the last Congress, and they are on the files of the Senate. I think the Judiciary Committee ought to have the benefit of those petitions.

Mr. PADDUCK. Why not make it general, so as to cover all?

Mr. ALLISON. I think that should be done. So I ask that the word "all" be inserted so as to read, "that all the petitions in favor of the anti-option bill introduced at the last Congress be withdrawn from the files of the Senate and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary."

Mr. HOAR. I think it would be better to have it include all petitions and memorials on the subject.

The order as modified was agreed to, as follows:

Ordered. That all the petitions in favor of the anti-option bill introduced at the last Congress be withdrawn from the files of the Senate and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

URGENT DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. HALE submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6876) to provide for certain of the most urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendment numbered 2.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 3, 8, 9, and 10; and agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$5,000;" and the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 4, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$6,000;" and the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of said amendment insert the following:

"Health department: For the collection and removal of garbage, $16,000, of which sum not more than $8,000 shall be expended in payment of expenses heretofore incurred, and the balance shall be expended for said work during the remainder of the fiscal year; and legal proceedings shall forthwith be instituted and fully prosecuted against the old contractor and his bondsmen under the contract for said work."

And the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 6, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment insert the following:

"One deputy marshal, at $3 per day until and including March 31 next, and after said date all compensation for said deputy marshal shall be paid from fees received by the marshal."

And the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 7, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$18,950;" and the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 11, and agree to the same with amendments as follows:

Insert, after the word "purposes," in line 8 of said amendment, the words "until the fifteenth day of April next;" and in the last line of said amendment strike out the words "first day of May" and insert in lieu thereof the words "fifteenth day of April;" and the Senate agree to the same.

EUGENE HALE,

W. B. ALLISON,

F. M. COCKRELL,

Managers on the part of the Senate.

JOSEPH D. SAYERS,

NELSON DINGLEY, JR.,

Managers on the part of the House.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the report.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, before the report is acted upon I wish to take occasion to call the attention of Senators to a difficulty which is met by the Senate conferees in conference with the House conferees.

The House conferees complain that in many cases where the papers have come in from the Departments or otherwise they are not first submitted to the House in making up its bills, and that where there is ample opportunity given, if that fails to be done, the House itself as a body, or its committee representing the body, has no chance to fully examine the matter. The conferees on the part of the Senate were impressed somewhat with the force of this objection.

Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to amend section 1216 of the Revised Statutes, so as to read:

SEC. 1216. That when any enlisted man of the Army shall have distinguished himself in the service, the President may, at the recommendation of the commanding officer of the regiment or the chief of the corps to which such enlisted man belongs, grant him a certificate of merit.

Mr. HAWLEY. I will state the nature of the correction. The statute on that subject was passed with the word "private," describing the soldier, that the certificate of merit might be granted to a private soldier. That was found to rule out non-commissioned officers who frequently distinguish themselves in Indian fights and ought to have the reward of merit. So we change the statute from "private soldier" to "enlisted man."

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. PEPPER. Some weeks ago I introduced a bill for the relief of Daniel W. Boutwell, and it was referred to the Committee on Pensions. The relief is in the nature of a claim against the Government, and it appears that the claimant was not an enlisted soldier. For that reason the Committee on Pensions very properly reported the bill adversely. I have drawn another bill, with a view of having it referred to the Committee on Claims, which I think is the proper committee. I now introduce a similar bill for that purpose.

The bill (S. 2617) for the relief of Daniel W. Boutwell, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PEPPER introduced a bill (S. 2618) to establish an electrical experiment station for the purpose of investigating and determining whether electricity can be profitably applied as a motive power in the propulsion of farm machinery and implements; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2619) to vacate part of Madison street and extend Y street, in Georgetown; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2620) for the relief of Patrick Cahan; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2621) for the relief of Thomas P. Sheehan and Robert Dunn, composing the firm of Sheehan & Dunn; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2622) for the removal of the charge of desertion from the record of Timothy Way; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2623) to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of East Liverpool, Ohio; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill (S. 2624) granting an increase of pension to Amelia A. Taylor; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PLATT introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 63) for the appointment of a commissioner from the District of Columbia, to act with commissioners from the States, for the promotion of uniformity of legislation in the United States; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed a concurrent resolution to print 45,000 copies of the Special Report on the Diseases of the Horse.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the President pro tempore:

A bill (S. 1058) to prevent fraudulent transactions on the part of commission merchants and other consignees of goods and other property in the District of Columbia;

A bill (H. R. 3980) ratifying the act of the Sixteenth Territorial Legislative Assembly of Arizona, approved March 19, 1891, making appropriation in aid of Arizona's exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition;

A bill (H. R. 6876) to provide for certain of the most urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the service of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; and

A bill (H. R. 5755) to provide for terms of the United States circuit and district courts at Cumberland, Md.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. PETTIGREW submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the Indian appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

REPORT ON DISEASES OF THE HORSE.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following concurrent resolution of the House of Representatives; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring). That there be printed 45,000 copies of the Special Report on the Diseases of the Horse, prepared under the supervision of the chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry; 10,000 copies for the use of members of the Senate, and 35,000 copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. HOAR. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After four hours and twenty-five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 4 o'clock and 45 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, March 18, 1892, at 12 o'clock meridian.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, March 17, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read.

RETURN OF A BILL TO A COMMITTEE.

Mr. BOWERS. Mr. Speaker, I ask to get a bill returned to the Military Committee, which was put in the petition box by mistake. My request is that the bill H. R. 4639, to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Romantus Lake, which was put in the petition box by mistake, and is now on the Calendar, be returned, together with the report upon it, to the committee.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman states that the bill was reported by mistake, and it will be returned to the committee.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Mr. BUTLER. I rise to a question of privilege in connection with the RECORD, in reference to a speech that was delivered and held for revision. The member from Massachusetts [Mr. WALKER] in delivering his address on the tariff question the other day, was interrupted by me, with his consent, to ask a question. I was excited a little in regard to what transpired at that time—

Mr. ATKINSON. I wish to suggest that the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. WALKER] is not now here.

[Mr. WALKER at this point entered the Hall.]

Several MEMBERS. The gentleman is here now.

Mr. BUTLER. Being permitted to ask a question of the member from Massachusetts [Mr. WALKER] the answer he gave to me excited me somewhat, and I responded in words that were not really characteristic of a gentleman. I did not answer him as I would have answered him without provocation; and as that provocation does not appear in the revised report in the RECORD, it got abroad through the country that I do not understand what a gentleman ought to do in talking with another; but with the provocation appearing, I think my remarks would be wholly justified. I hold in my hand the report of the Official Reporter, which states exactly what the conversation was between us.

Mr. WALKER. If the gentleman will allow me, suppose that he reads from the RECORD as published. I think he will have nothing to complain of if he reads the report as it appears in the RECORD.

Mr. BUTLER. I will.

Mr. WALKER. If the gentleman will examine the RECORD he will see that I have acceded to his request and done exactly what he asked me to with reference to omitting the colloquy from the RECORD and I think it will be satisfactory to him if he will examine that.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. Speaker, I made no request of the member from Massachusetts, and do not understand his suggestion; I have admitted that my remarks were not gentlemanly. I am sorry that I was induced to make them; but I made them under a provocation that will justify every word I said; but the gentleman from Massachusetts has taken the official report as made by the reporters, has revised it, and has cut out every part of his insulting remark to me, and has left my less insulting remarks as being made without provocation.

Now I insist that the remarks of the member from Massachusetts to myself, which were the provocation for my remarks to him, shall appear in the RECORD, or else that my remarks be stricken out as well as his own. It is no more than fair. I do not insist that the member from Massachusetts shall be compelled to have printed in the RECORD his remarks which were so ungentlemanly. I am willing that he shall appear to be "the gentleman from Massachusetts" as well as the member from that State; but I do insist that no man has the right to change the records of this House in such a way as to make my remarks appear ungentlemanly instead of his own, when the contrary is the truth in the case. The conversation as it appears by the notes of the Official Reporter, is as follows:

Mr. BUTLER. May I ask the gentleman a question for information?

Mr. WALKER. I will.

Mr. BUTLER. I will be very brief. The gentleman stated, as I understood him, that the average tariff rate in England was seventy-odd per cent, and in this country forty-odd. Is that the reason why the manufacturer in England makes a larger per cent of profit than the American manufacturer?

Mr. WALKER. I object to the gentleman proceeding unless he reads from the RECORD as published.

Mr. BUTLER. I am reading from the official report, to show that the RECORD is not in accordance therewith.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman states that he is reading from the notes of the Official Reporter.

Mr. BUTLER. Now, to the question I have just read, the RECORD shows the member from Massachusetts as replying:

Mr. WALKER. Your question was not sincere; you are not asking that question for information—not by any manner of means.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. COCKRELL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2057) for the relief of Charles Fletcher, alias James H. Mitchell, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2048) for the relief of Capt. I. B. Webster, of Louisville, Ky., submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. ALLEN, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 448) for the relief of Margaret Kennedy, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HANSBROUGH, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1975) for the protection of livery-stable keepers and other persons keeping horses at livery within the District of Columbia, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. CASEY, from the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, to whom was referred the bill (S. 797) to provide for fixing a uniform standard of classification and grading of wheat, corn, oats, barley, and rye, and for other purposes, reported it with an amendment.

Mr. PERKINS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2136) to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the National Union Insurance Company, of Washington," approved February 14, 1895, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 5978) to extend the time for making assessments on real estate, etc., reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2176) to extend the time for making an assessment of real estate in the District of Columbia, outside the cities of Washington and Georgetown, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. MANDERSON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1348) for the issue of ordnance stores and supplies to the State of Nebraska to replace similar stores destroyed by fire, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Military Affairs to report back adversely the bill (S. 307) for the re-

Mr. DOLPH. Now, I hope the Senator from Massachusetts will withdraw his objection.

Mr. DAWES. I renew it.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair asks the Senate to be in order. It is difficult for the Chair to understand what gentlemen say when several speak at once. Does the Senator from Ohio withdraw his motion?

Mr. SHERMAN. For the present, until 2 o'clock; giving notice that at 2 o'clock I shall move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. DAWES. I object to all these special orders unless it is understood that they are subject to the appropriation bills.

Mr. SHERMAN. The rules make them so.

Mr. DAWES. I want to know whether they are.

Mr. HARRIS. Appropriation bills always have the right of way.

Mr. VEST. They always have the right of way.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair suggests to the Senator from Massachusetts that appropriation bills have the right of way, notwithstanding any order of the Senate, even by unanimous consent, for a special order.

Mr. DAWES. That is what I have been endeavoring to ascertain for some time. I am obliged to the Chair.

Mr. PADDOCK. Now I want to suggest that before any more special orders are fixed a special order be agreed upon that the Calendar shall be taken up. If it is necessary to make it such, after the special orders already fixed shall have had consideration, I ask that the Calendar be taken up as the regular order.

Mr. DOLPH. That is in order now.

Mr. President, I hope the Senate will indulge me to make a single suggestion. Here are two or three bills following together that ought to come in together, and I hope the Senate will allow them to be put down for consideration together, so that they can then take their chances. My colleague's bill was put down to follow.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It has not yet been entertained by the Chair.

Mr. MITCHELL. I ask unanimous consent for that.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The special order desired by the Senator from California [Mr. FELTON] was objected to by the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. DAWES]. The Chair now recognizes the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL].

Mr. MITCHELL. Then I ask that Senate bill 525 be made the special order to come in at the proper place.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the rules the Senator must fix an hour.

Mr. MITCHELL. At half past 3 o'clock on Tuesday.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Oregon asks that the bill, the title of which will be read for information, be set as a special order for Tuesday next at half past 3 o'clock.

Mr. FELTON. I withdraw my request. I did not know it would give rise to objection.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill indicated by the Senator from Oregon will be read by title.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 525) making an appropriation for the construction of a boat railway at The Dalles and Celilo Falls and Ten Mile Rapids of the Columbia River, and for the improvement of Three Mile Rapids.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL]? The Chair hears none, and the bill, the title of which has just been read, is made a special order for Tuesday next at half past 3 o'clock.

Mr. COCKRELL. I call for the regular order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The regular order is the call of the Calendar.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills: in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 1737) to increase the pension of Anna Maria Young, a Revolutionary pensioner; and

A bill (H. R. 7092) to authorize building a bridge over Tennessee River.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE TO EMPLOYÉS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The first bill on the Calendar will be stated.

The bill (S. 1768) to allow thirty days' leave of absence to employés in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Education and Labor with amendments. The first amendment was, in section 1, after the word "year," at the end of line 5, to insert "under such regulations and;" and in line 7, after the word "may," to insert "prescribe and;" so as to make the section read:

That the employés of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, including the pieceworkers, shall be allowed leave of absence with pay, not exceeding thirty working days in any one year, under such regulations and at such time or times as the Chief of the Bureau may prescribe and designate.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 2, in the following words:

SEC. 2. That this act shall take effect July 1, 1892.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I desire to ask the Senator in charge of this bill by what rule the pieceworker is to be paid for the month of leave of absence? When on duty he is paid so much apiece for the work he does, and I think the bill should provide some rule by which that class of employés should be paid while absent on leave, if paid at all.

Mr. CAREY. I will state to the Senator from Tennessee that this bill is framed in the same language as that in reference to the employés in the office of the Public Printer, and the form of it is approved by the Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Estimates of the amount of work done in a given time are made in the Bureau and on that basis the employés are paid during the leave of absence.

I desire to offer an amendment to be added to the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to add to the bill the following proviso:

Provided, That no such full leave of absence of thirty days shall be granted to any employé of said Bureau for a period of not less than eleven months immediately preceding the granting of such leave.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MORGAN. I submitted an amendment this morning which I intend to propose to this bill, which has gone out into the Secretary's office, I believe, which is to include the employés of the navy-yards in the right to leave of absence, which is predicated upon the fact that the employés of the Navy Department have the right to this leave of absence and the persons engaged in like duties, because they happen to be in the navy-yards, are found outside the provisions of the law. I suppose the Senator in charge of the bill will have no objection to my amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment of the Senator from Alabama will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to add as a new section the following:

SEC. 2. That all draftsmen, assistant draftsmen, clerks, writers, and copyists under the direction of the Navy Department who receive per diem pay shall be allowed thirty days' leave of absence each year without forfeiture of pay during such leave, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Navy may prescribe.

Mr. HALE. That does not go beyond the clerical service and the services of draftsmen?

Mr. MORGAN. No.

Mr. HALE. I have no objection to that.

Mr. CHANDLER. I do not rise to oppose the amendment, but to state that there is now before the Naval Committee a bill which provides for granting thirty days' leave of absence under similar conditions to the foremen and leading men who work in the navy-yards, which bill will undoubtedly be reported by that committee with a recommendation for its passage. I mention this fact now in order that it may not be misunderstood that that proposition will be made if the amendment which is proposed by the Senator from Alabama is adopted.

I certainly think that the foremen and the leading men of the navy-yards are as much entitled to leave of absence as the draftsmen and writers in the Departments.

Mr. MORGAN. We can put this amendment on. The Senator, I believe, approves this amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. HALE. I should not want the remarks of the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHANDLER] to be considered as binding everybody here to the proposition that these leaves of absence for the clerical force should be extended to the working force in the Navy Department and in the navy-yards especially, because the right to furlough there and to leave of absence from duty might come at a time of the greatest emergency and might upset every plan for the useful work going on in a navy-yard. That matter, however, will be considered, of course, by the Naval Committee when it comes up. I only wish to enter a caveat as to my being committed in the direction indicated by the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. CHANDLER. Of course I commit no one except myself, but as a reason for not offering the provision in reference to foremen and leading men of the navy-yards upon this bill at the time when the Senator from Alabama moves the provision in behalf of the draftsmen and clerical force, I take occasion to call attention to the pendency in the Senate of this other bill.

Mr. HALE. The Senator said it would undoubtedly pass. Perhaps it may.

Mr. CHANDLER. That was an expression of my opinion merely. The Senator from Maine has filed his caveat. The Senator from Maine will understand that that bill does not apply to the whole working force of the navy-yards, but only to the foremen and leading men, who I think may properly be accorded the same privilege, so far as leaves of absence are concerned, as all the workmen of the Government Printing Office, as all the workmen are to be now accorded in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and, as the Senator from Alabama proposes, all the clerical force engaged upon per diem pay in the Navy Department are to be accorded. I think the three classes of cases will be found to be equally meritorious, but I refrain from moving this last clause upon this bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CAREY. I desire that the same proviso which was added to the first section be also added to the second section, which has been adopted by motion of the Senator from Alabama.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Wyoming moves an amendment, which will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to add to section 2 of the bill the following:

Provided, That no such full leave of absence for thirty days shall be granted to any employee of said Bureau for a period of not less than eleven months immediately preceding the granting of such leave.

Mr. CHANDLER. I think the word "Bureau" should be changed to "Department" in the amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendment will be so modified.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to modify the amendment so as to read:

Provided, That no such full leave of absence of thirty days shall be granted to any employee of said Department for a period of not less than eleven months immediately preceding the granting of such leave.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair calls the attention of the Senator from Wyoming to the fact that under the amendments to the bill there should be a correction of the title so as to read: "A bill to allow thirty days' leave of absence to employees of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and in the Navy Department." The title will be so amended if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

CAMERON HILL, CHATTANOOGA.

Mr. ALLEN. On yesterday Order of Business 218, being Senate bill 631, was passed over without prejudice. I ask that it may now be considered.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole proceeded to consider the bill (S. 634) to authorize and direct the Secretary of War to investigate the claim made and fuel alleged to have been taken and used by the United States Army during the war from the property in Chattanooga known as "Cameron Hill," and to provide for the payment thereof.

The bill was reported by the Committee on Claims with an amendment to add the following proviso:

Provided, That no greater amount than $10,000 shall be allowed or paid to such person or persons.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MILITARY POST AT FORT WAYNE, MICH.

The bill (S. 985) to provide for the enlargement of the military post at Fort Wayne, Mich., was considered as in Committee of the Whole. To enable the Secretary of War to enlarge the military post at Fort Wayne, Mich., the bill proposes to authorize him to accept, free of cost to the United States, such tract of land adjoining the post of Fort Wayne as, in his judgment, shall be well adapted and in all respects suitable for military purposes; but the title is to have been declared valid by the Attorney-General of the United States.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN W. TAYLOR.

The bill (S. 1274) to correct the military record of John W. Taylor, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs with amendments, in line 9, after the word "therefrom," to strike out "on the 31st day of October" and insert "August 31," and in line 10, after the date "1865," to insert "upon surrender of his discharge or upon satisfactory proof of his inability to surrender the same;" so as to make the bill read:

That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause the record of the War Department to be amended so as to show that John W. Taylor, musician of Company A, First Wisconsin Heavy Artillery, entered the military service of the United States on the 11th day of June, 1861, and was honorably discharged therefrom August 31, 1865, upon surrender of his discharge or upon satisfactory proof of his inability to surrender the same.

Sec. 2. That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to said John W. Taylor, of Omaha, Neb., one of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the pay and allowances of a musician in the volunteer service from the 11th day of June, 1861, to the 31st day of October, 1863.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

FORT D. A. RUSSELL RESERVATION.

The bill (S. 521) granting to the State of Wyoming certain lands in the Fort D. A. Russell military reservation for agricultural fair and industrial exposition grounds, and for other purposes, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs with an amendment, in line 4, after the word "to," to insert "select and;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War is hereby authorized and empowered to select and set apart 160 acres of land that may no longer be required for military purposes, in the Fort D. A. Russell military reservation, in the State of Wyoming, for the use of the said State for agricultural fair and industrial exposition grounds, and for other public purposes. That the lands so set apart are hereby granted to the State of Wyoming: Provided, That if the said State shall at any time permit the said lands hereby granted to be used for any purpose not contemplated by this act the said lands shall revert to the United States.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FORT WALLA WALLA MILITARY RESERVATION.

The bill (S. 214) making appropriation for the improvement of the military reservation known as Fort Walla Walla, in the State of Washington, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to appropriate $20,000 for the improvement of the United States military reservation known as Fort Walla Walla, consisting of about 640 acres of land adjoining the city of Walla Walla, in the State of Washington, in fencing the same, in planting trees, making roads and driveways thereon, in providing the officers' quarters and the barracks with drainage, and making other needful improvements on the reservation.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

RESURVEY OF A KANSAS TOWNSHIP.

The bill (S. 1534) to resurvey township 18, range 9 west, sixth principal meridian of Kansas, was announced as the next in order on the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. This bill is adversely reported. Shall it be considered?

Mr. COCKRELL. Let that bill be passed over and go to the other Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be passed over under Rule IX.

Mr. PERKINS subsequently said: I should like to ask what action was taken relative to Senate bill 1534, to resurvey township 18, range 9 west, sixth principal meridian of Kansas. I was called out when that bill was reached on the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It went over under Rule IX, being reported adversely.

Mr. PERKINS. My request was that it be retained upon the Calendar; and I desire to have it retain its place.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It is now on the Calendar under Rule IX.

GRADE OF ARMY MEDICAL OFFICERS.

The bill (S. 1039) to define the grade of certain medical officers of the Army, and for other purposes, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides that hereafter the grade of certain medical officers of the Army below that of Surgeon-General shall be as follows: Those holding the rank of colonel, assistant surgeon-generals; those holding the rank of lieutenant-colonel, deputy surgeon-generals. Before receiving the rank of captain of cavalry, assistant surgeons shall be examined, under Young, a Revolutionary pensioner, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

The bill (H. R. 7092) to authorize building a bridge over Tennessee River was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

HEIR OF JAMES S. HAM.

The bill (S. 1538) for the relief of the heir of James S. Ham was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It is a direction to the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem in favor of Abby A. Ham, sole heir of James S. Ham, late of Providence, R. I., certain bonds of the United States, of the second series, issued under an act of Congress approved February 25, 1862, amounting to $4,000, with interest from November 1, 1864, to March 20, 1872, which were stolen February 11, 1865, and afterward destroyed by the thief or thieves. But before the redemption of the bonds the heir of James S. Ham shall execute, or cause to be executed, and deposit with the Secretary of the Treasury a bond of indemnity, with good and sufficient sureties, subject to the approval of the Secretary, to secure the United States against loss or damage.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HEIRS OF JOHN W. VOSE.

The bill (S. 1539) for the relief of the heirs of John W. Vose was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It is a direction to the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem in favor of Abby S. Vose, Ella V. Denham, Caroline M. Vose, Laura W. Stewart, Clarence Vose, Annie M. Vose, Annie Spear Kingsbury, and Ella Robbins Vose, sole heirs of John M. Vose, late of Providence, R. I., bonds of the United States, of the second series, issued under an act of Congress approved February 25, 1862, amounting to $11,000, with interest from November 1, 1861, to March 20, 1872, the heirs claiming that the estate of John W. Vose owned the bonds on February 11, 1865, when they were stolen from the estate and were afterward destroyed by the thief or thieves. But before the redemption of the bonds the heirs shall execute, or cause to be executed, and deposit with the Secretary of the Treasury, a bond of indemnity, with good and sufficient sureties, subject to the approval of the Secretary, to secure the United States against loss or damage.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PAUL MCCORMICK.

The bill (S. 567) for the relief of Paul McCormick was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Claims with an amendment, in line 12, before the word "dollars," to strike out "one thousand six hundred" and insert "three hundred;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the proper accounting officers of the Treasury Department be, and they are hereby, directed to audit and allow Paul McCormick, of Montana, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sum as to them shall seem just and reasonable, for the loss sustained by said McCormick by reason of the change made by the officers of the United States as to the place of delivering the wood for the contract of August 3, 1870, was made and entered into by said McCormick, not to exceed the sum of $300, the same to be in full satisfaction of all claims or demands on account of loss.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. E. TRASK.

The bill (S. 479) for the relief of Mrs. E. Trask was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment to Mrs. E. Trask, late postmaster at Emporia, Kans., of $243, to reimburse her for losses resulting from the theft of five registered letters by burglars, who entered the post-office at Emporia, Kans., on the night of October 5, 1871.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FRANK ROTHER.

The bill (S. 390) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to Frank Rother $225 due him for services as route agent, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the report in that case be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The report will be read.

The Secretary read the following report submitted by Mr. SAWYER February 8, 1892:

The Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, to whom was referred the bill (S. 390) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to Frank Rother $225, due him for services as route agent, have examined the same and report:

The committee is entirely satisfied that Frank Rother was an employee of the Government in its Post-Office Department between June 20, 1876, and September 20, 1876; that compensation for services to be rendered by him had been fixed at $900 per annum; that he received no payment for the services rendered between said June 20, 1876, and September 20, 1876, and that he is entitled to payment of his salary for that period. Heretofore annexed the petition of the claimant and other documents.

The bill is reported favorably with a recommendation that it do pass.

PETITION.

I would most respectfully represent that on or about the 6th day of June, A. D. 1876, I was appointed route agent on the Eureka and Palisade Railroad, in Nevada, which appointment I received in person at Washington, D. C. I immediately started from Washington, D. C., to Palisade, Nev., and there started upon the discharge of my duties, and was duly paid one-half month's salary by the postmaster at Eureka, Nev. Owing to some misunderstanding existing between the Government and the Eureka and Palisade Railroad Company, said company refused the establishment of service on their line, and hence I was detailed to duty on the San Francisco and Tonales Railroad, and subsequently on the Central and Union Pacific Railroad.

September 20, I was transferred and designated local agent at Ogden, Utah. There is still due me three months' salary, at $75 per month, from the Government, of which amount I have never received any part or share. I would call attention to the fact that, although I have repeatedly tried to secure my pay, I have so far failed for the following reasons, to wit:

The Post-Office Department repeatedly signified that the appropriation was exhausted and required special acts of Congress for my relief. I will state that I was not engaged in any vocation, other than that stated, between the 6th day of June, A. D. 1876, and the 20th day of September, A. D. 1876, and that there is justly due me three months' salary, from the 20th day of June, A. D. 1876, to the 20th day of September, the date of my transfer; wherefore I pray that Congress take such action as will enable me to get the amount so justly due me, to wit, three months' salary at $75 per month.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

FRANK ROTHER.

STATE OF NEW YORK, City and County of New York, ss:

On the 4th day of December, A. D. 1884, personally appeared before me, the undersigned, a notary public in and for the county and city of New York, Frank Rother, who, upon being duly sworn according to law, declares that he is a claimant for $225 for three months' service rendered the Government of the United States; and for the proper prosecution of said claim he hereby appoints Mr. Edward Peris, of 69 St. Mark's Place, New York City, his true and lawful attorney in fact, with the power of revocation and substitution.

Witness:

FRANK ROTHER.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and date first above written.

SIR: The Postmaster-General has transferred you from the route between Palisade and Eureka, Nev., and designated you local agent at Ogden, Utah, with pay at the rate of $900 per annum, vice H. H. Bellows, removed.

Very respectfully, etc.,

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Washington, D. C., May 1, 1890.

SIR: Replying to your letter of April 22, and returning herewith a bill introduced in Congress authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to Frank Rother $225 due him for services as route agent, I would state that the records of the Department disclose the following:

Mr. Rother was appointed a route agent between Palisade and Eureka, Nev., June 6, 1876, compensation to be at the rate of $900 per annum. He was transferred to the position of local agent at Ogden, Utah, September 20, 1876.

The records of the Auditor's Office show that he was paid by the postmaster at Eureka, Nev., $42.03 for services from the 11th day of June, 1876, to the 30th day of June, 1876, inclusive.

There is no evidence that he drew pay during the third quarter of 1876, comprising the months of July, August, and September, the accounts of the postmaster at Eureka for that period being marked "delinquent."

He was paid $225 for the fourth quarter of 1876, comprising the months of October, November, and December; and $225 for the first quarter of 1877. The records of the Department indicate that Mr. Rother drew no pay during the third quarter of 1876.

Permit me to call your attention to the following discrepancies in the bill:

The route upon which Mr. Rother was employed was from Palisade and Eureka, not "Eureka." From July 20 to September 20, 1876, but two months, not three, as stated in the bill.

Very respectfully,

JNO WANAMAKER.

Postmaster-General.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FOURTH STREET METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The bill (S. 1711) to vest the title of public square 1102, in the city of Washington, D.C., in the trustees of the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, and for other purposes, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HAWLEY. Mr. President, shall I understand that this bill gives to this association one of the public squares, a public reservation?

Mr. FAULKNER. Oh, no. If the Senator will observe the language of the bill, he will see that these parties own now under a grant, with certain conditions with reference to using a portion of the land for a cemetery. They paid full value and consideration for it in 1826.

Mr. HAWLEY. And it is now occupied?

Mr. FAULKNER. It is now partially occupied by a graveyard. They want to get rid of that graveyard under the advice of the District Commissioners. That is all the bill provides for.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

On motion of Mr. FAULKNER, it was Ordered, That when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

DISTRICT ASSESSMENT BOOKS.

The bill (S. 1931) to amend an act entitled "An act making appropriations to provide for the expenses of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1882, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1881, was announced as next in order on the Calendar.

Mr. HIGGINS. I am instructed by the Committee on the District of Columbia to report favorably a bill passed by the House of Representatives in the same terms with that bill, and to ask for its substitution for the pending bill, and that the pending bill be indefinitely postponed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The title of the bill reported by the Senator from Delaware will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (H. R. 5118) to amend an act entitled "An act making appropriations to provide for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1882, and for other purposes;" approved March 3, 1881.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If there be no objection the bill reported favorably, being a House bill of similar import to the bill under consideration, will be substituted as the pending order.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it be taken up as an independent measure and not substituted for the pending bill, which would require it to go back to the House.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair stated, as a substitute for the present order of business, not for the bill itself.

Mr. COCKRELL. All right.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Delaware that the House bill be now considered?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It provides that the paragraph relating to the duties of the assessor, commencing with the fourth line from the bottom of page 430 and ending with and including the eighth line from the top of page 461, of volume 21, United States Statutes at Large, shall be amended so as to read as follows:

The books of assessment for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1883, and annually thereafter, shall be prepared by the assessor of the District of Columbia before the 1st day of November of each year, and upon the completion thereof, said assessor shall prepare a statement showing the total amount of the assessment of both real and personal property, and the total amount of taxes to be collected under said assessment; which statement shall be received by the collector of taxes in triplicate, and said collector shall be held responsible under his bond for all such taxes, except such as he may not be able to collect after fully complying with the requirements of law. The original receipt of said assessment and taxes shall be forwarded by the assessor to the First Comptroller of the Treasury, the duplicate to the auditor of the District of Columbia, and the triplicate shall be retained by the collector. Hereafter all tax bills shall be made up under the direction of the assessor of the District of Columbia. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with any of the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President, I hope the Senator having the bill in charge will allow it to be passed over until tomorrow.

Mr. COCKRELL. This bill is in the precise language of the Senate bill.

Mr. CALL. I understand that, but there are some provisions that ought to be inserted in these tax bills of the District of Columbia for the relief of the tax-payers, and I think it would be very well for that matter to be considered on this bill.

Mr. HIGGINS. Do I understand the Senator from Florida proposes by amendment to add a rider to this bill to accomplish some other method of legislation?

Mr. CALL. That is the object I have in view.

Mr. HIGGINS. I am sorry the Senator has chosen this bill for that purpose.

Mr. CALL. This is not a private bill.

Mr. HIGGINS. This bill is recommended by the Commissioners of the District and has passed the other House. It is simply to substitute for the present duty of the collector of taxes furnishing a duplicate tax list, that hereafter he shall accept the statement in triplicate by the assessor. The statement of the Commissioners is that the present provision of law requiring the duplicates to be written out is not complied with, because, if it were complied with, it would make a larger draft upon the clerical force than they could fill, and would cost a great deal more money, and in practice it is not carried out. It is really by their advice that this measure is introduced to conform the law to what is exactly their practice.

Mr. CALL. I see no objection to these provisions. It was my desire to have placed upon some bill for the collection of taxes, or in relation to the collection of taxes in this District, a provision that would afford relief to delinquent taxpayers by extending the time in which their payments can be made; but I will withdraw objection to the consideration of the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Objection being withdrawn, the bill is before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole, and open to amendment.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senate bill 1931 of the same character will be indefinitely postponed in the absence of objection. The Chair hears no objection, and it is so ordered.

PROPOSED CONSIDERATION OF THE CALENDAR.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. President, I submit now a motion that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. PADDOCK. I ask the Senator to yield to me a moment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator from Ohio yield?

Mr. SHERMAN. I will yield to any morning business.

Mr. PADDOCK. I want to ask unanimous consent that the Calendar may be made the special order for Wednesday next, at 2 o'clock, and be a continuing order thereafter for unobjected cases, for cases under Rule VIII, until the Calendar shall have been gone through with, and every bill thereupon considered under the five-minute rule.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair does not see how the entire Calendar could be made a special order. The Senator from Nebraska asks unanimous consent, as the Chair understands, that at 2 o'clock on Wednesday next the Senate shall proceed to the consideration of the Calendar under Rule VIII in its order; in other words, that the morning hour shall continue during the day.

Mr. PADDOCK. That is the idea.

Mr. PLATT. I do not think we ought to give consent to so sweeping a request as the Senator has made, and I wish he would not make that request until we have had a little time for consultation as to what day it would be advisable to go to the Calendar and as to what time we may spend upon it. There is a thin Senate present, and I do not think the Senator ought to press his request now. I do not think there will be objection to fixing a day when we shall consider the Calendar, but we ought to consider the other business and how it stands. I hope the Senator will not press the request at this time.

Mr. HALE. There probably will be no time better than next week that we can give two or three days to the Calendar. Not much has been done upon it heretofore; even the morning hour has been interrupted, and I think, after the Senator withdrawing the suggestion for the present, that we can agree to give two or three days next week to the Calendar.

Mr. PADDOCK. I make this suggestion not because I have any special interest in the Calendar, but because it is a fair proposition. The Calendar is voluminous.

Mr. HALE. And growing more so.

Mr. PADDOCK. And in the interest of fairness and justice to all classes of legislation which are represented upon the Calendar to-day, I think there ought to be an early order of this kind. My principal object in suggesting it now is to call the attention of the Senate to it and prepare its mind for it if possible.

Mr. PLATT. We will all agree as to that.

Mr. HALE. We can do it next week.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. SHERMAN. I now renew my motion for an executive session.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Ohio that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the SECTION 1. Be it resolved by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the United States Senators from the State of Maryland and the Representatives in Congress be, and they are hereby, requested to prepare and support a bill for the purchase of Temple Farm and Moore House, at Yorktown, Va., by the Government of the United States of America: Provided, The cost of said farm and all improvements shall not exceed a reasonable price, and that the State of Virginia shall exempt the same from taxation.

SEC. 2. Be it resolved, That engrossed copies of this preamble and joint resolution be sent to the United States Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of Maryland.

Given under our hands this 29th day of February, 1892.

EDWARD LLOYD,

MURRAY VANDIVER,

Speaker of the House of Delegates.

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland presented a petition of the General Assembly of the State of Maryland, asking the Senators and Representatives from that State to use their influence to secure the passage of legislation for the transfer of the Revenue Marine Service from the Treasury Department to the Navy Department; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Joint resolutions requesting and directing the Senators and Representatives of the State of Maryland in the Congress of the United States to use their best efforts to secure the passage of a bill, having for its object the transfer of the Revenue Marine Service from the Treasury Department to the Navy Department of the United States:

Whereas there has been introduced into the Senate of the United States a bill to transfer the United States Revenue Cutter Service to the Navy; and whereas the said bill is in the interest of economy and for the improvement of the condition of both United States Navy and Revenue Cutter Service; and

Whereas the said bill has been indorsed by the Legislature of Virginia and Massachusetts and the seaboard States and chambers of commerce of nearly all the prominent seaports, as well as inland cities of the United States; and

Whereas the said bill passed by a large majority in the House of Representatives in the Fifty-first Congress and only failed of passage in Senate through lack of time: Therefore

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the Senators and Representatives of this State in the Congress of the United States, be, and they are hereby, requested and directed to use all proper means in their power to secure the passage by said Senate and House of Representatives of the bill having for its object the transfer of the Revenue Marine Service from the Treasury Department of the United States to the Navy Department.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be immediately transmitted by his excellency, the governor, to each of our Senators in the Congress of the United States.

Approved February 25, A. D. 1892.

Mr. SAWYER presented the following petitions of Maple Ridge Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Wisconsin:

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation for the encouragement of silk culture—ordered to lie on the table.

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent gambling in farm products—referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. WOLCOTT, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2456) to authorize the extension of Massachusetts avenue and the construction of a bridge across Rock Creek on Massachusetts avenue extended, reported it favorably with amendments, accompanied by a written report, and moved its reference to the Committee on Appropriations; which was agreed to.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 2786) to amend the act giving the approval and sanction of Congress to the route and termini of the Anacostia and Potomac River Railroad in the District of Columbia, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. WILSON, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2161) to provide for and to punish the crime of perjury before the United States local land officers, reported it with amendments.

Mr. HIGGINS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by himself March 15, relative to the divisions of the appropriations for the District of Columbia during the past five years, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Appropriations; which was agreed to.

Mr. ALLEN. I am instructed by the Committee on Public Lands to report back adversely the bill (S. 1139) to confirm title to certain lands in the State of Washington. This adverse report is made because it is ascertained that provision for relief has been otherwise made. I move that the bill be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DOLPH, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2599) releasing the right, title, and interest of the United States to the piece or parcel of land known as the Cuartel lot to the city of Monterey, Cal., reported it without amendment.

Mr. DOLPH. By direction of the Committee on Public Lands I report back favorably, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting a new bill, the bill (S. 2140) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to convey to the State of Kansas certain lands therein for homes for old soldiers and their families. The substitute is the bill that was reported from the committee by the chairman of the committee at the last session and passed by the Senate. I will state to the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEPPER], who introduced this bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. DOLPH. I also, by direction of the same committee, report back the bill (S. 2329) granting to the University of Utah a site off the public domain, and ask that the committee be discharged from the further consideration of the bill and that it be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs. The bill proposes the granting of a portion of a military reservation in actual use for military purposes as a site for the University of Utah. The Committee on Military Affairs have claimed jurisdiction of that class of bills.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2575) to provide for the sale of certain lots in the District of Columbia, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PLATT, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2210) to extend the jurisdiction of courts in Oklahoma Territory over certain classes of crimes, and for other purposes, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs; which was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 504) in relation to the western judicial district of Wisconsin, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was indefinitely postponed.

Mr. PERKINS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6295) to punish false swearing before trial boards of the Metropolitan police force and fire department of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2368) to punish false swearing before trial boards of the Metropolitan police force and fire department of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. PETTIGREW, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1272) granting to the State of South Dakota the lands embraced within the meander lines of the dry lake beds within said State, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was indefinitely postponed.

Mr. SANDERS, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 878) creating two additional land districts in the State of Montana, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 1080) for the relief of the inhabitants of the town of Ferron, county of Emery, Territory of Utah, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. MORGAN, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1696) to further provide for the disposal of certain public lands in the State of Alabama, reported it with amendments.

COURTS IN WISCONSIN.

Mr. WILSON. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 497) to determine the sessions of the circuit and district courts of the United States for the eastern district of Wisconsin, to report it favorably, without amendment.

Mr. SAWYER. I ask unanimous consent that that bill may be considered now. It merely fixes the terms of the courts in the eastern district of Wisconsin, and it is necessary that it should be passed pretty soon.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CLERK OF COURTS OF TEXARKANA DIVISION.

Mr. GEORGE. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 5891) to authorize the appointment of clerk for the circuit and district courts of the United States in the Texarkana division of the eastern district of Arkansas, to report it back favorably without amendment. It is a local bill for the benefit of the States of Arkansas and Texas, in three lines and a half, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 2122) for the relief of Cumberland Female College of McMinnville, Tenn.;

A bill (H. R. 5354) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Osage River, between the town of Warsaw and the mouth of Turkey Creek, in Benton County, Mo.;

A bill (H. R. 5499) to amend an act entitled "An act approving with amendments the funding act of Arizona," approved June 25, 1890; and

A bill (H. R. 6214) to increase the pension to William Burrough, of Crawford County, Ark., veteran of the war of 1812.

The message also announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 444) granting to the State of South Dakota section numbered 36, in township numbered 94 north, of range numbered 54 west, in the county of Yankton in said State for the purpose of an asylum for the insane, to correct an act approved June 16, 1880, attempting to make such grant to the Territory of Dakota, and for other purposes.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message further announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the President pro tempore:

A bill (H. R. 128) to provide for the establishment of a port of delivery at Council Bluffs, Iowa; and

A bill (H. R. 6071) to amend section 1216 of the Revised Statutes, relative to certificates of merit to the enlisted men of the Army.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2636) to amend an act entitled "An act authorizing the appointment of receivers of national banks, and for other purposes," approved June 30, 1876; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2637) to extend North Capitol street to the Soldiers' Home; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. BUTLER introduced a bill (S. 2638) granting a pension to W. W. Harlee; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HARRIS introduced a bill (S. 2639) for the relief of John L. Rhea, executor of Samuel Rhea, deceased, and John Anderson, executor of Joseph R. Anderson, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland introduced a bill (S. 2640) for the relief of the legal representatives of Henry W. Archer, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2641) for the relief of James S. Crawford; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2642) to extend the time for the payment of the unpaid taxes for the year 1891 and all previous years, and for the remission of the penalty; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. PAULKNER introduced a bill (S. 2643) changing the time for holding the circuit and district courts in the district of West Virginia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2644) granting a pension to Catharine A. Sharp; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2645) for the relief of George W. Craig; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. VILAS introduced a bill (S. 2646) to provide for the purchase of the Sturgeon Bay Ship Canal; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2647) for the relief of Mrs. Fanny N. Bajer; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 2648) granting a pension to Augustus G. Cary; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 2649) for the relief of Eli C. Officer; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2650) for the relief of Fannie Ricks Jones, and Anne Ricks Willis, heirs of Benjamin S. Ricks, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 2651) for the protection of boarding-house keepers; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 2652) for the relief of Bela R. Davis; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PEPPER introduced a bill (S. 2653) granting to Sergt. Thomas O. Harter, Company I, First Indiana Cavalry, $10,000 and a gold medal for losses and services which, in July and August, 1862, saved Pope's army and the nation's capital from capture by Lee's army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. GEORGE. I introduce a bill to refund to the producers of cotton the internal-revenue tax collected thereon. Inasmuch as we rely upon the unconstitutionality of the act imposing the tax, the Supreme Court of the United States having been evenly divided upon that question, I ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary as to the fundamental question.

The bill (S. 2654) to refund to the producers of cotton the internal-revenue tax collected thereon, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. McPHERSON introduced a bill (S. 2655) to increase the pension of John Kershaw, late a private in Company C, Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2656) granting a pension to Mrs. Virginia Hart Clark; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PETTIGREW introduced a bill (S. 2657) granting right of way to the Watertown, Sioux City and Duluth Railway Company through the Sisseton and Wahpeton Indian Reservation; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2658) for the relief of the heirs of James Deford; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2659) for the relief of Jacob Brumbaugh; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2660) for the relief of Almond Partridge, late a private in Company B, Sixty-fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a bill (S. 2661) for the relief of Julius Stahl; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. KYLE introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 65) authorizing the investigation of the cause and results of the recent mine disaster in the Indian Territory; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. SHOUP introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 66) for the relief of the Boise City National Bank; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. HIGGINS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (S. 2524) to enforce the provisions of section 2866 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in respect of article 29 of the treaty of Washington, of May 8, 1871, with the Government of Great Britain; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed.

POTOMAC RIVER FRONT.

Mr. McMILLAN submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be, and they are hereby, directed to inquire into and report to the Senate, as soon as may be, in detail, what portions of the Potomac River front lying between Water street and the said river and extending from Fourteenth street northwest to the Arsenal grounds, are occupied under the authority of the United States, by whom leased, upon what terms, and under what authority of law; and also what portions thereof, if any, are otherwise held and occupied, and to what extent, and by whom, and by what authority, if any; and what rentals are being derived from the exercise of wharfing rights and privileges thereon. And further to report what legislation, if any, is, in the judgment of the said Commissioners, necessary to enforce and maintain the rights of the United States over the same.

SHELTER FOR INAUGURATION CEREMONIES.

Mr. HOAR. I offer a resolution which I ask may have immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds be directed to consider the practicability of providing a sufficient shelter east of the Capitol for the protection of persons who may take part in the ceremony of inaugurating the President of the United States, or who may assemble to witness such inauguration; and, if they find the same to be practicable, to obtain estimates of the probable cost thereof, and to report the same to the Senate during the present session.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, I suppose it is unnecessary to enforce upon the consideration of the Senate the fact that many very valuable lives have been exposed and many valuable lives have been lost in recent years by the exposure incident to the inauguration ceremonies. The second inauguration of President Grant was on a day of perhaps the most savage weather ever known in recent years to the residents of Washington, and during that time the vast assembly was exposed to bitter and piercing winds. Among the assemblage was a company of boys from West Point who had come on here and who stood in that wind for several hours. The inauguration of President Harrison occurred during a very heavy storm. I had some opportunity of knowing, as my friend from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL] had, that the health of the President himself, though not exposed to the storm as were the auditors who had remained there for so long a time, was very seriously endangered, and was only preserved by active preventive remedies.

I suppose the committee will ascertain that a sufficient quantity of lumber to make a perfectly water-tight roof large enough to shelter the entire crowd and perhaps with canvas or other protection for the sides, may be hired for the day without very great expense, and that the shelter can be supported by timbers without breaking into the pavement. At any rate, the question is worth considering, and the consideration of it ought to be had in ample season before the next inauguration. The Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds can obtain the advice of the Architect of the Capitol or any other advice they desire.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

TARIFF LAWS OF COLOMBIA.

Mr. MORGAN submitted the following resolution: which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the President be requested, if, in his opinion, it is not incompatible with the public interests, to communicate to the Senate the items of taxation imposed by the laws of the Republic of Colombia upon the productions of the United States imported into Colombia, which he has found and has proclaimed to be reciprocally unjust to the United States. And that he send to the Senate the correspondence with the Government of Colombia relating to reductions in taxation under the tariff laws of Colombia that have been proposed by either Government to secure reciprocal justice in tariff taxation between the two countries.

COLLECTION DISTRICT OF LOS ANGELES.

Mr. FELTON. I desire unanimous consent for the present consideration of Senate bill 2384, which simply proposes to change the name of a customs-collection district. The bill is entirely local in character, and it will only take a minute to pass it.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be read by title.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 2384) to change the name of the customs-collection district and port of Wilmington, Cal., to Los Angeles, and for other purposes.

Mr. COCKRELL. This is a very short bill, a local one, and there can be no possible objection to its passage. I shall not interpose any objection, but I want the Calendar to be called after this bill is passed, and then if there are any special local bills of this character, when we get toward the close of the Calendar hour they can be called up and passed by unanimous consent. But we must go to the Calendar after this bill is disposed of.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill indicated by the Senator from California?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The first amendment was, in section 1, line 7, after the word "reside," to strike out the remainder of the section, in the following words:

And that Santa Barbara, Ventura, Hueneme, Redondo, and Santa Monica shall be ports of delivery, and San Pedro a subport of entry and delivery, at which support a deputy collector of customs shall be stationed, who shall also be clothed with power to appraise merchandise for the district.

So as to make the section read:

That the customs-collection district of Wilmington, Cal., shall hereafter be designated and known as the district of Los Angeles, in which the city of Los Angeles shall be the port of entry, and at which place the collector of customs for said district shall reside.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, line 2, after the word "designate," to strike out "customs officers to" and insert "from time to time, places within said district at which customs officers may;" in line 3, after the word "stationed," to strike out "at each of said ports;" in line 5, after the word "perform," to insert "such," and in line 6, after the word "services," to strike out "whenever" and insert "as;" so as to make the section read:

Sec. 2. That the Secretary of the Treasury may designate from time to time, places within said district at which customs officers may be stationed, with authority to enter and clear vessels, receive duties, fees, and other moneys, and perform such other services as in his judgment the interests of such commerce may require.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 3, line 1, after the second word "the," to insert "first and;" and, in the same line, after the word "seventh," to strike out "section" and insert "sections;" so as to make the section read:

SEC. 3. That the provisions of the first and seventh sections of the act approved June 10, 1880, entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to the immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes," be, and the same are hereby, extended to the said port of Los Angeles.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LIQUOR TRAFFIC IN INDIAN TERRITORY.

Mr. COCKRELL. The Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Calendar being in order, the first bill will be announced.

Mr. WILSON. I desire to call attention to a mistake in the printing of the Calendar of to-day. I see that Senate bill 1988 has been placed under Rule IX.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. No, it was simply passed over without prejudice, remaining under Rule VIII.

Mr. WILSON. The print of the Calendar, however, indicates that it is under Rule IX; but that was not the order made.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If the Senator will look at the first page of the Calendar he will see that it remains under Rule VIII, and is not under Rule IX. It is subject to call.

Mr. WILSON. The understanding was that that bill was merely passed over until the next Calendar day. I spoke to the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] about it, and he says that was his understanding.

Mr. VOORHEES. It is still under Rule VIII.

Mr. WILSON. I ask that the bill may be now considered.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 1988) to amend sections 2139, 2140, and 2141 of the Revised Statutes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill has been read as in Committee of the Whole, and is open to amendment.

Mr. WILSON. I desire to offer a few amendments to the bill. In section 1, line 20, after the word "authority" I move to insert the words "in writing;" so as to read:

But it shall be a sufficient defense to any charge of introducing or attempting to introduce ardent spirits, ale, beer, wine, or intoxicating liquors into the Indian country that the acts charged were done under authority from the War Department, or any officer duly authorized in writing thereunto by the War Department.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON. In section 2, at the end of line 6, I move to insert the word "or," and to insert a comma after the word "person"; and in line 7, after the word "Indian" to insert "or other person;" so as to read:

That if any superintendent of Indian affairs, Indian agent, or subagent, or commanding officer of a military post has reason to suspect or is informed that any white person, Indian, or other person is about to introduce or has introduced any ardent spirits, ale, beer, wine, or intoxicating liquor or liquors of any kind into the Indian country in violation of law, such superintendent, agent, subagent, or commanding officer may cause the boats, stores, packages, wagons, sleds, and places of deposit of such person or Indian to be searched.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON. In section 3, line 5, after the word "manufacturing," I move to insert "or keeping for sale any;" so as to read:

Every person who shall, within the Indian country, set up or continue any distillery, brewery, or other establishment of whatever character for manufacturing or keeping for sale any ardent spirits, ale, beer, wine, or intoxicating liquor or liquors of any kind whatever, shall be liable to a penalty of $1,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON. I move to further amend section 3 by adding to the section the following:

The United States court for the Indian Territory shall have jurisdiction for the trial and punishment of all crimes and offenses committed in said Territory in violation of the provisions of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON. Those are the only amendments I have to offer.

Mr. MORGAN. I desire to call the attention of the Senator from Iowa to a fact. There are some eight, I think, small fractional tribes of Indians in the northeastern corner of the Indian Territory, their reservations bounded on the north by Kansas, on the east by Missouri, and on the south and west by the Cherokee possessions. The Committee on Indian Affairs is about to report a bill for the purpose of conferring full citizenship of the United States upon the people of those eight tribes, allotting them lands in accordance with their wishes, and organizing them into the county of Cayuga, to be placed under the jurisdiction of the Territory of Oklahoma.

I desire to suggest to the Senator from Iowa that he put some reservation or qualification in his bill, so that it would not apply to those Indians or to that country after they are brought into the Territory of Oklahoma, for the laws of the Territory of Oklahoma and the laws applicable also to citizens of the United States would apply in that country after it had been so incorporated in this Territorial government.

More than that, the committee, at the suggestion of those Indians, desire to place in that bill restrictions upon the power of the Territorial government of Oklahoma to admit liquor free or under license for sale. The committee desires the most stringent regulations for the prohibition of the sale of intoxicants within the county of Cayuga as it is proposed to be organized.

I do not know but that the bill the Senator is now supporting would have the effect of cutting off the legislation that is proposed for these particular fractional tribes of Indians in that country.

Mr. PLATT. It will take them out of the Indian country, will it not?

Mr. WILSON. The legislation the Senator says will be proposed would, as I understand his statement, take that country out of the Indian Territory?

Mr. MORGAN. Yes.

Mr. WILSON. Consequently the bill would not be operative therein; and if there should be any danger of that, it can be very easily provided for in the bill to which the Senator refers as one likely to be reported. But if the existing condition of affairs shall continue then there can be no question that this bill ought to go through as it is.

I shall certainly have no objection to making any such provision as the Senator suggests for the protection of those people if that county shall be added to the Territory of Oklahoma. I am only now endeavoring to provide for an existing state of affairs.

Mr. MORGAN. I suppose the Committee on Indian Affairs can put in cautionary provisions that will prevent the effect of having a double system of laws obtaining there upon the same questions, the Territorial law of Oklahoma and the law of the United States. The difficulty that suggested itself to my mind was that a different court, perhaps, might have the trial of the offense which would be committed under the statute here proposed, that the Territorial court would have the jurisdiction to try the offense in the one case, whereas the United States court for the Indian Territory would have the jurisdiction in the other.

Mr. WILSON. That would have the jurisdiction within the Indian Territory, but, as I understand the Senator, it is proposed to take part of the Territory out of that jurisdiction and place it within Oklahoma.

Mr. MORGAN. If the Indian Territory were a political organization with definite boundaries fixed in the statute that would be all well enough, and I suppose we can arrange it; but I wanted to call the Senator's attention to it, so that there might be no mistake about it.

Mr. WILSON. I shall have no objection to any arrangement that may be necessary to be made at the time.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was read.

Mr. CHANDLER. I suggest to the Senator from Iowa that the title ought to be a description of the subject-matter of the bill.

Mr. WILSON. I desire to amend the title by adding thereto the words "and for other purposes."

Mr. CHANDLER. That does not meet the suggestion I make. A bill the title of which says to amend such a section and such a section of the Revised Statutes conveys no idea whatever of the subject-matter of the statute, and I think that it ought to be specified.

Mr. WILSON. I have followed what has been the uniform custom in respect of the amendments of the sections of the Revised Statutes.

Mr. CHANDLER. I think the Senator is mistaken. I think that occasionally a bill passes which only specifies certain sections of the Revised Statutes to be amended, but it is more usual than otherwise to add the subject-matter to which the bill relates.

Mr. HALE. I do not know about the present rules, but the old rules of the Senate provided that where a bill was reported to amend a section or sections of the Revised Statutes, the subject-matter of the sections referred to should be stated, so that at a glance Senators and everybody else could see what was referred to. I agree with the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHAND-

Mr. CHANDLER. Do they tell us how much money it will take out of the Treasury?

Mr. DOLPH. No, they do not state the amount. I have stated to the Senate all I know about it.

Mr. PASCO. I wish to state that anyone with the most superficial knowledge on the subject must be aware that $240,000 is an inadequate estimate. There are twenty or twenty-five million acres of land that have been forfeited to the Government and an equal quantity has been offered for sale at $2.50 an acre. How much of it has been sold I do not know, but if only 10 per cent of it has been sold it will be ten times the amount the Senator from Oregon says was estimated in the letter which he speaks of as being before the committee in the last Congress.

We are entering upon a wide field, Mr. President. Nobody can begin to estimate the amount required, but certain it is that it must go up into the millions, and certain it is too that the money is already appropriated, for there will be nothing to do but to go to the Treasury and collect these demands when they are once established against the Government. The third section of the act, as I stated when I was on my feet before, already appropriates the amount that is necessary to carry the provisions of that act into effect, and we are making a large and indefinite appropriation; no man can tell how large. As the Senator from Oregon says, it will take weeks of labor in the Department perhaps to get the information which will enable us to proceed upon a solid and substantial foundation.

Mr. HISCOCK. Mr. President, I rise for the purpose of asking a question, which doubtless would be unnecessary to be asked by me if I had listened to all the debate. I should like to inquire of the chairman of the Committee on Public Lands what the clause means "or shall hereafter be canceled for conflict?"

Mr. DOLPH. That is in the old law. That is the language of the act of 1880. It means that where parties seek to enter lands and somebody contests the right to enter and claims that he has a better right to the lands, when one party is permitted to enter the land the money shall be paid back to the party who has been contesting for it.

Mr. HISCOCK. Right along in the same line the words occur "or where, from any cause, the entry has been erroneously allowed and can not be confirmed."

Mr. DOLPH. That is where the local land office has held that the party is entitled to the land, and when it appears before the Commissioner of the General Land Office it is found that the land was not subject to entry.

Mr. HISCOCK. Is that the language of the old law?

Mr. DOLPH. That is the old law; it is not new legislation at all. The only new portion is the provision for persons who have settled on railroad lands which have been afterwards forfeited, who have paid $2.50 an acre and have not got the road.

Mr. HISCOCK. Then, I understand, the law as it now is covers cases where there have been fraudulent entries which have been disallowed?

Mr. DOLPH. No; not fraudulent entries.

Mr. HISCOCK. Why not?

Mr. DOLPH. It is not a question of fraudulent entries.

Mr. HISCOCK. "Where, from any cause, the entry has been erroneously allowed."

Mr. DOLPH. It means errors different from fraud. It does not apply to cases held up in the Land Office.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, the Senator from Oregon, in speaking about the amount probably involved in this bill, spoke about the letter which was before the committee at the last session, which he thinks was from somebody about the Department. He does not know whether it was from the Commissioner or whom it was from. I have no disposition to dispute anything the Senator has said, but I had no recollection of any letter of the kind, nor has there ever been any before the present committee. I do not think that any member of that committee, however, was of the opinion that there is any probability that the amount would fall below half a million or a million dollars.

Now, the word "assigns" having been stricken out and "legal representatives" substituted, I presume it was the intention of the Senator from Colorado, and probably the legal effect of it would be to confine these payments to the original purchasers or to their heirs, administrators, or executors, as the case may be. If that be true it will reduce the amount very considerably; how much I do not know, but such I take to be the intention of the Senator from Colorado and the legal effect of the amendment that has been adopted.

Mr. TELLER. That is right.

Mr. BERRY. In my opinion in the Territory of Arizona alone, with the amount of lands that have been entered at $2.50 an acre and the lands afterwards forfeited by reason of the act forfeiting the lands that were granted to the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, the cost of this bill, if all the amounts were paid back for all those entries, would amount to far more than $200,000, to say nothing about forfeitures that have taken place all over the country, which include the large tract of land on the North Pacific Railroad. For a distance of 200 miles, from Wallula down to Portland, 20 miles on each side of the railroad, one-half of the lands were forfeited. So it is useless for any one to blind himself with the idea that the bill does not contain a larger appropriation than $200,000, or anything in the neighborhood of that amount.

Mr. DOLPH. Will the Senator allow me?

Mr. BERRY. Certainly.

Mr. DOLPH. Representative HERMANN of Oregon has just stepped into the Senate Chamber. The letter I have referred to was written to him, and he informs me that the amount estimated was $250,000, instead of $200,000. Mr. HERMANN is in my hearing.

Mr. BERRY. Although the Senator from Oregon was quite certain he could not be mistaken, I was not disposed to make any issue with him about the letter or to dispute it, but I do assert that whoever may have written the letter he certainly had but little knowledge of the large number of acres of lands that have been forfeited which were originally granted to railroads in case they should be built.

So this is an unlimited appropriation of an unlimited amount. The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHANDLER] thinks the principle is correct, but that the amount should govern it. If it was money that we owed or that we were legally or equitably bound to pay, then the amount ought not to enter into the consideration, because if it be a just or a legal or equitable obligation upon the part of the United States Government it ought to be paid without regard to the amount. But when it comes to an absolute gift, a gift of money to these parties that they can not claim upon any legal or equitable ground, and the Senator from New Hampshire is going to determine how much he is willing to give these people, then I think he is correct, and we ought to know something about the ability of this Government to give away the money that belongs to its citizens, and we ought not to go beyond its capacity.

When the Senator places it upon the ground that it is an obligation upon the Government, I think he could not have heard the statement made by the junior Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WYTHE], which made it so clear that there was no obligation, either legal or equitable, raised upon the General Government to refund this money, that I can not see how any one can misunderstand the situation and put it upon such ground. Upon the idea of the Senator from New Hampshire of a liberal grant of power in the Constitution, and that we can do anything we see proper, if he be correct we can give away the money; but I want the Senate to know when they undertake to give it that it will not be covered by any $200,000, or any sum that is anywhere near that, but that it will, in my opinion, run away up into the millions.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, I desire to call the attention of the Senator from Colorado to a point. On his motion the bill has been amended in a way which I think is just and right and proper, to pay the money back, if it is to be paid at all, only to the persons who bought from the Government. I agree with the propriety of that amendment, but I desire to call the attention of the Senator to this view of it: Suppose before the passage of the act of forfeiture and whilst it was still believed that the railroad would be built and the extra value attached to the land arising from that belief, the original purchaser sold to somebody else and got in the sale the increased price arising from that belief, I should like to know from the Senator would it not be just to cut that purchaser out of any refund under this bill?

Mr. TELLER. I have no doubt it would be just, but we can not provide for cases of that kind without a great deal of difficulty; and to attempt to do that would make the bill very cumbersome and very ineffective. If a man had sold out early and upon the theory that the railroad was going to be built, and the purchaser is the party who suffers, perhaps the purchaser ought to have the money, but we can not very well provide for such cases.

Mr. GEORGE. I do not desire to give the subpurchaser the money. I think the amendment of the Senator is right; it ought to be confined to the party who dealt with the Government; but as he admits now, in a case where the purchaser sold before the failure of the enterprise was known and he objects to my suggestion upon that point only upon the ground that it would be difficult to frame a bill in that view, I suggest to him that the bill might be amended so as to read somewhat in this way:

To the purchaser or entryman from the Government who had not sold his land prior to the date of the act of forfeiture.

It would not require a great deal of amendment. That much of it would confine the benefits of this measure to the persons who I think, if any, are entitled to it.

Mr. TELLER. I suppose that might be done, but I think the class of cases that would be reached by such an amendment would be very small. It does not seem to me that there can be so much money to be paid back under this bill as was suggested by the Senator from Arkansas; yet I admit we are here without very much information as to how much will be paid back under the bill if it should become a law. Of course the homestead people do not get anything because they had to pay the fees the same whether there was a railroad or whether there was not. So it is left entirely to the pre-emptors.

Mr. DOLPH. Those who commuted homesteads.

Mr. TELLER. Well, they become, within the proper meaning of the term, pre-emptors. They paid their money. Where parties lived the requisite number of years and entered as a homestead, they do not get anything under this bill.

Mr. TELLER. It would have been more satisfactory if the committee could have brought us exact facts. This bill was before the Committee on Public Lands when I was a member of it, but I do not myself recollect anything about the amount involved in the bill. I voted for it, I think. It seemed to me to be an act of justice to the people who went into these wild regions and took land upon the supposition that a railroad was to be built, that they should not pay more than other people paid.

It is true that the money went into the Treasury and was probably expended, and it is true, technically speaking, that it is the money of the Government. There is no question about that; but it is nevertheless true that in a section of the country people have paid $2.50 an acre upon the theory that they were receiving special benefits, upon the theory that the Government had parted with one-half of the land in that section and thereby decreased its revenue one-half. They did not receive any special benefits. The Government did not part with the land. It did not decrease its revenue from that source one-half.

The amount, if it be a million dollars, as suggested by the Senator from Oregon, is not of any great consequence to us, if it is a proper and an equitable thing that we should pay it back. It strikes me that it is an unfair thing for the Government to have induced these people to go in there and pay a double price for the land, and then keep their money.

Mr. President, I know something about what it costs to settle up a new country. I know something of the class of men who are to be paid back. I wanted the bill confined to the men who had paid the money or their heirs or legal representatives.

I agree with the Senator from Arkansas that it should not be a matter of speculation. If it is not a matter of sufficient consequence for the people who paid the money or their heirs or legal representatives, it will not be called for; while, on the other hand, if an assignee might get it, somebody would go to work and get assignments from everybody and make it a business, and probably the Government might pay out money in large amounts that the settler himself would get very little or no benefit from.

We have had some laws passed for the benefit of settlers that have never inured to their benefit, but under this bill, if it shall become a law, the benefit will be confined to those who are entitled to it.

I said, Mr. President, I knew something about what it costs to settle a new country. Ninety-nine per cent of the men who go into a new country are poor, and what is more, many of them remain poor for many years. If they do not remain poor, if they get rich, the years of privation, the years of hardship, the years of toil, the years that they are deprived of the advantages of old and settled communities are illy compensated by the payment back to them of $200 a quarter section.

If the history of the West could be written with a pen of truth, and if we could see the hardship, the poverty, the want of justice, and the lack of opportunities that those people have gone through, the exertions that they have made to make a home, the efforts they have made to bring their children within the civilizing influences pervading the other sections of the country, there is not a man here nor anywhere who would begrudge to those settlers the payment back of the $200 which they would not have paid but for a mistake of the Government of the United States and not a mistake of theirs. They believed that the road would be built, because the Government said it would be built. I admit there was no guaranty that the road would be built. There is no legal obligation to pay back the money, but the statutes are full of this kind of acts, recognizing an equitable right on the part of people to call upon the Government to have money that they had paid under a mistake or under an error refunded to them.

It does not seem to me that the amount named is sufficiently large. A million or two million dollars might be paid and this country is not to be bankrupted. It is said that we have not got much money in the Treasury. It is said that it has run down, I believe, so that there are only $125,000,000 of gold in the Treasury that is absolutely free. There is some other money, Mr. President. Nobody need disturb himself about the inability of the Government of the United States to pay all the obligations, equitable and legal, that it may have had or that it may assume.

This bill has passed the Senate once. It is in accordance with other legislation exactly the same kind, where we have rectified mistakes, and if it is not a mistake it brings it so closely as to say it is an obligation, an equitable obligation on the part of the Government to put these people where they would have been but for the legislation which induced them to pay twice what the Government has all through its history exacted from the settlers.

Mr. BERRY. Will the Senator from Colorado allow me to make a correction? I do not think a bill like this passed the Senate. The Senator stated that it had.

Mr. TELLER. I thought the bill had passed the Senate. It received the favorable action of the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. BERRY. That is correct.

Mr. TELLER. My recollection was that it had passed the Senate, but it does not make any difference whether it did or not.

Mr. STEWART. If the Senator will allow me in this connection, he remarked that we proposed to put the settlers back in a better position than otherwise they would be in. This bill does not secure that purpose entirely, because the quantity of land that they were allowed to take was reduced one-half. They were allowed to take only 80 acres; it was reduced one-half; and even if the bill passes they would not be in as good condition as they would have been if nothing had been done.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, I do not desire to debate this question or continue the controversy over it. It is a matter that it seems to me is equitable, and I propose to vote for the bill.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. President, I have been necessarily detained from the Senate Chamber. I did not know that this measure was coming up to-day, and I shall not detain the Senate long now. I have not heard what has been said on the different sides of the question, except what has been stated by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER]. I simply rose to make an indorsement most emphatically of what he has said so much better than I could say in favor of the passage of this bill.

I think what amounts to a little less than a fraud has been perpetrated by the Government of the United States in holding out to the parties in the limits of railroad grants the inducement that a railroad would be constructed and that therefore they could afford to pay, in view of that fact, just double what all other pre-emptors are compelled to pay under the general laws of the United States. I believe for that reason, and in view of the fact that no railroad has been built the amount that they have paid over and above what all others have paid should be refunded to them.

I had the honor to introduce a bill of this character five or six years ago. It was referred to the Committee on Public Lands of the Senate, and at that time I addressed a letter to the then Secretary of the Interior, Secretary Lamar, inclosing the bill and calling upon him for his recommendation as to whether, in his judgment as Secretary of the Interior, such a bill ought to be passed, premising my letter, as I did, by calling attention to the fact that Congress had already legislated upon the subject to the effect that where parties had settled on public lands believing them to be within the limits of a grant and it turned out subsequently by the readjustment of the lines that they were thrown outside, they should be provided for, and that the $1.25 an acre paid over and above the amount that settlers generally are called upon to pay should be refunded to them. I received an answer from Secretary Lamar, which I regret very much to say I have not here, to the effect that he saw no reason in the world—that was the substance of it—why the bill should not become a law. I therefore hope that this bill will be passed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there be no further amendments in Committee of the Whole the bill will be reported to the Senate.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Shall the bill pass?

Mr. BERRY. On that I ask for yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. HOAR. I rose to move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. DOLPH and Mr. STEWART. Let us take the vote first.

Mr. HOAR. I have some doubt about the presence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The roll will be called on the passage of the bill.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROCTOR]. I do not see him present, and I therefore withhold my vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FAULKNER, when his name was called). The present occupant of the chair is paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY].

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] upon all questions. He is confined to his home by illness. If he were here, I should vote "nay." I do not know how the Senator from Vermont would vote.

Mr. McMILLAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. VANCE].

Mr. MORGAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. DAWES]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CASEY]. In his absence I withhold my vote. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. PLATT (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]. As he is absent from the Chamber I withhold my vote.

Mr. RANSOM (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. TELLER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Texas [Mr. CHILTON]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. WILSON. I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT], and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. BUTLER. I am paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON]. If he were present, I should vote "nay." I do not know how he would vote.

Mr. CAREY. I am paired with the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] on this question. If he were present, he would "nay." If I were at liberty to vote, I should vote "yea."

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I am paired with the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER]. Were he present, I should vote "yea."

Mr. BUTLER. I should like to have the attention of the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY]. I was under the impression that he is paired with my colleague [Mr. IRBY] on all questions.

Mr. CAREY. I am paired with the Senator's colleague on political questions. Is this considered a political question?

Mr. BUTLER. I do not know that it is a political question, but I presume my colleague relied on his pair with the Senator from Wyoming. He is not present.

Mr. CAREY. I will state the understanding I had with the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. IRBY]. He told me not to decline to vote on anything that was not a political question, and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] requested me to pair with him, which I did.

Mr. BUTLER. I suppose that will be all right. The Senator from Florida [Mr. PASCO] announced his pair with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CASEY]; and if agreeable I will transfer his pair with the Senator from North Dakota to my colleague [Mr. IRBY], so that the Senator from Florida will be allowed to vote. That being the understanding, the Senator from Florida, I presume will be allowed to vote by transferring his pair.

Mr. PASCO. With that understanding of the transfer of my pair, I vote "nay."

Mr. TELLER. Has a quorum voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A quorum has not yet voted.

Mr. BUTLER. On this question, as there is no quorum, and in order to make a quorum, the Senator from Michigan [Mr. McMILLAN] can transfer his pair with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. VANCE] to the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON]. That will enable both of us to vote, if it will be agreeable.

Mr. McMILLAN. Very well.

Mr. BUTLER. I vote "nay."

Mr. McMILLAN. I vote "yea."

Mr. WHITE. Before the result is announced, I desire to state that my colleague [Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana] is paired with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN].

Mr. HARRIS. Has a quorum voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It has not.

Mr. HARRIS. I suggest to the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT] that in order that we make a quorum we transfer our pairs. He is paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]; I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL]; and if it will suit the Senator from Connecticut we can transfer our pairs and both vote.

Mr. PLATT. Under the circumstances of my pair I prefer not to transfer it.

Mr. HARRIS. All right.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I desire to vote to make a quorum. I vote "yea."

Mr. HOAR. I desire to state to the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS] that this does not appear to be a political question, and it is quite certain if it is, one vote will make no difference. I think the whole Senate would agree that the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] would desire that the Senator from Tennessee should vote for the sake of making a quorum. I hope there will be a quorum voting, because it is necessary to have a brief executive session, and if there is no quorum that can not be had. I hope the Senator from Tennessee will feel at liberty to vote.

Mr. HARRIS. I have never voted to make a quorum when I have been paired with a Senator and I could not state how he would vote. Other Senators, at least some other Senators, do. I hardly think it a proper thing to do, and certainly it is a thing I shall not do unless some one can assure me as to how the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] would vote.

Mr. TELLER. I ask that the result be announced. There is no voting being done.

Mr. GRAY (after having voted in the negative). Mr. President, I inquire whether the Senator from Illinois [Mr. CULLOM] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He has not voted.

Mr. GRAY. I have a general pair with the Senator from Illinois. I withdraw my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 20, nays 21; as follows:

YEAS—20.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, March 21, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by Rabbi EMIL C. HIRSCH, of Chicago, Ill.

The Journal of the proceedings of Saturday last was read and approved.

PROTECTION OF LIVES OF MINERS IN THE TERRITORIES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an estimate of appropriation submitted by the Secretary of the Interior for the purpose of carrying into effect the act of March 3, 1891, entitled "An act for the protection of lives of miners in the Territories," which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

DISBURSEMENTS FOR AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, submitting a report of the disbursements which have been made in all the States and Territories under the provisions of an act approved August 30, 1890, entitled "An act to apply a portion of the proceeds of the public lands to the more complete endowment and support of the colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts, under the provisions of an act of Congress approved July 2, 1862," which was referred to the Committee on Education, and ordered to be printed.

UNIFORMS AND OFFICIAL TITLES OF ARMY OFFICERS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a letter from the Major-General commanding the Army, together with a memorial signed by many prominent officers of the Army, urging the repeal of section 16, chapter 294, of the act approved July 15, 1870, which section provides that "no officer shall be entitled to wear while on duty any uniform other than that of his actual rank on account of having been breveted; nor shall he be addressed in orders or official communications by any title other than that of his actual rank," which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

FRENCH SPOILIATION CLAIMS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the French Spoliation claims arising out of the seizure of the vessel Snow Lydia, Eleazer Washburn, master; which was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

FRANK RHODES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of Frank Rhodes vs. The United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

CHARLES V. NEIDLINGER.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of Charles V. Neidlinger vs. The United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

F. E. HARDWICK.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of F. E. Hardwick vs. The United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

PORT OF DELIVERY AT DES MOINES, IOWA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (S. 808), to establish a port of delivery at Des Moines, Iowa.

Mr. HULL. I ask unanimous consent that this bill be acted on now. The House Committee on Commerce has unanimously recommended the passage of a bill similar to this, with one clause stricken out.

THE SPEAKER. The Chair will direct that the bill be read.
Mr. McMILLIN. I hope the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HULL] will allow this bill to lie over and come up later. There is a matter which we wish to get before the House this morning—the finishing up of an appropriation bill.

Mr. HULL. There is no objection to the gentleman's suggestion; let this matter lie over until to-morrow.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the bill will be retained on the Speaker's table.

There was no objection.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER laid before the House Senate bills of the following titles; which were severally read a first and second time and referred as indicated:

A bill (S. 214) making appropriation for the improvement of the military reservation known as Fort Walla Walla, in the State of Washington—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

A bill (S. 390) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to Frank Rother $225 due him for services as route agent—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 479) for the relief of Mrs. E. Trask—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 521) granting to the State of Wyoming certain lands in the Fort D. A. Russell military reservation for agricultural fair and industrial exposition grounds, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

A bill (S. 567) for the relief of Paul McCormick—to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (S. 634) to authorize and direct the Secretary of War to investigate the claim made for fuel alleged to have been taken and used by the United States Army during the war from the property in Chattanooga known as "Cameron Hill," and to provide for the payment thereof—to the Committee on War Claims.

A bill (S. 985) to provide for the enlargement of the military wams. I have canvassed in political campaigns when excitement filled what we call wigwams, temporary structures for political meetings. Certainly, Mr. President, the grave business of the United States of America could not be transacted in one of them with a multitude around shouting praises and peans to political favorites as they listen to their voices through the windows that alone screen them from the outside public. In other words, if I am correct, the structure of this building is a necessity; the form in which it was made is made a necessity by the exigencies of government and by the principles of human nature. If it carries with it certain deprivations: if it carries with it certain trials, if it carries with it certain personal sacrifices, they have to be endured. I do not expect in here, nor could any man expect, the sweet air of the prairies to be wafted to our olfactories over beds of flowers. We can not expect that. We are not in the open air. We are here for a duty, and to my mind this building is as well constructed for the discharge of the duties intrusted to our hands as is possible.

A word more as to the ventilation of this building. I have been in this Capitol many years, in both ends of it, and I have looked at the great machinery that gathers up with a mighty suction the outside atmosphere and hurls it in tremendous volumes through these hallways, through these chambers, and through these galleries, and I can not for the life of me conceive a want of air. As I say, it may not be as fresh as from a bed of violets, but still it is fresh air.

The best evidence of that is that I have known gentlemen here—and gentlemen with no great physical superiority—stand upon this floor three and four hours at a time, and resume the next day with unimpaired lung vigor. That can not be done where there is a poisoned atmosphere. Let any gentleman rise in a hall where the atmosphere is poisonous and he will sink down as if asphyxiated. Gentlemen will speak with as much ease here as in the average building wherever you go to make addresses throughout the United States. There is hardly a State from the north end of New England to the Gulf of Mexico in which I have not addressed the people, and I have found as little difficulty in speaking with readiness and with a reasonable amount of voice in this building as anywhere else in the world.

Mr. President, we are prone to pessimistic views. Overwork, tired, late hours, resulting in a headache and disordered stomach, dizzy and weary, we look around for some object to vent our spleen upon, and commence abusing this beautiful Hall in which we stand. I have had my periods of ill health as well as others; I am thankful to my Father in heaven that I feel that I am improving day by day, but at the worst and lowest ebb I never thought that I was killed because I breathed the air of the Senate of the United States.

I would not have risen at all, Mr. President, but that I have a kind and tender affection for the memory of Thomas C. Walter and his family, and whatever faults there may be here, I think they are but light and rest lightly on his grave. They should not rest there at all.

I desire the adoption of the resolution of the Senator from South Carolina. Let sanitary engineering go on here—that is the proper word in connection with examining the ventilation of the building—let sanitary engineers go to work here and see what is necessary, if anything is necessary. Sanitary engineering is an old science. It antedates the Christian era a thousand years and goes back to the architecture of Rome; it examined cellars and foundations there, and it is well known to experienced architects. Let that be done under the resolution of the Senator from South Carolina, and we shall all be benefited by the knowledge which will be obtained. This much I felt I ought to say.

Mr. BUTLER. One moment. I shall not take up any time of the Senate, Mr. President, but my distinguished friend from Indiana has certainly set up a man of straw to knock him down if he referred to anything that fell from me, because I have not made the slightest reflection upon the architects of the Capitol, past or present.

Mr. VOORHEES. No, you have not.

Mr. BUTLER. I have always had great admiration for the character of this building, but I can hear on all sides, almost every day of my life, from Senators and employes of this body that there is some defect in the ventilation. What that is I confess I do not know.

As I said before, I have made no reflections upon the present Architect of the Capitol, but it certainly is entirely competent for the Senate of the United States, where millions and millions—I do not believe I exaggerate when I say millions and millions of dollars have been expended in the construction of additions to this Capitol—to have that matter investigated and improved upon, if possible. The Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] says that we have in the terrace lovely, charming, beautiful rooms. I trust that the architects will so report; nobody will be more gratified than myself if that be true; but he will excuse me for saying that I think perhaps I might venture to compare my judgment with his as to what constitutes an attractive and habitable room, and I am quite sure that a very large number of the rooms are uninhabitable, and I do not think as at present constructed they will ever be habitable either for human beings or for storage purposes. I do not believe that a frog could live in some of them in their present condition. A great deal of money has been spent there. I simply want these architects and experts to go and examine and report to the Senate upon the condition of the committee rooms in the terrace, and upon the condition of the tunnel through which the air is pumped into this Chamber, and let them say whether its condition can be improved or not. If it can be, I think it is the duty of the Senate to have that improvement made. If it can not be, I suppose I can endure the defective ventilation as well as any Senator here; but I made no reflection upon anybody and did not intend to make any.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The motion made by the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] to refer the resolution to the Committee on Rules will be considered as agreed to if there be no objection.

Mr. BUTLER. I hope that will not be done.

Mr. BLACKBURN. As the Committee on Rules is charged with the custody of this wing of the Capitol building, I can not for my life see why this resolution should not go to that committee for consideration. If every Senator is going to exercise his pleasure and get up here every morning and offer resolutions imposing investigations and inquiries looking to improvements that are exclusively within the hands of that committee without its being allowed or furnished an opportunity to pass upon the question, there is no end to the trouble.

I have no objection to the adoption of the resolution of the Senator from South Carolina; I do not think there is anything in it; I think it is another scare like many that we have had before it; means nothing, and nothing will come of it in my judgment; but you have a committee of this Chamber charged with the custody and conduct of the business that pertains to this wing of the Capitol. Now, if the Senator wants anything done in that direction, I fail to understand why he objects to the committee that is charged with this duty having an opportunity to pass upon it.

Mr. BUTLER. If the Senator will pardon me for saying, not as usual, but certainly this morning—if he will excuse me for a little slang—I think he has gone off on halfcock entirely.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I do not need to say it of the Senator from South Carolina, because the Senate reads that in his resolution.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator certainly has not considered what has been done. The resolution as originally drafted referred the matter to the Committee on Rules, but I yielded to the suggestion of the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] to send it to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, so that what the Senator from Kentucky says about resolutions being introduced every morning has no application to me.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Except as to this morning.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator is off again. Yesterday morning I introduced a resolution. I do not generally burden the Senate with many resolutions, but this seemed an important matter, and I can see no earthly reason for its going to the Committee on Rules. The Senate can judge of the advisability of passing the resolution or not. If they do not choose to pass it, let them vote it down. If it goes to the Committee on Rules, the chances are it will be pigeon-holed.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I should be glad if the Senator from South Carolina would make good the imputation he has put upon that committee by referring to a single resolution in all the history of this Senate Chamber wherein the Committee on Rules has pigeon-holed anything.

Mr. BUTLER. Perhaps they want to establish a precedent in this resolution, Mr. President.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. President, if there was an excuse for the establishment of a precedent, I think it would be found in this very resolution that the Senator offers.

I have no objection to any investigation or any inquiry, but I do insist that it should be conducted orderly and with due deference and respect to this Chamber and its organization; and for that reason I moved to refer what to my mind is a very trivial suggestion of an inquiry that has wasted more time of the Senate than the results would ever warrant to the Committee on Rules, where the resolution properly belongs.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, as I am responsible for the change in the resolution of the Senator from South Carolina, I want to state very frankly why I made the suggestion. It is not a matter of life or death or of great parliamentary importance, but still it is well enough to understand exactly what we are doing about this matter. I have always thought the jurisdiction of the Committee on Rules extended to the management of the Senate wing of the Capitol, and the jurisdiction of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds went to a change, if any was necessary, in the structure of the building. The Committee on Rules certainly has not jurisdiction of public buildings and grounds. If it has, then we have one committee too many and the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds ought to be struck from the roll of committees. In the absence of the chairman of that committee, I made this suggestion. This is a question as to changing or as to examining into the structure of the building to find what defects it has, if any. It is not a question of rules governing the Senate. Therefore, I think the suggestion was pertinent and proper that the change should be made. It is immaterial to me, but in the absence of the chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds I felt it my duty to make that suggestion.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Kentucky that the resolution as modified be referred to the Committee on Rules [putting the question]. The Chair is unable to decide.

Mr. HAWLEY. Mr. President, I think the motion is not understood.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The motion made by the Senator from Kentucky is to refer the resolution as modified to the Committee on Rules. The Chair will put the question again.

The motion was not agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question now is on agreeing to the resolution as modified.

The resolution as modified was agreed to.

WASHINGTON AND GEORGETOWN RAILROAD COMPANY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed, and the Calendar under Rule VII is in order.

Mr. McMILLAN. I ask unanimous consent to take up Order of Business 295, Senate bill 2045, to amend the act incorporating the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported from the Committee on the District of Columbia with amendments.

The first amendment was to insert at the end of the bill the following proviso:

Provided, That the terminal points hereby authorized shall be located under the direction of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, so as not to interfere with access to the said Aqueduct bridge.

So as to read:

That the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company is hereby authorized and required to change its tracks as follows: Commencing at M and High streets, in the city of Georgetown; thence west along M street to the Aqueduct bridge; Provided, That the terminal points hereby authorized shall be located under the direction of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, so as not to interfere with access to the said Aqueduct bridge.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, to add the following as a new section:

SEC. 2. That the changes hereby authorized and required shall be made, and cars shall be operated on the extension of the line, by December 1, 1892, and during the laying of said tracks the amount of street to be opened at any one time, and the closing of any cross streets, shall be subject to the orders of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. Any damages to or changes in any underground conduits, made necessary by reason of the construction of the road, shall be made at the expense of the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BRIDGE ACROSS ROCK CREEK.

Mr. McMILLAN. Mr. President, in the same connection I should like to call up Calendar No. 285, Senate bill 2045. It is a short bill and relates to the same road.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title of the bill will be read.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 2045) to provide for the rebuilding of the bridge across Rock Creek at M street northwest in the District of Columbia.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

By unanimous consent the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported from the Committee on the District of Columbia with an amendment, in section 1, line 6, after the word "rebuilt," to insert "of stone or iron," so as to make the section read:

That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be, and they are hereby, authorized and directed to erect a bridge across Rock Creek at M street in the District of Columbia, of the material of stone or iron in such manner that the bridge shall be substantially a part of the street as to width, paving, and sidewalks; and the sum of $10,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, which said sum shall be available immediately upon the passage of this act, for the rebuilding of said bridge and such contingencies as the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall deem necessary. Provided, That one-half of the expense incurred under this act shall be charged to the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company and collected from said company in the same manner as the cost of laying down pavements, sewers, and other works, or repairing the same, lying between the exterior rails of the tracks of street railways, and for a distance of 2 feet from and exterior to such tracks or tracks on each side thereof, are collectible under the provisions of section 5 of the act entitled "An act providing a permanent form of government for the District of Columbia, approved June 11, 1878."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

OLD CUSTOM-HOUSE AND POST-OFFICE IN WILMINGTON, DEL.

Mr. HIGGINS. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of Calendar No. 423, Senate bill 2498, to authorize the sale of the old custom-house and post-office in Wilmington, Del. It is a short bill.

Mr. PERKINS. I hope the Senator from Delaware will permit us to finish the bill that we had almost completed yesterday and that stands first in order this morning. I think we can dispose of that in a minute.

Mr. HIGGINS. This will not take long.

Mr. PERKINS. But there may be others who will be asking for the same privilege.

Mr. HIGGINS. I hope the Senator will allow the bill I have referred to be considered.

Mr. PERKINS. Very well; I yield to the Senator from Delaware, and afterwards I will yield to the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES].

By unanimous consent, the bill (S. 2498) to authorize the sale of the old custom-house and post-office in Wilmington, Del., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with an amendment, in line 6, after the words "States in," to strike out "said city" and insert "the city of Wilmington, D. C.," so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized, whenever in his judgment the public interest will admit, to sell and convey the parcel of property of the United States in the city of Wilmington, Delaware, occupied as a public building, with the site thereof, and to apply the net proceeds of said sale to the erection of the new public building now in course of construction, and on the site and between Supply street and Orange street, in said city, to the limit of one-half of the net proceeds of said sale, and he is authorized to contract with the Secretary of the Treasury to occupy the same at a yearly rental, not exceeding 6 per cent upon the sum for which the same is sold, until the completion of said new building, after first deducting the expenses of said sale and the amount of such rent, which is hereby authorized to be paid out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS COOPER.

Mr. PERKINS. I now yield to the Senator from Indiana.

Mr. VOORHEES. I am obliged to the Senator from Kansas for his courtesy. I ask the Senate to consider Order of Business 422. I will simply say that it is a pension for a very old man, who is in a state of destitution or I would not interfere with the order of business.

By unanimous consent the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 323) granting a pension to Thomas Cooper. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Thomas Cooper.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WEST VIRGINIA DIRECT TAX.

Mr. FAULKNER. As the unfinished business which will come up at 2 o'clock is the direct tax joint resolution (S. R. 9), and as the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MERRILL] is still to come, well to attend the Senate, I will ask unanimous consent that it be fixed as the unfinished business for Tuesday next at 2 o'clock. By that time we are in hopes that he will be able to attend the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A joint resolution (S. R. 9) to direct the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the Governor of the State of West Virginia the sum appropriated by the act of Congress entitled "An act to credit and pay to the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia all moneys collected under the direct tax levied by the act of Congress approved August 5, 1861."

propriated, to enable the Secretary of the Interior to purchase certain lands and improvements for the use and benefit of said Mission Indians, as approved by said Secretary and the President, and to be applied to such purposes in accordance with the said report of said Mission Indian Commissioners as the same has been approved by the President.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

SETTLERS ON PUBLIC LANDS.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which is Senate bill 622.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 622) to amend an act entitled "An act for the relief of certain settlers on the public lands, and to provide for the repayment of certain fees, purchase money, and commissions paid on void entries of public lands."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the passage of the bill, on which the yeas and nays have been ordered. Is the Senate ready for the question?

Mr. HAWLEY. Mr. President, I voted against the bill yesterday because I had not received sufficient information in regard to it. We had very little information concerning the sum that would possibly be required to discharge the obligation referred to. One estimate of the General Land Office was, I think, $260,000. A subsequent estimate, just received to-day, says it may be a million and a half. The judgment of those who know best about it is that perhaps it will take a million; a million and a half will hardly be reached. I still have some hesitation about voting for this bill, but the equity of the purpose it seeks to attain it seems to me is unquestionable, and I shall make no further opposition to it.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BATE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Washington [Mr. ALLEN]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. FAULKNER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY].

Mr. GIBSON of Maryland (when his name was called). I am paired with the senior Senator from Michigan [Mr. STOCKBRIDGE]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HARRIS in the chair, when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL].

Mr. TELLER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. CHILTON]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. VOORHEES (when his name was called). On this question I am paired with the Senator from Nevada [Mr. STEWART]. If he were here I should vote "nay."

Mr. WARREN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON].

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Montana [Mr. POWER]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. WOLCOTT (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. KENNA], but I transfer that pair to the Senator from California [Mr. STANFORD] and will vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. McPHERSON. I am told by Senators about me that the Senator from Delaware [Mr. HIGGINS] with whom I am paired would vote the same as I do upon this question, and I therefore vote "nay."

Mr. BLACKBURN. I inquire whether the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He is not recorded.

Mr. PADDOCK. The Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON] has not voted. He is confined to his house by illness.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I am paired with that Senator. Were he present I should vote "nay."

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana (after having voted in the negative). I inquire if the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He has not voted.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. Then I withdraw my vote. I am paired with that Senator.

Mr. SHERMAN. I inquire if the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. CARLISLE] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He has not voted.

Mr. SHERMAN. I will not vote, then, as I am paired with that Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senator chooses to transfer his pair, the present occupant of the chair will transfer his pair with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] to the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. CARLISLE], and that will enable the Senator from Ohio and the occupant of the chair to vote.

Mr. SHERMAN. I do not know how the Senator from Kentucky would vote, and under the circumstances I prefer not to vote.

Mr. DANIEL. I inquire whether the Senator from Washington [Mr. SQUIRE] has voted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He is not recorded.

Mr. DANIEL. Then I withhold my vote, as I am paired with him.

Mr. FELTON. I am paired with the Senator from Ohio [Mr. BRICE], who is not present. If he were here, I should vote "yea."

Mr. CAREY. I am paired with the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. IRBY] on political questions. This seems to be a political question. I now transfer that pair to the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CASEY], and that will release the Senator from Florida [Mr. PASCO] and enable him to vote. I vote "yea."

Mr. PASCO. Under that arrangement of transfer of pairs I vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 21, nays 22; as follows:

YEAS—21.
Allison.	Dubois.	McMillan.	Proctor.
Carry.	Frye.	Mitchell.	Sawyer.
Chandler.	Gallinger.	Paddock.	Shoup.
Davis.	Hansbrough.	Perkins.	Stockbridge.

So the bill was passed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. DAWES. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. DOLPH. Mr. President, I hope the Senator from Massachusetts will let the special orders fixed for to-day be taken up. The fixing of the time for the consideration of those bills was delayed a long while on account of the necessary absence of the senior Senator from Louisiana [Mr. GIBSON], who is now here, and they have been fixed for a hearing this afternoon and everybody is ready. The bills that are fixed as special orders for to-day were all carefully considered, after hearing witnesses, by the Committee on Commerce, and are unanimously reported. I do not think they will lead to any discussion. I think all of them may be disposed of in half an hour or an hour. I beg the Senator from Massachusetts to let them come up and be acted on.

Mr. DAWES. I will not object to their coming up if they do not cause any debate.

Mr. DOLPH. Let them be taken up with that understanding. Mr. DAWES. If the Senator will withdraw the bills in case they cause debate, I shall not object.

Mr. DOLPH. I would not say if anybody asked for an explanation that the bills might not be explained, but if they bring about any extended discussion, I shall not ask the Senator from Massachusetts to yield.

Mr. DAWES. It is very evident that the appropriations bill should be considered.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. I can say to the Senator from Massachusetts that these bills have been very fully discussed in committee, and I do not believe that they will lead to any discussion whatever on the floor of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Massachusetts withdraw his motion?

Mr. DAWES. I will withdraw the motion for half an hour.

Mr. DOLPH. I will state also that the chairman of the Committee on Commerce [Mr. FRYE] has suggested that the bills ought to receive early consideration in order to go to the House of Representatives before the House acts on the river and harbor bill.

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. The title of the first special order will be stated.

The bill (S. 2160) to improve the navigation and to afford ease and safety to the trade and commerce of the Mississippi River, and to prevent destructive floods, with an appropriation for the same, was announced as the first special order, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider it.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The first amendment was, in section 1, line 3, before the word "dollars," to strike out "sixteen millions of" and insert "fifteen million;" so as to read:

That the sum of $15,000,000 be, and the same is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the improvement of the Mississippi River.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, line 6, before the word "dollars," to strike out "millions of" and insert "million;" so as to read:

Whereof $10,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be expended, under the direction of the Secretary of War, in accordance with such plans, specifications, and recommendations of the Mississippi River Commission as may be approved by the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, line 11, after the word "Army," to strike out "to build, repair, and extend the levees and dikes and other works on the Mississippi River" and insert "for the general improvement of the river, for the building of levees, and for surveys;" so as to read:

As may be approved by the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army for the general improvement of the river, for the building of levees, and for surveys, from the head of the passes near its mouth, to the mouth of the Ohio River, and for the payment of the expenses and salaries of the Mississippi River Commission.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, line 18, before the word "million," to strike out "three" and insert "two;" and after the word "million," to strike out "three hundred and thirty-three thousand;" so as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That not more than $2,000,000 shall be expended during any one year.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, line 19, after the word "year," to strike out the additional proviso in the following words:

And provided further, That the amount herein appropriated shall be expended for the purposes indicated only so long as the States and the local authorities therein shall continue the taxation and contributions for levee improvement on the Mississippi River now provided for and made under the laws of said States, and no part of this appropriation shall be used for the purchase of sites for levees or the payment of alleged damages from the construction of the same.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, line 2, before the word "dollars," to strike out "sixteen millions of" and insert "fifteen million;" and in line 4, before the word "dollars," to strike out "six millions of" and insert "five million;" so as to read:

That out of the aforesaid sum of $15,000,000 herein appropriated for the improvement of the Mississippi River $5,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War in accordance with such plans, specifications, and recommendations as may be approved by the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army, to complete the improvement of the Mississippi River from the mouth of the Ohio to the mouth of the Illinois River.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, line 11, before the word "dollars," to strike out "two millions of" and insert "one million;" so as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That not more than $1,000,000 shall be expended during any one year.

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. The bill is in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment.

Mr. TELLER. I wish to inquire if there is a report with the bill.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. There is no printed report.

Mr. TELLER. I should like to have the chairman of the committee or whoever reported the bill give us some little information on the subject. The bill itself does not contain a great deal.

Mr. FRYE. The bill was reported by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. GIBSON]. The Senator from Colorado desires some information touching the bill from the Senator who reported it.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. Mr. President, under the arrangement with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. DAWES] there is very brief time allowed for the consideration of this bill, but I will state to the Senate that the bill appropriates $2,000,000 for the Lower Mississippi and $1,000,000 from Cairo to the mouth of the Illinois River; and under the amendment to be offered by the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON] $750,000 from the Illinois River up to St. Paul, to be expended annually for five years.

The plan of the improvement of the river has been thoroughly examined by the members of the Committee on Commerce, and has at several sessions of Congress been approved by the Congress of the United States. The plan for the improvement of the Lower Mississippi River is that which was adopted by Eads at the mouth of the river. It was ascertained by the engineers that there were six great reaches or stretches of sand filling the Lower Mississippi River at certain intervals 250 or 300 miles apart. These great reaches of sand were from 28 to 30 miles in length each. They were caused by the deposits of sand coming down from the affluents of the Mississippi River into this great trunk line from Cairo to the sea, one of which was located at the mouth of the river where the current came in contact with the tide of the gulf.

The plan adopted by the Commission which was organized in 1879 was, as I said a moment ago, at these reaches where the river is generally 10,000 feet wide, while its normal width is only 3,000 feet wide, to insert false banks along through these wide and shallow lakes by a system of jetties, which find a place there on these sand bars when the river is low. Then when the river rises and overflows it forms a compact mass in rear of them and they become ultimately embankments for the river so as to hold the water in these narrow channels, the effect of which is to scour them out and to give deep water.

In order to secure the greater velocity of the river they place levees or dikes or jetties, as you may call them, on the banks of the river so as to hold the river in its channel in the flood state and thus to acquire the necessary force to carry the sediment, the sand, the detritus that comes into this trunk line, which is 1,000 miles long and into which empty forty-three great rivers, embracing navigation for 16,000 miles, draining the valley from the Allegheny to the Rocky Mountains, to the Gulf of Mexico. You can imagine what a vast quantity of sand comes into this trunk line from all the mountain slopes. Every village, every plow furrow, every cultivated field, tends to bring in more and more of this vast quantity of sand into this great trunk line from Cairo to the mouth.

These sand bars were formed on account of the deposits made in them by the slackening of the current of the river by crevasses and the plan of the engineer is, as I said, to confine the volume of water to a narrow channel so that it may get the benefit of the velocity to scour it out. That is the whole plan which was adopted by Mr. Eads at the mouth of the river. There we had a sand bar in one of the mouths of the Mississippi River where there were only 8 feet of water. I myself made a survey of the mouth of the river in 1861 and can testify to the fact, and now by narrowing the channel of the river at this point a minimum depth of 28 feet has been obtained and preserved year after year.

Mr. DOLPH. May I interrupt the Senator a moment?

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. Certainly.

Mr. DOLPH. Is there any change proposed in the plan? There is no change in the plan?

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. There is no change in the world in the plan.

Mr. DOLPH. There is none at all. This bill simply makes an appropriation.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. This same plan has been applied at Plum Point Reach and Lake Providence Reach where there were only 3 and 4 feet of water in the autumn, when it is necessary to move the grain crops of the Northwest, and we have now in those two reaches 12 feet of water. The depth of water has been more than doubled.

This plan is not peculiar to the Mississippi River. It has been adopted on all other rivers. I hold in my hand the report of our consul at Frankfurt. He shows that the German Government have expended $40,000,000 on the Rhine, under the Rhine commission for a space of only 300 miles, and that the depth of water in that river at shoal places has been more than doubled; that vast areas of country have been brought into cultivation and are now smiling with tillage which were given in the last century over to the waste of waters; and the Rhine has become a great, deep, and navigable river. The Victorian embankment in London was built on the same theory, and it is one of the memorials of the Victorian age, not only giving a great highway along through the city of London, but has deepened the Thames and greatly accelerated the velocity and force of its current. The same plan was adopted on the Clyde in Scotland, which was a narrow stream with a languid current and shoal depth. It has become now the seat of the greatest dockyards in the world.

Not only are these principles correct in theory, but we have had actual and practical development of their truth. What is the theory and principle? It rests entirely upon the doctrine of gravity. What gives velocity? A fall from a higher to a lower rivers (which they have designated by breaking their surveys on the banks of those rivers into fractions, leaving the ownership of the bottom in the States) to the purposes of navigation—not to fisheries or anything of that kind but for the purposes of navigation—and then we find in the Constitution of the United States the plain and indisputable power of the Government of the United States to protect and preserve and maintain navigation. Uniting these powers together, I have no difficulty about the case in my own mind.

So I am free to vote for the digging out of any river where policy indicates that it is proper to do so, and if I find the two governments, the State government and the United States Government, have united in the dedication of that stream to the purpose of navigation, and that it is reasonably profitable to the country that it should be dug out, I shall vote you all the money that is needed when our people can bear the taxation that is necessary to raise it.

Mr. CHANDLER rose.

Mr. DAWES. It is perfectly evident from the line of debate here that it is impossible for the Senate to consider this measure and the Indian appropriation bill to-day. I do not desire to crowd in the Indian appropriation bill. I should like very much to dispose of it, it is important that it should be disposed of, but if the Senate thinks on the whole that it had better dispose of this measure to-day I shall not try to crowd the Indian appropriation bill in. But if the Senate is disposed to consider the Indian appropriation bill it had better be taken up now, for the debate upon this measure indicates a wide field upon which there will be a great deal of time expended. Therefore, unless Senators can indicate that they will close the debate very soon, I shall leave it to the Senate to determine which of the measures it will dispose of to-day by moving to take up the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. I do not know what is the disposition of the Senate, but I assume that there will be no further debate on this bill. It has already been thoroughly and fully discussed.

Mr. DAWES. I do not desire to crowd off the bill, but it is apparent that one or the other of these measures must give way, and I leave it to the Senate.

Mr. CULLOM. May I suggest to the Senator from Massachusetts, the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, that he wait for half an hour and see whether this bill does not get out of the way? I am inclined to think it will be disposed of in that time. If so, it had probably better be finished now that it is before the Senate.

Mr. DAWES. I understand the interest the Senate has in this measure, though it ought to understand also the interest it has in the appropriation bill. I will wait for half an hour.

Mr. CHANDLER. Mr. President, I do not desire to detain the Senate more than a few moments in connection with this bill. I had the honor of serving in the Fiftieth Congress upon the Senate Committee on the Mississippi River, and I participated in a pretty careful investigation which was made concerning certain points of dispute which had arisen. I had no difficulty in reaching two conclusions. The first was that the work of the Mississippi River Commission, carried on by the officers of the War Department, was wisely conceived. Attempts were made to disparage and to destroy the theories and the plans upon which the Mississippi River Commission proposed the improvement of that river. Those attempts, in my judgment, have been unsuccessful, and so far as the money of the United States is hereafter to be expended upon the improvement of the Mississippi River for the purpose of constructing levees or for the purpose of improving the navigation, or for both purposes taken together, there can be no better plan of making those expenditures than that which is provided by existing law.

The Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] I think did injustice to the officers of the War Department in the remarks which he made. Certainly he is mistaken in attributing to the officers of the War Department the desire to prolong the time during which any given work is carried forward. The officers of the Army are in for life, their compensation is the same whether a work goes forward or does not go forward, and in my judgment, as I have had occasion to say heretofore upon this floor, no work which this Government can perform is more honestly, more judiciously, more wisely performed than that which is done by the officers of the regular Army of the United States. I think the Senator, unwittingly probably, does them injustice in the criticisms which he has made.

No, Mr. President, the delay in the execution of these works does not arise from any unwillingness of the officers of the Army to go on with due speed. It arises more from the inadequacy of the annual appropriation, as the Senator from Maine [Mr. FRYE] has so well set forth here to-day; and instead of undertaking to expedite the completion of any of our public works by unjust criticisms of the military officers engaged in carrying them forward, it seems to me that we ought to strike the blow of reform exactly as indicated by the Senator from Maine, and provide adequate appropriation for every public work, so that the work may go on without being hindered by the failure of an appropriation, and so that the work may go on according to a systematic plan persistently carried out.

I have in my hand a letter from Brig. Gen. Casey, Chief of Engineers, inclosing a statement of the expenditures which have been made by the Mississippi River Commission since its organization, which I will insert in my remarks. The period of time during which this Commission has been in existence and has had charge of these improvements is since 1881, about ten years, and it appears that during that period there have been expended in all for levees and for other work $13,732,600, of which $3,924,300 has been paid out on the levees and $9,808,300 has been expended for other work. There has been an appropriation on an average of not quite $2,000,000 in each year under the system of annual appropriations.

The letter referred to is as follows:

OFFICE OF CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washington, D. C., January 7, 1892.

SIR: In reply to your letter of December 28, 1891, requesting an informal and approximate statement of the expenditures on the improvement Mississippi River since the Mississippi River Commission was organized, I inclose a copy of such statement prepared by Gen. C. B. Constock, Corps of Engineers, president of the Commission, giving the items and totals in the form requested by you.

These sums are exclusive of the amounts appropriated specially for surveys and for expenses and salaries of the Commission, which aggregate $1,097,515.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brigadier-General, Chief of Engineers.

Hon. W. E. CHANDLER,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

From July 1, 1891, to November 30, 1891, has been expended: on levees, $381,200, and on other work, $381,100; a total of $762,300.

Mr. CHANDLER. This bill provides that we shall expend $2,000,000 a year, and that the work shall be continuous—not beyond the power of Congress, but it is to be continuous under this bill, unless Congress at the end of any given year chooses to stop it. The work is not to be beyond the control of Congress. If at any time when these reports are made Congress chooses to declare by statute that the work is going on upon a wrong principle or is being carried forward uselessly or unwisely, it can stop it by three lines in an appropriation bill at any moment.

Mr. President, I take occasion to say that the other conclusion which I had no difficulty in reaching when serving upon the Committee on the Mississippi River, which I believe every member of that committee North and South, East and West, reached, was, that the true method of dealing with this great question of the improvement of the Mississippi River is to make an appropriation of a large sum of money which shall be permanent and fixed, a proportion of which shall be expended annually, and that nothing shall stop that appropriation from being expended and nothing shall stop the work from going forward except the absolute orders of Congress in subsequent legislation.

I believe that this policy should be adopted at this time. I believe that this bill should pass. I believe that the work is being well and wisely done, and I believe that there is no safe or judicious or broad and statesmanlike way of dealing with the improvement of the Mississippi River except as I think all the other great harbor improvements should be dealt with, by a comprehensive decree of Congress that the levees shall be built and the navigation shall be improved as a great national measure.

Mr. President, I have no constitutional difficulties on this subject. If it suits the Senator from Alabama before voting for this measure to insert in the bill a provision that the construction of levees shall be limited to those cases where they are needed, in order to promote the improvement of the low-water navigation, if that reconciles his intellect or his conscience to this bill, I am very willing to have it inserted. It certainly will not deter me from voting for the bill that that assertion is put in, and I am very sure that it will not deter the Mississippi River Commission and the officers of the War Department who make these expenditures from endeavoring to secure the construction with the aid of the States upon the Lower Mississippi of a system of levees that shall put that river within its boundaries, where it ought to stay, so that Congress may be relieved from the appeals that are from year to year made to us for assistance to the people of those States in case of an overflow of the Mississippi.

I suppose the Senator from Alabama would not hesitate and has not hesitated to vote for the appropriations which have been made from time to time of very large sums for the relief of the sufferers from Mississippi overflows. It seems to me that it is quite as constitutional to vote to construct the levees as it is to feed the sufferers from the floods. I assure the Senator from Alabama that some of these large sums that Alabama is pouring into the Treasury can not be more wisely expended than in preventing the sufferings and the losses and the calamities that are happening from time to time upon the Lower Mississippi by the construction of an adequate system, once for all, of levees upon the Mississippi.

Mr. HAWLEY. Mr. President, I have lost a part of this discussion, but what I have heard reminds me very much of what I heard years and years ago when the question of large appropriations for the Mississippi River was first broached. The battle was fought out then. There was then a tendency to undertake the improvement of all the Mississippi bottoms, of all the broad lands on each side of it, the salvation of that country from floods, the drainage of it, etc. I say the battle was fought out and the decision was made, that so far as such bills as this are concerned they were to be devoted primarily—they were to be devoted wholly, I should say—to the commercial question alone, to the navigational question under the Constitution of the United States, and wherever the protection of river banks or the deepening of the channel was of an incidental benefit to many plantations, as of course it was to a broad strip of territory, we were glad of it, but that was not the purpose of the bill. I say in those days it was settled by the judgment of Congress, and my only surprise now is that anybody should hesitate at any expression which would seem to reaffirm that delineation of proper limits.

I agree entirely to the amendment of the Senator from Alabama. I should perhaps have not thought it necessary. I am a little more nearly convinced it is needed by the semi-unwillingness of some to make that statement in regard to the appropriations. I vote for that amendment with a great deal of pleasure; I hope to be able to vote for the appropriation, but I shall vote for it as a question of navigation entirely.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President, the Senator from Maine [Mr. FRYE] in the course of his observations upon this bill stated that the people of the Eastern States have paid $80,000,000 for compulsory pilotage under the legislation of the Southern States. Now, whatever may be the merits of this tonnage question, it is certainly true that the ship which pays pilotage in getting into any port charges that payment upon the rates imposed for carrying the goods contained in the vessel. A vessel from any Eastern port coming to ports of South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, or Florida does not sail for nothing or steam for nothing. She imposes her charges, whatever they are, upon the things that she carries, and they go into the markets of the States where they are carried and are changed with the cost of transportation. When the vessel takes her return cargo she imposes the charge upon that which goes into the markets of sale, wherever the cargo is carried, and it is paid by those who purchase the goods. So the $80,000,000 have been paid not by the Eastern States, but by the States which have these pilotage fees. There is nothing plainer than that.

It is true unquestionably that every tax is a restriction upon commerce and that commerce would be much more extended and larger and the rates cheaper but for taxation in any shape or form; but there are two sides to this pilotage question upon which the Senator seems to be so earnest. One is that under existing law these men have been trained by a public policy to this business, and the question remains whether they do not save more to the owners of shipping and to those who pay the cost of transportation than would be the case if the fees were abolished. The pilots are stationed at every harbor in just such numbers as are sufficient to do the business of that place, and while the charges may be here and there too large as a general rule, they render a service that is absolutely necessary.

If the Senator from Maine, however, desires to pass a bill equalizing pilotage and changing the present conditions under which these men are appointed, let him make provision for the men who are now pilots, and not turn them out upon the world after having been reared from infancy in this dangerous and meritorious pursuit of saving property and saving lives. Do not discharge them entirely without employment and without anything to do. There are two sides to that question. It is claimed by them, and I think with very great force, that they save much more property than would be saved if they were not in service at the different harbors.

But, Mr. President, upon the question of this bill, what are the States that are not upon the Mississippi River to do if you take the entire appropriations which Congress may make for such purposes for the improvement of that river? I am willing to vote, as I have voted, for the most liberal appropriations for any necessary purpose connected with the navigation of the Mississippi River, even for building levees where they are indispensable to the improvement of the river; but it should be done in the river and harbor bill. If you wish to make a contract for five or ten years, let it be provided for there, and do not let us dispose of the whole money that Congress can appropriate in any one year for any one State or any few States or any series of States. Let each part of the country have its proper share of the entire amount.

In reference to the question of levees, the expenditure of this money will of necessity build a large extent of levees at different places. Who is to derive the benefit from the increased value of the land? Will it go into the Federal taxation? Will it not inure to the local government? What interest will the citizen of Florida who pays his share of the taxes derive from the increased value of this land? There must be some attention given to the fact that the people pay out of their hard labor these great sums of money, and in the disbursement of them some regard must be had to the interests of the different localities of the country.

I for one am willing to vote whatever amount of money may be necessary, to be expended annually, with due regard to the burdens to be imposed upon this overtaxed and impoverished people. I am willing to vote whatever amount is necessary to be expended in moderate sums from year to year for a period of five or ten years upon whatever plan may after proper investigation be decided to be best for the Mississippi River; but it is hardly fair to other States, to the State which I in part represent here, that the entire amount which Congress proposes to appropriate for the improvement of all the rivers and all the harbors of the United States should be by a single bill appropriated and the others given that much prejudice. It is not probable that the appropriations for rivers and harbors will exceed the sum of $20,000,000 at this Congress, and if this bill passes appropriating $18,000,000 to be expended in sums of $3,000,000 annually it is certain that it will very largely reduce the amount that will be received by the other States. If this bill waits until the river and harbor bill comes here and this system shall be decided to be the proper one, I am entirely willing to vote for an appropriation running over a number of years, covering whatever amount may be required for this purpose, but it ought not to be done now.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on concurring in the amendments made as in Committee of the Whole as amended.

The amendments as amended were concurred in.

Mr. ALLISON. I offer an amendment to come in as a new section after section 3.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to add a new section, as follows:

SEC. 4. That out of the aforesaid sum of $18,750,000, $3,750,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, in accordance with such plans, specifications, and recommendations as may be approved by the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army, to complete the improvement of the Mississippi River from the mouth of the Illinois River to St. Paul, Minn.: Provided, That not more than $750,000 shall be expended during any one year.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Iowa.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MORGAN. I propose to amend the bill in section 2, line 3, by inserting, after the words "improvement of the," the words "navigation of the;" so as to read:

That out of the aforesaid sum of $18,750,000 be rein appropriated for the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi River $5,000,000, etc.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Alabama.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CHANDLER. In section 1, line 11, after the words "Chief of Engineers of the United States Army," I move to add "and said Secretary of War."

Mr. CULLOM. I suggest to the Senator from New Hampshire that he insert the words "Secretary of War" before "Chief of Engineers."

Mr. CHANDLER. I should be very glad to oblige the Senator, but these plans are to be first prepared by the Mississippi River Commission; then they are to be approved by the Chief of Engineers, and then I propose that they shall be approved by the Secretary of War.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment moved by the Senator from New Hampshire will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 1, line 11, after the word "Army," it is proposed to insert the words "and said Secretary of War;" so as to read:

In accordance with such plans, specifications, and recommendations of the Mississippi River Commission as may be approved by the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army, and said Secretary of War.

Mr. VEST. I have no objection to that amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PADDOCK. Mr. President, I have thought that before this bill should be passed there ought to be a liberal appropriation put upon it for the improvement of the navigation of the Missouri River, which is the greatest river of them all. I should like to make an inquiry of the Senator from Missouri, who is upon the Committee on Commerce. He and his constituents are interested in it as I and my constituents are. I should like to inquire of the Senator what his plan is in reference to the improvement of the Missouri River during the present year.

Mr. VEST. There is no disposition to ignore the claims of the Missouri River or any other of the great tributaries of the Mississippi, but the Committee on Commerce thought that one at a time would be most prudent and practicable; that we ought to improve the Mississippi River first, in which all the States are interested upon the eastern and western side of it; and when the river and harbor bill comes to us there will be in it an appropriation for the Missouri, the Ohio, the Illinois, the Tennessee, the Arkansas, and the Red Rivers, and all the tributaries of the Mississippi. I shall go as far as the Senator from Nebraska, at the proper time, to vote the largest appropriations for those rivers.

Mr. PADDOCK. With that statement, and with the understanding that the Missouri River is to receive its proper consideration, I shall refrain from offering the amendment which I had contemplated presenting to this bill. I feel very great interest in the success of the effort to improve the Mississippi River on the plan proposed by this system of continuous appropriations for a number of years.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and was read the third time.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is, shall the bill pass?

Mr. VANCE. I ask for the yeas and nays on the passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. RANSOM. Is the bill still open to amendment?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Not now.

Mr. McPHERSON. Mr. President, I desire to say a single word before the vote is taken upon the passage of the bill.

I have never found it possible since I have been a member of this body to vote for any so-called river and harbor bill which has been passed here, for the reason that I never could bring myself to the idea that even under the general-welfare clause of the Federal Constitution I had any right to vote money out of the public Treasury to improve minute water ways which for less money could be made into good turnpike roads. Therefore, I have at all times cast my vote against the so-called river and harbor bills. But for the improvement of great national water ways and for the improvement of ports and harbors that are necessary to do the commerce of the United States, I have been ever ready to give liberal appropriations of money.

This is the first time since I have been a member of the Senate that such a bill has been presented to me that has, as I think, thorough merit. It is proposed to improve the Mississippi River, and while it costs a very large sum of money, perhaps a greater sum of money than I would have supposed necessary, at the same time that river bisects and divides a great continent. It drains a continent. It has numerous large tributaries which are of themselves navigable and may bear the products raised in the great valley of the Mississippi River to the Mississippi and from there to the Gulf. But if the great artery, the Mississippi River itself, is not capable of being navigated at all seasons of the year, all the improvement which you make upon the tributaries is entirely useless.

The great valley of the Mississippi River is peopled by an intelligent population, largely agricultural. They have never asked sympathy nor charity from the Government. They ask for a market for their surplus products; and in order that those products may be marketed in competition with all the world it is necessary that the rates of transportation should be low. By a proper improvement of the Mississippi River they are able to convey those products to tide water at very much less cost than they can be brought to the Atlantic seaboard.

A system of improvement for the Mississippi River necessarily involves an immense expenditure of money. It requires that in every part of the river where overflows naturally take place levees should be built, that jetties should be built also, to narrow the channel, and whether it costs $10,000,000 or $20,000,000 I deem it of immense importance to the people of this country and especially to the great Mississippi Valley and the country lying west and east of it for the conveyance of products to tide water that that improvement should be made.

Therefore I shall vote for this appropriation of money for the Mississippi River as standing single and alone among all river and harbor bills that have been presented to the Senate. I believe, as the Senator from Maine [Mr. FRYE] has properly said, that the true way of making this improvement is by an appropriation of money sufficient not only to begin but to continue the work; and this bill seems to be drawn with that purpose. That is all I wish to say.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The roll will be called on the passage of the bill.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] upon all questions. If he were present I should vote "yea" upon this bill. I do not know how he would vote.

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CASEY]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

Mr. RANSOM (when his name was called). I am paired with the senior Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE]. I am informed by his colleague [Mr. FRYE] that he would vote for the bill if present, therefore I vote "yea."

Mr. FRYE. I do not know how my colleague would vote, but I release the Senator from North Carolina from his pair without any hesitation.

Mr. SHERMAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. CARLISLE].

Mr. TELLER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. CHILTON]. I am informed he would probably vote for the bill if present, and I therefore vote. I vote "yea."

Mr. WARREN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON].

Mr. WILSON (when his name was called). I inquire whether the Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT] has voted?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He is not recorded.

Mr. WILSON. I am paired with that Senator, and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. WOLCOTT (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. KENNA]. If he were present I think he would vote "yea," and I vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BUTLER. I am paired generally with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON]; but believing that if present he would vote "yea," I shall vote "yea."

Mr. PADDOCK. My colleague [Mr. MANDERSON] is paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN]. My colleague is detained at home by illness.

Mr. PLATT. I am paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. VEST. The Senator from Virginia would vote "yea."

Mr. PLATT. Being assured that he would vote "yea" if present, I will vote. I vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 48, nays 5; as follows:

COLUMBIA RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

Mr. DAWES. Understand that the Senator from Oregon has another bill that will take but a few moments.

Mr. DOLPH. I ask the Senator from Massachusetts to let the other bills go through. I do not think they will provoke any discussion, and there are printed reports accompanying them.

Mr. DAWES. I give notice that immediately after the morning business to-morrow I shall call up the Indian appropriation bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the next special order, being Senate bill 541.

The Senator, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 541) making appropriation for the improvement of the Columbia River.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

Mr. DOLPH. I will state that all there is left of that bill is what was section 3 of the original bill. It is only one section.

The first amendment was to strike out sections 1 and 2, as follows:

That for the purpose of completing the improvement of the mouth of the Columbia River, Oregon, the sum of $525,000 is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Sec. 2. That for the improvement of the lower Columbia and Willamette Rivers, so as to secure 25 feet of water from Portland to the sea, in accordance with the report submitted by Maj. Hamburg, as modified by the report of the Board of Engineers, the sum of $290,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the same being the amount estimated as required for said improvement in excess of the sum of $50,000 proposed to be expended by the city of Portland for that purpose.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in what was section 3, line 1, to strike out "Sec. 3;" in line 12, after the word "exceed," to strike out "the estimate of the engineer in charge of the work of the" and insert "one-third of the whole;" and in line 13, after the word "amount," to strike out "which can be profitably expended in that year" and insert "thereby appropriated;" so as to read:

That for the purpose of securing the early completion of the canal and locks at the Cascades of the Columbia River, Oregon, the Secretary of War, upon the application of the Chief of Engineers, is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to draw his warrant or requisition, from time to time, upon the Secretary of the Treasury for such sums as may be necessary to do such work, not to exceed in the aggregate $1,745,816, the amount estimated as necessary for the completion of the same: Provided, That the amounts drawn from the Treasury shall not in any one year exceed one-third of the whole amount thereby appropriated, and that an itemized statement of said expenditures shall accompany the annual report of the Chief of Engineers. The amount required for the completion of this work as herein proposed is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 4, as follows:

Sec. 4. That for the purpose of commencing the improvement of the Columbia River at The Dalles and Celilo Falls, and at Three and Ten Mile Rapids, in accordance with report of the Board of Engineers appointed under the provisions of the act of July 31, 1888, and the recommendation of the Chief of Engineers thereon, the sum of $500,000 is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated: Provided, That contracts may be made by the Secretary of War for such materials and labor as may be necessary to carry out the project for said improvement reported by said board, to be paid for as appropriations may from time to time be made by law.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BERRY. I should like to inquire of the chairman of the Committee on Commerce why this bill is separated from the general river and harbor bill; what necessity there is for making a special appropriation for this river, that does not apply to many other rivers throughout the United States?

Mr. FRYE. Because it is one of the most important rivers in the country, and an immense operation is going on at its mouth. The Government is doing the work, and doing it as economically, as thoroughly, and as expeditiously as it is possible for such work to be done. It has practically accomplished its purpose and obtained sufficient water over the bar for any vessel to go over and enter the river.

There are several reaches in the river where improvements are absolutely necessary. The committee concluded on the whole that they would treat it as they did the Mississippi River, and appropriate a sufficient amount of money so that the improvements might progress pari passu. A bill was passed by the Senate the other day which removed from this bill one item, for the building of a railway across the Cascades instead of a canal. There is now pretty heavy work being done at the Cascades, at a lock, and the committee, on the theory which it adopted some time ago, thought it advisable that the work on this river, which is very important, extending so many miles through an immense country, a wheat country, should progress as rapidly as possible. That is the only reason.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended.

Mr. DOLPH. I ask for the insertion in the Record of the report of the committee on this bill, and a letter from the president of the State board of commerce of the State of Oregon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the papers referred to by the Senator from Oregon will be printed in the Record.

The report submitted by Mr. Dolph, February 15, 1892, is as follows:

The Committee on Commerce, having had under consideration the bill (S. 541) making appropriations for the improvement of the Columbia River, report the same back with amendments, and recommend its passage.

The amendments consist in striking out the provisions of the bill making appropriations for the completion of the improvements at the mouth of the Columbia River and for the improvement of the Lower Columbia and Willamette Rivers and the improvement of the Columbia River at The Dalles and Celilo Falls and Ten Mile Rapids.

The provision for the latter improvement was stricken from the bill because the Senate Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard has already reported favorably a bill to appropriate the amount required for it, which is now on the Senate Calendar, and the provisions for appropriations for the works at the mouth of the Columbia and upon the Lower Columbia and Willamette Rivers were eliminated because it was believed by the committee that they can be adequately provided for in the river and harbor bill. By the bill as reported it is intended to provide for the speedy completion of the canal and locks at the cascades of the Columbia.

To this end it is proposed to authorize the Secretary of War, upon application of the Chief of Engineers, in his discretion, to draw his warrant or requisition, from time to time, upon the Secretary of the Treasury for such sums as may be necessary to complete said canal and locks, not to exceed in the aggregate $1,745,816, the amount estimated as necessary to complete the work, the amount drawn from the Treasury in any one year not to exceed one-third of the whole appropriation.

The importance of this improvement will be understood when it is recollected that the Cascade range of mountains extends entirely across the States of Oregon and Washington and the only natural opening in the range is the Columbia River. Through this opening is the natural transportation route for the products of the great valley of the Columbia to the seaboard and of the supplies for the inhabitants of that coast region. At the cascades of the Columbia the passage of the river through the Cascade Mountains is rapid, which obstructs navigation, and 15 miles above this obstruction are The Dalles and Celilo Falls and Ten Mile Rapids, forming another obstruction to navigation. These two obstructions are so near together and separate such long reaches of navigable river that they should be treated as one improvement.

The first appropriation for the construction of a canal and locks at the cascades was made in June, 1876, sixteen years ago next June. The amount heretofore appropriated is $1,877,500. The amount required to complete the project is $1,745,816. Owing to inadequate and irregular appropriations the work has been long delayed, the cost greatly increased, and the settlers in the vast region tributary to the Columbia River, and the natural outlet to market of the products to whose industry is down the Columbia River valley have become disheartened. Commerce in the Pacific Northwest can only be relieved by the removal of this obstruction and of the obstructions at The Dalles and Celilo Falls and Ten Mile Rapids.

A competent board of engineers have reported in favor of a boat railway to overcome the latter obstructions, and their report has been approved by the Chief of Engineers, but the work has not been commenced. When these two improvements are completed the Columbia River will be navigable without interruption for over 400 miles from its mouth and the Columbia and Snake Rivers for some 165 miles from the mouth of the Columbia, and a very moderate outlay will open up the Columbia to continuous navigation for more than 600 to 800 miles further.

Attention is called to the following, taken from the last annual report of the Chief of Engineers, concerning this improvement:

"So much money has already been expended upon this work, for which there can be no return until it is substantially completed, that it would seem wise economy to appropriate what is necessary to finish it in one sum at the earliest practicable moment. If this can not be done by Congress next session under the estimate for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, the completion of the work must then be prolonged at increased expense to a time dependent upon the amounts that are from time to time made available. A suspension of operations of nearly a year in every two years is attended with large expenditures in protecting plant and other property during this time, and in repairing and replacing these when work is to be resumed. The inability to take advantage of the proper seasons for carrying on this work, on account of a want of funds, is also a source of large additional expense."

This statement is supported and enforced by the report of the engineer in charge of the work, Maj. Hamburg. The magnitude and difficulties of this work are so great that it can only be profitably carried on by large and continuous appropriations. High water in the Columbia occurs in June and interrupts the work and the suspension for lack of funds, one year out of two, causes great loss on account of the injury to the work from high water and the elements and the cost of protecting the plant.

There is no doubt that if the bill now reported by the committee should become law a large saving in the cost of the work would be made and commerce would receive the benefit of the improvement several years earlier than if the work is left to be conducted with insufficient and irregular appropriations. Motives of economy alone are sufficient to demand the application to this improvement of the plan adopted by the last Congress in the river and harbor bill for several important improvements.

The report of Maj. Hamburg, the engineer in charge of the work, is hereto appended, and very fully presents the character and present condition of the work, the difficulties encountered in its prosecution, and the necessity for an appropriation of the whole amount required for the completion of the work if it is to be economically carried on.

[Maj. Hamburg's report.]

CONSTRUCTION OF CANAL AT THE CASCADES, COLUMBIA RIVER, OREGON.

The general scope of the improvement which it is desired to erect at the Cascades of the Columbia River includes a reach of about 12 miles where the river rushes through a narrow gorge in the Cascade Mountains. The fall in the distance is about 15 feet at high water and 35 feet at low water. The principal obstruction to navigation occurs at the upper end of the reach known as Upper Cascades. The project for the improvement consists in placing the river so that it should be improved below the Upper Cascades by removing boulders and projecting piers in the bed and banks so as to give good navigable water from its lowest up to a 20-foot stage.

The fall at the Upper Cascades is to be overcome by digging a canal of 3,000 feet in length across the neck of a low, projecting spur, around which the river is forced at the entrance to the gorge, and placing in this a lock and other suitable structures, which would permit of the passage of boats up to a 20-foot stage of water in the river, this lock and canal to be so arranged that, should the future necessities of commerce so demand, additional structures may be added which will permit of navigation at much higher stages.

The first part of this project, that of improving the river below the foot of the Upper Cascades, is essentially finished.

The difference of level between the head and foot of the canal as now established is 15 feet at high water and 21 feet at low water, and the difference in height between high and low water at the foot is 51 feet, and at the head 45 feet. The plan on which the future work in the canal, with its lock and accessories, is to be prosecuted has for its object to make this portion of the river available for navigation to a stage up to 20 feet at the earliest possible moment, with the funds that are from time to time appropriated for the purpose.

At the commencement of the present fiscal year there was available for the prosecution of the work $7,653.95. At that time active field work was suspended and had been so since the end of the preceding November, on account of a want of funds. The preparation of drawings and the taking care of public property pertaining to this improvement were the only work in progress until about the middle of September, 1890, when preparations were commenced with the view to active outdoor work as soon as the river and harbor bill then pending became a law. On September 18 stonecutting was resumed, and on the 20th general operations were commenced. The lock pit was cleared of water between October 4 and 9. Active operations have been in progress from that time until the end of the present fiscal year.

The available balance on hand this June 30 is $201,691.71. The progress toward completion during the year is represented by the following general results: There were cut 8,711 cubic feet of dimension granite, 12,520 cubic feet dimension basalt, 42,988 cubic feet faced basalt.

Quantities of stone laid: In the lock walls, 338 cubic yards granite, 350 cubic yards dimension basalt, 856 cubic yards basalt face stone, and 52 cubic yards concrete culvert pipe. In the canal walls, 37 cubic yards of face stone and 223 cubic yards dry rubble.

The amount of concrete made and placed was 9,614 cubic yards. Of this, 1,777 yards were mixed by hand and 7,837 by machine; 2,372 yards were placed with derricks and 7,242 with chutes. In connection with the concrete work a concrete supply pipe 39 inches in diameter and 6 inches thick for the turbines was made and imbedded in concrete masonry. This pipe was made in sections 3 feet long. There were 197 of these, containing 139 cubic yards of concrete.

Quarrying from basaltic boulders found in the vicinity has been carried on to the extent of 1,322 cubic yards dimension stone and 180 cubic yards of rubble.

The excavation for the year was only such as was necessary in cleaning up the lock pit after high water, and in preparing the foundations of the lock masonry. This amounts to 2,085 cubic yards of bed rock and 4,443 yards of gravel and sand.

The masonry on the south side for the lower guard and lock gates was built up the height of the coping and joined to the canal wall of that side, and all preparations are now made for commencing the corresponding masonry on the north side as soon as the river falls so that the lock pit can be pumped out, which will probably be about the 1st of August.

A complete plant has been provided for mixing concrete. It is so arranged that all the materials to be incorporated are brought to the mixers by gravity, and the concrete delivered on the wall by the same force. The cost of handling materials and mixing is by this arrangement reduced to a minimum. The capacity of this plant is now 350 cubic yards per day, and can readily be increased at little additional cost to any desired extent.

Repairs were made to buildings, tramways, derricks, engines, pumps, and plant in general. An addition was made to the office building for cement-testing purposes, and another room was fitted up for drafting purposes. The cement store shed was extended 60 feet, increasing the storage capacity to 9,000 barrels, and the stone sheds were extended 42 feet, giving shelter for ten additional cutters.

Twenty-seven hundred feet of new tramway were built to bring rock from boulder quarries leased during the year; the tramway to the sand pit was regraded and relaid for locomotive traction, as it was found that sand could not be supplied rapidly enough with animal power obtainable in the vicinity, and twelve new cars were constructed upon the works for service in the sand pit. A new 35-inch-gauge locomotive was purchased.

A lease was obtained from owners of the adjoining property to that belonging to the Government on the east, and extending along the bank of the river, for a right of way for a tramway and the exclusive privilege of taking the basaltic boulders strewn along the land for a distance of nearly a mile. The supply of rock on the Government ground suitable for the lock construction is now about exhausted. There is an abundance on this leased ground. The lease is good for ten years from January 1, 1891.

There is now a large quantity of stone, cut and uncut, and other material, including 8,000 barrels of imported cement, on hand. Everything is now in readiness to push the work forward rapidly again as soon as the lock pit can be pumped out, which will be, as above stated, about the 1st of August. Until that time the principal work that can be done is stonecutting.

The funds now available will be substantially exhausted by the end of November in the operations connected with the construction of the north side of the lower lock and guard gate masonry; the construction of the lock wall on the south side and the upper lock gate masonry on the same side to the height of the bottom of the upper canal, or our reference (88).

At that time a suspension will again be necessary, lasting until such time as additional funds are provided for the prosecution of the work. A suspension at that time is very much to be regretted, because during the following three months the river is likely to be at low water, which stage is favorable for doing a large amount of work above the upper and below the lower bulkheads that must be done before the lock can be open to traffic, and which would hasten materially that desired event.

During the year the plans and estimates for carrying on this work were carefully revised and a report upon this revision submitted to the Chief of Engineers under date of December 17, 1890. Further information on the subject of estimates and cost of this work was submitted February 4, 1891. In answer to a letter of the Hon. BINGER HERMANN to the Secretary of War, explanation of the conduct of the work by hired labor was made under date of February 9, 1891. These communications, with others bearing upon the same subjects, were published in Senate Executive Document No. 72, Fifty-first Congress, second session.

The Legislature of the State of Oregon passed an act, which was approved February 16, 1891—

"To be entitled an act to authorize and empower the governor, or secretary of state, and State treasurer of the State of Oregon, and their successors, in office, for and in the name and behalf of the State of Oregon, to build, construct, operate, and maintain a portage railway between the highest and lowest points of the navigable waters of the Columbia River at the Cascades, in Oregon, and between the highest and lowest points of the navigable waters of the Columbia River between The Dalles and Celilo, in Oregon, and to build and construct all necessary switches and approaches thereto, and to equip, run, operate, and perpetually maintain the same, and to sue for and condemn private property for all necessary purposes in any way connected therewith, and to charge and collect freights and fares thereon, and to appropriate money therefor."

It is provided in the act "that said board shall have the right to determine which railway shall be first built." Sections of the act provides "That there be, and is hereby appropriated out of the general fund of the State of Oregon the sum of $50,000, from any moneys not otherwise appropriated, for the uses and purposes aforesaid, etc."

Under this authority the board of portage commissioners provided for in the act requested the use of the railroad across the Government grounds at the Cascade Locks, with the understanding that it would construct the necessary inclines, and provide wharf boats and other wharfage facilities both above and below the present terminal of the Government railway, and connect the same by lines of railway, with the lines in use on the grounds; and also grant the Government the use of these free of charge for the transportation of supplies and materials for the public improvement at that point.

With the view to avoiding all possibility of a conflict of authority or jurisdiction that might arise in the construction and operation of this road, it was suggested that the matter could be simplified by the United States building the road from the eastern boundary of its property to the bulkhead at the lower end of the canal, a distance of 3,600 feet, the State to connect with this at the two ends by suitable inclines, and to provide all wharf boats, rolling stock, and other necessary portage facilities.

The expenditure could be justified on the ground that this piece of railway was a part of the plant necessary to the economical construction of the work in progress. On the matter being referred to the Attorney General it was decided that the State of Oregon must build this piece of road. The State board gave its assent to this decision, also to the location and gauge of the road as suggested by me. The Secretary of War thereupon approved the right of way for a 3-foot gauge railway, subject to restrictions and regulations to be hereafter prescribed. During the latter part of May the employees of the State board were permitted to enter upon the grounds and commenced the construction of this piece of railway.

For further information relative to the work carried on during the year reference is invited to the annual report herewith of my assistant in local charge, Lieut. Edward Burr, Corps of Engineers, United States Army, where the details of all operations are set forth with the usual clearness and care characteristic of that officer in the discharge of his duties.

The estimated amount yet to be appropriated for completing the work is $1,745,500. If this amount were available now, so that the work from this time forward could be pushed to the full extent of our arrangements and the capacity of the plant now provided, it is within the range of possibility, under ordinary circumstances of weather, to advance it so near completion that boats could be regularly passed through the lock by the end of the year 1892; but this is not the case; therefore the opening of the lock must not be expected at that time.

So much money has already been expended upon this work, for which there can be no return until it is substantially completed, that it would seem wise economy to appropriate what is necessary to finish it in one sum at the earliest practical moment. If this can not be done by Congress next session under the estimate for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, the completion of the work must then be prolonged at increased expense to a time dependent upon the amounts that are from time to time made available. A suspension of operations of nearly a year in every two years is attended with large expenditures in protecting plant and other property during this time, and in repairing and replacing these when work is to be resumed. The inability to take advantage of the proper seasons for carrying on this work on account of a want of funds is also a source of large additional expense.

The amount estimated that can be profitably expended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, is $1,500,000, and in addition to this $245,500 can be profitably expended before the end of December, 1893.

The urgent necessity for the removal of the obstructions at the Cascades and at The Dalles and Celilo Falls and Ten-Mile Rapids has been fully set forth in the report of the Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard, at the present session, upon Senate bill 525, "A bill making an appropriation for the construction of a boat railway at The Dalles and Celilo Falls and Ten-Mile Rapids," and in previous reports of that committee upon a similar bill.

The following is quoted from the report of that committee submitted to the Senate the 8th instant:

"In conclusion your committee can not too earnestly or in too emphatic phatic urge upon the Senate and the Congress the great importance of the early commencement and speedy completion of the improvements recommended, viz: a boat railway, with hydraulic vertical lifts, and the improvement of Three-Mile Rapids. These improvements are, in the judgment of your committee, wisely recommended by the Board of Engineers and the Chief of Engineers as the best solution of this difficult problem.

"The immense agricultural, grazing, and mineral development of the Pacific Northwest, coupled with the unprecedented ruinously burdensome transportation rates to which the producers and shippers in that vast region have been, and still are, subjected, the same being on an average of from five to six times more on the railroad lines in that section than on any transportation line by either water or rail in any section of the country east of the Mississippi River, present in themselves a most convincing and unanswerable argument in favor of the speedy opening of the Columbia River and its tributaries in such manner as to enable boats to pass without interruption from the great agricultural, grazing, and mining centers of Eastern Oregon, Washington, and Idaho, without breaking cargo until they connect with and unload on ocean steamers and sailing vessels at Portland, Astoria, or wherever found on tide water.

"The producers and shippers of wheat in Eastern Oregon, Washington, and Idaho have for years and are yet, mainly by reason of these obstructions in the Columbia River, which have prevented river competition with railroad transportation, been subjected to transportation charges ranging from 2½ to over 3 cents per mile. Compare these charges with transportation rates on wheat between Chicago and New York, for instance, which by all water are but a fraction more than 2 mills per ton per mile, and by all rail less than 5 mills per ton per mile, then the exorbitant nature of the transportation rates for the transportation of wheat from the interior to the seaboard in the Pacific Northwest may be fully comprehended.

"Your committee, in considering this important subject, first, in 1886-'87, during the second session of the Forty-ninth Congress, made the following statement in a report submitted to the Senate February 1, 1887:

"THE TRAFFIC, PRESENT AND PROSPECTIVE, ON AND ALONG THE COLUMBIA RIVER, AND THE SAVING TO THE PEOPLE BY A FREE RIVER.

"The wheat traffic alone along the Columbia River is over 600,000 tons per year. Taken with all other freight it is safe to estimate within the next two years a two-way traffic of over 1,000,000 tons of freight will pass along this river by boat and rail. This traffic is now subject to a freight tax of over 3 cents per ton per mile, which, on an average haul of 200 miles, is a tax on the producer and shipper of $6,000,000 annually, while on an average haul of 300 miles between Portland, Oregon, Eastern Oregon, Eastern Washington Territory, and Western Idaho, the freight tax annually on the producers and shippers will be about $9,000,000.

"With the completion of the canal and locks at the Cascades, and the completion of the proposed boat railway and accompanying improvements at The Dalles, it is safe to predict that freight charges would be reduced at once at least to one-half of 1 cent per ton per mile. On an average haul, therefore, of about 200 miles, this would, on the estimate of the amount of freight as heretofore given, relieve the country, the producer, and shipper of a freight tax of about $5,000,000 annually; but should the reduction in freight charges by these improvements prove not to be so great as above indicated, should the rates not go below 1 cent per ton per mile, it would still be extravagantly high compared with the rates in States and Territories east of the Rocky Mountains. The saving to the people even in that case would be $4,000,000 annually on an average haul of 200 miles, or a saving of $6,000,000 annually on an average haul of 300 miles.

"The vast territory east of the Cascade Mountains tributary to the Columbia River, including about two-thirds of Oregon, more than one-half of Washington, Idaho, and a large portion of Montana, is rapidly settling up, and its products of the cereals, wool, animals, and minerals is increasing with wonderful rapidity.

"The Report of the Department of Agriculture for 1891 shows that Oregon raised last year 13,149,000 bushels of wheat on 692,000 acres of land, valued at $11,551,100, and that the wheat yield of Washington was 17,216,000 bushels grown on 698,910 acres, and valued at $9,161,775.

"It is safe to estimate that 20,000,000 bushels of the wheat yield of the two States was raised east of the Cascade Mountains, and judging from the increase of the yield in past years, and taking into consideration the rapid settlement of the region and the small amount of land in cultivation, it is safe to estimate that if 1892 should be a favorable year for wheat production in Eastern Oregon and Washington the wheat yield of the region will be increased to 25,000,000 bushels. The entire cost of completing the canal and locks at the Cascades is $4,745,816, and the estimated cost of the construction of a boat railway at The Dalles and Celilo Falls and Ten-Mile Rapids is $2,860,356.35, a total of $4,606,172.35.

"If reasonable and usual appropriations for such work should be made in the next river and harbor appropriation bill for these two improvements the balance required for their completion will be less than $4,000,000. It is entirely safe to say that the saving in the cost of transportation of the wheat crop of Eastern Oregon and Washington alone, if the obstructions at the Cascades and The Dalles were removed, would in two years amount to the full cost of both improvements, to say nothing of the saving of freight upon other cereals, on wool, animals, and minerals, or upon the products of Idaho and Montana sent to the seaboard by the way of the Columbia River Valley, or the saving in the cost of transportation from the seaboard to this region of articles required to supply the wants of settlers there.

"The committee do not believe there is another river improvement in the United States where the same expenditure would produce greater benefits to the people directly interested than the expenditure for the improvement provided for by this bill and the expenditure for its counterpart improvement at The Dalles of the Columbia.

"The interests of the Government, of the people of the Pacific Northwest, and of the entire Union demand the speedy opening of the Columbia River to commerce by the removal of the obstructions at the Cascades, and your committee earnestly recommend the passage of the bill.

The letter of the president of the Oregon State Board of Commerce is as follows:

OREGON STATE BOARD OF COMMERCE,
Portland, January 7, 1891.

MY DEAR SIR: Referring to your inquiry as to the extent of territory drained by the Columbia River, and amount of products for which that water could be made available as a means of transportation, I beg to say:

The State of Oregon contains about 103,000 square miles, or say, in round numbers, about 65,000,000 acres. In a general way it may be said that about three-quarters of this territory is tributary to the Columbia River as a means of communication with the markets of the world; or at least, that the rates of transportation are directly or indirectly influenced and affected by it, on the same principle announced by the high authority of Mr. Albert Fink, that transportation rates between the Mississippi Valley and the Eastern seaboard via the Great Lakes and the Erie Canal controls all freight rates as far south as the State of Tennessee.

Oregon, like the adjoining State of Washington, is divided by the Cascade range of mountains into two divisions, known as Western and Eastern. The Columbia River divides these two States from the Pacific Ocean for about 350 miles, and then passes wholly into the State of Washington, taking a northeasterly course until it reaches the northern limit of United States territory. There is no break in the Cascade range of mountains through which water courses pass, save only the Columbia River. The great belt of territory known as Eastern Washington has no means of access to tide water on the western coast, except by using the pass of the Columbia or by railway over the mountains, involving grades aggregating over 4,000 feet of elevation, and, of course, corresponding expense.

The great basin of the Columbia, in Eastern Washington, comprises over 40,000 square miles, or say over 25,000,000 acres. This territory is being rapidly settled and brought under cultivation; the population of this portion of the State having increased from 35,206 in 1880, to 129,154 in 1890. Its productiveness, especially as to its adaptation to the growth of wheat, is now well established, and while the exact proportion of this territory susceptible of being made available for cereal production can not be stated with certainty, it is believed that at least 40 per cent of it, or say 12,000,000 acres, is adapted to wheat raising; a portion by the aid of irrigation, but a large area where that process of cultivation is not necessary.

In 1890 there was harvested in Eastern Washington about 565,000 acres of wheat, producing as near as can be ascertained 12,500,000 bushels, or an average of over 22 bushels per acre. Figures for 1891 are not available at this moment, but the product was but little if any in excess of 1890 on perhaps 10 per cent larger acreage, the yield per acre having been about 20 bushels per acre.

Eastern Oregon contains about 65,000 square miles, or say, 41,000,000 acres; probably 60 per cent of this area, or say, 25,000,000, is susceptible of cultivation in cereals, but a much larger proportion than in Washington can only be done by the aid of irrigation.

Eastern Oregon harvested in 1891 about 265,500 acres of wheat, producing about 5,500,000 bushels, or say, 20.7 bushels per acre. For the two States east of the Cascades we have as the product of 1891 about 18,000,000 bushels of wheat, about 80 per cent of which, or say, 14,400,000 bushels, must find some outlet to the markets of the world. The average distance from points where this wheat was grown to Portland is about 300 miles (not more); to Puget Sound somewhat more. The average freight rate to either Portland or Puget Sound is about 16½ cents per bushel, or practically 1.8 cents per ton per mile to Portland.

Exactly what reduction might be realized for the benefit of the producer by the opening of the Columbia above the Cascade Canal and the Snake River as far as navigable can not be stated with certainty, but reasoning from analogy based on approximately similar conditions it may be assumed that freight rates from, say, Lewiston to Portland, a distance of 375 miles by rail, would not exceed 12 cents per bushel; possibly not 10 cents. The higher rate (12 cents) would be a reduction of 6 cents per bushel from present rates from Lewiston to Portland by rail, or 33½ per cent.

It is not supposed that the opening of the rivers to free navigation, as indicated, would bring about corresponding reduction in all freight rates, as at Lewiston, a river competing point, but it is fair to assume that a general reduction of at least 15 per cent would be realized on all freight rates between the wheat-growing sections and tide water, and this would mean over $100,000 more value to the producer on the present comparatively limited productions of wheat in Eastern Oregon and Washington, to say nothing of the near future when that production may be expected to increase many fold.

The above treats of wheat only; other cereals are produced largely in the same territory, but at present not greatly in excess of home consumption. Barley, oats, rye, and flax can be profitably, and no doubt will be largely produced there in the near future when freight rates shall have rendered such production profitable for sale.

Other commodities than grain and its product will realize corresponding or similar reductions in freight rates by the opening of the river route, whether or not they should be mainly or at all transported by the water way.

As to the future possibilities of cereal production in the Columbia Valley, east of the Cascades, it is quite impossible to accurately forecast, but it is quite within reason to assume that it can easily be made to reach over 200,000,000 bushels of wheat, besides other grains, wool, live stock, and other agricultural products. These industries are as yet in their infancy, but are promising an early and unparalleled growth, with a better prospect of high remuneration to the agriculturist than perhaps any portion of the world.

The remarkably large yields of grain, and the comparative ease with which it is cultivated and harvested, renders the country peculiarly inviting, and when the cost of marketing crops shall have been reduced to the minimum, the country will attract a still more rapid settlement.

Stock-raising is carried on very largely in Eastern Oregon, in fact it may be said, at the present time, to be the principal industry of an agricultural character. This is partly owing to the adaptability of that section for this purpose, but perhaps more on account of the entire lack of transportation facilities throughout most of the section not justifying the production of large quantities of cereals for sale.

In 1890 there were in this portion of the State about 275,000 cattle, 140,000 horses and mules, and 1,250,000 sheep, the latter yielding about 9,000,000 pounds of wool. It may be remarked, however, that the number of sheep in this section was greatly reduced from the previous years, on account of the unusually severe winter of 1889-'90, which it is estimated destroyed from 25 to 30 per cent of the stock of sheep.

In portions of Eastern Oregon and Washington, there are vast forests of exceptionally fine timber lands. These are being cut to some extent, and the lumber marketed largely in the East. The cost of transportation, however, and the unlimited supply of fine lumber west of the Cascade Range, renders competition on the coast unprofitable for such lumber as is produced on the east side of that range; hence comparatively little of it finds its way westward.

In respect to Western Oregon, or that portion of the State mainly tributary to the Columbia River below the Cascade Canal, we note as its principal agricultural district that great Willamette Valley, fully equal, if indeed it is not superior to any grain-producing district in the country. This valley embraces, in round numbers, about 10,000,000 acres of land, probably two-thirds of which is susceptible of easy cultivation; it is more densely settled than Eastern Oregon, but is far from being fully occupied. The population of this portion of the State in 1890 was 136,849, against 41,189 in 1880. In 1891 it produced from 369,360 acres 8,550,000 bushels of wheat, an average of 23.2 bushels per acre. As in Eastern Oregon, other cereals are produced, but not greatly in excess of local consumption.

Of the wheat produced, probably 6,000,000 bushels or more will be disposed of for export, mainly to Europe. This will, in the main find its way to market via Portland and the Columbia River.

A very large area of the territory in Western Oregon is covered with heavy timber of superior quality, considerable quantities of which are exported to foreign countries. The figures representing the annual cut of lumber in Oregon and that part of Washington tributary to the Columbia River, are not available, but are large and susceptible of almost indefinite increase.

The tonnage passing out of the Columbia River for a series of years has been as follows:

Years.	Deep-sea sailing vessels.		Steamers.		Coasters.		Totals.
	No.	Tonnage.	No.	Tonnage.	No.	Tonnage.	No.	Tonnage.
1885.....	118	119,307	114	265,690	88	22,152	350	407,149
1886.....	156	171,108	121	231,811	61	20,823	338	426,982
1887.....	85	100,968	133	252,861	69	32,189	287	385,818

1890.....	62	88,890	313	311,377	71	22,848	446	423,115

The record for 1891 is not yet fully compiled, but will be substantially as follows:

	Number.	Tonnage.
Deep-sea sailing vessels.....	116	152,622
Steamers.....	334	310,000
Coasters.....	64	21,509
Total.....	514	484,132

Of the mining industries, of which the eastern portion of Oregon and Washington are largely engaged, I have no data of value nor yet of the coal interests, which are very large in Western Washington, and of considerable extent on the coast of Oregon.

I think these cover all the points in the direction indicated upon which I can give information of value.

Yours truly,

T. F. OSBORN, President

[Hon. J. N. DOLPH,
Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C.]

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and read the third time.

Mr. VANCE. I ask for the yeas and nays on the passage of that bill.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Chief Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL].

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I again announce my pair with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CASEY]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

Mr. PLATT (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]. Unless I can be assured that he would vote for this bill if present, I shall withhold my vote.

Mr. SHERMAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. CARLISLE].

Mr. WARREN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON]. In the absence of his colleague [Mr. COLQUITT] I am unable to say how he would vote, except that I am informed he agreed in committee to the report as made. I therefore take the liberty of voting, and vote "yea."

Mr. WILSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT]. As he is not present, I withhold my vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. PADDOCK. My colleague [Mr. MANDERSON] is paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN].

Mr. HANSBROUGH. Is the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER] recorded as voting?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He is not recorded.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. Then I withhold my vote. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. COCKRELL. I am paired with the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON], but I voted "yea." I presume he would vote "yea," if present. Does his colleague [Mr. WILSON] know how he would vote?

Mr. WILSON. I think my colleague would vote "yea," if present; but he did not inform me.

Mr. COCKRELL. I shall let my vote remain, and if the Senator from Iowa wants to place himself on record as voting "nay," he can do so; but I do not think he will, for I believe he would vote "yea," if present.

The result was announced—yeas 46, nays 4; as follows:

So the bill was passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill making appropriations for the purpose of securing the early completion of the canal and locks at the Cascades of the Columbia River."

BOAT RAILWAY AT THE DALLES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the next special order, the bill (S. 525) making an appropriation for the construction of a boat railway at The Dalles and Celilo Falls and Ten-Mile Rapids of the Columbia River, and for the improvement of Three-Mile Rapids.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported by the Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard with an amendment, to add the following:

This appropriation to cover the whole cost of the proposed improvement.

So as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, &c., That the sum of $2,860,356.35, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, in the construction of a boat railway, and of the necessary marine apparatus and appliances in connection therewith, for the purpose of transferring boats and their cargoes over and across the obstructions to navigation at The Dalles, and Celilo Falls, and Ten-Mile Rapids, on the Columbia River, either in the State of Oregon or the State of Washington, as may be determined most expedient by the Secretary of War, and in the improvement of Three-Mile Rapids, such improvements to be made in accordance with the recommendations, plans, and specifications included in the report of the Board of Engineers of the United States appointed by the Secretary of War in pursuance of the provisions of the act of Congress approved August 13, 1888, and entitled "An act making appropriations for the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors, and for other purposes;" this appropriation to be immediately available. This appropriation to cover the whole cost of the proposed improvement.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. President, this bill has heretofore passed the Senate twice. I do not desire to take up the time of the Senate, as the subject has heretofore been discussed at length. The bill has been reported unanimously from the Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard. The report, which I hold in my hand, has been prepared, setting forth the matter fully, and I desire to have it incorporated in the RECORD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to printing the report in the RECORD?

Mr. BUTLER. I do not see any occasion for printing the report. What is the necessity for it?

Mr. MITCHELL. I hope the Senator will not object to printing the report in the RECORD.

Mr. HAWLEY. If the bill is generally accepted and the report is here on file, what is the use of printing it in the RECORD?

Mr. MITCHELL. Very well. I shall not press the request.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and read the third time.

Mr. VANCE. I ask for the yeas and nays on the passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL].

Mr. PLATT (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. SHERMAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. CARLISLE].

Mr. TURPIE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS].

Mr. WILSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. HISCOCK (after having voted in the affirmative). It is the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES] voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not.

Mr. HISCOCK. I am paired with that Senator, and withdraw my vote.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The vote will be withdrawn.

The result was announced—yeas 38, nays 8; as follows:

YEAS—38.

Colquitt,	Irby,	Proctor,

So the bill was passed.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the Senate adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 4 o'clock and 20 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday, March 23, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, March 22, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

JOHN W. FAIRFAX.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of John W. Fairfax against the United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

INVESTIGATION OF PENSION OFFICE.

Mr. ENLOE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Special Committee on the Investigation of the Management of the Pension Office, be, and it is hereby, authorized to employ an expert examiner to aid in the examination of cases in the Pension Office his compensation not to exceed $5 per day.

Mr. DINGLEY. Reserving the right to object, I would ask the purpose of this resolution?

Mr. ENLOE. Mr. Speaker, I understand this resolution is to get some one to represent the committee in the examination of cases in the Pension Office, as it is impossible for the members of the committee to give their entire time to that work, or to give their time to the extent that it would be necessary in order to make the examination desired in certain cases in the Pension Office; and, furthermore, I do not know that any member of the committee is sufficiently expert in knowledge of the management of the affairs of the Pension Office to be able to conduct that sort of an examination.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. BROSIUS. Could we have the resolution again reported? I am a member of the committee, and did not hear it.

The resolution was again reported.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. ENLOE, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

EFFICIENCY OF THE MILITIA.

Mr. LAND. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that 5,000 additional copies of the bill (H. R. 7318), to promote the efficiency of the militia, and report numbered 751, to accompany the bill, be printed, they being exhausted.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

MODE OF ELECTING PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to submit a privileged report from the Committee on Printing, and will ask the Clerk to first read the resolution.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the House 5,000 copies of Senate Report No. 395 of the Forty-third Congress, by the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, upon the mode of electing President and Vice-President.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will now read the report.

The report was read, as follows:

The committee have considered the resolution of Mr. WHEELER of Michigan, to print for the use of the House 5,000 copies of Senate Report 395 of the Forty-third Congress, by the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, upon the mode of electing President and Vice-President of the United States. The estimated cost of same is $99.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The question was put, and the resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. RICHARDSON, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

CALL OF COMMITTEES FOR REPORTS.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will call the list of committees for reports.

FEES IN UNITED STATES COURTS.

Mr. BUCHANAN of Virginia, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported back a substitute for the bill (H. R. 6657) to reenact and amend section 854 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with accompanying report, ordered to be printed. The original bill was ordered to lie on the table.

DATE OF ASSEMBLING OF CONGRESS.

Mr. BUCHANAN of Virginia, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported back adversely the bill (H. R. 4582) to appoint a different day, namely, March 4, for the annual assembly of Congress in the year A. D. 1893, and thereafter.

PENSIONS FOR ARMY NURSES.

Mr. BUTLER, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 7294) granting pensions to army nurses; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SIMPSON COUNTY, KY.

Mr. BUNN. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the report 675, which is printed as accompanying House bill 1036, be reprinted. It is an error, and it should have been printed so as to show that it is to accompany the bill (H. R. 4475) for the relief of the board of commissioners of the sinking fund or the county court of Simpson County, Ky. They are different matters, and I desire that it should be corrected.

The SPEAKER. This report will be reprinted, as indicated, if there be no objection.

There was no objection.

STREET RAILROADS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mr. HEARD, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported back with amendment the joint resolution (H. Res. 108) extending the time in which certain street railroads compelled by act of Congress approved August 6, 1890, to change their motive power from horse power to mechanical power for one year; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The call of the committees for reports was concluded.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. WARWICK, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found truly enrolled bills and a joint resolution of the following titles: when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (H. R. 5418) to amend an act entitled "An act making appropriations to provide for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1881.

A bill (S. 1655) to punish the unlawful appropriation of the use of the property of another in the District of Columbia; and Joint resolution (S. R. 44) authorizing the Librarian of Congress to exhibit certain documents at the World's Columbian Exposition.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. McCook, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed without any amendment bills of the following titles:

A bill (H. R. 497) to determine the sessions of the circuit and district courts of the United States for the eastern district of Wisconsin;

A bill (H. R. 1157) to remove the political disabilities of John R. F. Tamm;

A bill (H. R. 1737) to increase the pension of Anna Maria Young, a Revolutionary pensioner;

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. BATE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 309) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of John Hill, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. BATE. I am instructed by the Committee on Military Affairs to ask the indefinite postponement of the bill (S. 1797, for the relief of Capt. W. M. Wallace, and to ask that permission be granted for the withdrawal of the papers by the claimant, so that they can be taken before the Third Auditor, which is the proper place for their presentation.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That order will be made, if there be no objection.

Mr. PALMER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1441) for the relief of Emile B. Weishaar, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1384) for the correction of the army record of Lieut. Harry R. Anderson, United States Army, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2093) to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. WALTHALL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 609) authorizing the Secretary of War to correct the military record of Henry S. Cohn, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6214) to increase the pension of William Burrough, of Crawford County, Ark., veteran of the war of 1812, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PROCTOR, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 4275) to grant to the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railroad Company a right of way across the Fort Montgomery military reservation, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, reported adversely thereon, and they were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 545) to define the grade of certain medical officers of the Army, and for other purposes.

A bill (S. 895) authorizing and directing the Secretary of War to prepare a medal of honor roll, and for other purposes; and

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Mr. CAREY submitted the following resolution which was passed:

Whereas the best interests of the Federal Government demand that it should own and have absolute control of all buildings necessary for public purposes, and for the proper care and custody of its records at the seat of Government; Be it therefore

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds be instructed to investigate, inquire, and report as to the condition of the public buildings in the city of Washington, and report what additional buildings in said city are needed for the uses of the Federal Government in order to carry on its business, to preserve and protect its public records, to afford proper and suitable accommodations for those engaged in the public service, the estimated cost of such buildings; and in this connection to report the sum annually expended by the several branches of the Government for leased or rented buildings in the city of Washington.

Sec. 2. That the said committee report by bill or otherwise, on or before the first Monday of December next, such legislation as in their opinion may be necessary in the premises.

Third. If it is necessary to carry out the object of this inquiry said committee or subcommittee thereof is authorized to sit during the recess.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. VEST. I desire to say to the Senator from Wyoming that in the first week, I believe, of this session the Senate passed unanimously a bill for the construction of a hall of records for storing all valuable papers and documents connected with both House of Congress, the Supreme Court, and the different Executive Departments. Such a bill has passed the Senate four times without opposition, and that bill is now pending in the House of Representatives. It was based upon information given to us year after year of the fact that valuable papers in the nature of vouchers were endangered by fire as stored now in the different Executive Departments; and yet the bill has never been even considered in the coordinate branch of Congress. The Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds can do nothing more in the premises. We have reported again and again in regard to the danger of fire in this Capitol, and I have myself repeatedly on the floor of the Senate called attention to the fact that the tunity to take this particular matter to which the petition refers into consideration. It would like very well to know if something is to be done by the committee having charge of the same, directly or indirectly, correctly or incorrectly, speaking in a strictly parliamentary sense.

Mr. PLATT. Mr. President, in the absence of the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, and owing to the fact that I was appointed a subcommittee to consider the subject, together with the Senator from Alabama [Mr. PUGH], perhaps I ought to reply to the inquiry which has been made by the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. PADDOCK].

We have had some lengthy hearings of persons who are in favor of and those opposed to what is known as the Washburn option bill. It is a bill which proposes on its face to raise revenue and which intends under that proposal to prevent the business which it is proposed to tax; but as it is a bill ostensibly to raise revenue, it is a bill which can not, under the Constitution, be acted upon by the Senate until it comes to us from the House of Representatives. I think that suggestion at least ought to relieve the committee from any charge of delay in having acted upon the bill.

Perhaps the committee departed a little from the usual custom in such cases in considering it until it came from the House, even to the extent of having hearings upon it. I think we have gone further, perhaps, than the practice and rules of the Senate under the Constitution would strictly permit in having the hearings and doing what we have already done in relation to the bill.

Mr. PADDOCK. I have no doubt the committee has done all it possibly could do.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I rise to ask if this question respecting the condition of a bill which is in committee comes under the head of morning business? There is a resolution on the table which is part of the morning business, which, if it is in order, I should be very glad to have called up.

Mr. PADDOCK. I suppose I may properly, perhaps, as chairman of the committee having charge of subjects of this kind, raise a matter of privilege in connection with the introduction of petitions relating to such subjects, raise an inquiry of the kind which I have raised.

I am entirely satisfied that the committee having charge of the matter by order of the Senate has done the best it could. When the bill was referred I thought there were reasons why it might go to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, because it is a subject that that committee has to deal with, and with it always deals promptly when sent to it for consideration. When this bill was introduced I was informed that there were legal questions involved in the bill which the Committee on the Judiciary might properly and usefully consider, and, therefore, I waived the right, whatever it might be, and did not make the motion to have the bill go to my committee. Hence this inquiry, which I consider, under all the circumstances, pertinent and not impertinent.

LISTS OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYÉS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a resolution offered by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. Wolcott] coming over from a previous day, which will be read.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the heads of the several Departments and of the other branches of the public service in the city of Washington be directed to transmit to the Senate lists of all their subordinates, stating their names, legal residences, compensation, and duties, who were on the 1st day of March, instant, employed in said city, not as laborers or workmen nor as members of the classified civil service, and were not specifically authorized or appropriated for by law, but were appointed or employed according to the discretion of the official appointing or employing them, and paid from some general or special fund subject to his control; and that accompanying such lists shall be transmitted like lists of all persons employed or paid as laborers or workmen who have performed clerical or other higher duty.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. President, I desire to modify the resolution by adding, in the sixth line, after the words "laborers or workmen," the words "or as printers, binders, or pieceworkers," the object of the inquiry not extending to the Printing Office.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be so modified. The question is on the resolution as modified.

Mr. WOLCOTT. The modification excludes printers and binders from the inquiry.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is that the resolution introduced yesterday morning by the Senator?

Mr. WOLCOTT. Yes.

Mr. ALLISON. I do not object to the resolution, although I desire to call the attention of the Senator from Colorado to the fact that under this resolution, unless it is now modified so as to exclude them—and I am not clear but that the modification has that effect—it will require the Public Printer to produce here a list of all his employes, except one or two.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Printers, binders, or pieceworkers are excepted definitely from the provisions of the resolution by the modification which I have just made.

Mr. ALLISON. Very well. Then that will relieve, of course, the resolution from that objection; but I will say to the Senator what I believe to be true, that every employe in the office of the Public Printer is named in the Blue Book which has been published within a month, so that the name of every employe in the office of the Public Printer has been furnished to the public, including the persons named by the Senator.

Mr. PLATT. Let the resolution be read as modified.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution as modified will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the heads of the several Departments and of the other branches of the public service in the city of Washington be directed to transmit to the Senate lists of all their subordinates, stating their names, legal residences, compensation, and duties, who were on the 1st day of March, instant, employed in said city not as laborers or workmen or as printers, binders, or pieceworkers, nor as members of the classified civil service, and were not specifically authorized or appropriated for by law, but were appointed or employed according to the discretion of the official appointing or employing them, and paid from some general or special fund subject to his control; and that accompanying such lists shall be transmitted like lists of all persons employed or paid as laborers or workmen who have performed clerical or other higher duty.

Mr. ALLISON. I desire to ask the Senator if he means to include the government of the District of Columbia in this resolution?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I do not.

Mr. ALLISON. The civil service does not apply to the government of the District of Columbia, and yet the resolution reads: "The heads of the several Departments and of the other branches of the public service in the city of Washington." The Senator does not mean to include the government of the District of Columbia?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I did not intend under the resolutions to cover the employes of the government of the District of Columbia.

Mr. HALE. Will the Senator state as briefly as he may just what classes of persons the resolution is intended to cover?

Mr. WOLCOTT. With pleasure. There are four classes of public employes, as I understand, not in the classified civil service. Those expressly excluded from the civil service, as the heads of Departments and the like, laborers, those that come under the head of laborers, and those specially designated by the act creating the office. I am informed—I do not know how truthfully—that there are many other employes holding office under the Government who are not properly included within these different designations; that there are in the Government service people employed as laborers, who are in fact doing clerical service—the name "laborer" is a misnomer—that there are people carried upon the rolls here and charged to the account for construction and the like, and it seems to me, Mr. President, if civil-service reform is to have a fair test, whether we are in favor of it or against it, we ought at least to know that the provisions of the law are carried out.

It is certainly true that some of us upon making applications, which we are compelled to make on behalf of our constituents, are met by the statement that it is utterly impossible in the Departments to find employment for worthy people, either because they can not perform the duties of a laborer or because they have not passed the civil-service examination. The same application elsewhere is met by a prompt affirmative answer and these people are put upon the rolls. It is largely a matter of favoritism. In any event, Mr. President, we are all in the dark as to what particular people may be employed, in what particular capacity they may be employed, who is to appoint them, and under what rules.

Mr. HALE. Does the resolution include the Census Office?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I should say that it includes the Census.

Mr. HALE. Not that that is particularly the branch that the Senator is looking after?

Mr. WOLCOTT. Not in the least. I am looking after no particular branch. I am only desirous that we shall know what branches are now under the civil service, what branches are not, how the employments are graded, how the offices are procured, and what offices are open to appointment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution as modified.

The resolution as modified was agreed to.

REVENUE CUTTER SERVICE.

Mr. SHERMAN. I offer a resolution which I send to the desk, and ask for its adoption, if there be no objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to furnish the Senate a detailed statement of the saving or increase in the annual expenses of the Revenue Cutter Service which would result from the transfer of said service from the Treasury to the Navy Department.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. CHANDLER. I ask that the resolution go over.
The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution goes over.

EULOGIES ON THE LATE SENATOR HEARST.

On motion by Mr. STEWART, it was

Resolved, That the time fixed for offering and considering resolutions commemorative of the life, character, and public services of the late Senator from California, George Hearst, heretofore fixed for this day at 3 o'clock p. m., be postponed until to-morrow at 3 o'clock p. m.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

Mr. GIBSON of Louisiana. I present a petition of the Merchants' Exchange, representatives of industrial bodies, and the municipal government of St. Louis, Mo., to the Fifty-second Congress of the United States, in favor of the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi River.

Mr. President, as this is a very important document, I ask that it may be printed and referred to the Committee on Printing, with an order to print 2,000 extra copies. It is full of interesting facts and statements in respect to the improvement of the Mississippi River.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The memorial will be printed as a document, if there be no objection, and referred to the Committee on Printing, with the accompanying order; which will be read.

The order was read and referred to the Committee on Printing, as follows:

Ordered. That 2,000 copies of the memorial of the Merchants' Exchange, representatives of industrial bodies, and the municipal government of St. Louis, to the Fifty-second Congress of the United States, in favor of the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi River, be printed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. HAWLEY, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2699) to repeal section 16, chapter 294, of the act approved July 15, 1870, "making appropriations for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1871," relating to brevets, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PADDOCK. From the Committee on Public Lands, I report back, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute, the bill (S. 782) to provide for the adjustment of certain sales of lands in the late reservation of the Confederated Otoe and Missouria tribes of Indians in the States of Nebraska and Kansas, and I submit a written report. I move that the bill, with the amendment and report, be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, as it relates to an Indian matter as well as a public-land matter.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. PLATT, from the Committee on Territories, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2373) to establish the boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park, and for other purposes, reported it with an amendment.

Mr. PLATT. I am directed by the Committee on Territories to report back favorably with an amendment the bill (H. R. 5199) to amend an act entitled "An act approving with amendments the funding act of Arizona," approved June 25, 1890, together with a written report.

I wish to state that as there is pressing necessity for the passage of this bill, if it is to be passed, I shall ask the unanimous consent of the Senate to call it up at an early day. I do not ask action on it this morning, because I desire to have the report printed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. PERKINS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 4533) for the relief of holders of drawback certificates issued under an act of Congress approved June 2, 1890, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE, from the Committee on Fisheries, to whom was referred the bill (S. 4126) for the establishment of a fish-hatchery in the State of Montana, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PROCTOR, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 741) to reappoint Warren C. Beach a captain in the Army, and to place him on the retired list in addition to the number now authorized, submitted an adverse report thereon: which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2619) to vacate that part of Madison street, Georgetown, west of Back street, and extend Y street in Barleith, in the District of Columbia, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. BLODGETT, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4288) authorizing the payment of the pension of Edward S. Smith, accrued at the date of his death, to his mother, Catherine, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. WOLCOTT, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2651) for the protection of boarding-house keepers, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 2720) to encourage postal savings, especially in districts remote from money depositories, to invest the same, and to divide earnings among depositors; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2721) granting an honorable discharge to John Summers; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. COKE introduced a bill (S. 2722) appropriating funds for investigations and tests of American timber; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2723) granting a pension to Sarah Rihelardorf; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 2724) granting a pension to Mary A. Gannett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CALL introduced a bill (S. 2725) granting a pension to William P. Butler; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. COCKRELL introduced a bill (S. 2726) granting a pension to Henry Sands; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. COCKRELL. I present the petition of Henry Sands, of Cole County, Mo., helpless and dependent son of Harmon G. Sands, late a member of Cole County (Mo.) Home Guards, First United States Reserve Corps, praying to be allowed a pension. I also present a certificate from Gen. Wickham, adjutant-general of Missouri, as to the record of Harmon G. Sands, the father, and an affidavit of Dr. J. L. Thorpe, and an affidavit of W. H. Lusk and Martin Niemeyer to accompany the bill.

I move that the bill, with the accompanying papers, be referred to the Committee on Pensions.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CAREY introduced a bill (S. 2727) to enable the people of the Territory of Utah to provide for the collection, arrangement, and display of the products of said Territory at the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

DISTRICT MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION.

Mr. CULLOM submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Be it resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That in pursuance of a certificate of incorporation of the "Memorial Association of the District of Columbia," signed by Melville W. Fuller, John M. Schofield, John W. Foster, B. H. Warner, S. P. Langley, A. B. Hagner, J. C. Bancroft Davis, Walter S. Cox, S. H. Kaufman, A. R. Spofford, John Hay, J. W. Douglass, Myron M. Parker, Gardiner G. Hubbard, W. D. Davidge, S. S. Franklin, Charles C. Glover, and Tannis S. Hamlin, and recorded March 21, 1892, the President of the United States, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives be, and they hereby are, authorized and directed to appoint each six citizens of the District of Columbia to be members of said association, and to serve for the terms of one, two, and three years respectively as they may determine by lot, and thereafter to appoint annually each two members to serve for three years.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed and the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After two hours and twenty-five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

COURTS IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Mr. WILSON. I ask leave to submit a report. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2643) changing the time for holding the circuit and district courts in the district of West Virginia, to report it back favorably without amendment. The Senators from West Virginia are anxious to have the bill passed, inasmuch as it provides for changes that will take effect, if the bill becomes a law, in April. I ask unanimous consent that the bill may be acted upon now.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT HELENA, MONT.

Mr. SANDERS. I ask unanimous consent to call up the bill (S. 880) to provide for the construction of a public building at Helena, Mont. I think we can complete the bill before the special order set for 3 o'clock.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 880) to provide for the construction of a public building at Helena, Mont.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

VALUE OF THE DOLLAR.

Mr. STANFORD. I desire to give notice that on Tuesday next, after the morning business, I shall, with the consent of the Senate, call up the bill (S. 2397) to determine the value of a legal-tender dollar, for the purpose of submitting a few remarks thereon.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

On motion of Mr. BUTLER, it was

Ordered, That when the Senate adjourn to-day, it be to meet on Monday next.

EULOGIES ON THE LATE SENATOR HEARST.

Mr. STANFORD. Mr. President, I offer the resolutions which I send to the desk, and ask that they may be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution submitted by the Senator from California will be read.

The resolutions were read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with profound sorrow of the death of George Hearst, late a Senator from the State of California.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the business of the Senate be now suspended to enable his associates to pay proper tribute of regard to his high character and distinguished public services.

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate communicate these resolutions to the House of Representatives.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolutions.

The resolutions were agreed to unanimously.

Mr. STANFORD. Mr. President, the death of Senator George Hearst occurred so near the close of the last session of Congress that we had no opportunity to pay any extended tributes of respect to his memory in this Chamber.

It is for this reason that I have introduced the resolutions which have just been read.

In March, 1850, a young man was traveling westward across the continent, on foot, beside an ox wagon. His outfit and a small sum of money in his pocket were his only possessions, and he was marching 2,000 miles through an uninhabited country to seek his fortune.

In March, 1894, the same man was crossing the same plains.

By unanimous consent, leave was granted Mr. BRENTANO, of Kentucky, to withdraw papers from the files of the House in the case of William P. Hall, captain Fifth Cavalry.

EXPENSES OF JUDICIAL INVESTIGATION.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of this resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That in the investigation now being made by the Senate Committee on the Judiciary of alleged abuses of process and other irregularities of the Judicial Department of the United States, during the administration of the Hon. Stephen A. Tilden, the Chief Justice of the United States, the House be authorized to employ such clerical and investigative aid as the House may deem proper, and investigation on the Clerk of the House from the Committee on the Judiciary, to be paid for by the House.

THE SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this resolution?

Mr. DINGLEY. Reserving the right to object, I would like to have the gentleman explain the meaning of this resolution. I did not hear the reading of the first part.

Mr. CULBERSON. I will state to the gentleman from Maine that this investigation was undertaken at the instance of the Attorney-General.

Mr. DINGLEY. What is the investigation?

Mr. CULBERSON. An investigation into alleged irregularities charged to have occurred in several of the courts of the United States, abuse of process and so forth. The original resolution did not provide for the manner of getting the money out of the contingent fund.

Mr. HENDERSON, of Iowa. Is this reported from the Committee on the Judiciary?

Mr. CULBERSON. Yes, the resolution has already been made, providing for this investigation, but there was no provision with reference to payment of the money for this investigation.

THE SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this resolution?

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The question being taken, the Speaker announced that changes seemed to have it.

Mr. BAILLY. Mr. Speaker, was it voted, and a division? I did not hear the reading of the resolution.

The House divided. Ayes 188, nays 4, yeas 1.

Mr. BAILLY. I make a report of no yeas, Mr. Speaker. THE SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTLEY) makes the point that no yeas have been voted.

Mr. CULBERSON. I am occupying the floor for the courtesy of the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. MANNING) and I will not allow this resolution.

Mr. MARTIN. I demand the yeas and nays.

PENSIONS.

THE SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana (Mr. MANNING) is the regular order. The Clerk will report the speech.

The Clerk read from the Journal of the proceedings of March 19, 1882, as follows:

On motion of Mr. MANNING, unanimously passed, that the House do pass the resolution, which the Committee on the Ways and Means has reported, and which was considered on Saturday, March 19, 1882, and which reads:

Mr. MARTIN. I demand to know that I would like to know, and the agreement made on last Friday evening concerning the bills.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BENTLEY. I am unanimous consent that the previous question be considered on the passage of the bill, and that the bill be passed.

THE SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana asks unanimous consent that the previous question be considered on the bill, which was passed on the 19th of March, 1882, and that the bill be passed.

RECIPROCAL TRADE RELATIONS WITH ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

Mr. MORGAN submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the President is requested to send to the Senate, if in his opinion it is not inconsistent with the public interests, the correspondence with the Government of the Argentine Republic on the subject of commercial reciprocity with the United States under section 3 of the act of October 1, 1890. And that he inform the Senate as to the articles exported from the United States to the Argentine Republic in reference to which the United States proposed or demanded that the customs duties imposed by the Argentine Republic be reduced or abolished, so as to make the commercial relations between the two countries reciprocally fair and just or equal and reasonable.

SOUTHERN UTE INDIAN LANDS.

Mr. WOLCOTT submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was read:

Resolved by the Senate (the House concurring), That the President be requested to refrain from allotting in severalty the lands of the present reservation of the Southern Ute Indians, pending legislation in the present Congress respecting the removal of said Indians to another reservation.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I give notice that I shall call up the resolution to-morrow at the close of the morning business and ask permission to make a few remarks upon it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Meanwhile the resolution will lie on the table.

REVENUE CUTTER SERVICE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a resolution coming over from a previous day, which will be read.

The resolution submitted on the 24th instant by Mr. SHERMAN was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to furnish the Senate a detailed statement of the saving or increase in the annual expense of the Revenue Cutter Service which would result from the transfer of said service from the Treasury to the Navy Department.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

Mr. CHANDLER. I desire to ask the Senator from Ohio whether he thinks that it is worth while to put the Secretary of the Treasury to the duty of preparing a statement of that kind? It is not exactly a call for information now on file in his Department, but a request to him to ascertain facts and make a comparison showing the results of the proposed transfer of the Revenue Marine. Now, the Secretary of the Treasury is a very busy man, and is it expedient to put him to doing that work at this time? If it were a mere call for facts within his Department I should not think of making this inquiry of the Senator; but the Secretary has just returned to his duties, and ought he to be taken away from more important duty to prepare this argument, so to speak, against the proposed transfer of the Revenue Marine Service to the Navy?

Mr. SHERMAN. Is the Senator through?

Mr. CHANDLER. That is my question. Is it worth while to put the Secretary of the Treasury to doing this work?

Mr. SHERMAN. The Secretary of the Navy has given his estimate of what he supposed would be the saving by this proposition, and now I want the estimate of the Treasury Department, where all the money is paid out, as to the saving or loss by the proposed change. As a matter of course, the Secretary of the Treasury will not have much to do in writing it out; his time will not be very much occupied in that particular pursuit when there are about 2,000 employes there who are very ready at that kind of business.

Mr. CHANDLER. But is there not danger, I ask the Senator, that the Secretary will take an estimate made by his subordinates, and being very busy himself transmit it here without that personal examination which he ought to make to give the information and which the subject ought to have?

Mr. SHERMAN. If he does so, he will only do exactly what the Secretary of the Navy did in making his estimate. It was prepared by one of his subordinates, I presume. I hope we shall not fear that these gentlemen overwork themselves by furnishing figures found upon their ledgers, and in which they probably are not called upon to do anything further than to sign their names to general results.

Mr. CHANDLER. I think the Senator does injustice to the Secretary of the Treasury. I do not believe, from my knowledge of him, that he will take a mere perfunctory statement prepared by a subordinate and send it here without scrutiny. I am very certain that the Secretary of the Navy in making his estimate has not failed to give the subject his personal attention. I ask the Senator, if he thinks the resolution ought to be passed, whether he has any objection to adding to it an amendment.

Mr. HOAR. Let the resolution be read again.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from New Hampshire will be read.

The Chief Clerk. It is proposed to add to the resolution:

And further, to transmit to the Senate a list of the vessels of the Revenue Marine, with a statement as to each of its tonnage and the number of guns and other arms, the number of the officers and crew, and the miles cruised during the past year, and also a statement showing the nature of the duty performed by each vessel, and whether the discipline on the cutters and the practice in the use of great guns and small arms is the same as that on vessels of the Navy.

Mr. SHERMAN. I have no objection to the amendment. Indeed that information can be found already in the reports; but there is no objection to having it transmitted in this connection.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. ALLISON. I think there is another item of information which it might be well to have in this connection, and that is the number of people who would be placed immediately on the retired list in the event of the transfer. I do not know but that it is embraced in the resolution of the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. SHERMAN. I did not expressly embrace it. I have no objection to the amendment, but I think the number of officers who would be retired is given, and the computation would be based upon that.

Mr. BUTLER. That will appear from the Register, I take it.

Mr. ALLISON. Very well; I do not ask that that be inserted. I only want to be sure that we shall have the information.

Mr. BUTLER. We have the information.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution as amended.

Mr. ALLISON. I would insert somewhere in the proper place "including the cost of the retired list."

Mr. SHERMAN. "The number of officers who will be placed on the retired list."

Mr. ALLISON. Yes, "the number of officers who will be placed on the retired list under the proposed change."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The Chief Clerk. It is proposed to add to the resolution,

In adding the number of officers to be placed on the retired list under the proposed legislation.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to furnish the Senate a detailed statement of the saving or increase in the annual expense of the Revenue Cutter Service which would result from the transfer of said service from the Treasury to the Navy Department, and further, to transmit to the Senate a list of the vessels of the Revenue Marine, with a statement as to each of its tonnage and the number of guns and other arms, the number of officers and crew, and the miles cruised during the past year; and also a statement showing the nature of the duty performed by each vessel, and whether the discipline on the cutters and the practice in the use of great guns and small arms is the same as that on vessels of the Navy, including the number of officers to be placed on the retired list under the proposed legislation.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE TO GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed, and the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. CAREY. I ask the Senate to proceed at this time to the consideration of Order of Business 221, Senate bill 1768, which was passed over without prejudice.

There being no objection, the Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 1768) to allow thirty days' leave of absence to employees in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and in the Navy Department.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill has been heretofore passed, and the vote by which the bill was ordered to a third reading and passage has been reconsidered. The bill is before the Senate and the pending amendment will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the amendment heretofore submitted by

Mr. CAREY, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, including the pieceworkers, shall be allowed leave of absence with pay, not exceeding thirty days in any one year, under such regulations and at such time or times as the Chief of the Bureau may prescribe and designate; and that all the draftsmen, assistant draftsmen, clerks, writers and copyists under the direction of the Navy Department who receive per diem pay shall be allowed thirty days' leave of absence each year without forfeiture of pay during such leave, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Navy may prescribe; Provided, That no such full leave of absence of thirty days shall be granted to any person, under the provisions of this act, who shall not have been an employe of said Bureau or Department for a period of not less than eleven months immediately preceding the granting of such leave.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. ALLISON. I suggest to the Senator from Wyoming that there should be inserted in line 7, after the word "Bureau," the words "with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury," so as to read:

At such time or times as the Chief of the Bureau, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe and designate.

Mr. CAREY. I have no objection to that.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. SHERMAN. I should like to ask the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. HAWLEY] whether this rule has been adopted in the Government Printing Office. This bill gives to all employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and therefore those who are employed by the day or the piece, thirty days' leave of absence with full pay.

Mr. HAWLEY. That is the law in regard to the Printing Office.

Mr. SHERMAN. It is adding one-twelfth to the expenses of this whole Bureau. If that is the desire it is not in my bailiwick, but still I think we ought to have a little regard for the public interests. When persons are employed on an annual salary there is a reason why they should have some holiday, extending from two weeks to thirty days, but when persons are employed by the piece they can regulate their own time in their own way and work as little or as much as they please. It seems to me the rule of allowing an additional thirty days' pay without work is not correct. If, however, that is the custom in the Printing Office, I do not see why it should not be applied to all the other branches of the Government.

Mr. CHANDLER. Mr. President, I would say to the Senator from Ohio that that is the law now as to the Government Printing Office both as to employes paid by the day and employes paid by the piece. The committee that reported this bill came to the conclusion that one class of these employes in Washington are entitled to this privilege just as much as another. If we do not give it to the class of persons who are provided for in this bill, then we ought to take it away from the employes of the Government Printing Office, and the rule, as has been explained, is applied not only to workers by the day and by the month and employes under salaries by the year, but to the pieceworkers under a rule for ascertaining the average of the amount earned by piecework. I am unable to see, as the committee that reported this bill have been unable to see, how we can make fish of one and flesh of another.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, of course Senators understand the old rule and the good rule was to give a furlough with pay only to persons in steady employment by the year, who had no control over their time and who needed a respite, and it was believed to be for the good of the service generally that such regular employes upon a salary for yearly work should receive this holiday.

The first innovation was made in the case of the Public Printing Office, and that after discussion was based upon the ground largely urged that, in effect, these were permanent employes, that the force in the Printing Office, while it measured its work by the piece, was to all intents and purposes a regular force, and needed this change, this respite, as much as those paid annual salaries. So Congress gave them the leave, and the door was opened. Now, the employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, which does most of its work by the piece, claim that they should have this leave as much as the Government Printing Office employes. I suppose that their work is of about the same order. It is practically a continued force throughout the year and needing, if anybody does, a holiday.

But I want to notify the Senate that this thing is not going to stop here. Not only the regular force, but the piece force, the fragmentary force, and all employes under the Government are coming and knocking at the doors of the Senate and of the House of Representatives and claiming to have thirty days out of each year with pay when they are not at work, and it will not be long before we shall be beset by men in employment in the Government navy-yards that they shall have thirty days' pay when they are not at work, although it is peculiarly a temporary force. The foremen and the captains of ten and of twenties in the navy-yards are now pushing a claim that we should give them thirty days' furlough each year.

Mr. HARRIS. This does give it.

Mr. COCKRELL. This extends it to the navy-yards.

Mr. MORGAN. Not only to the clerical force of the navy-yards.

Mr. HALE. That I did not even know. The bill originally did not extend that far. I am informed that this bill now extends the leave to workmen in the navy-yards. That I did not know.

Mr. CHANDLER. The Senator from Maine is mistaken. The amendment of the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] extends the provisions of the bill to draftsmen and copyists in the Navy Department, but the proposition to give the foremen in the navy-yards thirty days' leave of absence in each year with pay now rests in the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. HALE. Then I was right about it. I did not suppose that it had got into the navy-yards and embraced foremen. It embraces draftsmen. That was the amendment offered by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] the other day—draftsmen and writers—the clerical force.

Mr. CHANDLER. If the Senator will allow me, he is quite right in stating that the Senate and House, perhaps, will have to meet the proposition to give the foremen in the navy-yards the same privilege, and I, for one, without knowing what the committee may do and what the Senate may do, am in favor of that, because I do not see how any distinction can be made.

Mr. HALE. The Senator has confessed frankly what we shall have to meet. It will go to the workmen in the navy-yards, who are a temporary force and who perhaps upon an emergency would need to be used every day in the year for the benefit and safety of the Government. Then it will go beyond, and it will be made to apply to any possible employment under the Government wherever it may be throughout the United States.

Mr. CHANDLER. Will the Senator allow me a question?

Mr. HALE. Yes.

Mr. CHANDLER. I ask the Senator whether he knows any reason why this particular privilege of receiving thirty days' pay in each year without work—thirty days of absence with pay—should be confined to employes of the Government within the city of Washington?

Mr. HALE. Not if the employes of the Government are a regular force from January 1 to December 31 and employed upon annual pay and needing, as human beings, physically this respite. Then I have no objection to its applying outside; but the rule never ought to have been changed, and it ought to have been confined to regular, permanent employes of the Government.

Mr. CAREY. Mr. President, this bill is exactly as the law now is with reference to employes in the Public Printing Office. In the Bureau of Engraving and Printing they are allowed now fifteen days leave of absence, and persons who work in that Bureau by the month, or by the day, or by the year are only allowed fifteen days. This bill merely equalizes the employes of the several Departments of the Government, and allows them all thirty days' leave.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment as amended.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, if this system is to be continued, no good reason, I think, can be suggested why it should not apply to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where a large number of delicate women are employed, and where the work is peculiarly irksome, unhealthy, and protracted.

If I could, I should like to vote against the whole system. If the same rule which we apply to Government employes should be applied to private life it would virtually stop employment throughout the country. If any one of us should have an employe whom we had employed for twelve months, who would insist that he should work eleven and receive pay for twelve, it would be considered a very great outrage. No employer throughout the country in his private business would stand any such rule for a moment.

Mr. CAREY. Will the Senator from Missouri permit me to ask him a question?

Mr. VEST. Certainly.

Mr. CAREY. I want to ask him if it is not almost the universal rule of merchants and manufacturers to give their employes a leave of absence?

Mr. VEST. No, Mr. President, it is not a universal rule; and even if it should be granted, for the sake of the argument, that it applies to large manufacturing establishments, it does not apply to contracts between farmers and their employes and mechanics and their employes and railroads and their employes, or banks and their employes. Very true, the Bank of England, I believe, has a rule to furlough every one of its employes, without application on the part of the employé, but that is a measure of precaution in order to examine his accounts and books while he is absent on vacation, and for no other reason. It is not true in the United States that any of the large institutions or any of the large corporations have any such rule, and wherever it prevails in any of the cities it is an exception to the rule.

We know very well that if there is a vacancy in any one of the Departments there are immediately from ten to fifty applicants for it, and we know that these very same persons if employed in any other department or business throughout the country would not expect any such discrimination in their favor. Therefore, I repeat, if I had the opportunity I should vote against the whole system.

But, as the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE] says, this is not the last of it, because when you have granted this privilege to the employés in any one bureau, it furnishes an argument for granting it to all; and I am frank to say if it is given to any of the employés of the Government it ought to be given to the women in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; for any one who has visited that establishment knows that it is the most laborious, unhealthy, and irksome work that can possibly be conceived.

But again, look at this legislation. I have never belonged to that class of public men who attempt to secure popularity by demagoguing with the laboring people of the country and exciting their antipathies to men who possess wealth or capital. I have never been an expert in that sort of business and never expect to be; but if discrimination in favor of the working people is to be recognized as a political element in this country at all, look at this bill! Here we grant thirty days' leave of absence to copyists and draftsmen, the gentlemen who sit in a warm room and do delicate work that a woman probably could discharge as well or better than they, but when we come to the workman who labors out of doors in a navy-yard, who is subjected to all sorts of weather, who is compelled to work eight hours a day, then no such discrimination is given to him. I want the friends of the workman in this Chamber, and the gentlemen who understand the peculiar manipulation of that vote, to answer to the working organizations of this country when they vote for this bill. I think they will find it rather a difficult campaign experiment.

Mr. HALE. The truth is that the workmen of the country have not the least interest in these favors that are given to this special class.

Mr. COCKRELL. Not a bit.

Mr. HALE. The truth is that we are all the time raided by clerks, draftsmen, printers, engravers, and letter-carriers, who are in the employment of the Government, into which they have got by importunity, and have much better berths than the workmen of the country, and they are the ones who are coming down upon us all the time and demanding more and more favors. The workmen of the country are not interested in this legislation. The workmen of the country, those who do the work in private establishments and have no such favors as these, are not at all concerned in these movements, which are made by special classes. It is all the other way, and we are not legislating in favor of workmen when we are giving these favors to a favored class; we are legislating against the workmen.

Mr. VEST. I think the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE] states the case accurately, Mr. President, but I do not hope for any reform. When I first came to the Senate I had a visionary idea of reforming such abuses, but I have long since contented myself with trying to keep things as they are, in order that they may not become any worse.

At the close of this session of Congress I suppose we shall pay a month's extra pay to our employés and the other House probably will do the same thing, and we shall not stop with giving this thirty days' leave of absence to the copyists and draftsmen in the navy-yards, but it will not be a week or a day possibly until this same privilege must be extended to the same class of people in every other department of the governmental service.

Mr. HALE. Does the Senator know that last year as a special favor we gave the letter-carriers fifteen days' leave of absence, much to the detriment of the postal service, and it is followed this year by a demand to make it thirty days?

There is but one rule about this matter. When we begin to legislate for these favored classes, the Government classes, we have got to select, but we never satisfy them.

The Senator refers to what we do for our employés here. It is not a pleasant thing for a Senator to stand up in the face of all these employés and talk as I am willing to talk about this. It is an outrage upon everybody else that we give our employés an extra month's pay. We ought not to do it. They have the best places in the Government. They are not required to be here all the time; they have a long vacation, and notwithstanding this they are paid for an extra month every year. While other people would be glad to hold these places for half the sum they get, we pay them an extra month, because we are importuned by them. It is all wrong.

Mr. VEST. I have but one observation to make, but I suppose it will be entirely useless. I know but one rule, and I try to know but one rule in my public action in regard to such matters, and that is to treat all the citizens of this country alike.

Mr. HALE. Let me correct a statement I have just made in reference to the letter-carriers. It was the clerks of the first and second class post-offices to whom we gave fifteen days' leave of absence last year, and now they are asking for thirty days. We gave the letter-carriers the eight-hour limitation. I want to set that right.

Mr. VEST. As the Senator from Maine says, it is not a pleasant matter to antagonize movements of this sort. I am not standing here to make any professions of liberality. It is simply a question of duty upon our part, as it is a duty upon the people who come here for these extraordinary privileges. I repeat, we ought to establish one rule or the other—treat all the people of this country alike, or, if we extend these extraordinary privileges to any one class, then make the privileges universal so as to destroy class privileges and class legislation.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, there is only one condition of things that seems to make it almost necessary that the clerks in many of the Departments should have a vacation. If any Senator will visit the different rooms where the clerks are crowded together and where the atmosphere is most destructive of health, he will see that it would be almost impossible, with the conditions imposed, for the employés to work all the year round. I think it would be better to make the conditions of health such that they could work the year round, so that there would be no distinction between them and other laborers. But many of the rooms in which these clerks are employed, if Senators will visit them, they will find have no ventilation, and the clerks actually have to retire on account of ill health, which is occasioned by the crowded rooms and the bad ventilation that exists in many of the Departments.

Mr. HALE. Does not the Senator believe that tens of thousands and hundreds of thousands of workmen throughout the country perform their work and get their little subsistence in rooms and holes and corners that are ten times worse than the worst employed under the Government, and does not the Senator know that this great army of working people does not average half the amounts which are paid to these Government employés?

Mr. STEWART. I know all that is very true, but that is no reason why the Government should not make proper arrangements for the ventilation of the buildings and the health of the employés, because there are places where men and women are compelled to work under very unhealthy conditions.

Mr. HALE. The furlough business does not meet that: the furlough business does not meet narrow quarters, does not meet stifled air, does not meet malaria and pestilence that are said to exist in these places. It is another remedy that the Senator has in his mind which ought to be resorted to, and that is to give them more room, with plenty of sweet air and plenty of light.

Mr. STEWART. They ought to have some time to recruit. Senators must see the necessity for that. I think if we had plenty of light and rooms and good air furnished to our employés there would be very much less necessity for furloughs; no more necessity for them than the ordinary laborer has everywhere, and not as much; but as they are situated it would be a great hardship in many cases to decline to grant furloughs, because the employés need them to regain their health.

Mr. HALE. I move to lay the bill on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maine.

Mr. CAREY. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Maine withdraw his motion?

Mr. HALE. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. CAREY. I can not understand why there is so much indignation to-day in reference to this bill. As long ago as 1883 a bill of similar purport to this was passed and approved, allowing the employés in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing fifteen days' leave of absence in each year. In 1883 a law was passed through both Houses of Congress allowing thirty days' leave under the regulation of the heads of the several Departments to all the employés in the Departments in this District. In 1886 an act was passed allowing all employés in the office of the Public Printer thirty days' annual leave. Only in the last Congress, on the 28th day of March, 1890, an act was passed giving to all officers engaged in the collection of customs throughout this country thirty days' leave in each year.

Now, why should the employés of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing be discriminated against? This bill merely proposes to equalize these privileges, and it is fair that they should have them if the employés in the other Departments enjoy them. The women in that Bureau who are employed by the year or by the day are allowed only fifteen days' leave of absence, while the more favored ones in the Treasury Department, in the Interior Department, in the Agricultural Department, and in the various other Departments, are allowed thirty days' leave.

This kind of legislation did not originate with the present Committee on Education and Labor. It originated years ago. The committee believes in dealing equitably and fairly with all the Government employés, and if you kill this bill to-day by laying it on the table, or by voting it down directly, you should, to be consistent, repeal all this class of legislation. If this other legislation is to remain on the statute book, then this bill—

Mr. VEST. Will the Senator permit me?

Mr. CAREY. Certainly.

Mr. VEST. The Senator has, with all respect to him, simply recapitulated the arguments which have been made from one Congress to another in favor of this class of legislation. I agree with him that you can not repeal the system. I am certain that you could not do it if you would let the matter lie over for twenty-four hours, for I am sure that personal solicitation to each Senator would prevent the repeal of the system.

I am prepared now, as much as I condemn the whole thing, but recognizing that it is impossible to get the system done away with, to vote for that portion of this bill which gives this privilege, wrong as I believe it to be in principle, to the women employed in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. But it has been amended so as to include now the copyists, and draftsmen in the naval service and all the employés in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing besides.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair feels bound to call the attention of Senators to the fact that this discussion is going on under Rule VIII, which forbids a Senator to speak more than once or exceeding five minutes on any question.

Mr. SHERMAN. The matter ought to go over.

Mr. HALE. The suggestion is made that by objecting the matter goes over, but as the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] has well said, if this matter goes over a day the solicitations that will pile up on Senators will be unmeasured; there will be no end to them, and I am afraid, with the Senator from Missouri, that many Senators will weaken and falter. I hoped when I made the motion to lay upon the table, knowing how the Senator from Missouri feels, knowing what his estimate is of the justice of it, applied to all these people, that he would join with me in an effort, which required some small degree of courage to make, to stop this bad practice here and now. We have got to do it somewhere, or we have got to give way entirely.

Mr. VEST. I should like to ask the Senator if he will join with me in voting to repeal the whole system?

Mr. HALE. I will join the Senator in voting to repeal the whole system.

Mr. VEST. If you do that, there will be some equity in it.

Mr. HALE. I did not know before that the employés in the custom-houses throughout the country had got this thirty days' leave of absence. They ought not to have it. Everybody who has seen a custom-house, who has seen the ins and outs and the avenues, knows that there is the greatest clamor to get the places, that their holders are a favored class, so looked upon in their communities, and to give them what their neighbors and associates are not getting in private establishments is all wrong, and I will join with the Senator in any movement he may make to repeal that.

There is no courage required before the country in taking this ground. There is no public sentiment in favor of giving to these clerks and printers and others in Government employment extra favors that are not gained by the people outside. They make a sentiment by solicitation. They get together in meetings and organizations and pass resolutions and knock and thunder at the doors of Congress, but it is not the people who are interested in this matter. Therefore, I am inclined to see how many Senators will vote as I think they believe, to table this whole bill.

Mr. VEST. Insist on your motion, then.

Mr. HALE. I do. I am not going to withdraw it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maine that the bill as amended lie on the table.

Mr. CAREY. I ask for the yeas and nays on that motion.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GEORGE (when his name was called). I am paired generally with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH]. Not knowing how he would vote if present, I withhold my vote.

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. NORRILL].

Mr. PADDOCK (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Texas [Mr. COKE]. I do not know how he would vote, if present, and I therefore withhold my vote.

While on my feet I desire to announce the pair of my colleague [Mr. MANDERSON] with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLANCHARD]. My colleague is detained at home by illness.

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CASEY]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

Mr. PLATT (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BARBOUR]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. QUAY (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER], who, I believe, is not present. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. SHERMAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. CHARLES]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. TELLER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. CHILTON]. I do not know how he would vote if present, and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. WALTHALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. DOLPH. I announce my pair with the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE]. I do not see him in his seat at present and withhold my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 16, nays 33; as follows:

YEAS—16.

So the motion to lay the bill on the table was rejected.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question recurs on agreeing to the amendment as amended.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President. I wish to say a single word on this bill. I do not agree with those who have opposed it and have stated that it is not the desire of the working people of the United States. It is, in my opinion, the very general desire of the working people of this country, who pay the taxes and who pay the higher wages which these employés receive, that they should have this leave of absence. The reason is that they wish the United States to set an example to the employers of labor through the country by which the condition of the laboring classes may be benefited and they may receive a larger portion of the comforts of life than they do now.

It is an example that is needed. The laboring people of this country who pay the taxes are not, as a general rule, in that condition of comfort and well-being in which they ought to be and in which they may be, and this movement is in the lead of that new and better order of things which they are contemplating for the laboring people of the country.

Mr. CHANDLER. Mr. President, I think in view of the fact that allusion has been made to the case of the foremen in the navy-yards, I should state what their claim is.

The Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] took occasion to say that he did not understand that leaves of absence of this character were given to the foremen in private establishments. Why, sir, I understand that the contrary is the case, and that in the large private manufacturing establishments of this country of one kind and another it is the rule to give their foremen or leading men thirty days' leave of absence with pay. At any rate, that is the case which has been made by the foremen in the navy-yards in the application which they have made to Congress and in the bill which is now pending in the Committee on Naval Affairs of the Senate. The foremen come here and they submit evidence that in all the large mechanical shops in the vicinity of Norfolk, in the vicinity of Washington, in the vicinity of Baltimore and Philadelphia, it is the custom to give to the foremen, the principal men, the leading men, thirty days' leave of absence with pay, and on that ground the passage of the bill giving these foremen thirty days' leave of absence when in Government employ is advocated.

Now, Mr. President, I understand that the principle upon which that bill is advocated, is the one which has been stated by the Senator from Maine: that is to say, I refer to the discrimination which he has made between those employes of the Government to whom the thirty days' leave of absence should be given and those to whom it should not be given. The foremen are yearly employes. Whether their pay is reckoned by the year or by the month or by the day, they are employed continuously the whole year round, and therefore conceive that they are as much entitled to have thirty days' leave of absence with pay, as the clerks in the Departments in Washington and as the employes in the custom-houses throughout the country, and I am unable to see how their petition can be refused.

With reference to the proposition that is implied in the motion of the Senator from Maine to lay this bill upon the table in order that he and the Senator from Missouri may have an opportunity to repeal all these grants of thirty days' leave of absence made to various Government employes, I have this to say, that not only do I believe it would be impossible to secure a repeal, as the Senator from Maine himself seems to admit, but I do not believe that it would be just, or wise, or expedient to do so.

The Senator from Maine can not but recognize the principle upon which these bills have been passed. The principle is that men who work the year round for employers, men who give all their physical and their mental strength to the service of their employers, can do as much work in eleven months with one month's leave of absence as they can do in twelve months continuous work. It is a universal principle in political economy that man needs rest, and he needs that rest whether he is engaged in purely physical, manual, menial labor, whether he is engaged in purely intellectual labor, or whether he is engaged in labor that is a combination of the two; and I undertake to say that the Senator from Maine would keep in his employment nowhere a man to whom he would not give thirty days' leave of absence with pay in each year, rather than compel that employe to work continuously twelve months in the year without any leave of absence.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. TURPIE in the chair.) The Senator's time has expired under the rule.

Mr. CHANDLER. I do not understand the reason why I was interrupted by the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. CHANDLER. Shall I understand that the Chair is enforcing the five-minute rule?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Such is the rule of the Senate, and the Chair is trying to enforce it.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, I voted to table this bill, and I did so for the reason that I think the tendency is by successive steps to too greatly enlarge the leave of absence provided for by statute for employes of the Government.

I am perfectly familiar with the history of this legislation. The Senator from Wyoming alluded to it. It was first inserted in an appropriation bill in 1883, if I remember correctly, and it was placed there for the purpose of correcting an abuse. It was well known to Senators and Representatives that prior to that time in the Departments certain favored clerks could receive leaves of absence for thirty and sixty and ninety days, and in some cases six months and longer, and that other clerks could receive no grant whatever of leave of absence, and therefore there was inserted in the legislative and executive appropriation bill in 1883 a provision that all clerks might receive thirty days' leave of absence with pay, and that for a longer period of absence their pay should stop. The result of that has been that in the Executive Departments there has grown up a system of substitution, which has even been recognized by our Civil Service Commission, whereby when leaves of absence are granted to clerks in a Department for sixty days or ninety days or longer they can put in substitutes drawn by the Civil Service Commission, which substitutes receive the pay for the time being.

When that appeared, the next step was to give the employes in the Public Printing Office, who were not annual employes, a small leave of absence to the extent of fifteen days, and upon what I think a very proper ground, that these poorly paid employes, although practically employed all the year, were not decorated in these bills as were the clerks receiving from twelve to eighteen hundred dollars a year, or as our own employes, who often receive an extra month's pay. Fifteen days were granted at first; then it was extended to thirty days; and then the people in the Printing Office who work nights were allowed 20 per cent additional pay. So we have been running along since 1883 by adding to the privileged classes, because the act of 1883 was intended to correct an abuse and allow thirty days' leave of absence to the clerks employed here in the Departments receiving an annual salary; and now this bill, as I understand it, proposes not only to give to these employes who are here in the Departments, some of them poorly paid I agree, notably so in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, but to extend it to the navy-yards; and this bill extends to certain classes of people who are under the control of the Navy Department wherever they may be.

Mr. CHANDLER. It does not.

Mr. ALLISON. It does not so state. I examined the bill. What I object to is that we are by these successive steps enlarging from time to time these privileges so that our civil service in the future will be added to just one-eleventh as respects compensation. Last year we extended leaves of absence to the clerks of the first and second class post-offices for fifteen days. Why should we limit them to fifteen days if we are to extend this privilege to thirty days now in all the cities of the country?

I was not aware until this moment that this privilege had been extended to employes of custom-houses in remote districts.

I think it is time that there should be a careful revision of this whole subject. I have great faith that the chairman and the membership of the committee, having this subject in charge will do full justice as respects this whole question.

The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHANDLER] states that he favors the extension of this privilege to the foremen of navy-yards. What right have we to extend this to the foremen of navy-yards and not extend it to the workmen in the navy-yards who work side by side with the foremen for twelve months in the year? So we shall extend this by these gradual processes until every employe of this Government wherever he may be will receive twelve months' pay for eleven months' work.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Iowa has expired.

Mr. PEPPER. Mr. President, if we were proposing to take from the employes who now enjoy thirty days' vacation annually that privilege, we should have before us altogether a different proposition from the one that we are now discussing. Whenever it is proposed to equalize the burdens and the pleasures of labor in the service of the Government in that direction, I shall perhaps feel differently altogether, in respect to such a measure, from what I do in respect to this one.

I understand, Mr. President, that this bill proposes simply as far as possible to equalize privileges in the Departments and among the employes thereof; that is to say, inasmuch as the employes mentioned in the bill have not heretofore enjoyed the privilege of a vacation of thirty days, such as other employes in other Departments enjoy, that they shall have it. It is equalizing the privilege to that extent, and on that account I am in favor of it.

I am in favor of it, furthermore, for the additional reason that I think it will be taking a step backward to take from any of our faithful employes, either in the Government service or in private service, a single privilege in the way of recreation that they now enjoy. Indeed, sir, if I had the power, or if I could control the power of the Government, I would, during the next year, after giving thirty days' notice, stop the wheels of every factory within our jurisdiction at the end of eight hours during the day, and at the end of the first year from that time I would stop them at the end of six hours.

I believe that we have enough of men and of women in this country to do the work that is needed to be done in the shops, on the farms, in the offices, and everywhere by working six hours a day; and doing that faithfully in properly ventilated apartments, we should have altogether a different condition of things from what we find now. We should not have a million, or two million, or two-and-a-half million of men and women moving about the country, as is the case to-day, upon the very verge of starvation, begging for employment.

So, it seems to me, it is wise for the Government to take the lead in this matter and make the burden of labor as light as possible and make the burden of the poor as light as possible. Let us, as far as our authority extends, wield it mercifully. Wherever we can take up one worker, no matter where, let us take him up and give him the same benefits and the same enjoyments that the rest of us have.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I do not think if this privilege is to be given to a portion of the employes of the Government that it ought to be kept from others. The remarks made by the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEPPER] suggest to me more forcibly this proposition, and in order that there may be no complaint and that it may be understood that Congress has adopted the system of giving to its employes as they come up with special claims and demands from time to time this thirty days' leave, I propose an amendment that extends it generally, so that the Senate may see what is before it and may make this matter a subject of one action, take one bite at it and end it, because, so sure as we live, so sure as time passes, we shall be met by an irresistible demand, after we pass this bill, already extended beyond the scope of the

MRS. ELIZA FAYS.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is informed that the gentleman from Texas [Mr. KILGORE] withdraws his demand for the regular order; and the Chair will again submit the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. COGSWELL]. Unanimous consent is asked for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 1167) granting a pension to Mrs. Eliza Fays. The bill will be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to place upon the pension roll of the United States the name of Mrs. Eliza Fays, mother of Frank Fays, late a private in Company A, Seventeenth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

There being no objection, the House proceeded to the consideration of the bill.

The question being taken on ordering the bill to be engrossed and read a third time, there were—ayes 133, noes 1.

Mr. BAILEY. No quorum.

Tellers were ordered; and Mr. COGSWELL and Mr. BAILEY were appointed.

The House again divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 172, noes 1.

So the bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. COGSWELL, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

INVESTIGATION OF JUDICIAL ABUSES.

Mr. CULBERSON. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That in the investigation now being made by a subcommittee of the Committee on the Judiciary of alleged abuses of process and authority by certain officers of the Judicial Department of the United States under a resolution of the House heretofore adopted, the chairman of said subcommittee be, and he is hereby, authorized to draw for the expenses of the said investigation on the Clerk of the House from the contingent fund of the House in sums not to exceed $500 at any one time.

There being no objection, the House proceeded to the consideration of the resolution; which was adopted.

On motion of Mr. CULBERSON, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

CONSULAR AND DIPLOMATIC APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. BLOUNT, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a bill (H. R. 7624) making appropriations for the diplomatic and consular service of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. DINGLEY. I desire to reserve all points of order on that bill.

The SPEAKER. Points of order will be reserved.

VOTE OF MR. DONOVAN ON THE SILVER QUESTION.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I rise to a question of privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. On page 2630 of the RECORD, I am reported as having said last Thursday night in relation to the vote of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. DONOVAN]—

He was here, and voted when his name was called.

The letter which has been read from the gentleman from Ohio this morning appears to call for some explanation from me. When the name of Mr. DONOVAN was called by the Clerk upon the vote referred to, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. EVERETT], the gentleman from Texas [Mr. LONG], as well as myself, distinctly heard the response "No;" and the Clerk was right when he entered that response. I ask the gentleman from Georgia and the gentleman from Texas to bear me out in the statement that when the name of the gentleman from Ohio was called the answer "No" was distinctly given from that part of the building [pointing]—somewhere over there.

Mr. CABLE. I heard distinctly a response when the name was called.

Several MEMBERS. Somebody responded in the negative at that time.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. And here is a gentleman on my left from Ohio who says that he heard the response, another on my right, and several others who heard it.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Nobody questions that statement. I knew, however, at the time that Mr. DONOVAN was not on the floor. That there was a response at the time I have not the slightest doubt; but it was evidently an error.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I only know that somebody voted at that time, and I have nothing to take back from what appears in the RECORD.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I demand the regular order.

Mr. ATKINSON. I wish to ask the gentleman from Georgia a question.

The SPEAKER. The regular order is demanded.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

Mr. WARWICK, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that the committee had examined and found truly enrolled the bill (S. 2384) to change the name of the customs collection district and port of Wilmington, Cal., to Los Angeles, and for other purposes; when the Speaker signed the same.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will direct the committees to be called for reports under the rule.

CONVEYANCE OF CERTAIN LANDS TO KANSAS.

Mr. AMERMAN, from the Committee on the Public Lands, reported back the bill (S. 800) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to convey to the State of Kansas certain lands therein; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

TRINITY CHURCH, HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

Mr. McRAE, from the Committee on the Public Lands, reported back the bill (H. R. 3380) to authorize the trustees of Trinity Church, Hot Springs, Ark., to purchase certain lands, with the recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed.

The SPEAKER. In the absence of objection that order will be made, and the report will be printed.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

GRADE OF MEDICAL OFFICERS.

Mr. OUTHWAITE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back the bill (S. 1039) to define the grade of certain medical officers of the Army, and for other purposes; which was referred to the House Calendar.

CUSTODY OF RECORDS, VOLUNTEER ARMIES.

Mr. OUTHWAITE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back the bill (H. R. 6483) to provide for the permanent preservation and custody of the records of the volunteer armies, and for other purposes; which was referred to the House Calendar.

PAY AND ALLOWANCES OF CERTAIN MINORS.

Mr. BELTZHOVER, from the Committee on War Claims, reported back the joint resolution (H. Res. 24) authorizing the payment of pay and allowance to minors who were discharged from the armies of the United States at the close of the war of the rebellion, by special order secured by action of friends before the date of the general order mustering out their command; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

BUSINESS FROM THE COMMITTEE ON THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The SPEAKER. This being the fourth Monday, under the rule, if claimed by the Committee on the District of Columbia, the Chair will recognize the chairman of that committee to call up measures pertaining to the District.

PREVENTION OF FRAUD, WATER REVENUES, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I call up for consideration the bill (S. 1884) to prevent fraud upon the water revenues of the District of Columbia.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That any person who, with intent to injure or defraud the District of Columbia, shall make or cause to be made any pipe, tube, or other instrument or contrivance, or connect the same or cause it to be connected with any water main or service pipe or other pipe for conducting or supplying Potomac water, in such manner as to pass or carry the water, or any portion thereof, around or without passing through the meter provided for the measuring and registering of the Potomac water supplied to any premises, or who shall, without permission from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, tamper with or break any water meter or break the seal thereof, or in any manner change the reading of the dial thereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by fine not exceeding $250.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and being read the third time was passed.

On motion of Mr. HEMPHILL, the motion to reconsider the last vote was laid upon the table.

NATIONAL UNION INSURANCE COMPANY OF WASHINGTON.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I now call up the bill (H. R. 5114) to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the National Union Insurance Company, of Washington," approved February 11, 1865.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act entitled "An act to incorporate the National Union Insurance Company, of Washington," approved February 11, 1865, be, and the same is hereby, amended as follows:

First, in section two, and the first paragraph thereof, cancel the word "nine" before "directors," and in place thereof insert the words "not less than nine nor more than fifteen;" so that said section two will read:

"SEC. 2. That the affairs of the company shall be managed by not less than nine nor more than fifteen directors, to be elected annually by ballot on the second Monday of July by the stockholders or by their legally empowered agents; and each share of stock shall entitle the holder thereof to one vote; the election to be held at the office of the company at a general meeting of the stockholders convened for that purpose, by ten days' public notice in two or more of the daily papers of the city of Washington; Provided, That the first election for directors shall be held pursuant to ten days' notice given in one or more of the daily papers of the city of Washington by the persons named in the first section of this act, or any five of them, who shall designate the time when and the place where said election shall be held; and the stockholders shall then and there elect nine directors to serve until the next ensuing election as provided for in this act. And at the first ensuing meeting of the directors after every election they shall appoint one of their number as president, who, together with themselves, shall hold office until the next ensuing election, as herein provided for; and five members of said board shall compose a quorum. And in case that an election for directors should not be made when, pursuant to this act, it should have been made, the company for that cause shall not be dissolved; and it shall be lawful, within forty days thereafter, to hold and make an election for directors in such manner as the by-laws of the company may prescribe, and the president and directors for the time being shall be continued in office until such election takes place; and in the event of death, resignation, or removal of any director from office his place for the remainder of his term may be filled by the president and directors for the time being, in such manner as the by-laws may prescribe."

Second, That said act be further amended by the addition of a tenth section, as follows:

"SEC. 10. That said company may lease, purchase, hold, and convey real estate, not exceeding in value $250,000, and such in addition as it may acquire in satisfaction of debts due the corporation, under sales, decrees, judgments, deeds of trust, and mortgages:

The committee recommend the adoption of the following amendment:

Add to section 10 the following proviso: Provided, That any property so acquired in satisfaction of debts due the corporation as above provided shall not be held or owned by said company for more than five years, but shall be sold and conveyed within that time."

The amendment was adopted.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time.

The question being on its passage,

Mr. GOODNIGHT said: Mr. Speaker, we can not understand what this bill is. I ask that the title of the bill be read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RICHARDSON in the chair). The title of the bill will be again reported.

The title was again read.

The bill was passed.

On motion of Mr. HEMPHILL, the motion to reconsider the last vote was laid upon the table.

OPENING OF ALLEYS, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I now call up the bill (H. R. 3971) to provide for the opening of alleys in the District of Columbia.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, as to the ordinance of the late corporation of Washington in regard to opening and extending alleys, approved November 4, 1812, be, and they are hereby, declared to be the legal successors of the mayor of the said corporation, are authorized and empowered as fully as the mayor was to open, alter, or change.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. HEMPHILL, the motion to reconsider the last vote was laid upon the table.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire if copies of these bills ought not to be at the Clerk's desk? We can not know what bills are coming up. I have sent several times to the Sergeant-at-Arms, and can not get a bill that is being considered. We ought to have copies of all these bills at hand in the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has no information on the subject, but has no doubt that copies of the bills may be obtained in the document room.

Mr. STOCKDALE. But, Mr. Speaker, by the time one of the pages gets back from the document room the bill has passed, and then we have the pleasure of looking over the bill after it has passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk has copies of the bill at the desk.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I have sent to the desk, and the reply has come back every time that there are no extra copies there. I sent for a copy of this bill that is under consideration now.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will direct that some copies of these bills be brought to the desk, in order that members may examine them.

ROCK CREEK RAILROAD COMPANY.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I ask to call up the bill (H. R. 62) to amend the charter of the Rock Creek Railroad Company.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Rock Creek Railroad Company be, and it is hereby, authorized to extend its road from its present terminus on U street to Florida avenue, thence along Florida avenue to North Capitol street; Provided, That it shall run on the same track with the Metropolitan Railroad Company between Ninth and Seventh streets. Said company is authorized to extend a branch road from a point on its line in Cliffburne tract across the Adams Mill road to Kansas street, thence along Kansas street to Ontario avenue, thence along or adjacent to Ontario avenue to the east line of the Zoological Park, on such line as shall be approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. That the extension and branch herein provided for shall be subject, in all respects, to the acts of Congress granting and amending the charter of the Rock Creek Railway Company as fully as if such acts were incorporated herein.

SEC. 2. That whenever the route of the foregoing extension coincides with the track occupied by the Metropolitan Railroad Company, both companies shall use the same track upon such fair and equitable terms as may be agreed upon by said companies; and in the event that said companies shall fail to agree upon equitable terms, either of said companies may apply by petition to the supreme court of the District of Columbia, who shall hear and determine summarily the matter in due form of law, and adjudge to the proper party the amount of compensation to be paid therefor. Whenever more than one of the tracks of said railroad company shall be constructed on any of the streets, avenues, or other public highways in the District of Columbia, the width of space between the two tracks shall not exceed 4 feet, unless otherwise especially ordered by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 3. That the Rock Creek Railway Company and the Eckington and Soldiers' Home Railway Company shall have the power to make any contracts or agreements that may be necessary to enable the said companies to run the cars of each or either company over the tracks of the other company, and also to contract for and use the power of each or either company to propel the cars of the other company. The said extension and branch shall be completed within one year and a half from the passage of this act.

SEC. 4. That the streets or avenues opened under the provisions of this act shall conform to the general plans for the extension of the streets and avenues of the District of Columbia, and shall be laid out under the direction of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 5. That Congress reserves the right at any time to alter, amend, or repeal this act.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the reading of the report upon this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the report.

The report (by Mr. HEARD) was read, as follows:

The Committee on the District of Columbia have had under consideration the bill (H. R. 6286) to amend the charter of the Rock Creek Railroad Company, and make the following report thereon:

The object of the bill is to authorize and enable the Rock Creek Railroad, which is a purely a suburban line, to connect with three of the existing lines of street railway now being operated inside the city limits, and to build a branch line outside the city limits to enable it to reach the Zoological Park. The line proposed on U street and Florida avenue covers only a few squares, and there has been no protest against its occupancy of said streets, so far as your committee is advised. The other street railroad lines which the extension of this affects do not object, but desire the connection which this bill gives, and your committee consider the same of material importance to the public, and recommend its passage. It has the approval of the District Commissioners, and of the Senate District Committee, which has favorably reported the same in the form recommended by your committee.

Mr. HEARD. Mr. Speaker, I deem it only necessary to say, in addition to what the report states, that this Rock Creek line begins at the boundary practically, at the head of Connecticut avenue and Eighteenth street, and runs entirely outside of the city with the exception of probably a very few blocks on U street, near the western boundary. The proposition of this bill originally was to run the line east on U street and connect with the Seventh street line (which connected it with the Eleventh and Ninth street lines), but the Commissioners recommend, and your committee adopted the recommendation, that the company be compelled to extend it still farther, to North Capitol street, by which it will connect with two other lines. The object is to give this road which runs in the country and runs out through this Rock Creek Park section a connection with the city lines of road, and this will connect it, I believe, with four or five different lines of railroads.

The other proposition, authorizing them to build a branch line and run out to the Zoological Park, refers to a district entirely outside of the city, and is either over the land of the company or they must buy the right of way for themselves. The Commissioners approve of the proposition, and your committee are unanimous in recommending it. I have no doubt that it will result in a public benefit.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I suppose that as the system of granting corporate privileges is now being carried on in this House and in our State Legislatures perhaps this is as innocent a bill as could be presented. But I want to submit to this House, whether the time has not arrived when, in the capital of this country, there should not be some system adopted with reference to the transportation of passengers in the city by railway.

It seems to me, from the cursory examination of the subject I have made, that so far we have had an utter lack of system in all the cities of this Union in that respect, and it seems to me that in the capital of the country, where the legislation must be had at the hands of the national Congress, where members come up from different sections of the country, posted as to the best means of transportation used in their respective cities, that here and perhaps now are the proper place and time for us to stop and consider whether, instead of continuing this piecemeal legislation, granting to one company the right to transport a passenger for a short distance, and to another and entirely distinct company the right to take up that transportation to the end of its line and then to turn him over in turn to another corporation, we should not adopt some general system to provide for the

The following pairs were announced:

Mr. ELLIOTT with Mr. SANFORD, until further notice.

For this day:

Mr. ENLOE with Mr. WILSON of Kentucky.

Mr. PAGE of Maryland with Mr. MORSE.

Mr. NORTON with Mr. STORER.

Mr. STEVENS with Mr. RANDALL.

Mr. BOATNER with Mr. PICKLER.

Mr. HAYNES of Ohio with Mr. LODGE.

Mr. BLANCHARD with Mr. QUACKENBUSH, for the rest of this day.

Mr. HAYES of Iowa with Mr. KETCHAM, on this vote.

Mr. TURPIN with Mr. HOOKER of New York, on all political questions, including election case, until further notice, except on the silver question.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR with Mr. OATES, from March 14 to April 7, 1892.

Mr. PEEL with Mr. HENDERSON of Illinois, on all political questions, and the Bland silver bill. If present Mr. PEEL would vote "yea" in all its stages; Mr. HENDERSON of Illinois would vote "nay" on the main question.

Mr. HENDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire if a quorum has voted?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. A quorum has voted.

Mr. HENDERSON of Illinois. Then I desire to withdraw my vote, as I am paired.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. On this question the yeas are 108, nays 111. The yeas have it, and the motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was laid on the table is not agreed to, and the question now is on the motion to reconsider the motion by which the bill was laid on the table.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. And on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

After the Clerk had proceeded to call the roll for some time,

Mr. HOLMAN said: Mr. Speaker, I think there is a misapprehension as to the nature of the vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state the question. The gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] moved to lay the bill and pending amendments on the table, which motion prevailed. He then moved to reconsider the vote laying the bill and amendments on the table. The latter motion was voted upon a moment ago by yeas and nays, and the House decided that it would not lay the motion to reconsider on the table; and the question now recurs upon the question to reconsider the vote by which the bill and amendments were laid on the table. Those in favor of the motion to reconsider the vote laying the bill on the table will, when their names are called, vote yea, and those not in favor of reconsidering the vote will vote nay.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Kentucky. Then the opponents of the bill should vote nay?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair can not make that statement.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Kentucky. I will be kind enough to make it for the Chair.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 111, nays 111 not voting 105; as follows:

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to be recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Was the gentleman in the Hall, and did he vote?

Mr. HALL. I did not vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Was the gentleman in the Hall?

Mr. HALL. I was not in my seat.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Was the gentleman in the Hall?

Mr. HALL. I think I was in the Hall.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the circumstances, the gentleman can not be allowed to vote.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. HAYES of Iowa with Mr. KETCHAM for the rest of the day.

Mr. HENDERSON of North Carolina with Mr. ROBINSON of Pennsylvania for the rest of the day.

Mr. FITHIAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a recapitulation of the vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Illinois asks for a recapitulation of the vote. The vote is very close, and the Chair thinks it is proper that it should be recapitulated. The Chair, however, requests gentlemen to pay attention to the announcements made by the Clerk, so that any error may be corrected.

The vote was recapitulated.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, there was some correction made by the tally clerk, and I do not know what it was. I would like to know what the correction was.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Virginia [Mr. LAWSON] thought that there was a mistake in calling his name.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I could not understand it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. On this question the yeas are 111, the nays 110. So the House determines to reconsider the vote by which the bill and amendments were laid on the table. The question now is on the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] to lay the bill and pending amendments on the table.

Mr. FITHIAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman a question—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That motion is not debatable.

Mr. FITHIAN. I want to ask the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. HEMPHILL] a question, if the House will allow me.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is not debatable. The gentleman can only ask by unanimous consent.

Mr. FITHIAN. I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to ask the gentleman from South Carolina a question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. FITHIAN. I should like to know whether the whole charge for this institution is to be upon the Government or whether half of it is to be paid by the District of Columbia?

Mr. HEMPHILL. I will state to the gentleman that the bill in its present form does not provide that half the expense shall be paid by the District, but there is an amendment pending—

Mr. HOLMAN. The bill provides that the whole of it shall be paid out of the Treasury.

Mr. HEMPHILL. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] was not asked for his view.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. FITHIAN] asked unanimous consent that he might ask the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. HEMPHILL] a question. The House gave permission, and the gentleman from Illinois has asked his question, and the Chair trusts that the gentleman from South Carolina will be permitted to answer it.

Mr. HEMPHILL. The bill itself does not make any provision for having one-half of the cost placed upon the District of Columbia, but there is an amendment pending.

Mr. HOLMAN. The bill appropriates $50,000 from the Treasury.

Mr. CROUT. The amendment mentioned by the gentleman from South Carolina is pending, and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] knows it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is upon the motion to lay on the table the bill and pending amendments.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. Upon that I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Pending the roll call.

Mr. HEMPHILL said: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that this bill be laid aside until next District day, when we may have a fuller House, and that in the mean time members may have an opportunity to examine the bill—

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. And that we now adjourn?

Mr. HEMPHILL. No. There are two or three other measures that we desire to bring before the House to-day.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. I have no objection to that.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina?

Mr. HATCH. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. This bill, I understand, will retain its present position on the Calendar?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It will.

Mr. DOCKERY. And the yeas and nays have been ordered upon it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. HEMPHILL]?

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

SAFEGUARDS IN THEATERS.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Now, Mr. Speaker, I want to submit and ask to have considered at this time a joint resolution which has not been reported until now because we have not had time.

The joint resolution was read, as follows:

Joint resolution amending the joint resolution to regulate licenses to proprietors of theaters in the city of Washington, D. C., and for other purposes, approved February 26, 1892.

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, etc., That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized to extend for a reasonable period, to be determined by them, the time for compliance with the regulations prescribed by them for the public safety, pursuant to the requirements of the first section of the joint resolution to regulate licenses to proprietors of theaters in the city of Washington, D. C., approved February 26, 1892, in cases where they are satisfied that the persons notified are making due exertion to effect such compliance; and that said Commissioners may continue in force, pending such compliance, the license for any such theater or other public place of amusement, provided that no more than ninety days' extension of time in the aggregate shall be allowed for compliance with such regulations.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of this joint resolution?

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, I think there ought to be some explanation of it.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Congress recently passed a resolution authorizing and requiring the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to establish certain regulations for the safety of the public in theaters and other places of public amusement, and it required that those regulations should be complied with in ten days under penalty of a revocation of license. We find now that it is impossible to comply with the regulations which the Commissioners have made within the limited period of ten days.

For instance, they require the procurement in one theater of new curtains which can not possibly be made in less than twenty days. They require the putting of an iron fire-escape of iron on the upper side of Albaugh's theater. They require the taking out of the front of that theater and putting in iron steps, and it is impossible to do all this work within ten days. That is what the parties concerned say and the Commissioners say the same thing, and they write asking that this resolution be passed, authorizing them to extend the time to a reasonable extent, not exceeding under any circumstances, ninety days.

The joint resolution having been read twice, was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. HEMPHILL moved to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was passed, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

INSPECTOR OF PLUMBING, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (S. 4492) to authorize the appointment of an inspector of plumbing in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and their successors be, and they hereby are, authorized and empowered to make, modify, and enforce regulations governing plumbing, house drainage, and the ventilation, preservation, and maintenance in good order of house sewers and public sewers in the District of Columbia, and also regulations governing the examination, registration, and licensing of plumbers and the practice of the business of plumbing in said District; and any person who shall neglect or refuse to comply with the requirements of the provisions of said regulations after ten days' notice of the specific thing required to be done thereunder, within the time limited by the Commissioners for doing such work, or as the said time may be extended by said Commissioners, shall upon conviction thereof be punishable by a fine of not more than $200 for each and every such offense, or in default of payment of fine, to imprisonment not to exceed thirty days.

SEC. 2. That the said Commissioners and their successors be, and they hereby are, authorized and empowered to require every person licensed to practice the business of plumbing in the District of Columbia, before engaging in the said business, to file a bond in such amount and with such number of sureties as the said Commissioners shall determine, conditioned upon the faithful performance of all work in compliance with the plumbing regulations, and that the District of Columbia shall be kept harmless from the consequence of any and all acts of the said licensee during the period covered by the said bond.

SEC. 3. That the said Commissioners and their successors be, and they hereby are, authorized to establish and charge a fee for each permit granted to connect any building, premises, or establishment with any sewer, water, or gas main, or other underground structure located in any public street, avenue, alley, road, highway, or space; and also to establish and charge a fee for each permit granted to make an excavation in any public street, avenue, alley, highway, road, or space, for the purpose of repairing, altering, or extending any house, sewer, water main, or gas main, or other underground construction. The fees authorized by this section shall be paid to the collector of taxes of the district of Columbia and by him deposited in the Treasury of the United States, to the credit of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 4. That the said Commissioners of the District of Columbia and their successors be, and they hereby are, authorized and empowered to appoint an inspector of plumbing and such number of assistants as they deem necessary, which may be authorized by appropriations made by Congress, not exceeding four, in and for the District, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of said Commissioners, and they are hereby empowered accordingly, to inspect or cause to be inspected all houses when in course of erection in said District, to see that the plumbing, drainage, and ventilation of sewers thereof conform to the regulations hereinbefore provided for; and also at any time, during reasonable hours, under like direction, to inspect or cause to be inspected any house in said District, to examine the plumbing, drainage, and ventilation of sewers thereof, and generally to see that the regulations hereinbefore provided for are duly observed and enforced.

SEC. 5. That all laws or parts of laws inconsistent herewith be, and they hereby are, repealed.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the third reading of the Senate bill.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I listened with what care I could to the reading of the bill, but I did not catch the amount of the salary named in it.

Mr. HEMPHILL. That is to be provided for by the committee.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. So that the committee can vary the compensation of these people at their own sweet will. Is that the purpose?

Mr. HEMPHILL. That is not the purpose, but that is the way the bill came over to us from the Senate and we have agreed to it.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Then there is nothing to prevent the Committee on Appropriations from appropriating, in a moment of liberality, $10,000 a year for this official.

Mr. HEMPHILL. No, sir.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. How many officials does the bill provide for?

Mr. HEMPHILL. An inspector of plumbing, and three assistants, I think, or four.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. That would make five additional officers.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Yes, sir.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I simply wanted to call the attention of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] to that fact, but he does not seem to be here. [Laughter.]

The bill was read a third time.

Mr. HOLMAN. I wish to inquire whether this bill imposes any charge on the Treasury?

Mr. HEMPHILL. It does not.

Mr. HOLMAN. How are these officers to be paid?

Mr. HEMPHILL. By salaries to be appropriated hereafter upon the report of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. HEARD. Are not these officers to be paid by fees?

Mr. HOLMAN. If the bill creates five new salaried officers, I certainly object to it.

Mr. HEARD. My impression is that these officers are to be paid by fees.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I beg pardon of the gentleman from Indiana. I see now, on examining the bill, that salaries are to be paid—$2,000 per annum to the inspector and $1,200 to each of the assistants.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Is that provided in the bill as read by the Clerk?

Mr. HEMPHILL. Yes, sir.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I was listening, and did not hear that provision.

Mr. HEARD (to Mr. HEMPHILL). Does the bill provide salaries?

Mr. HEMPHILL. Yes, sir.

Mr. HEARD. My impression was that these officers were to be paid by fees.

Mr. HEMPHILL. They are to be paid out of the fees coming in; but they are not to get all the fees that come in.

Mr. HOLMAN. I do not think that these five officers should be fastened upon the Treasury. We know how fees come in. I certainly think my friend from South Carolina can frame this bill so as not to create a new class of salaried officers. The bill could very readily be arranged so that the fees should be paid directly to the parties who do the inspection. If the fees which these officers are to receive be paid by the persons for whom the work is done, I have no objection.

Mr. HEMPHILL. The fees have to be paid in the first instance into the Treasury. Under existing arrangements there is no authority for any of these officers to receive any fees; and they make nothing out of it. This bill simply provides that these men shall have a reasonable salary out of the fees received from this work.

Mr. HOLMAN. What is the salary?

Mr. HEMPHILL. Two thousand dollars for the inspector and $1,200 for each of the assistants.

Mr. HOLMAN. How many assistants?

Mr. HEMPHILL. Not exceeding four.

Mr. HOLMAN. Then this means that five new salaried officers, one at $2,000 and the others at $1,200, are to be created. It would be a very easy thing to provide that the expense of these services be paid by the persons who have the work done. Why not?

Mr. HEMPHILL. For the reason that if the fees for this class of work should amount to ten or fifteen thousand dollars a year there is no reason why these inspectors should get the whole amount. That is all there is of it. We have been obliged to cut down the pay of the recorder of deeds and the register of wills, whose compensation has been made up of fees, and to give those officers a limited salary. This bill provides a limited salary for the inspector of plumbing and his assistants.

Mr. HOLMAN. Who is to collect these fees?

Mr. HEMPHILL. They are to be paid to the collector of taxes, who is to turn them into the Treasury of the United States.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Let me call the gentleman's attention to the fact that, so far as I have examined, neither the manuscript bill as read by the Clerk, nor the printed copy of the bill as passed by the Senate, contains any provision as to the amount of salary.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, does not the fifth section of this bill make provision as to these salaries?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Section 5 is simply a repealing provision, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 5. That all laws or parts of laws inconsistent herewith be, and they hereby are, repealed.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Now, I ask the Clerk to read section 4.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 4. That the said Commissioners of the District of Columbia and their successors be, and they hereby are, authorized and empowered to appoint an inspector of plumbing and such number of assistants as they deem necessary, which may be authorized by appropriations made by Congress, not exceeding four, in and for the District, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of said Commissioners, and they are hereby empowered accordingly, to inspect, or cause to be inspected, all houses when in course of erection in said District, to see that the plumbing, drainage, and ventilation of sewers thereof conform to the regulations hereinbefore provided for; and also at any time, during reasonable hours, under like direction, to inspect, or cause to be inspected, any house in said District, to examine the plumbing, drainage, and ventilation of sewers thereof, and generally to see that the regulations hereinbefore provided for are duly observed and enforced.

Mr. HEMPHILL. It seems, Mr. Speaker, that the Senate bill as printed and the Senate bill as engrossed are different things; in this way I was misled when I made my statement to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HEARD] and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN]. I am willing that the bill as passed by the Senate, leaving out all provision for salaries, be passed by the House. I think that ought to satisfy the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. HOLMAN. I am satisfied if all provision for the creation of new salaried officers is omitted.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Then I ask a vote on the passage of the bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. The amendment, I believe, has not yet been placed on the bill.

Mr. HEMPHILL. It has not been amended; but the Senate bill, read from the desk, the manuscript bill, which is the real bill, does not provide any salary. The bill which was printed as the Senate bill did provide a salary, and I imagine the mistake came about by this clause being stricken out in the Senate. But as the bill is read by the Clerk, and will be passed by the House, it does not provide any salary. I am willing it should be passed in that way.

Mr. HOLMAN. Does it provide that these fees shall be paid direct to the inspector by the person who has the work done?

Mr. HEMPHILL. No, sir; it does not provide that they shall be paid directly to the inspector, but that they shall be paid through the assessor's office and into the Treasury of the United States. This will leave the question of compensation to the inspectors to be fixed by the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. HOLMAN. I submit to the gentleman from South Carolina that it would be better, and more in harmony with safe legislation, to let this bill be recommitted with instructions to so amend the bill that the fees thereby provided for shall be paid to the inspection officers by the persons for whom the work is done. It is a private business largely, not public.

Mr. HEARD. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask if the gentleman from Indiana thinks it would not be safe to leave in the hands of the Committee on Appropriations the fixing of the compensation of these officers? Now, while it is, in one sense, as the gentleman has said, a private matter, to the extent that the private individual is to pay for the inspection, it is in another, and in a much broader sense, a public matter of very great concern. Under existing law it is competent to control the inspection and supervision of plumbing in new houses being erected.

But these officers have no authority whatever, as I am advised, to overhaul and control the plumbing in old buildings, these old hotels and other establishments in the city; and it is regarded that this work is vitally important, not only to the health of those living in such buildings, but to the adjacent community. The bill provides for the necessary inspector and only so many plumbers as may be necessary shall be employed, and leaves to the Committee on Appropriations the providing for compensation. I should think that ought to be entirely satisfactory.

Mr. HOLMAN. But when you create an office you make a charge upon the Treasury for compensation, and the first thing you know the fees to be paid will disappear, and all that will remain will be the fact that certain new officers are appointed whose salaries must be provided for.

Mr. HEARD. Oh, well, that is merely an assumption.

Mr. HOLMAN. I know it is an assumption, but it is entirely in accordance with my experience since I have been in Congress.

I insist, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman shall so amend the bill that this comparatively private business shall be transacted as private business is generally transacted elsewhere.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I venture to assert to the gentleman from Indiana that he can not find a well-regulated city in the United States that is governed in any of its departments on any such principle as that. This plan is certainly as safe as anything that can be adopted. All the public mains through which the water of the city comes are public property. The Commissioners ought to have some power of saying that they shall not be tapped unless there is a fee paid, and when that fee is received it ought to go into the public Treasury; and these officers who perform the duty of inspection should be allowed a reasonable salary for the work done, which will be fixed, of course, by the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. HOLMAN. But I submit to my friend from South Carolina that this business is so purely a private matter that Congress should have nothing at all to do with it.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Now, Mr. Speaker, on that point a word.

Mr. HOLMAN (continuing). These inspectors—

Mr. HEMPHILL. Let me say to the gentleman just there—

Mr. HOLMAN. Let me finish my statement first. These inspectors are appointed by the Commissioners. Now, there are how many inspectors, I wish to inquire of the gentleman before proceeding, in this city?

Mr. HEMPHILL. At present there are none, I will say in response to the question. They run wild, so to speak, and all the public water mains here that we have made large appropriations for, and are making appropriations for every year, are being tapped by these people at will without law or regulation to control them.

Mr. HOLMAN. When this matter was up in the last Congress the attention of the House was called to the fact that there were a great number of inspectors. Now, how are they paid?

Mr. HEMPHILL. There are no inspectors in this department now.

Mr. HEARD. The Committee on Appropriations have to make provision for their salaries, and you ought to know what the amount is.

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, there are inspectors here.

Mr. HEARD. There is a building inspector, Mr. Entwistle; but my information from the Commissioners is that they have no authority at present to overhaul the plumbing in these old buildings. They can inspect the new ones that are being erected, but that is as far as their authority goes.

Mr. HOLMAN. Oh, well, if gentlemen want to pile up burdens upon the Treasury—

Mr. HEARD. We do not want to, and we do not want the gentleman from Indiana to put us in that attitude. Our committee stand here having recommended the cutting down of the fees of the recorder and the register, which the gentleman's committee had failed to cut down. We did that by an amendment to the bill which your committee brought in here, and we do not propose to have the gentleman put us in any such position as he suggests now. He can not thus pose before the country at our expense.

Mr. HOLMAN. But my friend admits, I suppose, that this is a proposition to create five new public offices?

Mr. HEARD. I admit that it proposes to create the office of an inspector and as many assistants as the Commissioners find necessary, but it leaves the whole question of providing compensation to the Committee on Appropriations.

The gentleman from Indiana can sit on those fellows as much as he has a mind to, and pose before the country as the savior of its money in that direction.

Mr. HOLMAN. My friend knows very well that when you create an office the officer must be paid.

Mr. HEARD. My dear sir, you have the opportunity to say how much the compensation shall be, and that limits it.

Mr. HOLMAN. I know how it is with public offices. They grow right straight along; when you get them fastened on the Treasury you do not get them off. The policy of the gentlemen of the District Committee is to let these inspectors be appointed, while there are certainly now quite a number of inspectors.

Mr. HEARD. There are building inspectors.

Mr. HOLMAN. They are inspectors just as much as these are.

Mr. HEARD. But they are not plumbers, nor inspectors of plumbing.

Mr. HOLMAN. How many inspectors are there?

Mr. HEARD. I do not know. There is one building inspector. I suppose he has such assistants as may be required to do what is necessary in the supervision of the construction of new buildings; but the point is made that these inspectors have no right to inspect plumbing already put into houses. The Commissioners and others who have investigated it insist that to overhaul the plumbing in these old hotels and other buildings is a vital matter to the health of the city.

Mr. HOLMAN. How many salaries are we now paying for inspection in this city?

Mr. HEARD. My information is that there is a building inspector. I do not know how he is paid. The gentleman who gets up the appropriation bill ought to know. He is perhaps paid by fees.

Mr. HOLMAN. Why not pay these other officers in the same way?

Mr. HEMPHILL. Has the gentleman from Indiana completed his remarks?

Mr. HOLMAN. I wish to make a motion to recommit.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I would like to state for the information of the House—

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I wish to submit this motion to recommit the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Indiana offers the amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

To recommit with instructions to amend the bill so that the services of the inspectors shall be paid directly by the persons whose property is inspected, and not out of the public Treasury.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I would like to say something about that. The bill as it is now prepared provides that certain fees for licenses and otherwise are to be paid to the assessor of the District of Columbia, and deposited in the United States Treasury. It provides for an inspector of plumbing and not to exceed four inspectors, to be provided for by the Committee on Appropriations. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] asks that this bill shall be recommitted with instructions that all fees received from the opening up of the water mains, and other such matters connected with the District of Columbia, shall be received by the man who does the work; and if it amounts to $10,000, that he shall get it. I say that there is an injustice in allowing any such regulation as that. The gentleman from Indiana knows that the recorder of deeds in this District has been drawing from $10,000 to $15,000 a year in fees out of the money of the people of this District and adjoining country here; and we have within the last month cut his salary down to $3,000. Now, this is a proposition to do exactly the same thing for other people, after we have refused it to the recorder of deeds.

Now, the gentleman has no information as to the amount of fees these inspectors will get. He has no idea how much the work is; and I say that this House ought not to instruct this committee to bring in a bill to direct that the services of the inspectors shall be paid for directly by persons having the work done instead of paying them salaries.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think that this private business of plumbing in the city should not be a source of revenue, and it should not be a source of expenditures either. As this bill will stand, without any reference to what the fees paid here may be, or the salaries fixed, they have to be paid.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I have said that the bill as read from the Clerk's desk does not provide a cent for it.

Mr. HOLMAN. It provides for the inspectors.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Well, let the Committee on Appropriations provide for the payment then, if the work is to be paid for out of the fees.

Mr. HOLMAN. When you propose to create offices, of course the salaries must be provided for.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I trust that the House will not put the Committee on the District of Columbia in the ridiculous attitude that the gentleman from Indiana asks it shall be put.

Mr. HOLMAN. If the gentleman will allow me to finish my sentence, I think this business should be conducted in this way: The District Commissioners, who are the recognized authorities here, should appoint the inspectors, and let them fix the fees low enough so that no more shall be paid than would afford a reasonable compensation. I insist that our Government should have just as little to do with the affairs of this District as possible. It only seems to increase the charges against the public Treasury, and somehow or other tends to diminish the charges that the District of Columbia are to pay.

On reflection, while I certainly think that gentlemen are honest in their efforts not to increase the number of public officers unnecessarily, and while I regret the Committee on the District of Columbia have not informed us how many inspectors there are now and the amount of their salaries, and how they are paid—while we have no such information before us whatever, I will not further antagonize the committee, but will see whether I can not make some such arrangement. Now, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion.

Mr. HEARD. I desire only to say to the gentleman from Indiana that I join in his expression of regret that the information has not come to the House, but think we might naturally expect that such information ought to be in the possession of the Committee on Appropriations; for surely they ought to know more about this than the Committee on the District of Columbia, since that is the committee which appropriates the money to pay all such salaries.

The health of this District seems to me a matter of sufficient importance to require the exercise of these duties. It appears to me clearly necessary; and I do not believe there is a gentleman on the floor of this House who, upon reflection or investigation, will decide that there ought not to be inspectors of all plumbing in this District.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] to recommit the bill with instructions.

Mr. HOLMAN. I said, Mr. Speaker, that under the circumstances I shall not antagonize the Committee on the District of Columbia and would withdraw my motion, with the statement that when the opportunity occurs I will seek to get this matter so arranged as to provide that these inspectors shall be appointed by the District Commissioners and that the fees charged shall only be sufficient to pay a reasonable compensation to the persons employed as inspectors by the persons for whose benefits the inspection is made.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman withdraws the motion to recommit, and the question now is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

Mr. BAILEY. I demand a division, Mr. Speaker.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 65, noes 16.

Mr. BAILEY. No quorum.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. DOCKERY. Pending that, I ask the gentleman from New Jersey to permit the Chair to lay before the House a few personal requests.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows: To Mr. WILSON of Kentucky, indefinitely, on account of important business.

To Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana, this day, on account of important business.

Mr. DOCKERY. On behalf of the subcommittee on appropriations charged with the investigation of the World's Fair expenditures, I desire to ask indefinite leave of absence. The committee consists of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas, Mr. COMPTON of Maryland, Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa, Mr. COGSWELL of Massachusetts, and myself.

There was no objection, and leave was granted.

The motion of Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey was then agreed to; and accordingly (at 5 o'clock and 1 minute p. m.) the House adjourned.

FREE COINAGE.

Mr. STEWART. I desire to give notice that on Monday next, immediately after the morning business, I shall move to take up the bill (S. 51) to provide for the free coinage of gold and silver, and for other purposes.

Mr. HOAR. Where is the bill now?

Mr. STEWART. The bill is on the Calendar, reported adversely. I shall move to take it up on Monday.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a resolution coming over from a previous day, which will be read.

The resolution submitted yesterday by Mr. WOLCOTT was read as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House concurring), That the President be requested to refrain from allotting in severally the lands of the present reservation of the Southern Ute Indians pending legislation in the present Congress respecting the removal of said Indians to another reservation.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. President, this resolution, which I introduced yesterday, is pertinent by reason of the legislation now pending before this body in the form of a bill which rests with the Committee on Indian Affairs. The bill practically provides that the Southern Ute Indians shall be removed from their present reservation in Southwestern Colorado to another reservation in Southeastern Utah. It provides that the payment of $50,000 shall be made to the tribe, with an allowance of $2,000 to the headmen of the tribe. It provides for the valuing of their present lands, with a further provision that all these lands are sold the proceeds arising from their sale shall go to a permanent fund for the benefit of the Southern Ute Indians. It provides that the new reservation shall be cleared of the present claimants, who occupy it without any adequate protection of law; that their improvements shall be estimated in value and allowance made for them. It provides for an appropriation of $5,000 to move the Indians from the one reservation to the other.

This legislation has been pending before this body in former Congresses. A similar bill was reported at a former Congress to the other House, but Congress adjourned without taking action upon it. A similar bill is now pending in both branches of Congress.

The present bill was introduced on the 10th day of December last and still slumbers in the Committee on Indian Affairs. Two years ago the Commissioner of Indian Affairs wrote an urgent letter, which was duly forwarded to the Senate committee, urging that immediate action be taken on this legislation for the reason that the Indians were restless; that it was essential that some conclusion be had in the matter, and that it was important before the new reservation should be settled up by white men that something definite should be determined as to the policy to be pursued toward these Southern Ute Indians.

The protracted delay in the report of this bill leads me to offer the resolution asking that the President do not, as he is authorized to do by the act of 1880, allot the present lands of these Indians in severalty. In the bill pending before the other House there is an amendment to the effect that all Indians who so desire may remain upon the present reservation and take their lands in severalty. That amendment is ready to be offered to this bill when the Senate can have it again in its charge.

The wisdom of the bill has been sustained by extensive testimony taken before the committees of both Houses of Congress, and the delay in the Indian Affairs Committee would not have occurred and no opposition would have arisen to this measure had it not been for the persistent efforts of an association known as the Indian Rights' Association. This association has been flooding the country with printed forms of petitions, has been laying upon the desks of every Senator printed matter showing the hardships of the removal, and giving reasons why the bill should not pass. The association has created a false and an untrue sentiment among good men and women in the East. I presume there is not a Senator within the hearing of my voice who has not received letters from people urging him to vote against the proposed removal of the Southern Utes from Colorado to Utah.

The claim made by the Indian Rights Association is in substance that the present reservation is better for the Indian than the one to which it is proposed to remove him; that the welfare of the Government would be subserved by keeping him where he is and dividing his lands in severalty; that the proposed legislation is prompted by the cupidity of the whites and is being urged for unworthy motives; that the Indians have consented to a removal only through pressure, and that their real desire is to remain upon their present reservation. These statements of the Indian Rights Association originate in the brain of one C. C. Painter, to whom I shall hereafter refer. They are untrue in substance and in fact, and by their circulation an entirely false impression and opinion have been created in the minds of people.

Because of the delay in the reporting of the bill it is a duty I owe to the Senate and to so much of the public as have taken an interest in this question as well as to the people of the State of Colorado that these falsehoods be met and refuted at this time.

We in Colorado are not unfriendly to the Indian. When we were first organized as a Territory we found within our borders thousands of Mexicans who came to us by conquest, aliens in race and language and traditions and habits. We have assimilated them to us and they are now rapidly adopting our language and our methods. They have become good, intelligent citizens, and many of them are now occupying important positions of trust in the State of Colorado.

Had the Indian offered the slightest evidence of capacity for civilization he too would have been taken by the hand and lifted up and planted on the firm ground of citizenship. No effort has been spared in this direction, but the Southern Ute Indian who now lives in Colorado is not capable of civilization in this generation or in this century.

In all the legislation that has been sought due regard has been uniformly had to the interest of the Indian as well as the white; and if the population surrounding the present reservation did not exist, if the two reservations stood with no white man within a thousand miles of either of them, the same reasons for the removal of the Indians from the one reservation to the other would still largely exist.

This tribe of Southern Ute Indians consists of about 1,000 souls—about 250 men. They are brave and ignorant and shrewd. They are blanket Indians.

Mr. HOAR. How many are there?

Mr. WOLCOTT. Nine hundred and eighty-four, I think, is the exact number. I describe them as about a thousand.

Mr. SHERMAN. What is the number of men?

Mr. WOLCOTT. The number of men is from about 230 to 250. They are essentially what are known as blanket Indians. All efforts to civilize them have failed. They follow the chase. Of late years they have taken to the herding of stock. Sheep have been given them. They butchered and killed many of them, but a few of the Indians saved some of theirs, and they are now raising some sheep and some goats. But they are essentially the Indian known as the blanket Indian, not amenable to the influences of civilization.

They are divided into three bands, the Weeminuchas, who comprise about one-half of the Southern Ute Indians, the Capotas, and the Moaches. The tribe is a recent acquisition to the United States and a more recent acquisition to Colorado. They came to us as part of the fruits of the Mexican war. They lived at the time of the conquest in the Territory now known as New Mexico, and they continued to reside there for more than a generation afterwards. They are attached to their reservation by no ties of association or tradition. They roam no ancestral acres. Their dead are buried in New Mexico and not within the confines of their reservation.

In 1849, after our treaty with Mexico, we made our first treaty with these Southern Utes—a treaty simply of amity, in which we agreed to deal with them as friends and they agreed to recognize the jurisdiction of the United States. At that time, as I say, they roamed in New Mexico without any settled habitations. Later, in 1863 and in 1868, other treaties were made with other tribes of Utes, which treaties recognized a portion of this tribe of Southern Utes and provided for their residence generally in Southern Colorado.

In 1873 a treaty was made with all the Utes by which the Utes gave up certain of their lands, retaining the present strip now devoted to the Southern Utes and another strip equally inconveniently located along the western border of Colorado. As early as 1878 the Indian agent reported that the southern strip was entirely unfitted for the purposes for which it was dedicated. These Ute Indians up to nearly 1878, although they had been included within the treaties, had not occupied the reservation in Colorado, but for nearly ten months in the year they had roamed in New Mexico, coming to the San Luis Valley and other sections of our State from time to time for hunting and other purposes.

As a result of the objection by the Indian agent, in 1878 Congress authorized negotiations looking to the removal of the Utes to a more favorable reservation. Then followed the massacre of the Meeker family in 1879, in which these Southern Utes did not participate, but which was conducted by the other Utes, the Uncompahgres, and the White Rivers.

The result of that massacre, followed by the disastrous defeat of Capt. Thornton, was the appointment of another commission, which was empowered to treat with the Indians upon the basis of their removal from Colorado. This was followed by a treaty with the Ute Indians speaking of them all as a tribe and thereby including the Southern Ute Indians, whereby the Ute Indians generally agreed to give up their lands in Colorado and to take such lands in Utah and elsewhere as should be allotted to them. The other Utes, the Uncompahgres, and the White Rivers were put in Northwestern Colorado, but there were soon threats of another outbreak, and these Indians were hurried off to the Uintah Reservation in Utah, the Southern Utes remaining upon this southwestern strip.

Then in 1880 negotiations were had looking to the confining of the Southern Ute Indians to some specific reservation. A commission was appointed, and in 1880 this present reservation was made the permanent home and the exclusive abode of the Southern Ute Indians. At the time this reservation was set aside my colleague [Mr. TELLER], then as now in the Senate, entered his vigorous protest against the allotting of the Indians to this reservation, predicting the very thing that has come to pass, foreshadowing the growth and development of that section in Colorado, describing the awkward and the inconvenient arrangement of the reservation, and protesting that the Indians should be sent elsewhere.

This reservation, however, was adopted as a temporary expedient, with a provision that the Indians should have the right to hunt in the Lasalle Mountains, and that if these lands along the La Plata, in Colorado, were insufficient, they might go to the lands of the La Plata River in New Mexico. That section of country was inconvenient and ill-suited to their wants, and was settled by the white men, to whom patents had been issued.

The reservation which the Southern Utes at present occupy is a narrow strip or tongue of land in the southwestern corner of Colorado, 115 miles in length by 15 miles in width—a long, narrow strip of land. Its altitude is 7,000 feet above the sea. For nine years out of fourteen the snow has laid in solid mass more than two feet in depth for from ninety to one hundred days every

Mr. MITCHELL, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2262) for the relief of the next of kin of Robert Morris, deceased, submitted an adverse report thereon: which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. VOORHEES, from the Committee on the Library, to whom was referred the bill (S. 680) to authorize the purchase of Lawrie's picture of Gen. George H. Thomas, reported it without amendment.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Education and Labor, to whom was recommitted the bill (S. 1768) to allow thirty days' leave of absence to employes in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2765) granting to the Duluth and Winnipeg Railroad Company a right of way across the Fond du Lac Indian Reservation, reported it with an amendment.

Mr. VILAS, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 41) for the relief of E. B. Crozier, executrix of the last will of Dr. C. W. Crozier, of Tennessee, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2735) authorizing the employment of mail-collectors at free-delivery offices, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

EULOGIES ON THE LATE SENATOR PLUMB.

Mr. HAWLEY. By direction of the Committee on Printing I report favorably a concurrent resolution in the usual form for printing the eulogies on the life and services of Preston B. Plumb, late a Senator from Kansas, with a substitute for the original draft of the resolution. I hope there may be no objection to acting upon it now.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution: which was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House concurring), That 10,000 copies of the eulogies delivered in the two Houses of Congress on the life and services of the late Preston B. Plumb, a Senator from Kansas, be printed in the usual form, with portrait, bound; 4,000 copies for the use of members of the Senate, including its presiding and recording officers, and 6,000 copies for the use of the members of the House, including its recording officers.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the committee will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. Strike out all after the resolving clause and insert:

That there be printed and bound 8,000 copies of the eulogies delivered in Congress on Preston B. Plumb, of which number 2,000 shall be delivered to the Senators and Representatives of Kansas, which number shall include 50 copies to be bound in two for the use of the family of the deceased, and the remaining number shall be distributed according to the proportion of 2,000 to the Senate and 4,000 to the House. The engraving for the said eulogies shall be done at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and paid for out of the appropriation for that Bureau.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is that the usual number prescribed in the public printing bill that was passed by the Senate?

Mr. HAWLEY. Yes; it follows the bill we have just passed.

Mr. COCKRELL. The substitute is in accordance with the resolutions that have been passed since the passage of the public printing bill?

Mr. HAWLEY. Yes; in accordance with all that have been passed since that bill was passed by the Senate.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

COURTS IN TEXAS.

Mr. VEST. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 5176) to change the time of holding the courts in the eastern judicial district of Texas, to report it favorably, without amendment, and I ask for its present consideration. The bill is intended simply to change the time of holding courts in the State of Texas. Day before yesterday the Senate passed the same bill identically, a Senator bill reported from the Committee on the Judiciary. It was intended at the time to pass the House bill so as to save the necessity of sending the Senate bill to the other House. The bills are identical. It was simply a mistake day before yesterday that the wrong bill was passed.

Mr. COCKRELL. The Senator proposes to have the House bill passed and to recall the Senate bill?

Mr. VEST. There is no necessity to recall it, I presume, because the other House can indefinitely postpone the Senate bill, and this bill becomes a law when signed by the President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. VEST subsequently moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill (S. 2467) to fix the times of holding courts in the eastern district of Texas was ordered to a third reading and passed, and the motion was agreed to.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. VEST introduced a bill (S. 2752) to restore Eugene Wells to the Army; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 2783) authorizing the President to place on the retired list of the Army Sergt. Long and others, late of the Signal Corps, United States Army, survivors of the Lady Franklin Bay expedition; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2784) granting an increase of pension to Susan S. Worrell; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 2785) for the relief of officers of the Army retired for wounds received in battle; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2786) providing for the retirement of certain officers of the Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PROCTOR (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2787) authorizing the restoration of the name of Charles H. Allen, late post quartermaster-sergeant, to the rolls of the Army, and providing that he be placed on the enlisted retired list of the Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. POWER introduced a bill (S. 2788) creating two additional land districts in the State of Montana; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2789) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to place on the pension roll the name of Agnes Wallendorf; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2790) for the relief of George A. Norton; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Select Committee on Indian Depredations.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2791) granting an honorable discharge to Samuel Dollaif; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2792) granting a pension to Josiah H. Bross; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2793) for the relief of Crank & Hoffman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2794) to pension soldiers and sailors for disabilities received in addition to loss of a leg or an arm; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 2795) for the relief of William R. Colby; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2796) for the relief of certain officers of the Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2797) for the relief of A. H. Rush; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PALMER introduced a bill (S. 2798) for the relief of Peter Light; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a bill (S. 2799) to provide for the dedication of the statue erected to the memory of the Marquis Mari Jean Paul Roch Yves Gilbert Motier de Lafayette, a major-general in the Army of the United States; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. HISCOCK. I present the petition of Lafayette Post, No. 140, Department of New York, Grand Army of the Republic, praying for a proper dedication of the statue of the Marquis de Lafayette; and I move that it be referred, with the bill, to the Committee on the Library.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a bill (S. 2800) for the erection of a public building at the city of Dunkirk, N. Y.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2801) for the erection of a public building at the city of Jamestown, N. Y.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. HIGGINS introduced a bill (S. 2802) for the relief of George F. Hamilton; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CALL introduced a bill (S. 2803) for the relief of Meda A. Coyle, granddaughter and administratrix de bonis non of Lieut. Joseph Wheaton, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas introduced a bill (S. 2804) to grant lot No. 1 in block No. 72 of the Hot Springs Reservation to the school district of the city of Hot Springs for school purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. CALL (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2805) to establish a botanic hospital and home and a free school in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. McPHERSON introduced a bill (S. 2806) to authorize the construction of a telephone line on the coast of Virginia from Cape Charles to Assateague Island, in aid of the preservation of life and property; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. HAWLEY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the river and harbor appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

UNLAWFUL APPROPRIATION OF PROPERTY IN DISTRICT.

Mr. FAULKNER submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to: Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring). That the President be requested to return to the Senate the bill (S. 1657) to punish the unlawful appropriation of the use of the property of another in the District of Columbia.

LITERARY AND SCIENTIFIC COLLECTIONS.

Mr. McMILLAN. I ask leave to call up from the table the joint resolution (H. Res. 92) to encourage the establishment and endowment of institutions of learning at the national capital by defining the policy of the Government with reference to the use of its literary and scientific collections by students.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it be read for information.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the joint resolution.

Mr. McMILLAN. I move to amend the joint resolution in section 1, line 9—

Mr. COCKRELL. Wait one moment. Has the joint resolution just been reported?

Mr. McMILLAN. No, it came from the other House. It passed the other House yesterday and was sent over here. The Methodist and the Catholic University people are very anxious to have it passed to-day.

Mr. COCKRELL. Has it been considered by any committee?

Mr. McMILLAN. Oh, yes; a similar measure is on the Calendar, reported favorably from the Committee on the District of Columbia. The same measure has now passed the other House.

Mr. COCKRELL. What is the purpose of the bill?

Mr. McMILLAN. To allow the students of these universities the Catholic University and the Methodist University, to have access to our public institutions here.

Mr. COCKRELL. Do they not already have access there as has every other citizen of the United States?

Mr. McMILLAN. They have generally, but there are scientific collections they can not have access to unless this measure is passed. It is asked for and concerned in by all the heads of Departments.

Mr. DAWES. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. PLATT. Will not the Senator allow this joint resolution to be passed? The Senator from Michigan is trying to have it passed.

Mr. McMILLAN. It will take but a moment.

Mr. DAWES. If it will not cause debate of course I shall not interfere.

Mr. McMILLAN. All right.

Mr. DAWES. I will reserve my motion until it appears that there is to be debate. The Senator from Michigan will not insist upon it if it causes debate?

Mr. McMILLAN. It will cause none, I think.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

Mr. McMILLAN. In line 9 of section 1, after the word "to," I move to insert the words "scientific investigators and to;" so as to read:

That the facilities for research and illustration in the following and any other governmental collections now existing or hereafter to be established in the city of Washington for the promotion of knowledge shall be accessible, under such rules and restrictions as the officers in charge of each collection may prescribe, or as are already, or hereafter may be, prescribed by act of Congress, to scientific investigators, and to the students of any institution of higher education now incorporated or hereafter to be incorporated under the laws of Congress or of the District of Columbia, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HOAR. Is it the effect of this measure to take from the joint Committee on the Library its superintending power over the Library of Congress?

Mr. McMILLAN. Not at all; nothing of that kind.

Mr. HOAR. Is not that the effect of it?

Mr. McMILLAN. I think not.

Mr. HOAR. The rules and restrictions are to be made by the officers in charge of each collection, according to the joint resolution.

Mr. McMILLAN. That would not interfere at all.

Mr. HOAR. I am not sure about that.

Mr. McMILLAN. The passage of this joint resolution has been asked for by all the heads of Departments.

Mr. HOAR. That does not answer my question.

Mr. McMILLAN. It is not intended to interfere at all, and I am sure it does not interfere.

Mr. HOAR. I ask the Senator to allow the joint resolution to stand over one day. I should like to look at it. I presume it is all right.

Mr. McMILLAN. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will go over.

EXECUTIVE SESSION FOR THURSDAY.

Mr. DAWES. I renew my motion that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. CAMERON. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Massachusetts yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania for morning business?

Mr. DAWES. Certainly.

Mr. CAMERON. Not for morning business; but I wish to make a statement. Yesterday I gave notice that I should move an executive session this morning. The Senator from Massachusetts has asked me to postpone that motion for the purpose of allowing him to proceed with the Indian appropriation bill. I now give notice that to-morrow I shall move an executive session immediately up to the conclusion of the morning business.

WILLIAM BURROUGH.

Mr. BERRY. I should like to ask the Senator from Massachusetts to let me call up a bill that will just take two minutes to pass. It is to give a pension to a man who is 96 years old, who served in the war of 1812, and unless the old man gets it at once it is likely to do him no good.

Mr. DAWES. If no other Senator objects, I shall not.

Mr. BERRY. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill, H. R. 6214, to increase the pension of William Burrough, of Crawford County, Ark., a veteran of the war of 1812.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

Mr. DAWES. I yield to the urgent solicitation of the Senator from Arkansas.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to increase the pension of William Burrough, of Crawford County, Ark., veteran of the war of 1812, to $30 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

VALUE OF THE DOLLAR.

Mr. DAWES. The Senator from California [Mr. STANFORD] represents to me that he is obliged to leave for California to-morrow and he desires to make a few remarks this morning. Under those circumstances, I feel justified in consenting myself that he may have that opportunity, if the rest of the Senate does not object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The unfinished business will be informally laid aside in the absence of objection, and the Senator from California will proceed.

Mr. STANFORD. Mr. President, before proceeding with the remarks I desire to submit, I wish to read the bill itself. It is very short and is as follows:

Be it Enacted, etc. That the value of 258 grains of gold shall be the standard by which shall be measured and determined the value of a dollar, and all dollars shall be received and paid out in discharge of debts, both public and private, at par, measured by the aforesaid standard of value, whether the stamp of the Government making the dollar be on gold, silver, paper, or any other material.

their work but Sunday. I move that the memorial be referred to the Select Committee on the Quadro-Centennial.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. BUTLER presented a memorial of the Chamber of Commerce of Charleston, S. C., remonstrating against the passage of Senate bill 1755, to amend the steamboat laws of the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Charleston, S. C., praying that an appropriation be made for the purpose of establishing and maintaining gas-lighted beacons and buoys in the sixth light-house district; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. VEST presented the following petitions of Apple Creek Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Missouri:

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent gambling in farm products—referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Petition praying for the free delivery of mails in rural districts—referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Petition praying for the passage of a bill making certain issues of money full legal tender in payment of all debts—to the Committee on Finance.

Petition praying for the passage of a bill to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs—ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. BATE presented a memorial of 30 citizens of Birdstown, Tenn., remonstrating against the passage of any Federal bankruptcy bill; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. BRICE presented a petition of the First United Presbyterian Congregation, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and a petition of citizens of Rix's Mills, Ohio, praying that the World's Columbian Exposition be closed on Sunday, that the sale of intoxicants be prohibited thereat, and that the art department be managed according to the American standard of purity in art; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented resolutions adopted by the Trades and Labor Council of Zanesville, Ohio, favoring the passage of what is known as the Hoar clothing-label bill; which were referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also presented a petition of Columbus Council, No. 26, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Philadelphia, Pa., praying for the passage of the bill to amend the naturalization laws; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented the following petitions of Odell, Perry, Hart, Pleasant, and Nevada Granges, Patrons of Husbandry, of Ohio:

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation for the encouragement of silk culture—referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Petitions praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent gambling in farm products—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Petitions praying for the passage of House bill 395, defining land and imposing a tax thereon—ordered to lie on the table.

Petitions praying for the passage of a bill to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs—ordered to lie on the table.

Petitions praying for the free delivery of mails in rural districts—referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Petitions praying for the passage of a bill making certain issues of money full legal tender in payment of all debts—to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. COCKRELL. I present the memorial of John T. Lewis, L. D. Ramsay, and other citizens of Lockport, Mo., remonstrating against the passage of any bankruptcy law. I move that the memorial be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. I also present a petition of sundry leading citizens of St. Louis, Mo., in favor of a sixteenth amendment to the Constitution providing that no State shall pass any law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, etc. I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. TURPIE presented a petition of citizens of Indianapolis, Ind., praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting any legislation by the States respecting an establishment of religion or making an appropriation of money for any sectarian purpose; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. HAWLEY presented a petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, representing 75 members, of Torrington, Conn., praying for the closing of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday, the prohibition of the sale of liquor thereat, and the maintenance of the standard of purity of American art at the exhibition; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented the following petitions of Jewett City Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Connecticut:

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation for the encouragement of silk culture—referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent gambling in farm products—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Petition praying for the passage of House bill 395, defining land and imposing a tax thereon—ordered to lie on the table.

Petition praying for the passage of a bill to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs—ordered to lie on the table.

Petition praying for the free delivery of mails in rural districts—referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Petition praying for the passage of a bill making certain issues of money full legal tender in payment of all debts—to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. SAWYER presented the following petitions of Ono Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Wisconsin:

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation for the encouragement of silk culture—referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent gambling in farm products—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Petition praying for the free delivery of mails in rural districts—to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. SHERMAN. I present a genuine old-fashioned petition, written out by some one and signed by several hundred people, men and women, of Wooster, Ohio. It is a contrast to the petitions that I and others have presented, printed in due form, resolving, etc., and probably signed by one or two persons. This is a genuine petition praying that no appropriation be made for the World's Fair until provision is made for closing the World's Fair on the Sabbath day, and the reasons given are very sensible and very good. I move that the petition be referred to the Select Committee on the Quadro-Centennial.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of 100 citizens of Tuscarawas, Ohio, praying for the adoption of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the States from passing laws respecting an establishment of any religion, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. FELTON presented a petition of citizens of Fresno, Cal., praying for the passage of legislation regulating speculation in fictitious farm products; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. GALLINGER presented the following petitions of Warren Pond Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of New Hampshire:

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation for the encouragement of silk culture—ordered to lie on the table.

Petition praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent gambling in farm products—referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Petition praying for the passage of House bill 395, defining land and imposing a tax thereon—ordered to lie on the table.

Petition praying for the passage of a bill to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs—ordered to lie on the table.

Petition praying for the free delivery of mails in rural districts—referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Petition praying for the passage of a bill making certain issues of money full legal tender in payment of all debts—to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CHANDLER presented the petition of W. F. Grant and 379 other citizens of Newport, N. H., praying that the sale of intoxicants be prohibited on the grounds of the World's Columbian Exposition; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented the following petitions of Forest and Mount Blanknapp Granges, Patrons of Husbandry, of New Hampshire:

Petitions praying for the enactment of legislation for the encouragement of silk culture—referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Petitions praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent gambling in farm products—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Petitions praying for the passage of House bill 395, defining land and imposing a tax thereon—ordered to lie on the table.

Petitions praying for the free delivery of mails in rural districts—referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Petitions praying for the passage of a bill making certain issues of money full legal tender in payment of all debts—to the Committee on Finance.

Petitions praying for the passage of a bill to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs—ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. MANDERSON presented a petition of sundry citizens of Nebraska, praying that the World's Columbian Exposition be closed on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. HANSBROUGH presented a petition of 36 citizens of Richland County, N. Dak.; a petition of 16 citizens of Richland County, N. Dak.; a petition of 65 citizens of Richland County, N. Dak.; a petition of 29 citizens of Richland County, N. Dak.; a petition of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railroad Company, and a petition of 5 citizens of Richland County, N. Dak., praying for the passage of legislation granting relief from threatened eviction by the great Northern Railway Company from lands which such company claims under grant but for which the residents hold patents from the United States Government; which were referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. GEORGE presented a petition of citizens of Summit, Miss., praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting any legislation by the States respecting an establishment of religion or making an appropriation of money for any sectarian purpose; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. COCKRELL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2500) for the relief of Edward Clemmens, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 1923) granting an honorable discharge to William W. Wedgwood, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 711) to remove the charge of desertion now standing against Albert Keach, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. MANDERSON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1959) donating 29 acres of land from the Fort Sidney military reservation, on the northeast corner thereof, to the city of Sidney, Neb., for cemetery purposes, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred a petition of the organized workmen of the District, praying for sufficient appropriations to provide free text-books for pupils in public schools and for the erection of necessary buildings, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Appropriations; which was agreed to.

Mr. HAWLEY, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 611) for the relief of the legal owners of the Columbia bridge, at Columbia, Pa., asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Claims; which was agreed to.

Mr. WALTHALL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 619) for the relief of George P. Hrie;

A bill (S. 1937) for the relief of James L. Williams; and

A bill (S. 1957) for the relief of Meyer B. Haas.

Mr. BATIE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2390) for the relief of Monroe Blackburn, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. CAMERON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 512) for the relief of Benjamin F. Campbell, late second lieutenant of the Eighteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2667) to provide for the detail of an assistant to the Bureau of Navigation in the Navy Department, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. BUTLER. I am instructed by the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 67) to transfer the Revenue Cutter Service from the Treasury Department to the Navy Department, to report it with amendments, and to state that a written report will hereafter be made to accompany the bill.

HON. R. H. M. DAVIDSON.

Mr. CHANDLER. The Senator from North Carolina [Mr. VANCE] submitted a resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, for the payment of the expenses of Hon. R. H. M. Davidson in prosecuting his claim for a seat in the Senate. I am instructed to report back the same favorably, but after consultation with the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations it was deemed best that the amount should be paid by a special appropriation. I therefore report an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill, which I ask to have read and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is there any written report accompanying it?

Mr. CHANDLER. There is not. The committee recommended the allowance of the round sum of $1,250.

The proposed amendment was read, referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed, as follows:

To enable the Secretary of the Senate to pay to R. H. M. Davidson the expenses incurred by him in prosecuting his claim for a seat in the Senate under appointment of the governor of Florida, $1,250.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Mr. CAREY. I am instructed by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds to report back with an amendment the resolution referred to that committee relating to the construction of public buildings in this city, and I ask for its present consideration.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution, which was read, as follows:

Whereas the best interests of the General Government demand that it should own and have absolute control of all buildings necessary for public purposes, and for the proper care and custody of its records, at the seat of Government; Be it therefore

Resolved, First, That the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds be instructed to investigate, inquire, and report as to the condition of the public buildings in the city of Washington, and report what additional buildings in said city are needed for the uses of the General Government in order to carry on its business, to preserve and protect its public records, to afford proper and healthful accommodations for those engaged in the public service, the estimated cost of such buildings; and in this connection to report the sums annually expended by the several branches of the Government for leased or rented buildings in the city of Washington.

Second, That the said committee report by bill or otherwise, on or before the first Monday of December next, such legislation as in their opinion may be necessary in the premises.

Third, If it is necessary to carry out the object of this inquiry said committee, or subcommittee thereof, is authorized to sit during the recess.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the committee will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. The committee report to strike out the third subdivision of the resolution and insert:

Third, That the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds have authority for the employment of a stenographer to report the hearings before said committee or its subcommittee in investigating the questions proposed by the foregoing resolution.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS' HOME.

Mr. HAWLEY. I report favorably from the Committee on Military Affairs a brief bill passed by the other House, entirely unobjectionable. It is unanimously reported, and I ask that it be considered and passed now.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title of the bill will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (H. R. 3867) to amend the act concerning officers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, and for other purposes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, That section 1829 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, being section 6 of the act of Congress approved March 21, 1898, concerning the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows, to wit:

"Sec. 1829. The officers of the National Home shall consist of a governor, a deputy governor, a secretary, a treasurer, and such other officers as the managers may deem necessary. They shall be appointed from honorably discharged soldiers who served as mentioned in the following section; and they may be appointed and removed from time to time, as the interests of the institution may require, by the Board of Managers."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. HAWLEY. A word of explanation, Mr. President. The bill does not disclose its effect. The present law requires the managers of the Soldiers' Home in selecting their subofficers to choose only from those who were soldiers in the late war. They say they can get some better men occasionally if they have the whole range open, taking enlisted men.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. WASHBURN introduced a bill (S. 2807) for the relief of E. Douglass, late Indian agent at White Earth Indian Agency; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WILSON introduced a bill (S. 2808) granting bounties in certain cases; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. VILAS introduced a bill (S. 2809) for the relief of Royal E. Drake; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

I therefore, Mr. President, feel perfectly free, and I intend always while I have a seat on this floor to feel perfectly free to cast my vote upon any question concerning the welfare of my constituency according to what I believe are the substantial merits of the proposition.

I shall not complain that any other Senator does not do the same thing: I shall not criticise him or suppose that he does not, for there are other Senators in this body who believe that the acquisition of the Presidency is of more worth to the great body of the people even than the bread that they are to eat and the clothing which they are to wear. They believe it will be a better thing that the people should almost starve, six months of the year, on the lowest possible support for humanity, rather than that they should lose a Presidential election. I do not feel that way about it. I feel as if this was a government instituted for the purpose of providing for the welfare of the people who compose it, and I try never to get out of sight either of their power, their influence, their wishes, or their interests.

I believe that it is a duty of the Government of the United States to care for those men who are not here in person, and who sent us here to take care of their material interests and welfare and to provide those measures which we conscientiously believe are necessary for that result and that effect, and I will never turn my back upon any question that comes up in this Senate, because I may suppose that it will redound to the advantage of the political party to which I happen to belong when I believe by my vote I can secure a proper advantage, a necessary opportunity for prosperity and justice, at least, to the people that I have the honor to represent here.

Mr. President, the Senator from Ohio does not want to hear any debate about this matter. I do not blame him. It has been dinned in his ears for many years, and after a large portion of the Democratic party and a large portion of the Republican party have combined in these latter days to elevate the honorable Senator's great policy against silver to this throne of power, from which it is supposed it will never be dethroned, I do not blame him for enjoying the situation and wanting to do it in quietude and silence, for surely the Democratic party of the United States never before paid such a tribute to Whig or Republican as has been paid recently to the honorable Senator from Ohio by crowning him as the king of finance in this country and the man to lead the hosts of Democracy here on this question.

He rules supreme, and that policy seems new to be fixed which he inaugurated in 1873, when silver was 3 per cent premium over gold as bullion or as coin, and which has dragged silver down into the mere category of a metal of commerce like nickel and aluminum and copper and iron—that Senator who has had the power to expel and keep expelled from the money metals of this country two-thirds of its mineral products for twelve or fourteen years, practically to destroy its value as a money metal and to reduce it to the category of a commodity which invites the speculation of all the thieves in Wall street or thereabouts—the Senator who has accomplished that much and has got a large Democratic indorsement for it ought to feel easy and quiet.

I do not blame him for the supreme indifference that he now manifests towards the interest and the welfare of the common people of this country. He ought to feel easy and happy, and he ought not to wish a man of my caliber and my location, my very remote connection, either personal or through my people, with the control of the vast wealth and money power of this country, to rise here and disturb his peace of mind when he is glorifying himself upon his recent triumph in connection with a fragment of the Democratic party in this country in crushing out the free coinage of silver. I do not propose that that Senator shall rest quite at ease about it until we have entered a final plea for the people.

I represent a constituency here that, if they have not a dollar apiece in their pockets, have the worthy manhood of the greatest and best of men—the manhood of a good conscience and an honest record through life for devotion to their country; and I intend that they shall have a representative on this floor who is not afraid to speak out and who will bring these subjects forward and try to have them considered, without reference to where or when or how far they may dethrone or break the idols of party worship.

So, Mr. President, I will ask that this resolution may go over until to-morrow, and I ask it in the hope that some of the Senators on this floor who I believe as I do about this subject will come to my support and sustain me in an effort to do justice to the patient and forbearing industrial classes.

Mr. PUGH. Yes.

Mr. MORGAN. And that, notwithstanding the rules of the Senate which will apply on next Monday, we shall have the opportunity when the Senator from Nevada calls his motion to take that bill up, which is reported adversely upon the Calendar, and notwithstanding the silence that will then be imposed upon us by that rule, that we shall, under these resolutions or in some form, have an opportunity of expressing our opinions and extracting also from other gentlemen their opinions upon these questions, for I want to know who are the friends of free coinage and who its enemies are in the Senate of the United States.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions will be printed and go over.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had agreed to the resolution of the Senate requesting the President of the United States to return to the Senate the bill S. 1657 to punish the unlawful appropriation of the use of the property of another in the District of Columbia.

The message also returned to the Senate, in compliance with its request, the bill (S. 2167) to fix the terms of holding courts in the eastern district of Texas.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bills:

A bill (S. 2315) to protect foreign exhibitors at the World's Columbian Exposition from prosecution for exhibiting wares protected by American patents and trade-marks; and

A bill (S. 2643) changing the time for holding the circuit and district courts in the district of West Virginia.

The message also announced that the House had passed a joint resolution (H. Res. 69) authorizing the use of the martello tower, on Tybee Island, Georgia, for a signal station; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

HEARINGS BEFORE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following resolution; which was read:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to employ a stenographer, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, to report the evidence and arguments at the hearing with regard to pending measures for the relief of the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

By unanimous consent, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. HOAR. I will say to my friend from Nebraska [Mr. PADDOCK], who is a member of the Committee on Contingent Expenses, that this is a matter merely of employing a stenographer for an hour or an hour and a half. It is not of any great importance.

Mr. PADDOCK. It gives me great pleasure to be able to announce to the Senator from Massachusetts that the honored chairman of the Committee on Contingent Expenses is now present, and the Senator may consult with him.

Mr. HOAR. Very well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FAULKNER in the chair). The resolution will be referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, in the absence of objection.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had this day approved and signed the act (S. 2384) to change the name of the customs-collection district and port of Wilmington, Cal., to Los Angeles, and for other purposes.

LITERARY AND SCIENTIFIC COLLECTIONS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed, and the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. McMILLAN. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of House joint resolution 92, which is now on the table. It was partially considered yesterday and went over until to-day.

Mr. DAWES. Is the morning business concluded?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The morning business is concluded.

Mr. DAWES. Then I move to take up the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. McMILLAN. I hope the Senator will allow the consideration of the joint resolution to be finished.

Mr. DAWES. If it will not cause any debate I shall not insist on my motion.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the joint resolution (H. Res. 92) to encourage the establishment and endowment of institutions of learning at the national capital by defining the policy of the Government with reference to the use of its literary and scientific collections by students.

Mr. McMILLAN. I wish to offer an amendment, in line 8, after the word "prescribe," to strike out "or as are already or hereafter may be prescribed by act of Congress" and insert "subject to such authority as is now or may hereafter be permitted by law;" and in line 9, before the word "students," to insert "scientific investigators and to."

I will say that I offer the amendment at the request of the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR], and as I understand it does away with his objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In line 8, after the word "prescribe," it is proposed to strike out "or as are already or hereafter may be prescribed by act of Congress" and insert "subject to such authority as is now or may hereafter be permitted by law;" and in line 9, after the words "to the," to insert "scientific investigators and to;" so as to read:

That the facilities for research and illustration in the following and any other governmental collections now existing or hereafter to be established in the city of Washington for the promotion of knowledge shall be accessible, under such rules and restrictions as the officers in charge of each collection may prescribe, subject to such authority as is now or may hereafter be permitted by law to the scientific investigators and to the students of any higher institution of higher education now incorporated or hereafter to be incorporated under the laws of Congress or of the District of Columbia, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the joint resolution to be read a third time.

The joint resolution was read the third time, and passed.

USE OF SENATE CHAMBER.

Mr. SHERMAN. I wish to ask the unanimous consent of the Senate, and it is requisite that the consent should be unanimous, to allow a formal caucus to be held in the Senate Chamber this evening by the Republicans of the two Houses for the purposes of organization in the usual way. It not being convenient this evening to hold it in the Hall of the other House on account of a desire to hold a session there, I ask unanimous consent of the Senate that it may be held this evening in the Senate Chamber.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Ohio? The Chair hears no objection, and the request is granted.

INDIAN APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. DAWES. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 5974) making appropriations for current and contingent expenses and fulfilling treaty stipulations with Indian tribes, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The pending question is on the amendment reported by the Committee on Appropriations as amended, on which the yeas and nays have been ordered.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the amendment be again reported.

The CHIEF CLERK. After line 11, of section 1, on page 1, it is proposed to strike out:

Provided, That from and after the passage of this act, the President shall detail officers of the United States Army to act as Indian agents at all agencies where vacancies from any cause may hereafter occur, who, while acting as such agents, shall be under the orders and direction of the Secretary of the Interior. Provided further, That whenever the President shall be of opinion that the good of the service specially requires it, he may appoint a civilian.

Mr. DAWES. I believe the yeas and nays have been ordered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the roll will be called.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let me understand it. The motion is to strike out the House provision, as it has been amended?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That is the question, on the amendment reported by the Committee on Appropriations as amended yesterday.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BATE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Washington [Mr. ALLEN], who is absent in committee necessarily.

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL], but feeling, as I do, that if he were here he would vote "nay," I shall record my vote "nay."

Mr. MANDERSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN], who is detained from the Chamber by a domestic affliction. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CASEY]. If he were present, I should vote "nay."

Mr. WALTHALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON]. If he were present, I should vote "nay."

Mr. WOLCOTT (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. KENNA]. In his absence from the Chamber, I withhold my vote.

The roll-call was concluded.

Mr. BRICE. I am paired with the Senator from California [Mr. FELTON].

Mr. FAULKNER. I am paired with the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY]. I understand if he were present he would vote "nay." I therefore record my vote "nay."

Mr. DAVIS. I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE].

The result was announced—yeas 29, nays 34; as follows:

YEAS—29

Allen	Gorman	Palmer	Stewart
Call	Hansborough	Perkins	Stockbridge
Carry	Ingalls	Pettibrew	Teller
Colquitt	Hiscock	Platt	Warren
Cullom	Jones, Ark	Powers	Wilson

Allen	Dixon	Manderson	Thurpie
Bate	Felton	Mitchell	Walthall
Blackburn	Frye	Morrill	Wolcott
Bodgett	Hale	Pasco
Brice	Hear	Quay
Cassidy	Irby	Spurne

So the amendment of the committee was rejected.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The reading of the bill will be proceeded with.

The Secretary resumed and continued the reading of the bill to the following provision in line 19, on page 2:

At the Colville Agency, at $1,500.

Mr. DAWES. I ask that that line may be passed over until the Senator from Washington [Mr. ALLEN] is able to be in the Chamber.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FAULKNER in the chair). It will be so ordered.

The reading of the bill was resumed at line 21, on page 2.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, in section 1, on page 4, line 7, after the words "At the," to strike out "Forest City Agency (formerly Cheyenne River)," and insert "Cheyenne River Agency;" so as to make the clause read:

At the Cheyenne River Agency, at $1,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, on page 5, line 13, before the word "Territory," to strike out "Indian" and insert "Oklahoma," so as to make the clause read:

At the Sapulpa Agency, Oklahoma Territory, at $1,200.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, on page 6, after the words "per annum," at the end of line 16, to insert "which sum is hereby appropriated for the purpose;" and in line 20, after the word "thousand," to strike out "three hundred;" so as to make the clause read:

The superintendent of the Indian training school at Cherokee, N. C., shall, in addition to his duties as superintendent, perform the duties heretofore required of the agent at said Cherokee Agency, and receive, in addition to his salary as superintendent, $200 per annum, which sum is hereby appropriated for the purpose and shall in no event be paid to other Indian agents, and that the other agent be and the same is hereby abolished at that place in all $20,000 and all provisions of law having compensation for Indian agents in excess of that herein provided are hereby repealed.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, on page 7, line 3, after the words "inspectors at," to strike out "two thousand five hundred" and insert "three thousand;" and in line 4, after the word "each," to strike out "twelve thousand five hundred" and insert "fifteen thousand;" so as to make the clause read:

The pay of five Indian inspectors at $1,000 per annum each, $5,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, on page 7, line 9, to increase the appropriation "for pay of one superintendent of Indian schools" from "$1,000" to "$1,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, on page 7, line 20, after the words "and repairs of the same," to strike out "and repairs of the same;" so as to make the clause read:

The building and repair of buildings at agencies, $20,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, on page 9, line 1, in the agent has added to his duties the care of other agencies it is true, because those other agencies require but very little work. I do not think, taking his labor compared with what his labors were ten years ago, that the raising of the salary would be justified. However, Mr. President, I shall ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

Mr. PADDOCK. I hope the Senator will not do that now. The increase of this salary has been recommended half a dozen times by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. It is conceded by the Department that it is a hardship and an injustice to retain this small salary considering the added duties and responsibilities.

Now, the very fact that part of these Indians at least, as the Senator states, have had lands allotted to them in severalty indicates that the duties are more important and responsible. I believe the stage of civilization to which the Indians have reached, which involves the allotment of land in severalty, itself brings new questions, new duties, new complications, and new responsibilities. I happen to know the agent in charge of that agency. He is a man of superior ability and has a splendid record. I know he is inadequately paid for the laborious, painstaking, and thorough service he renders.

Mr. DAWES. Does the Senator know how long his commission has run?

Mr. MANDERSON. About two years.

Mr. GEORGE. I should like to ask the Senator from Nebraska a question. Have you got a splendid agent there?

Mr. PADDOCK. We always have splendid agents under the present Administration. This is one of the best. I do not quite agree with my colleague about the detailing of military officers because we can not furnish good civilian agents.

Mr. GEORGE. The present salary, then, gets a splendid agent? Is there any danger of his resigning?

Mr. PADDOCK. Every laborer is worthy of his hire, and we have multiplied the duties of this one by three. As a matter of decency the salary should be raised.

Mr. GEORGE. Is the present agent not entirely willing to keep the agency at the present salary?

Mr. PADDOCK. That is a question which I can not answer. I do not know about it. I never asked him. Nor is that argument in this case. I know it would be only decent to moderately increase his salary after so largely adding to his labors and his responsibilities.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I offer a substitute for the amendment proposed by the Senator from Nebraska. I move to amend by striking out, on page 5, lines 7 and 8, and inserting:

At the Santee Agency the President is authorized to detail an army officer to take charge of said agency.

Then it will not require any appropriation at all, if there is to be economy.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from South Dakota will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out lines 7 and 8, on page 5, as follows:

At the Santee Agency, at $1,200.

And insert:

At the Santee Agency the President is authorized to detail an army officer to take charge of said agency.

Mr. MANDERSON. That is a very excellent amendment, and I think I shall propose it, when the proper time comes, to all the agencies in South Dakota, where I know it will meet with the approval of the Senator. [Laughter.]

CONSIDERATION OF THE CALENDAR.

Mr. DOLPH. Before the roll is called on the amendment I wish the Senator having charge of the bill would give way to me to make a request for unanimous consent, for I am afraid it may disclose that we are not in a condition to proceed with business.

Mr. DAWES. What is the request?

Mr. DOLPH. I desire to request that after this bill is concluded the Calendar under Rule VIII shall be taken up for two days.

Mr. DAWES. To-night?

Mr. DOLPH. No, after this bill is concluded, that the Calendar be taken up and proceeded with for two days.

Mr. PADDOCK. I shall accede to that with all my heart.

Mr. BUTLER. The request seems to be unanimous, but will the consent be?

Mr. ALLISON. I will agree to the request of the Senator from Oregon if he will except the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, which I think will be ready early next week, and which I am very anxious to get out of the way.

Mr. DOLPH. I will modify my request that the Calendar under Rule VIII be taken up after the conclusion of the pending bill, subject to the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, and proceeded with for two days.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Oregon? The Chair hears none.

INDIAN APPROPRIATIONS.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 5974) making appropriations for current and contingent expenses and fulfilling treaty stipulations with Indian tribes for fiscal year ending June 30, 1893.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The pending question is on the amendment submitted by the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON], in line 7, on page 5, to strike out "two hundred" and insert "five hundred," so as to make the salary of the agent at the Santee Agency $1,500, on which the yeas and nays have been demanded.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I should like to know if my amendment is not in order first?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is not in order at present until the amendment of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON] is passed upon.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. GEORGE. I should like to have the pending question stated.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will report the amendment proposed by the Senator from Nebraska.

The SECRETARY. On page 5, line 7, it is proposed to strike out "two" and insert "five;" so as to read:

At the Santee Agency, at $1,500.

Mr. GEORGE. Instead of $1,200.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The roll will be called.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MANDERSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN]. I should vote "yea" if he were present.

Mr. WILSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT]. I therefore withhold my vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. PASCO. I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CASEY]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

Mr. CALL. I am paired generally with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROCTOR]. I am told, however, that I may properly vote on this question, and I vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 19, nays 30; as follows:

YEAS—19.

So the amendment was rejected.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question now is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. PETTIGREW].

Mr. CULLOM. Pending that, I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 4 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, April 1, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, March 31, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration—

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman rise with respect to the Journal?

Mr. WATSON. No, sir.

Mr. McMILLIN. We want to go on with the consideration of the revenue bill.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the Journal as read will be approved.

There was no objection, and the Journal was approved.

FRANCIS TILLMAN, DECEASED.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of Francis Tillman, deceased, against the United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

COURTS OF THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following request of the Senate:

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the President be requested to return to the Senate the bill (S. 2467) to fix the terms of holding courts in eastern district of Texas.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, this request of the Senate will be complied with, and that bill returned to the Senate. There was no objection.

RETURN OF BILL TO THE SENATE.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following Senate resolution:

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the President be requested to return to the Senate the bill (S. 1654) to punish the unlawful appropriation of the use of the property of another in the District of Columbia.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the House will proceed to the present consideration of this resolution, and the question is on concurring in the resolution.

Mr. BURROWS. What is the resolution? Simply for return of a matter?

The SPEAKER. It is simply a request from the Senate and the House to the President to return a bill.

Mr. BURROWS. I have no objection.

The resolution was agreed to.

ALLOTMENT IN SEVERALTY TO SOUTHERN UTE INDIANS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following concurrent resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the President be requested to refrain from allotting in severalty the lands of the present reservation of the Southern Ute Indians pending legislation in the present Congress respecting the removal of said Indians to another reservation.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the bill (S. 2767) to include lot numbered 53, in block 89, at Hot Springs, Ark., in the public reservation at that place; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

BRIDGE ACROSS ILLINOIS RIVER AT HAVANA, ILL.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (S. 1935) to establish a railway bridge across the Illinois River, between a point at or near the city of Havana, in Mason County, and a point on the opposite side of said river, in Fulton County, in the State of Illinois; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted, as follows:

To Mr. COBB of Missouri, for one week, on account of important business.

To Mr. ALDERSON, indefinitely (at the request of Mr. PENDLETON), on account of sickness.

SIGNAL STATION OF TYBEE ISLAND, GEORGIA.

Mr. LESTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the joint resolution (H. Res. 69) authorizing the use of the martello tower, on Tybee Island, Georgia, for a signal station.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the resolution, after which the Chair will ask if there be objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized to permit the use of the martello tower, on Tybee Island, Georgia, by telegraph, or telephone companies, for a signal station to report passing vessels, under such conditions as he may deem proper to protect the interest of the United States.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. DINGLEY. Reserving the right to object, I would like an explanation of the bill.

Mr. McMILLIN. If this is to result in any lengthy discussion, I shall have to object.

Mr. LESTER of Georgia. I will state to the gentleman that the object sought is set forth in the report.

The report (by Mr. LESTER of Georgia) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which was referred the joint resolution (H. Res. 69) authorizing the use of the martello tower, on Tybee Island, Georgia, for a signal station, submit the following report:

Gen. Thomas L. Casey, brigadier-general, Chief of Engineers, says in regard to this joint resolution that—

"The commercial interests of Savannah will be benefited by the exercise of the authority which this resolution proposes to give the Secretary of War."

The passage of the resolution will involve no expenditure from the Treasury of the United States.

And for all the reasons assigned your committee recommend that the resolution do pass.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this resolution? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The question was taken, and the resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. LESTER of Georgia, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

WARES OF FOREIGN EXHIBITORS AT WORLD'S FAIR.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the Committee on Patents to ask unanimous consent of the House to take up for immediate consideration the bill (S. 2315) to protect foreign exhibitors at the World's Columbian Exposition from prosecution for exhibiting wares protected by American patents and trade-marks.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the bill, after which the Chair will ask if there be objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That no citizen of any other country shall be held liable for the infringement of any patent granted by the United States or of any trade mark or label registered in the United States where the act complained of is or shall be performed in connection with the exhibition of any article or thing at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the Senate bill?

Mr. BURROWS. I would like to inquire of the gentleman from South Carolina whether that bill has been considered by his committee?

Mr. TILLMAN. It has, sir; and the committee has unanimously recommended its adoption by the House. I will explain, Mr. Speaker, in two or three minutes—

Mr. BURROWS. I have no objection, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the Senate bill? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. TILLMAN, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. McCOOK, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bill and joint resolution of the following titles:

Mr. MITCHELL, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported the following resolution, and moved that it be referred to the Committee on Appropriations; which was agreed to:

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid to William H. Clagett, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $4,000, in full compensation for his time and expenses in prosecuting his claims to a seat in the Senate as Senator from the State of Idaho.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. PEPPER introduced a bill (S. 2810) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to exchange legal-tender Treasury notes, in excess of amount now in use, for all or any part of the interest-bearing debt of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. FELTON (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2811) to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to promote the industry of raising and ungumming fiber from fibrous plants; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. FELTON. I ask that the bill be not printed unless the committee may think it necessary.

Mr. FAULKNER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2812) to provide for a change of grades and the opening of streets in that part of the District of Columbia lying outside of the city of Washington bounded by Sixteenth street extended, Eighteenth street extended, Florida avenue, and Columbia road; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. BRICE (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2813) granting an increase of pension to Lucy Ord Mason, widow of Lieut. John S. M., late of the United States Army; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2814) granting a pension to Russell N. Reynolds; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2815) for the relief of Capt. D. F. Callinan, United States Army; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 2816) for the relief of Capt. John T. Bruce, late of Tenth Independent Battery, New York Volunteers; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PROCTOR (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2817) for the relief of Prof. Peter Collier; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DANIEL introduced a bill (S. 2818) for the erection of a tower on the new public building in Norfolk, Va., for the use of the Weather Bureau; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 2819) appropriating funds for investigations and tests of American timber; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill (S. 2820) to correct the military record of James Corridon, Fourth United States Infantry; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. ALLEN introduced a bill (S. 2821) to ratify and confirm an agreement between the Payallup Indians and the Northern Pacific Railroad Company for right of way through the Payallup Indian Reservation; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. DANIEL introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 69) declaring the true intent and meaning of the act of March 2, 1891, directing the refunding of all moneys collected under the direct tax levied by act of Congress in the year 1861, and amendatory acts thereto; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

EMPLOYMENT OF PERSONS NOT CITIZENS.

Mr. GALLINGER. On the 14th day of December last I introduced a bill (S. 770) for the better protection of the public service; which, on my motion, was laid on the table. I now move that the bill be taken from the table and referred to the Committee on Civil Service and Retrenchment.

The motion was agreed to.

THE FINANCIAL SYSTEM.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a resolution coming over from a previous day.

The CHIEF CLERK. Resolutions by Mr. MORGAN directing the Committee on Finance to make examination and report to the Senate certain information in relation to currency and coinage.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions will be read.

Mr. MORGAN. I do not wish to call up these resolutions for action to-day. I prefer that they should go over until Monday.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions will go over.

MICHAEL O'BRIEN.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further morning business, the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order; and the first bill on the Calendar will be proceeded with.

The bill (S. 639, granting an increase of pension to Michael O'Brien was announced as first in order; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration. It proposes to place on the pension rolls the name of Michael O'Brien, late major and brevet lieutenant-colonel of Sixth California Volunteer Infantry, at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of his present pension of $30 per month, he being totally incapacitated from performing any manual labor whatsoever.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THE PORT OF OGDENSBURG, N. Y.

Mr. HISCOCK. I wish to ask consent to call up the bill (H. R. 610) extending the privileges of the first and seventh sections of the act approved June 10, 1880, governing the transportation of merchandise without appraisement, to the port of Ogdensburg, in the State of New York. The necessity for early action is that it is the opening of the spring business, and it is very necessary that the bill should be passed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FAULKNER in the chair). Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH FRANCIS.

Mr. HOAR. I ask unanimous consent of the Senate that Mr. Joseph Francis, who has received the thanks of Congress as the inventor of the Life-Saving Service, who is 81 years old, and who marched in 1812 with a company to the defense of the seacoast, being then a lad of 12 years old, be admitted to the floor of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Massachusetts? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

Mr. HARRIS. I move that when the Senate adjourns to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

The motion was agreed to.

INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. DAWES. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 5774) making appropriations for current and contingent expenses and fulfilling treaty stipulations with Indian tribes for fiscal year ending June 30, 1893.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. PETTIGREW].

Mr. MANDERSON. Let it be read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be read.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 1, page 5, it is moved to strike out lines 7 and 8 in the following words:

At the Senate Agency, at St. Paul.

And insert in lieu thereof:

At the Senate Agency the President is authorized to detail an army officer to take charge of said Agency.

Mr. MANDERSON. Mr. President, if I supposed that this amendment was one that was moved in all candor and perfect good faith, I would feel like congratulating the Senator from South Dakota upon this evidence of generous and broad-minded statesmanship. It is evidence, if it is evidence of anything perfectly fair, that he has become a convert to the views expressed by the House of Representatives in the bill that has come to the Senate, and in the views maintained by a majority of this body on a year-and-a-half vote.

I feel, however, that I must be excused if I suggest that I believe this is more in the nature of what might be called parliamentary condemnation of the action of a majority of this body than anything else. If I believed that the amendment was moved with a design to accomplish the purpose at which it is aimed, I should feel like going along with my brother from South Dakota and extending this very excellent remedy to all of the Indian agencies, and I would move to amend the amendment by providing that immediately, as soon as the machinery could be put in motion, all civilian Indian agents should give way, in the interest of a better government and in the interest of a better treatment of the Indians themselves, to army officers who might be detailed to the performance of this duty.

But having the views I have expressed, I do not feel like moving that amendment, because both the amendment and this amendment would be contrary to the rules of the Senate. The Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] day before yesterday, I think, raised the point of order as to the paragraph that was proposed to be stricken out by the Committee on Appropriations, and the Chair very properly, I think, ruled, and the almost unanimous opinion of the Senate seemed to be, that it was not subject to the point of order, because while it was legislation upon an appropriation bill it was legislation which had been placed there by the House of Representatives, and coming in that form it could not be stricken from the bill on any point of order.

But I submit that the pending amendment is certainly in the nature of legislation upon an appropriation bill, and I therefore make the point of order against it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair is of opinion that the point of order made by the Senator from Nebraska is well taken. The Chair sustains the point of order.

petition of David Ballingall and 64 other citizens, of Philadelphia, Pa.; the petition of Solomon B. Mack and 113 other citizens of Pavia, Pa.; and the petition of H. B. Pearce and 46 other citizens, of Irwona, Pa., praying for the passage of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the States from passing any law respecting an establishment of religion or making an appropriation of money for any sectarian purpose; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Candler, president, members of the faculty, and 260 students of Emory College, Oxford, Georgia, praying for the closing of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday, the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors on the grounds, and the management of the art department according to the American standard of purity in art; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. VEST presented the petition of L. C. Humphrey and other citizens of Cass County, Mo., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch anti-temple bills; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. COCKRELL presented a petition of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Clinton, Mo., praying for the closing of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday and the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors on the grounds; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. SAWYER presented a petition of the faculty of Ripon College, Wisconsin, praying that the World's Columbian Exposition be closed on Sunday, and that no intoxicating liquors be sold on the grounds; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a petition of citizens of Dunn County, Wis., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch anti-temple bills; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. MANDERSON presented a memorial of citizens of Scotia, Neb., remonstrating against the passage of a general bankruptcy law; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Arnold, Neb., and a petition of citizens of Kearney, Neb., praying for an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting any legislation by the States respecting an establishment of religion or making an appropriation of money for any sectarian purpose; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. HARRIS presented the petition of T. D. Wilson and other citizens of Madisonville, Tenn., praying for the passage of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting any legislation by the States respecting an establishment of religion or making an appropriation of money for any sectarian purpose; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. COKE presented a petition of citizens of Mason County, Tex., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch anti-temple bills; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of citizens of San Antonio, Tex., praying for the passage of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting any legislation by the States respecting an establishment of religion or making an appropriation of money for any sectarian purpose; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. BLACKBURN presented a memorial of sundry citizens of Kentucky, remonstrating against the passage of a general bankruptcy law; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the Legislature of Kentucky, praying that the franking privilege be extended to the commissioners of agriculture of the several States; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills and joint resolutions; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (S. 898) establishing a port of delivery at Des Moines, Iowa;

A bill (S. 2315) to protect foreign exhibitors at the World's Columbian Exposition from prosecution for exhibiting wares protected by American patents and trade-marks;

A bill (S. 2643) changing the time for holding the circuit and district courts in the district of West Virginia;

A bill (H. R. 3867) to amend the act concerning officers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, and for other purposes; and

A joint resolution (H. Res. 115) amending the "Joint resolution to regulate licenses to proprietors of theaters in the city of Washington, D. C., and for other purposes," approved February 26, 1892.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them each with amendments, submitted reports thereon, and moved their reference to the Committee on Appropriations; which was agreed to:

A bill (S. 2733) to provide for the rebuilding of the bridge across Rock Creek at P street NW., in the District of Columbia; and

A bill (S. 2734) to provide for the rebuilding of the bridge across Rock Creek at K street NW., in the District of Columbia.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported an amendment intended to be proposed to the District appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. DOLPH, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them each without amendment:

A bill (S. 75) granting to the State of North Dakota certain lands heretofore set apart as a wood reservation for Fort Totten military reservation, for the use of the militia of North Dakota, and for other purposes; and

A bill (S. 2221) for the relief of Mary J. Neenan.

Mr. ALLISON. I am directed by the Committee on Appropriations, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6746) to provide for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, and for other purposes, to report it with amendments. I submit with the bill a written report, which I ask may be printed; and in this connection I desire to give notice that to-morrow morning I shall ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. HOAR, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 396) confirming titles to certain lands in Columbia County, State of Florida, asked to be discharged from its further consideration and that it be referred to the Committee on Public Lands; which was agreed to.

He also, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1615) to facilitate the disposition of causes in the Court of Claims, reported it with amendments.

Mr. HOAR. I desire an order of the Senate. I move that a letter of the Attorney-General relating to the subject of Senate bill 1615, which I will send to the desk, be printed as a document for the use of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. TELLER. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1958) to submit to the Court of Claims the title of William McGarrahan to the Rancho Panoche Grande, in the State of California, and for other purposes, to report it with amendments, favorably.

Mr. HOAR. I desire to state that I was absent from the sittings of the committee during most of the time when that bill was before it, and that since I have been able to attend I have been unable to give the subject the very extensive investigation which it requires. I therefore do not concur with the report at present, and reserve the right either to concur with it or to oppose it as I shall determine after examining the subject.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. HARRIS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2644) to authorize the Glen Echo Railroad Company to cross the Washington Aqueduct, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. WALTHALL, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 855) providing for the extension of the coal laws of the United States to the District of Alaska, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. CHANDLER, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1772) for the construction of a wooden dry-dock at the United States navy-yard at Portsmouth, N. H., reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. DAVES introduced a bill (S. 2822) to prescribe the manner in which individual Indian and tribal lands in the Puyallup Reservation in Washington may be alienated; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. PETTIGREW introduced a bill (S. 2823) for the relief of Mary Almarolia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. COLQUITT (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2824) regulating rates of postage on second-class mail matter at letter-carrier offices; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2825) to amend the postal laws so as to prevent certain classes of books from being transmitted through the mails as second-class matter; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. CARLISLE introduced a bill (S. 2826) to restore to Simpson County court, Kentucky, a certain amount of money illegally collected as an income tax; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. SANDERS introduced a bill (S. 2827) providing for the expenses of a commission to negotiate with the Crow Indians as to certain lands; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. WALTHALL introduced a bill (S. 2828) for the relief of L. M. Garrett; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. HANSBROUGH introduced a bill (S. 2829) granting to the State of North Dakota certain portions of the abandoned Fort Abraham Lincoln military reservation, together with the buildings thereon; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. GEORGE introduced a bill (S. 2830) to repeal section 714 of the Revised Statutes, allowing pensions to judges in certain cases; which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 2831) to promote the efficiency of the militia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. TELLER introduced a bill (S. 2832) for the relief of William P. Hogarty; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 2833) granting a pension to Wilson Rittenhouse; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2834) to amend section 2893 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 2835) to correct the military record of Thomas Amey; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. QUAY introduced a bill (S. 2836) for the relief of Hannah B. Crosmen, executrix; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. COCKRELL. I desire to introduce a bill granting a pension to James M. Ray. The bill is accompanied by the affidavits of J. A. Devinney, William Elledge, and Dr. T. B. Owings, and I move that it be referred to the Committee on Pensions.

The bill (S. 2837) granting a pension to James M. Ray was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill (S. 2838) for the relief of the legal representatives of Henry Wingate, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 71) authorizing the Secretary of War to loan certain guns to the Rensselaer County Soldiers and Sailors' Monument Association, of Troy, N. Y.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. PERKINS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the District of Columbia appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER BRIDGE AT MEMPHIS.

Mr. BERRY. I submit a resolution, which I ask to have read, printed, and lie over until to-morrow.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be directed to inform the Senate whether or not the Kansas City and Memphis Railway and Bridge Company, authorized by act of Congress approved April 24, 1888, to construct a bridge across the Mississippi River at Memphis, Tenn., have complied with that portion of said act which required such company to provide for a passageway for wagons and vehicles of all kinds and for the transit of animals.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will lie over until to-morrow.

NATIONAL SANITARIUM.

Mr. GALLINGER. I desire to give notice that on Monday next, at the close of the morning business, I shall ask the permission of the Senate to briefly address it on the joint resolution (S. R. 67) providing for the appointment of a commission to select a site for the establishment of a national sanitarium for the treatment of pulmonary diseases—not to interfere with the appropriation bills.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had on the 1st instant approved and signed the act (S. 444) granting to the State of South Dakota section numbered 36, in township numbered 94 north, of range number 56 west, in the county of Yankton, in said State, for the purpose of an asylum for the insane, to correct an act approved June 16, 1880, attempting to make such grant to the Territory of Dakota, and for other purposes.

THE FINANCIAL SYSTEM.

Mr. SHERMAN. As the Calendar is now in order, I desire to ask the Senate to consider a bill in which the farmers are largely interested. It is Senate bill 797, reported from the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. DAWES. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Before taking up that order—
Mr. SHERMAN. I ask the Senator from Massachusetts to let me get this bill through. If it takes any time I will not stand in the way of the appropriation bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is proper for the Chair first to lay before the Senate resolutions coming over from a previous day, which were submitted by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN]. The resolutions will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. Resolutions by Mr. MORGAN, directing the Committee on Finance to make examination and report to the Senate certain information in relation to currency and coinage.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I desire to give notice that at the close of the routine morning business on Wednesday I shall desire to address the Senate on the pending resolutions offered by the Senator from Alabama relative to the silver question.

Mr. SHERMAN. Will the Senator from Alabama yield to me?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Ohio?

Mr. MORGAN. For what purpose?

Mr. SHERMAN. I wish to have a bill passed to which I think there will be no objection and in regard to which there is some urgency. It will take but a moment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title of the bill will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 797) to provide for fixing a uniform standard of classification and grading of wheat, corn, oats, barley, and rye, and for other purposes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. MORGAN. That is a subject that must take up some time.

Mr. SHERMAN. I do not think there will be a single objection to the bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it be read for information and then we can tell.

Mr. MORGAN. If I can get the consent of the Senate to an understanding that at the close of the routine business to-morrow morning I can call up these resolutions, upon which I propose to submit some remarks, I will not get in the way of Senators this morning, particularly of the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, who wants to close the Indian appropriation bill, and which ought to be closed, of course. I ask the unanimous consent of the Senate that I may call up my resolutions to-morrow at the close of the routine morning business, and then that I shall be permitted to address the Senate upon them.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request made by the Senator from Alabama?

Mr. SHERMAN. I wish to make a qualification. I wish the Senate itself to understand the nature of this request. Under the rules, when a resolution goes over, the Senator introducing it has a right to call it up and to address the Senate upon it, but when it is interrupted by the expiration of the morning hour at 2 o'clock, it goes on the Calendar, and it can then be taken up only on motion. That is the rule, and if the Senator asks that by unanimous consent these resolutions shall stand in the way of all the morning business just so long as anybody desires to speak upon the prolific topic of the silver question I most respectfully object. But if he simply—

Mr. MORGAN. I most respectfully object to the Senator taking me off the floor to bring up a bill.

Mr. SHERMAN, from the Committee on Finance, to whom were referred the following bills, reported adversely thereon, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 2226) to prohibit national banks from receiving or paying interest on deposits made by national banks; and

A bill (S. 1589) to repeal section 3699 of the Revised Statutes which empowers the Secretary of the Treasury to anticipate interest upon the public debt.

Mr. SHERMAN, from the Committee on Finance, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. GEORGE on the 14th of February, 1892, instructing the Committee on Finance to report a bill requiring the issuing and keeping in circulation of legal-tender Treasury notes, reported adversely thereon, and the resolution was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (H. R. 1078) to pension Jane Allen; and

A bill (S. 1254) granting a pension to Anson Northrup.

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon, which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 1255) granting a pension to Catherine Creed; and

A bill (S. 1258) granting a pension to George W. Brant.

Mr. McMILLAN, from the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2604) to reclassify and prescribe the salaries of railway postal clerks, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 1671) granting an increase of pension to Everard Bierer; and

A bill (S. 1472) granting a pension to Mrs. Sarah Schafer.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1186) granting a pension to Joseph H. Welty, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1008) granting a pension to Abasha Risk, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1536) to increase the pension of Leroy Root, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. GALLINGER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 1528) to pension Samuel O. Fisher, of Lynn, Mass., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom the subject was referred, submitted a report accompanied by a bill (S. 2839) for the relief of the inhabitants of the town of El Reno, Okla.; which was read twice by its title.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1452) for the relief of the occupants of the town site of El Reno and to confirm the entry made by J. A. Foreman for the lands covered thereby, and for other purposes, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1573) granting a pension to Kate A. S. Connor, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. SHOUP, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1691) granting a pension to Josephine Q. Olley, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 231) granting arrears of pensions to P. Q. Healy, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

JOHN A. DEAN.

Mr. TURPIE. I am directed by the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2606) granting a pension to John A. Dean, to report it favorably, without amendment.

Mr. PASCO. I ask that that bill be taken up for immediate consideration. It is a very meritorious bill. The party in whose behalf the pension is proposed to be granted is a very old man.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for information.

Mr. DAWES. I hope the Senator from Florida will not insist upon the consideration of the bill at this time.

Mr. PASCO. It will not take a moment. If it takes any time I shall not insist upon it.

The Chief Clerk read the bill as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John A. Dean, a private in

Capt. Ledwith's company, Florida Mounted Militia, of the Seminole Indian wars of Florida, during the years A. D. 1839 and 1840, and in the later Indian wars in that State.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

REPORTS OF BUREAU OF ANIMAL INDUSTRY.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am instructed by the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 56) providing for the printing of the eighth and ninth annual reports of the Bureau of Animal Industry, for the years 1891 and 1892, to report it with certain amendments, that I will state to the Secretary. I ask for the present consideration of the joint resolution.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the joint resolution, and, there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

Mr. MANDERSON. I move to fill the blanks in the first section by inserting in line 6, "thirt" before "thousand," and in line 7 "twenty-seven" before "thousand;" so as to make the section read:

That there be printed 50,000 copies of the eighth and ninth annual reports of the Bureau of Animal Industry for the years 1891 and 1892, of which 13,000 copies shall be for the use of members of the Senate, 27,000 copies for the use of members of the House, and 10,000 copies for the use of the Secretary of Agriculture; the illustrations to be executed under the supervision of the Public Printer, in accordance with the directions of the Joint Committee on Printing, the same to be subject to the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Mr. COCKRELL. Why make a variance of only a thousand? Why not put it at 26,000 for the House of Representatives and preserve the usual proportion?

Mr. MANDERSON. This was fixed for the reason that it leaves 10,000 for the use of the Secretary of Agriculture. The Senator from Missouri will remember that when the general printing bill was under consideration the Senate changed the number of this report to be printed to this exact number.

Mr. COCKRELL. This, then, corresponds with that bill?

Mr. MANDERSON. It simply conforms to that bill?

Mr. COCKRELL. Very well.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MANDERSON. I move to strike out the second section of the joint resolution.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to strike out the second section, in the following words:

SEC. 2. That the sum of $—, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to defray the cost of printing and binding said reports, the two reports to be bound in one volume.

Mr. MANDERSON. I do this so that the form may be changed from a joint to a concurrent resolution. The provision of the general statutes requires that printing for Congress shall be done by concurrent resolution. Congress has frequently departed from this rule where the measure was self-appropriating. Then of course it must assume the form of a joint resolution; but the committee have thought it best (and after consultation with the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations I find that he agrees with the committee in that view) that the printing of Congress had better be done by concurrent resolution, perhaps with the exception of the printing of the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture, which always involves a large amount of money, because we print more than half a million copies of that report, and that the appropriation had better be made for all the printing in the general appropriation bill. For that reason I propose to change the form of this resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment striking out the second section.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PADDOCK. I simply desire to ask my colleague if any reduction in the report as to the number was made by the committee.

Mr. MANDERSON. None whatever. We propose the printing of 50,000 copies by the distribution that is made.

I move that the form of the resolution be changed from a joint to a concurrent resolution by striking out the resolving clause and putting in the proper words at the beginning of the resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Nebraska, to strike out the words "Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled" and inserting "Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring)."

The amendment was agreed to.
